Fall Automotive Care

Fun, Small Cars; AC Leaks, Turbo Chargers

Ask John Paul, AAA's Car Doctor

Question: I know you help people who are confused choosing a new car. I am looking for something small but it needs to be fun. I am looking at the Mini Cooper, Fiat 500 and Honda FIT. Of these cars, which would you pick?

Answer: If I was looking for practicality, dependability and good fuel economy I would choose the Honda FIT. If I wanted something with a bit more style and sharper handling I would look at the Mini Cooper. As good as the Fiat 500 is the Mini Cooper is just a little more poised and polished.

Question: My 2002 Hyundai Elantra will start and run but my power windows, air conditioner and radio won't work. What do you think could be wrong and how do I fix it?

Answer: You need to start with the most basic of diagnostics. Start with a check of all the fuses. Once you have checked the fuses and fusible links, then I would suggest getting a wiring diagram for your car. With the wiring diagram you can check the individual circuit for each component that isn't working.

Question: I had the computer on my 2003 Dodge Intrepid replaced recently. This was the second time. I now notice that the engine revs occasionally. It sounds like another car has pulled along beside you. I took it to the garage twice, but they can't duplicate it the problem so they can't fix it. What are your thoughts on this?

Answer: It is very difficult for a technician to fix a problem that is intermittent. There are several issues that could cause a high idle. Since you have had two computers put in, the first place I would want to check is the ground circuit for the computer. A poor ground can have a variety of effects on overall drivability.

Question: I have been trying to find a leak in my cars air conditioner all summer. I have tried dye and even spent money at a shop to have their air conditioning specialist look at it and he couldn't find anything. Do you have any ideas?

Answer: I have talked to several technicians that have faced similar problems and have gone to a low tech approach to find some leaks. Recently, one technician I was speaking with recharged a problem air conditioner system and sprayed down all the hoses and connections with soapy water. For some reason the soapy water found a leak that dye and electronic testing equipment missed. Although I have never been a big proponent of "repair in a can", several people have told me that have had good luck with a product called Super Seal by A/C Pro.

Question: My son's 2007 Mazda CX7 is on its third motor valve job. The latest is under warranty.

The first was at 60,000 miles by the dealer, the second at 120,000 miles and the third at 123,000 miles by a local mechanic. The local mechanic handling the 2nd and 3rd valve job said that the turbo blew and it is a normal problem and that I will have to pay approximately $2,000 for the turbo replacement. What is the relationship of the turbo to the engine problems? Should the turbo have been replaced as part of the 1st and 2nd jobs?

Answer: The turbo charger certainly should have been inspected as part of the engine work that was being performed. The cost of the turbocharger is $1300 and it takes about five hours labor to install it, so $2000 sounds about right. Mazda has issued more than one technical service bulletin regarding cylinder-head and turbo charger issues.

Kids, Cars And College

reminders so both are aware of any upcoming required maintenance or services.

The school year spans the winter months when inclement weather can place added demands on vehicle electrical systems. The average lifespan of a car battery is three to five years, so AAA recommends that any battery in this age range be checked before the student leaves for school. In many areas, the AAA Mobile Battery Service will come to a member's home and provide this service at no charge.

Find a Repair Facility Near College

It is important for parents to help teens identify an auto repair shop they can trust near their school in case routine servicing or unexpected repairs become necessary.

If unfamiliar with the area around a college, visit AAA.com/Repair to locate nearby AAA Approved Auto Repair facilities. As a free public service for all motorists, AAA inspects auto repair shops around the country and only approves those that meet and continually maintain high professional standards for equipment, customer service, cleanliness and training.

When first arriving at the college, AAA recommends parents and students visit the selected repair shop and meet the staff. Ask for some shop business cards that you and your teen can keep handy in case an emergency arises.

Prepare for Roadside Emergencies

It is also important for parents to prepare their children for a breakdown or other roadside emergency – especially if they are attending college too far away to 'call home' for help.

Make sure the teen's vehicle has a well-stocked roadside emergency kit with contents suitable for local weather conditions during the school year. A basic kit should include a flashlight with extra batteries, jumper cables, first-aid kit, bottled water, rags or paper towels, a tire pressure gauge, a blanket, granola or energy bars, and a selection of basic hand tools. In areas with winter ice and snow, add an ice scraper, snow brush and kitty litter or other material to increase traction if stuck in snow.

For added peace of mind, provide the teen membership in a motor club such as AAA that offers reliable roadside assistance through a large dedicated network of service providers with good coverage in and around the college. Remember, AAA's many benefits are available to members no matter whose vehicle in they are in, so parents won't have to worry about their teen being stranded in a friend's vehicle with no access to emergency road service.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Saturday, October 5, 2013, at approximately 8:00 P.M., Officers' Timothy Simmons and Lauren Lambert were dispatched to Mari's Place at 35 Washington Street on a call of a man in the basement who didn't belong there. Upon arrival, Officer Simmons interviewed the caller, who identified himself as an employee in the building. He stated that he was outside in the back area of the building when he saw an unknown male walk up the stairs from the basement of the building. This male told the employee, "Please don't tell anyone. I'll pay you $20.00. What is your cell (phone) number?" The employee walked away and then called the Police. The employee told the Officers that he believed that the male suspect was still in the basement. Officer Simmons walked down the stairs to the basement and found an open door leading to a dark hallway. The Officer, using his flashlight, illuminated a dark corner and spotted a male who he knew from numerous encounters and arrests in the Quincy Square area.

Officer Simmons immediately handcuffed the suspect and asked him if there was anyone else in the basement. The suspect hesitated to respond to the question, however, two more males then emerged from one of the darkened rooms. Both males were known to Officer Simmons from past arrests and incidents. Both males were ordered to sit on the floor and they complied. At this time, Officers' Lambert, Bruce Tait and William O'Neill arrived on scene. Due to the confined dark area, the two males were also handcuffed and then led out of the basement. Officer Simmons returned to the basement area to see if others were hiding. The basement was a "common area" available to all merchants in the building and there were individual wooden doors that led to the various businesses upstairs. They include the Quincy Market Convenient store, Mari's Place and other businesses that were closed for the evening. The basement is used as storage for the businesses and it is where the heating systems, which utilize copper piping, are housed. Officer Simmons questioned the first male he encountered, who claimed that the owner of one of the businesses gave him permission to be in the basement. The other two males said that the first suspect told them that it was "ok" to be there. While the suspects were detained, Officer Simmons contacted the property manager of the building to explain the incident. The property manager said that the basement access door is always locked and the three men did not have permission to be there. He said he was also concerned that the men were hiding out with the intent to break into the businesses or steal other property from the basement once all of the businesses were closed for the evening. The three suspects, two from Quincy and one from Boston, ages 24 to 35, were transported to the station for booking and charged with, "Breaking and Entering in the Nighttime and Intent to Commit a Felony." In addition, one suspect was also charged with, "Possession of Class E Drug" after16 Provigil pills were found in an unlabeled pill bottle during the booking search. Earlier on this same date, the two Quincy suspects were involved in a trespass incident in Quincy Square. The two men were seen on video leaving a building after vandalism was discovered - the spreading of feces all over a sink and urinal area. Later in the day, Officer Brandolini trespassed both males from the building after witnesses to the vandalism identified the suspects. One of the Quincy suspects has seven open charges in Quincy Court and was in possession of a hypodermic needle. The other Quincy suspect has five open charges in Quincy Court. Nice Work!

LT. DAN MINTON

Davis/Bromfield Street area break-ins: during the day. Two suspects were seen leaving a home after gaining access by pushing in the air conditioner. Suspects are described as white males in the twenties. As always, don't wait to report suspicious activity. Call "911" to report suspicious activity in your neighborhood.

THANKS TO: the citizen on Centre Street who observed a male looking into the windows of his neighbor's house and called the Police immediately. Officers Cooper and Powers caught the suspect in the area and quickly made the arrest.

THANKS TO: the Postal worker who observed a suspect come out from behind a Warren Avenue residence with a bicycle and walk away. His quick call to Quincy Police led to Officers making an arrest for "Breaking and Entering in the Daytime."

Blessing Of The Animals At Union Church Sunday

Union Congregational Church will hold its third annual Blessing of the Animals Sunday, Oct. 20 at 12:30 p.m. on the lawn of the Church, corner of Beach Street and Rawson Road.

The public is invited to bring their furry or feathered friends to the church for a blessing. All pets should be on leashes, in carriers or in cages.

Services of "Blessings of Animals" go back to the earliest days of the church. They were especially important in the days of yore when people depended on their animals for their livelihood and daily living. While today no one in metro Boston depends on animals for daily living, many depend on them for comfort and companionship in our fast paced and often lonely world.

The Service will be led by Pastor John Swanson and will include Psalms and Bible Readings appropriate for the event. Light refreshments will be served.

For more information, call the Church Office at 617-479-6661.

The forum will include a screening of the critically acclaimed documentary "Gen Silent" that follows six LGBT seniors over the course of a year as they navigate the health care system in the midst of what the film calls an epidemic: gay, lesbian, bisexual or transgender older people so afraid of discrimination by caregivers or bullying by other seniors that many simply go back into the closet.

The forum is part of the fall series "Open and Affirming Conversations" hosted and sponsored by Good Shepherd Lutheran Church. It is free and the public is invited.

Parking is available in the lot off of Harvard Street. The church is handicapped accessible. Members of the congregation will provide light refreshments.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The high standards you set for yourself don't always translate into the behavior you expect of others. That relationship problem can be resolved if you're more flexible and less judgmental.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Not enough party bids to satisfy the Bovine's fun-loving side this week? Go ahead and throw one of your own. Then prepare for some serious work coming up early next week.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A new and intensely productive cycle is about to kick in. Be careful not to get too stressed out, though. Make time to restore your energies by relaxing with family and friends.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This could be a good time to share some of your plans with those closest to you. Their comments could give you some added insight into how you might accomplish your goals.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) An attack of self-doubt might be unsettling for the usually super-assured Feline. But it could be your inner voice telling you to hold off implementing your plans until you've reassessed them.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a great time for you to reward yourself for all your hard work by taking a trip you haven't spent months carefully planning, to somewhere you never thought you'd be going.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Some misunderstandings resist being resolved. But your sincerity in wanting to soothe those hurt feelings wins the day. By month's end, that relationship should begin to show signs of healing.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A hectic job schedule begins to ease just in time to blow off all that work-generated steam on Halloween. A family situation runs into an unexpected complication.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A cutting remark in the workplace needs to be handled with finesse. Remember: How you respond could determine the depth of support you gain from colleagues.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Once again, that Capricornean stubborn streak sets in and could keep you from getting much-needed advice. Fortunately, it lifts by week's end, in time to make an informed decision.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A surprise trip early in the week could lead to other unexpected offers when you return. Word to the wise: Avoid talking too much about this until you've made some decisions.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Learning dominates the week for perspicacious Pisceans, who are always looking to widen their range of knowledge. A series of important job-linked commitments begins late in the week.
BORN THIS WEEK: Your sense of humor generates good feelings and good will everywhere you go.

Manets Coach, Mike Flavin got strong performances from Wilmer Duran, Epps, Christ Pham, Jason Lam, Hunter Schofield, Steinberg, Pat Deery and Sonny Cugini.

Coach Noel Dibona's Panthers were lead by Jackson Quinn, Ronin Contreras, Bryan Hanly, Robert Wilson, Joey Spano, Nick Cedrone, DaRosa, Mayberry, Cullen O'Connell, Domenic Laptiste Ryan Borretti, Jules Wiggins, Ramy Chebbo and Andrew Nickerson.

The Quincy Point Panthers (5-0-1) clinched the Myers Division title and #1 seat in the playoffs with the victory.

The Panthers face the Mustangs next Sunday at 2:30 p.m. and The Manets battle the Storm at 1 p.m.

The final game of the afternoon was a Desmond Division battle between the West Quincy Elks and The Storm.

The Elks got on the scoreboard first with a 1 yard TD run by Adam Vu. The conversion failed and the Elks lead the Storm 6-6-0 at the end of the first quarter. The Storm fired back when RB Max Storch scored on a 63 yard TD run to tie the game, 6-6. The Elks answered with long drive capped off by a 2 yard TD run by Adam Vu. PK Curtis Frazier booted the ball through the uprights for the conversion and the Elks now led, 14-6.

The Storm drove the ball down to the goal line and QB Tim Layden ran it in for a 3 yard TD. The conversion attempt failed as the Storm still trailed the Elks, 14-12. On the ensuing series, Storm DB Austin Currie recovered an Elks fumble at the 35 yard line but, time expired on the first half.

On the opening kickoff of the second half, Elks KR Davi Soares returned the ball 63 yards, down to the 6 yard line.

Three plays Later, RB Adam Vu scored his third TD of the day when he punched it in from 5 yards out. Later in the fourth quarter, the Storm had the ball 4th and goal from the 5 yard-line when Elks DT, J.J. Camara stopped Max Storch on a Goal line stand. Three plays later, RB Davi Sores broke free on an 82 yard TD run.

The Storm got the ball back with just second to go in the game, when Elks DB, Shorn Hawthorne intercepted the Storm passer to seal the victory 26-12 over the Storm. With the win, The Elks (5-1) clinched the Desmond Division title and a #1 seed in the QYFL playoffs.

Coach Michael Killilea's Storm squad played hard throughout this match-up. They were lead by Storch, Layden, Mark Monahan, Austin Currie, Andrew Airosus, Elmer Lainez, Antonio Allen, Cullen Walsh, Raphy Veras and Colin McGrath. Elks Coach Justin Thorley's squad was sparked by the play of Adam Vu, Davi Soares, Brian Nguyen (INT), Frazier, James Crump (12 tackles & fumble rec.), Hawthorne, Jamal Williams, Connor Ainsley, Michael Toldness, Anthony Rizzatano and Corey Shaw.

The West Quincy Elks (5-1) battle the North Quincy Apaches (3-3) next Sunday at 4 p.m. The Storm (2-3-1) faces the Hough Neck Manets at 1 p.m. at Veterans Stadium.

OBITUARY

MARY P. ALEXANDER

A Mass of Christian Burial for Mary Pauline "Polly" (Tibbetts) Alexander, 90, of Kingston and formerly Quincy was celebrated Monday at St. Mary's Church, Plymouth.

Mrs. Alexander died Oct. 10, peacefully, at the Inn at Silver Lake in Kingston.

Born in Boston, MA on Jan. 1, 1923, she was a daughter of the late Daniel F. and Alice E. (Morehouse) Tibbetts. She was educated in Boston and was a graduate of Boston Girls Latin High School. Mrs. Alexander had worked for many years as a service representative for both CNA Insurance Company and the John Hancock Bank and Trust until her retirement in 1988.

She and her husband, Al, were residents of Quincy for 60 years. They were members of St. John the Baptist Parish in Quincy and their five children all attended St. John's Elementary School. Mr. and Mrs. Alexander were devoted to each other and did everything together. They especially enjoyed gardening, but made time every day to take a long walk even when well into their 80s.

Mrs. Alexander was an avid reader, loved doing crosswords, was a talented knitter and an exceptional cook, often using the fresh organic vegetables grown in their own gardens. She was strongly dedicated to her family.

Devoted wife of 62 years to Alphonse Stanley Alexander who passed away in 2007. Loving mother of Anita P. Alexander of Duxbury, Jill M. Belastock and her husband Thomas of Kingston, Mark A. Alexander of Brockton, Dr. Stanley J. Alexander and his wife Jane Griffin of Hingham, and Christian M. Alexander of Boston. Dear sister of Patricia Duest of Monponsett, and sister-in-law of Regina Alexander of Braintree. Cherished grandmother of six grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Also survived by 16 nieces and nephews and 2 grand-dogs, whom she loved dearly.

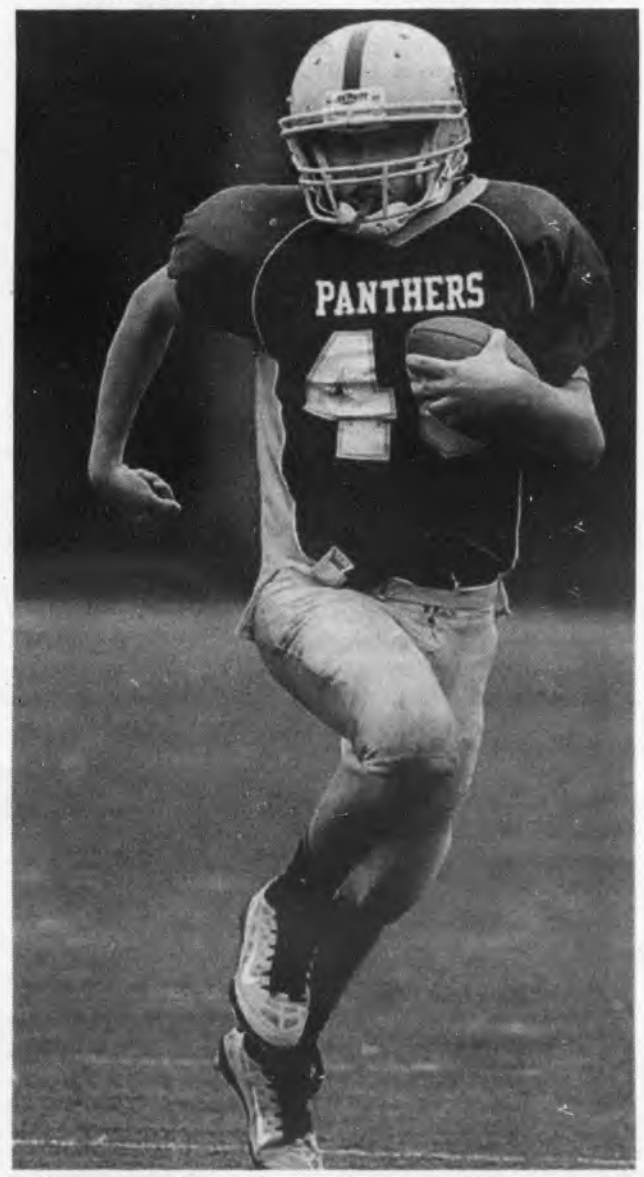

Funeral arrangements were made by Cartmell Funeral Home, Plymouth.

Memorial donations St. Anthony Shrine, 100 Arch St., Boston, MA 02110 or the Cranberry Hospice, Inc., 36 Cordage Park Circle, Suite 326, Plymouth, MA 02360.

Adams Green Work Starts Next Month

- Re-Signalized Traffic Signals
- Raised Crosswalks
- Bike Lanes • Wider Sidewalks

By SCOTT JACKSON

Preliminary work on Adams Green traffic improvements is expected to begin next month, with roadwork beginning next spring.

Traffic improvements – including re-signalized traffic signals, raised crosswalks, bicycle lanes, and widened sidewalks – are needed along portions of Hancock, Washington, and Granite Streets, among others, before the city can create the new Adams Green park between City Hall and the United First Parish Church.

The state Department of Transportation (MassDOT) is overseeing the traffic improvements, which are funded by an $8 million federal earmark. Kristina Johnson, the director of transportation planning for Quincy's Planning Department, told the City Council's downtown committee that MassDOT put the project out to bid over the summer, accepted the lowest bid when bids closed in September, and was finalizing contract documents. She added the initial work, including Dig Safe marking, will begin in November with construction starting in the spring.

"It's my understanding that the initial mobilization – we're talking Dig Safe, some initial staging – November," Johnson said. "You'll see bigger mobilization happening in spring 2014."

The project is being implemented in five phases that will each last between eight and 12 weeks, according to construction documents on the Planning Department's website. The first phase

Councillors Push For Synthetic Marijuana Ban

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new ordinance introduced at Monday night's City Council meeting would prohibit the sale, possession, or use of synthetic marijuana in Quincy.

Synthetic marijuana, also known as "spice" or "K2," contains plants laced with synthetic cannabinoids, chemicals that are said to mimic the effects of THC, the active ingredient in marijuana. Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, who introduced the ordinance along with Councillor Doug Gutro and Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes, said the use of synthetic marijuana is an increasing problem.

"It's a growing pandemic. These synthetic drugs are 100 times more dangerous than any natural marijuana. There's no control over them when they're made. They're packaged and sold in corner stores and gas stations. Their packaging – Scooby Doo, cartoon characters, whatever – is very enticing," Coughlin said.

"It's mostly teenagers getting into them – they believe they're legal drugs,

Enrollment Up At Elementary Schools

BY EMILY ARMSTRONG

The Quincy Public School System has seen a spike in enrollment at the elementary level with over 80 more students enrolled in full-day kindergarten compared to last year.

"We are up about 40 students system wide and this year's full-day kindergarten is up to a little over 800 children," said Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro. "We've seen a burst of enrollment at the lower level, especially at the kindergarten level."

Since opening full-day kindergarten in 2006 there has been an increase of 116 students enrolled. In 2006, there were 692 students in full-day kindergarten. That number jumped to over 700 kids in 2008 and the figures continue to climb.

Cost Could Keep Cable Competition Out

By SCOTT JACKSON

The cost of installing new cable lines in Quincy could keep new cable providers from doing business in the city.

The city is currently in the middle of a 10-year non-exclusive license with Comcast that expires in 2016. Councillors Doug Gutro, Kevin Coughlin and Brad Croall introduced a resolution at Monday night's council meeting asking representatives from other cable companies doing business in the state to appear before the council to gauge their interest in competing with Comcast in the city.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins said those companies, particularly Verizon, are unlikely to enter into new agreements because of the cost of installing new infrastructure. Verizon's FiOS cable service, which has been advertised heavily in recent years, runs on fiber optic cables that would need to be connected to every household in the city, regardless whether or not that household would switch to the service, before the company could start the FiOS service.

"The cost of that is around $1,500 per unit. One of the reasons Verizon stayed out of communities where there are a number of multi-families is because when you hit a three-family house, it costs you $5,000 to get that hooked up," Timmins said. "In eastern Massachusetts and really across the northeast, they've stayed out of big cities. That's why Boston doesn't have FiOS and we don't. They're rolling out the product in some of the smaller communities, they're trying to ramp it up and see how it all works."

Timmins also believes that Verizon would base their decision on whether or not to enter a new community by looking at how many cable subscribers switched to satellite service.

"I suspect they've also done an analysis of how entrenched Comcast is in the community by looking at how people might jump to available dish networks and whatnot. If they see Comcast is pretty well established that's another disincentive right now," Timmins said.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci asked Timmins if the city could provide incentives for Verizon to enter the Quincy market, including potentially giving them a break on property taxes they

'NO' On Four-Year Mayoral Term

The mayor's term: remain at two years or double it to four?

That's the question voters will be asked in less than two weeks when they go to the polls Tuesday, Nov. 5. Question 1 on the ballot is a binding question that asks if the length of the mayor's term should increase from two to four years.

The vote is binding and requires no other legislative approval.

If a majority of voters vote "YES" then the mayor's term will change to four years effective with the outcome of the 2015 election.

If a majority of voters vote "NO" then the term will remain at two years.

The Quincy Sun has historically opposed a four-year term.

And again we are opposed to it this time.

The matter basically boils down to accountability.

Allowing voters to judge the mayor's performance in office every two years.

And being able to weigh in on what direction the city is headed every two years.

This latest effort to double the mayor's term was led by the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. The chamber organized a citizens' initiative petition drive and collected the necessary signatures (some 2,900) to put the question on the ballot.

Chamber leaders maintain that a four-year mayoral term would allow the mayor three solid years of running the city before devoting time and resources to running for re-election in the fourth and final year of a term.

They also say a four-year term sends a clear message of stability and continuity to future investors and others who have a vested interest in rebuilding the city's sagging downtown.

We certainly applaud the efforts to redevelop Quincy Center. The Sun has been located in Quincy Center for 45 years and has seen its "glory days" as a thriving retail district and its struggles over the years. Anyone who has tried to earn a living, run a business and provide jobs in the city's largest retail district understands the importance of creating a vibrant new neighborhood in Quincy Center with a mix of residential and retail space.

We get that.

But the four-year term really isn't about the downtown.

And it's not a referendum on the current office holder, Mayor Thomas Koch, who is unopposed for a fourth two-year term this year.

It's not a reflection on any other mayor who has served the city, either.

Keeping the current two-year mayoral term is about giving residents and the taxpayers of Quincy the opportunity to have their voices heard on important city matters every two years at the ballot box.

Is there really any harm in that?

A few things to keep in mind when you go to the polls Nov. 5:

• There is no recall provision in the city charter. Some would say a two-year term is the mechanism for making a change in leadership in the mayor's office.

• The mayor of Quincy – under the strong A form of government – has many responsibilities and powers. They include most appointments in the city – including department heads and employees in the fire and police departments. Officials the mayor does not appoint include the city clerk and city auditor.

• The mayor has the reins over the city budget – overseeing all financial orders including appropriations, purchases and bond issues. The City Council can only cut from the city budget – the legislative body cannot add to it.

• The mayor also has the authority to enter into all contracts and leases.

Last week's Quincy Sun polled a host of past and present elected officials on the four-year term. Opinions were varied and opponents and supporters made valid points.

We also provided space in this column months ago to the Chamber who presented their case for a four-year term.

We should also point out that The Quincy Sun is a member of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and has been part of the business community since the early days of the former Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

We understand the Chamber's position and respect it.

But as the city's weekly newspaper that has long argued against a four-year term, we're not about to change our stripes now.

Two final points:

First: the city has had many good – some outstanding – mayors in its history. All have worked and governed under the parameters of a two-year term. And were able to accomplish goals while in office.

The system works and shouldn't be tinkered with.

Second: The mayor is arguably the one elected official in Quincy government who has the most impact on the quality of life in the city.

What happens if voters elect the "wrong" person to lead the city?

Could make for a very long four years.

VOTERS IN Montclair may want to keep tabs on the outcome of the mayor's race in Boston Nov. 5.

That's because a win by state Rep. Marty Walsh would necessitate a special election for his state representative seat.

And voters who live in Ward 3 Precinct 3 would be called on to help elect a new rep.

Walsh currently represents the 13th Suffolk District. Twelve of those precincts that comprise that district are in Boston. But the remaining precinct is in Quincy – Ward 3 Precinct 3.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said there are about 1,600 registered voters in Ward 3 Precinct 3.

And a special election to fill Walsh's seat would cost the city about $5,000, he says. That's about $3 per voter if all 1,600 voters turned out to the polls.

Shea believes this would be the first time a single precinct in Quincy would be part of a special election.

The last special election for state representative involving Quincy voters occurred in 1991. That's when Ron Mariano of Quincy and John McGlone of Weymouth vied for the Third Norfolk seat vacated by Bob Cerasoli. The Third District included multiple precincts in Quincy and Weymouth.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 real photo postcard view of the old Central Fire Station on the corner of High School and Quincy Avenues in Quincy Center. It was built in 1892 shortly after Quincy became a city and the state mandated that public buildings such as schools and fire stations had to be constructed of brick rather than wood. This brick building, built for horse-drawn equipment, was replaced with the present 75-year-old headquarters building on this site in 1938. It was one of many WPA projects in Quincy during the Great Depression. The previous fire headquarters building that served the community for almost 50 years was a Quincy granite building on School Street that originally was a school and later police headquarters. Of the eight fire stations in Quincy today, only the Wollaston Fire Station was originally built for horse-drawn fire apparatus as shown here. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

'Ward Gangs' To Fight Snow, Litter

By SCOTT JACKSON

Public Works Commissioner James J. "Pete" Ricciuti proposed bringing back 'ward gangs' in an effort to keep up with burgeoning for public works services such as cleaning up litter and repairing sidewalks.

Each gang, consisting of foreman and four or five other workers, would be stationed in one of Quincy's six wards year-round on a permanent basis. In times of a snow emergency, such as the blizzard that paralyzed the city for a week in February, each gang would be able to open up streets because of their knowledge of the area.

Ricciuti said the city used ward gangs, when the Highway Department was tasked with rubbish and garbage collection as well as other chores. Those crews remained active until the late 1950s.

"The ward gang in West Quincy, for instance, used to be stationed in the West Quincy Fire Station. Their tools were kept there. They'd report there in the morning, the foreman would read them in and take their time," Ricciuti explained.

"The machinery came in, like street sweepers, and someone made the decision we didn't need ward gangs anymore. They forgot that the more sophisticated the machine the more problems you have with breakdowns."

The first move in putting together the new ward gangs, Ricciuti said, would be to promote seven current public works employees to the position of foreman. That would cost the city less than $18,000 in salary per year, and no new workers would need to be hired immediately.

Mayor Arthur Tobin said he planned to put Ricciuti's plan into action by executive decision after the City Council approved the seven new foreman positions.

KENNEDY MEETS STUDENT EDITORS

U.S. Senator Edward M. Kennedy met with editors of student newspapers from throughout the South Shore at the offices of The Quincy Sun.

Among the student editors present were Katy Carlisle of Quincy High's Pony Express, Cindy Burgess and Kathy Mullaney of Quincy Junior College's the Challenge, and Bill Nichols and Dan Whitney of Eastern Nazarene's Campus Camera.

The main focus of the meeting was higher education. Kennedy said that of the top third of students, those in upper and middle income families had two times the chance of getting into college than students from low income families.

"You have to deal with the student on the basis of his talent and his ability and free him and his parents from the financial burden," Kennedy said.

'Hidden' Latest Novel For Retired Quincy Teacher, Principal

Thomas Hall Publishes Third Book

By SCOTT JACKSON

Former Atlantic and Broad Meadows Principal Thomas Hall has published three books since his retirement seven years ago, including his recently released novel Hidden.

Hall worked for 23 years in the Quincy Public School system, teaching at Quincy High before becoming a middle school principal. He left Quincy in the early 1990s to accept a position on Long Island, N.Y., and retired in 2006. He began writing novels following his retirement.

"I had always enjoyed writing but being a principal there was no time to do it so once I retired I did," Hall said. "But I never thought I could tackle a novel. I had done some short stories and things like that but then I was out working in the yard and this idea came into my head and I went in and wrote the first chapter and went from there."

His first novel, Something Else Entirely, was about a boy's commentary on the world as he grew up. Hall then wrote Spectrum, which he described as a love story. Those first two books were both self published. Following their publication, Hall signed a book deal with Arizona-based Brighton Publishing.

Hall's first book published by Brighton, Hidden is a suspense thriller. In it, FBI agent Craig Walker and Det. Dave Munoz search for missing six-year-old Eric Allen. Hall decided to write a detective novel because that's one of his favorite genres to read.

"I read a lot and I usually read suspense and thrillers and mysteries and those kinds of things. I decided I would try and tackle that and try and incorporate into the book all of the things I like to read. I like suspense but I also like to have detectives and investigators figure out things – it doesn't just fall into their laps; they have to do some digging. I like to follow their thought process," Hall said.

"The book doesn't have a lot of description in it – I don't know what they had for breakfast or lunch in order to move the plot along so I really focused on the story."

All told it took about nine or ten months for Hall to work on Hidden.

"I don't write everyday. A lot of authors do that and have a set time. I don't think that's necessarily a good thing because some days you just don't feel like it. It took me nine or ten months, which really isn't too bad. I think I do things a lot differently than other people do in that I write the whole thing out in longhand and then I will type it into the computer and edit it after I've done that."

Since the book was released, Hall has received overwhelmingly positive feedback.

"I've been very pleased," Hall said. "[With] a small publishing firm like the one I'm with, that's what you have to depend upon. You have to depend on word of mouth more so than anything else."

Hidden retails for $12.95 in paperback and can be purchased online through retailers such as Amazon or can be ordered at local bookstores. An e-book version of the novel is also available. Like he did with his first two novels, Hall plans to donate a large portion of the royalties he receives to charity.

"My first two books I donated 100 percent of royalties to charity and if this happens to do well I'll donate a substantial portion to charity as well. I didn't do this to make money. I enjoy it – I can't say all the time when I'm in the middle of writing that I enjoy it, but there's a tremendous amount of satisfaction when you finish it," Hall said.

"For my first book for example there was a Borders close to me, of course there all shutdown now, but there was a Borders close to me and they were willing to stock it as a local author. It was pretty cool walking in and seeing your book on a bookshelf in a bookstore."

Hall is nearly finished with his fourth book, which will be a sequel to Hidden.

Civil Rights Activist Dr. John Perkins Speaker At Eastern Nazarene College

Noted civil rights activist Dr. John Perkins will speak at Eastern Nazarene College tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, located adjacent to the college campus at 23 E. Elm Ave. in Quincy.

Dr. Perkins' presentation is free and open to the public.

Sponsored by ENC's Office of Spiritual Development and Church Relations, the event will also feature a performance by the ENC Gospel Choir.

The son of a Mississippi sharecropper, Dr. Perkins and his wife founded Mendenhall Ministries in 1960 to help the poor in rural Mississippi meet their own needs. They later moved to Jackson, Miss., where they founded Voice of Calvary Ministries to provide urban families with youth programs, health care and affordable housing development.

Dr. JOHN PERKINS

In the 1980s, they moved to a crime-ridden neighborhood in Pasadena, Calif., where they established the Harambee Christian Family Center and the John M. Perkins Foundation for Reconciliation and Development, a non-profit organization aimed at advancing the principles of Christian community development and racial reconciliation.

In 1989, Dr. Perkins gathered a group of national Christian leaders together to form the Christian Community Development Association. Since then, CCDA has grown into a network of more than 700 organizations around the world.

'The Music Of Christmas' Theme For 61st Christmas Parade Dec. 1

The theme of this year's Quincy Christmas Parade will be "The Music of Christmas."

The winning theme, submitted by John and Peggy Kelly of Squantum, was selected by the Christmas Parade Committee out of 24 submissions in the annual theme contest.

The theme "The Music of Christmas" will play an important role in several key aspects of the parade. The theme will be used by all groups who create floats for the parade, and by the elementary school children of Quincy who participate in the poster contest conducted as part of the Christmas Festival pre-parade events.

School, civic groups, and others who register for participation in the parade float contest will have the use of the theme as a part of the judging criteria for the prizes awarded to the top floats.

The Kellys, whose favorite Christmas song is "White Christmas," won the theme contest as first-time submitters. They have been attending the parade for many years with their children, and now their grandchildren. As the parade theme winners, the Kellys will ride the three-mile route in one of the parade's many antique convertibles.

The 61st annual Quincy Christmas Parade will be held Sunday, Dec. 1.

Fallon Ambulance Honors Bobbie Arico, Theresa McQuade

Quincy residents Bobbie Arico and Theresa McQuade were among 30 employees of Fallon Ambulance Service recently honored for their record of accomplishment and longevity.

Arico, a 29-year veteran, and McQuade, a 24-year employee, were commended by Fallon Ambulance Service CEO Tim Fallon at the company's 90th anniversary held at the Steel n' Rye Restaurant in Milton.

The setting for the celebration is an interesting blend of present and past for the Fallon team. Now a thriving restaurant, the 95 Eliot Street location for many years served as the headquarters for Fallon Ambulance Service before the third-generation, privately-held family ambulance firm relocated to Quincy.

"In a society where most people statistically work for seven different employers during their careers, we are very fortunate to have Bobbie and Theresa who both exemplify such a strong commitment to our company," said Fallon Ambulance Service CEO Timothy Fallon said. "We are a stronger company because of their being part of our Fallon family."

Peter Racicot, Senior Vice President, added:

"Many of us who have been part of the Fallon Ambulance Service family for many years well remember working at 95 Eliot Street and it was a great homecoming – a chance to reflect on where our company has gone, and to see our old home in a new light," said

In addition to its long-time employees, a number of local and state officials were on hand to congratulate Fallon Ambulance on its anniversary and its many contributions to the region. Area officials who helped celebrate the company's 90 years of service included Weymouth Mayor Sue Kay; state Representatives Bruce Ayers, Tackey Chan; Brian Dempsey; and Ronald Mariano. Additionally, State Senators Kenneth Donnelly and John Keenan attended, as did Braintree Mayor Joseph Sullivan, and a number of area town selectmen and local officials.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Shirley's Hash Brown Treats

While having lunch with my friend Shirley, who is a wonderful cook, we were discussing several ways of cooking potatoes. They both include hash brown potatoes.

She used store bought hash browns, but they can also be made from scratch.

When I made them, I couldn't believe how easy and how wonderful to serve for breakfast.

HASH BROWN MUFFIN CUPS

1 package of hash browns, or two potatoes
Salt and pepper
1- tablespoon oil
Enough eggs for each tin depending on how many are made

If making from scratch, shred the potatoes on a cheese grater or a mandolin. Otherwise, thaw the package according to directions. Mix with the oil, salt and pepper.

In a greased muffin tin, spread the potatoes on all sides as you would if it was pie crust.

Bake in a 400-degree oven until brown and crispy. Remove from the oven and add an egg on top of each muffin tin.

Bake in a 400-degree oven for 10-15 minutes until the egg is cooked and voila – a gourmet treat.

The next one is one that Shirley makes often – a hash brown pancake with peppers.

1 package of hash browns (or two potatoes)
1 green pepper (diced)
1 red or yellow pepper (diced)
1 small onion (chopped)
3 tablespoons oil
Salt and pepper to taste

In the hot oil, sauté the onion and peppers for a couple of minutes. Add the hash browns and blend together. Cook uncovered on slow heat until crispy on sides and then slice like pie. If you use potatoes, shred on a cheese grater or mandolin.

Fish Piccata

I have made chicken Piccata dozens of times, but I had never made it with fish. We all know that certain fish can be bland without enhancing it with flavor.

When I made this entrée, it had the best flavor of all. I used medium sliced scrod, but haddock or cod or even flounder can be used.

FISH PICCATA

4 slices of scrod
1 egg mixed with milk for coating
Corm flake crumbs (or other preferred crumbs)
3 tablespoons oil for sautéing
For the sauce
¼ cup white wine
1 ½ cups fresh lemon juice
1- tablespoon capers

First coat the fish dipping it in the egg and milk and then the crumbs. Sauté them turning on both sides until golden brown. Set aside.

Empty the same pan used for the fish leaving just a bits and pieces on the bottom. Add as much butter as needed and heat. Add the fresh lemon juice and the capers, and cook until sauce is somewhat reduced.

When ready to serve the fish, pour the sauce over it. I think you will enjoy the sauce over the fish as well as the chicken.

of construction, phase 1A, is the demolition of traffic islands on Hancock Street and phase 1B is traffic circulation modifications, including new signage, curb installations, and temporary pedestrian crossings. Phase 2 of the project is additional traffic circulation modifications.

During phase 3A new sidewalks will be constructed on the odd numbered side of Hancock Street, the side City Hall is on, throughout the length of the construction zone. Phase 3B will see the installation of new sidewalks on the even side Hancock Street north of the United First Parish Church, in the area near Presidents Place, and along Coddington Street.

Phase 4A calls for construction of new sidewalks along Hancock Street on the even side south of the United First Parish Church, as well as on Temple Place and Chestnut Street. During phase 4B sidewalks work would take place around the Granite Trust Building at 1400 Hancock St. The final stage of the project, phase 5, is installation of new sidewalks along Granite and Washington Streets.

"It's not going to be implemented in one fell swoop – it can't be. MassDOT is fairly cognizant of the fact that their project is not happening in a vacuum, it's happening alongside a lot of other really large scale projects, including the redevelopment," Johnson told the downtown committee.

The roadway improvements are expected to take two years to complete, according to Johnson. Once completed traffic will flow in both directions on Temple Place and Washington Street next to the United First Parish Church, because Hancock Street in front of the church will be closed to make way for the park.

MassDOT is planning a preconstruction meeting in Boston to review the sequencing for the project, Johnson said. Councillor Doug Gutro, the committee chairman, said MassDOT should hold one in Quincy so Quincy Center business owners can attend, similar to the meeting the downtown committee held for the Merchants Row project.

"You always want to let the people who are most directly impacted understand what the nature of it and the sequencing of it is," Gutro said. "That's why we did a preconstruction meeting relative to Merchants Row."

Johnson said she would follow up on Gutro's request with the state agency, and explained that she met with many downtown business owners and landowners during the right-of-way process and briefed them on the project then.

"Through the right-of-way process we had to go out and talk to a lot of folks so that they could give us their permission to sign off on rights of entry," Johnson said. "I did a lot of sort of impromptu presentations. It was great – I got to get out into Quincy Center and talk to people, so this is not news to most folks. Most landowners and business owners have a sense as to what's going to be transpiring."

Design plans for the new Adams Green park are at the 25 percent phase, Executive Secretary Jim Fatseas said. Halvorson design is designing the park, working with a steering committee of city officials.

"The park design is at a very early phase," Fatseas said. "The steering committee is meeting with Halvorson. There's an education process, I think, during the 25 percent [phase] a lot of ideas are shared back and forth. Everything from feasibility to total scope of the project is discussed. The process is incredibly complex."

As part of the renovations ongoing at the old City Hall building, known formally as the James R. McIntyre Government Center, the area in front of City Hall that will comprise part of the new Adams Green has already been dug up.

The city is also in the process of reviewing designs for new statues of John Adams and John Hancock that will be placed in the park. New statues of Abigail and John Quincy Adams may also be added. A statue of John Adams in front of City Hall and one of Abigail and a young John Quincy Adams in front of the United First Parish Church will also be incorporated into the park's design.

Elementary Enrollment Up

Even with the increase of enrollment at the elementary level, class sizes have been kept to the school committee guidelines. Last year, there were 9,431 students throughout the Quincy Public School System and that number is also up nearly 40 students with 9,470 students enrolled in Pre-K to grade 12.

Kindergarten guidelines call for class sizes to be from 20-25 students and the average class size this year is 20 students with no classes exceeding the guidelines. In grades 1-3, the guidelines ask for 22-26 students per classroom and this year all grades have an average class size of 20 students, with no classes exceeding the guidelines.

In K-3 there are a total of 146 classes, 95 have 20 or fewer students, 34 have 21-22 students, 12 have 23 students, and five have 24 students.

In grades four and five guidelines ask for 24-28 students in each classroom. Grade four has an average class size of 19 students with no classes exceeding the set guidelines. Grade five has an average class size of 20 students with no classes exceeding the guidelines.

There are 68 sections in grades four and five, 47 of them have 20 or fewer students, 15 have 21-22 students, and six have 23-24 students. No sections exceed more than 24 students. At the elementary level last year, the average class size was 20 students.

Classroom guidelines for grades 6-8 require no more than 28 students in a class. Of the 338 sections, 145 have 20 or fewer students, 164 have 21-25 students and 29 have 26-28 students with no classes having more than 28 students.

Only three sections (classes) throughout the entire school system are exceeding the guidelines set forth by the school committee. Classrooms in grades 9-12 are asked to have 25-30 students; the three classes that exceed those guidelines are Intro to Criminal Justice, Honors College Accounting, and AP Psychology at Quincy High School. Those three classes have 31 students in them.

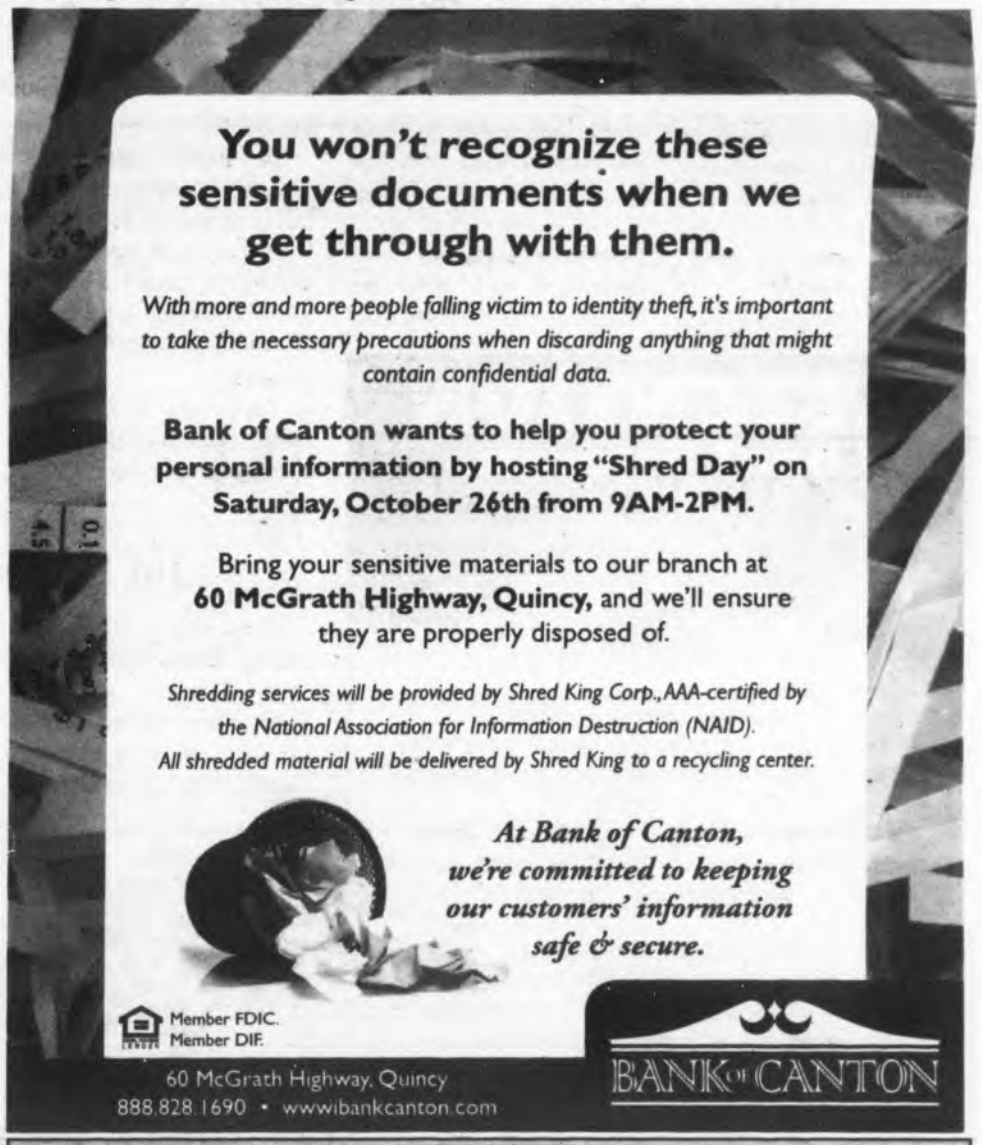

Last year, there were only two classes in the high school that exceeded the guidelines, both of which fell into the category of electives or honor courses.

There are 701 sections in grades 9-12 with 362 of those sections having 20 or fewer students, 249 sections with 21-25 students, and 126 sections with 26-30 students.

Quincy High has a total of 1,452 students not including the SSC students (Secondary School Certificate), and North Quincy High School has a total of 1,106 students not including the SSC students.

"High school enrollment is down. When we look at the electives at the high school level that is where we see some classes over 30 students. In classes such as computer classes and science labs each student has their appropriate equipment," said DeCristofaro.

"Class sizes this year, in general, throughout Quincy Public Schools is pretty flat," said DeCristofaro. "At the high school level enrollment was down and middle school was pretty flat. We did see an increase in the kindergarten through fourth grade level and we will keep an eye on that as we go further."

Hancock Lot Home To Farmers' Market Through 2015

Street-Works: 'Keeping This Farmers' Market Downtown For The Foreseeable Future Is The Goal'

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy Farmers' Market will be able to continue setting up shop in the Hancock Parking Lot through the end of their 2015 season.

City and Street-Works officials provided an update on the farmers' market at a recent meeting of the City Council's downtown committee. Jim Fatseas, executive secretary to Mayor Thomas Koch, said the market will be able to stay in place through 2015.

"It's the city's responsibility and pleasure to accommodate the farmers' market," Fatseas said. "To make comments beyond 2015 is speculative at this point, but we're very comfortable that the farmers' market will be intact for the next two seasons at least and after that it is part of the plan."

Street-Works co-founder and partner Richard Heapes explained that the developer still plans on creating a new space for the Quincy Farmers' Market – known as Market Square – in the Cliveden Street area as part of step one of the company's $1.6 billion downtown project.

"From the very first time we brought out any notion or plan it had always been and still is our intention to create a permanent place for the farmers' market," Heapes said. "In fact, down and around Cliveden Street, we separated some property out and refer to it as Market Square, which, among many things on the plan, has never changed, never moved, and still sits on the same place. That still is our plan."

Heapes also promised that Street-Works would work to find the farmers' market an interim location if Market Square wasn't ready at the time when the market would need to leave the Hancock Lot.

"Obviously if something comes up where that's challenged, I certainly feel it's our obligation to help find them a place that they can connect their business with the same customers," Heapes said.

Janet Little, who runs the Quincy Farmers' Market, said she had some doubts about whether the new farmers' market in Market Square would meet the state Department of Agriculture's requirements for being a registered agricultural activity.

"In order for it to be a registered agricultural activity you have to have at least two farmers that have direct contact with the products they are selling – they have to represent the product themselves at the farmers' market. And there has to be something exchanged besides products, such as trust, goodwill, health, stories, social capital," Little said.

"If the farmers' market in Cliveden Square is consistent with that, that would be really nice. But we have some doubts about whether that would actually be a farmers' market."

But Heapes reiterated that Street-Works intends on working with, and not replacing, Little and the Quincy Farmers' Market.

"I just want to be clear, keeping this farmers' market downtown for the foreseeable future is the goal," Heapes said. "This is not a proposal to replace you or what it is that you're doing. You're the expert...the farmers' market space that we're making is a permanent home for the farmers' market. You can tell all your clients and supporters on Facebook and everybody, we want to say unequivocally that it's going to stay in downtown."

Little also asked how parking in the Hancock Lot would be impacted as construction moves ahead. Fatseas said the market should be fine through 2015, but couldn't guarantee a set number of parking spaces.

"I would assume through '15 you should be okay but I just don't have any way in which to guarantee you that x amount of spaces will be maintained. It is a first come, first served parking lot. That's the reality everybody in the center has to work with," Fatseas said. "I don't anticipate a huge demand, but I just wouldn't want to tell you you're guaranteed so many spots because that would be irresponsible."

Councillors: Ban Synthetic Marijuana

they're marketed as potpourri or incense. It's becoming an increasing problem that I think we need to tackle here locally."

The federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) does have regulations in place that restrict the sale or use of substances containing several synthetic cannabinoids, but Coughlin said makers of synthetic marijuana have been able to skirt those regulations by switching formulas.

"It's like a game of Whac-A-Mole. Every time a governmental entity addresses the issue and issues regulations on prohibition of the sale of these synthetic drugs the purveyors come up with a new formulation," Coughlin said. "This ordinance that I've introduced is very similar to ones introduced in the past recently in a few other cities and towns in Massachusetts. I think it's important that we take some action on this."

The ordinance proposed Monday identifies several specific chemicals that would be prohibited, but would also ban the sale of any other vegetable material treated with chemicals that, when consumed, "may induce an effect or effects of intoxication similar to a controlled substance or imitation controlled substance." The proposed ordinance would make the sale, possession, or use of any such product in Quincy punishable by a fine of up to $150 for a first offense and up to $300 for any subsequent offense.

Coughlin said he worked closely on the ordinance with Quincy Police Lt. Det. Pat Glynn, head of the department's drug unit, and Sen. John Keenan, who is working to implement statewide regulations on synthetic marijuana. The ordinance was referred to the council's ordinance and public safety committees.

BIG STRAPPING WOMEN'S WATCHES

Some of the biggest news in women's watches has more to do with the straps than the watch itself. Among the most popular recent trends are the sporty equestrian-style straps and hardware that take their cue from fine saddlery. Tan, finely stitched leather straps make abundant use of shiny hardware resembling that found in stirrups and reins. This timeless look is guaranteed to never go out of style. There is also the very chic look of extra-long watch straps that can be layered around the wrist, creating the appearance of layered leather bracelets. The elongated straps resemble an armful of bangles.

Speaking of which, seldom do you see a watch by itself anymore. Layering watches with bracelets is entirely in.

Whether you are more traditional or a trendsetter, you will find a wide variety of watch bands to fit your personality. Leather watch bands bring a hint of sophistication to any wardrobe. Shop 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center to discover unique watch bands for the entire family. Contact us at 617-773-3636 where finding your next timekeeping accessory has never been simpler.

Quincy Center For Innovation Is Open For Business

Facility's Mission Is Economic Development With Focus On Entrepreneurs, Start-Ups

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The hope for the new Quincy Center for Innovation is to help entrepreneurs and innovators move their ideas forward in order to grow into great companies that stay in Quincy.

"The basic premise of the QCI is that we're here to help build great companies," said Director of QCI and Vice President of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce Donna Mavromates.

"We are here to help an entrepreneur, a start-up, an innovator that may just be at the idea stage and they don't really know what to do with their idea and they want to have some assistance from some mentors, from some people that have maybe been in their specific industry to help them move their idea forward. Also for businesses that are maybe past that initial stage and they've launched their business and their in the midst of developing it, and growing it, and working on their business plan or working on building up their clientele we are here for that kind of a company as well."

The new 12,500 square-foot facility is located at 180 Old Colony Ave., Suite 300. It provides an inexpensive and flexible office environment with a variety of support services to assist start-up companies and aspiring entrepreneurs all the while offering a space for collaboration between companies.

"What we offer is a space, a collaborative work environment, for like minded companies," said Mavromates.

"They get their basic office needs met, but more importantly what they are really getting is a collaborative environment that really breeds innovation. So you come here not to just sit at your desk and hammer away nine to five in your own little silo. On a peer-to-peer level they get that collaboration in addition to some of the more expert, formalized mentoring that they'd be able to get from someone, so they help each other."

The innovation center was established through Quincy 2000, the Mayor's Office, the Economic Development Office, and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

"Innovation is really a huge economic development driver. The mission for Quincy 2000, which is a sub-group of the Quincy Chamber, has been a focus on economic development," said Mavromates.

"We have hopes that it is going to be an economic driver in the City of Quincy. The ultimate goal is we become an economic engine that pumps out businesses on a regular basis," added Quincy Chamber of Commerce President Dean Rizzo.

"Our goal is to help them, as long as they need the help, transition them into a more permanent space within the City of Quincy, whether it's an office space, a retail store, manufacturing facility, what have you. It's a great way to create jobs, to create more businesses, and to foster more economic growth, and where we are focused on innovative economy – life science, bio-tech, clean-tech, high-tech—we feel it will further diversify the economic base in the City of Quincy, which will strengthen the overall economy," Rizzo added.

Interested businesses can pay anywhere from $100 to $600 a month to rent a space at the center, which can house approximately 40 companies that need a private or semi-private office space, and around 50-60 companies who only need an open worktable.

Cohasset residents and college friends Mike Filbey and Mohsin Khan jumped at the opportunity to take a year off of college and see where they could take their company, Cbay, a company that helps customers sell products online. Filbey, the CEO and founder, saw an article in a newspaper about the innovation center and decided to move in.

"The monthly fee is affordable and I loved the space. It was a good fit," said Filbey.

"We really like the collaboration aspect that is offered here," added Khan. "We love that we work with all these people in such close quarters that have the experience and are able to share that knowledge with us."

Bill Hennessey of My Funding Place, a crowd funding platform company that works to help raise money for nonprofits and charities, said that he loves the space that the innovation center offers as well as the collaboration aspect.

"Being co-located with abutting entrepreneurs has us right in the middle of the action, and you can't get that anywhere else. It's such a great learning opportunity," said Hennessey, who grew up in Quincy and plans to keep the business in the city. "We love the space and having the additional resources it offers available to us along with the potential to help others in the enter. The space itself is phenomenal, you can't get this at a regular office."

Hennessey added that he believes his company will be able to work with some of the companies located at the center in the near future, such as R.I.S.E. Worldwide, a nonprofit company that develops mobile youth centers putting youth at the epicenter of creating positive change within their own communities.

Alex Willson, Founder and CEO of R.I.S.E. Worldwide, a nonprofit startup whose mission is to be a catalyst to education, entrepreneurship and generational change within insolvent communities, said that he likes the fact that the innovation center allows for collaboration with other companies located there.

"I've been starting up my business for the past year. A month after moving to Quincy I called the Chamber asking them about open office space and they told me of the innovation center," said Wilson. "I have been here about a month now and I like that everyone here is a start-up company and we can work together."

There are currently 10 companies working out of the Innovation Center and since opening its doors three weeks ago they have received nearly ten more applications from interested businesses.

"We hope that within a year that we'll have anywhere from 50-75 companies operating in here in some capacity," said Rizzo. "What that means for the future of this center and the City of Quincy, only good things can come of it."

ALEX WILLSON (left), of Quincy, and Founder and CEO of R.I.S.E. Worldwide and Board Secretary Philippine Berdoz (right) use the work space at the innovation center to not only work on their business but to collaborate with other businesses utilizing the space. Interested businesses can pay anywhere from $100 to $600 a month to rent a space at the center, which can house approximately 40 companies that need a private or semi-private office space, and around 50-60 companies who only need an open worktable.

QUINCY'S BILL HENNESSEY of My Funding Place, a crowd funding organization, is one of the many small businesses taking advantage of the new innovation center. There are 10 companies renting space in the 12,500 square-foot facility which provides inexpensive and flexible office space.

Mary Pickering Scott - Former Miss Quincy Bay - Passes Away

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Mary Pickering Scott – winner of the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant in 1976 – died peacefully in her California home on Sunday surrounded by her loving family after a long battle with cancer.

She was 53 years old.

"She was my hero," brother John Pickering of Quincy said. "She fought tooth and nail and was tough as nails during her battle with cancer. I liked to call her my warrior princess."

Mrs. Scott is survived by her husband Richard B. Scott and their children Justin Scott, Stephanie Scott, Cassandra Scott, and Bridget Scott all of California. She was the sister of Kim Villanuvea, Donna Gulizia, Ralph Pickering, and John Pickering all of Quincy. She is also survived by her mother, Mary Pickering of Quincy and predeceased by her father Ralph Pickering.

She also leaves many aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, and cousins.

"She was a wonderful sister and mother," said John. "She always made trips back to Quincy to visit her family."

When she was 16 she was awarded the title of Miss Quincy Bay. She is a graduate of Quincy High School Class of 1977 and went on to Quincy Junior College where she received a degree in business. Before becoming a full time mother Mrs. Scott worked at Staples and Starmarket.

Mrs. Scott was very involved in charitable events for Muscular Dystrophy in California and was always involved in her community.

"She was always involved. She was just a loving person who would help out everybody and was there for anyone," said John. "She was loved by all."

The family plans to hold a celebration of her life at a future date in Quincy.

A complete obituary will be posted on The Sun website when it is received.

pay for utility poles in the city. But the solicitor said Quincy's agreement with Comcast prevents the city from offering any incentives.

"The problem with this particular service is that our license agreement says we cannot offer more favorable terms to a new party coming in," Timmins said, adding that they city would need to extend the same incentives to Comcast or renegotiate with them.

Verizon last appeared before the council to address the issue in 2008 or 2009, and declined the chance to enter the Quincy market then. Gutro said the issue has remained a major topic among the city's residents.

"I don't think there's a neighborhood you go in or a senior center that you visit where folks don't talk about he lack of programming choices, the cost of cable and the fact that we only have one provider in the City of Quincy," Gutro said. "There's no question about it that more competition means more program options, competitive pricing, and consumer choice."

Coughlin explained that he's also heard from many residents who've raised the issue to him. He is in favor of providing an alternative to Comcast or satellite service.

"I'd love to see us be able to get some competition into the city other than those ugly satellite dishes that propagate themselves," Coughlin said.

Croall said that during a recent visit to Pagnano Towers, a senior housing building in Quincy Point, many of the building's residents were concerned about their Comcast bills.

"That was sort of the buzz, 'I'm a senior citizen, I'm on a fixed income, how do I sustain this payment I make to Comcast?' I feel in my heart that it's the right thing to do – reach out and bring these folks in the room," he said.

Croall, who was not on the council when the issue was previously discussed, added:

"As a newer city councillor representing Ward 2, I hear a lot of people coming from other communities that had access to multiple cable providers 'why don't you have that in Quincy?' For me personally, I'm looking for a legitimate answer."

Palmucci said he has heard complaints about Comcast's prices, but also about seeing and hearing advertisements for FiOS even though the service is unavailable in Quincy.

"We get deluged with the advertising. Donnie Wahlberg is telling me FiOS is awesome and we can't get it," Palmucci said.

The resolution was referred to the council's ordinance and senior citizens committees, which are chaired by Coughlin and Croall, respectively, to see if officials from Verizon or other cable providers such as RCN or Charter Communications would appear at a future meeting. Timmins said that meeting, if it occurred, would at least remind the companies Quincy is interested in competition.

"It would be very productive and it wouldn't be bad to keep Quincy on the radar screen," he said.

School Committee Candidates Oppose Merging High Schools

Discuss Other Issues At Candidates' Forum

THE FOUR CANDIDATES running for school committee, from left: incumbents Anne Mahoney, Barbara Isola, and Emily Lebo, along with newcomer Noel DiBona attended a recent candidates' forum sponsored by Citywide Parents Council. By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The four school committee candidates – incumbents Barbara Isola, Anne Mahoney, and Emily Lebo, and challenger Noel DiBona – said they are opposed to consolidating the two high schools during a candidates' forum held by the Quincy Citywide Parents Council on Oct. 15th.

School committee member Paul Bregoli coordinated the non-binding, survey based question that will appear on the Nov. 5th ballot. The question asks voters if the city should change its format for high school from the current approach of two high schools – North Quincy High School and Quincy High School—to one high school with two campuses, with students attending grades 9-10 at the North Quincy campus, and students attending grades 11-12 at the Quincy campus.

All four candidates said that having the one high school with two campuses isn't feasible or cost effective.

"I'm not in favor of combining the high schools," said Isola, who is the current vice chair of the school committee. "I think logistically it would be a nightmare as far as the educational benefit to our children. If there is a student who is a sophomore who wants to take a junior level course it would be virtual impossible for them to do that unless they took the T to class, and even when the T is running well I don't think they would get there in time. I think there is also the intangible of the culture of the school, the spirit, the being, and I think we would lose that if we just had one school separated by miles in between, I just don't see the benefit of it."

Lebo said when discussions of building a new high school were just beginning she was in favor of having one high school but is now completely against the idea.

"I was actually a proponent of one high school way back in the day when we were looking for a site for the new QHS and I pushed the administration at the time, not Mayor Koch, on why couldn't we build just one great high school when we had the opportunity to do it but that administration was not interested in that," Lebo said.

"I am now completely against splitting the high schools for a couple of reasons. At our high schools now, every student has the same guidance councilor and dean when they enter school through their four years, and at QHS they even try to maintain the same homeroom teacher so these kids have someone who knows them. The other reason is the integrity of the vocational programs. Vocational programs must have an exploratory if you have five or more programs, you'd have to be busing those kids up to experience the vocational programs to get the exploratory," Lebo added.

DiBona, a current member of the Park and Recreations Board and head coach of the Quincy Point Panthers youth football team, said he doesn't see the benefits of consolidating.

"I don't see the cost savings on this. It takes away from the continuity of 9th and 10th at one facility and 11th and 12th at another. I just don't see the benefits of that," said DiBona.

Mahoney, who has spent two terms on the committee, said that if the question was about having one high school with one campus a discussion could be had.

"I think if the ballot question was what are your thoughts on one high school I think it would be a discussion that could be had, but to split them in half at two different ends of the city is not something that is going to save or benefit our school system," said Mahoney.

Other topics that were touched upon were bringing back foreign language to the middle schools and how they plan to support teachers and schools when the common core is implemented. All four agreed that foreign language should be brought back if funding is available.

"I do think it is a very valid thing that we could put back into the budget. If we could I'd like to see it actually start much earlier than seventh grade because it would be much better if our students were taking foreign languages in elementary school rather than middle school," said Mahoney.

"I think it should only be restored if we have the funding to do it correctly," Lebo said.

"If we're going to do it we should do it correctly so our students can accumulate at least one year of a foreign language. I wouldn't want to put it back half way I think it needs to go in as a true academic content area. I also think we have to have options for people who are learning English as a foreign language," Lebo added.

Candidates were also asked how the school committee will support teachers and schools as they implement the Common Core State Standards curriculum along with how the system plans to address technology needed for computer based testing?

"The new assessment is called PARCC (Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Career) and this year we will be piloting the PARCC test and certain schools will be chosen to participate in that pilot," Isola said in her response.

"We have time; it's not until 2016 that the technology part of PARCC is going to be in place. I'm confident that our teachers through this pilot program along with the principals will really be looking at what we need to help our children be successful in doing this assessment," Isola added.

"Technology based and computer based we're going to have to learn the curve as we go along," said DiBona.

"It's very important that we also continue to teach the fundamentals – reading, writing, and arithmetic – on top of what this common core is going to be. I'm looking forward to seeing this. I have high confidence that it is going to work," he added.

During her closing statement Lebo took the opportunity to address the possibility of the superintendent retiring and what the committee will have to look for when hiring a replacement.

"There's a very good chance the superintendent will be retiring in the tenure of the people you elect this time, and you better make sure they are people who are going to be able to recognize a good leader," said Lebo.

"I will be very interested, if we need to hire a new superintendent, in getting New England School Development Council to assist us, they are a professional organization that helps with the process. We need to be very transparent to make sure this does not look like it's a promotional position or a Quincy position. We need to be sure that we are type casting a wide net. We may very well hire someone from inside, but we need to look long and hard and make sure we are finding the very best person for the job. You want to make sure whoever you vote for is going to be able to recognize what a good leader is."

DiBona, who is running for the first time, said if elected he hopes to grow the music program.

"The music program is not up to par by my standards," said DiBona. "Brockton High School has 200 children involved in their program we have about 70.

"My goal in fours years of being on (the school committee) is to get 50 new children involved at the high school level. I think music and art are just as important as academics I want to see those areas improve.

"I have nothing against the three of them; they've done a very good job on the school committee. I just feel that I could bring something else to the table."

Quincy Education Association Recommends Isola, Lebo For School Committee

The Quincy Education Association recommends two incumbents in the four-candidate field for School Committee in next month's city election.

In a release emailed to The Quincy Sun Friday afternoon, the QEA announced it "strongly recommends" incumbents Barbara Isola and Emily Lebo for re-election to the School Committee. Isola and Lebo are each seeking a second four-year term Nov. 5.

Voters will elect three school committee members. It is the only city-wide contest on the ballot. The other contested race is for Ward 4 city councillor between incumbent Brian Palmucci and challenger Michael Healy.

Also running for school committee are incumbent Anne Mahoney and political newcomer Noel DiBona. Mahoney is seeking her third term on the school committee. DiBona is making his first run for elective office in Quincy.

In their letter of recommendation, the QEA wrote:

"As members of the School Committee, Ms. Isola and Ms. Lebo consistently demonstrate thoughtful and informed decision making. They seek out and welcome input from students, parents, teachers, and administrators alike as they continually strive to improve our school system.

"QEA appreciates that Ms. Isola and Ms. Lebo are committed to deepening their understanding of the many new federal and state initiatives, as well as understanding the impacts these initiatives may have on the students and professional staff of our public school system.

"Because of Ms. Isola's and Ms. Lebo's smart and effective leadership over these past few years, QEA is confident our public schools will continue to benefit greatly from their re-election to the Quincy School Committee."

The QEA also stated it "strongly recommends" Mayor Thomas Koch for re-election. Koch, who was elected in 2007, is unopposed for a fourth two-year term.

"QEA recognizes and appreciates Mayor Koch's strong support for excellence in the Quincy Public Schools. Through Mayor Koch's leadership and initiative, our public schools have undergone major, and necessary, capital improvements in addition to the building of a brand new Quincy High School and a stunning new Central Middle School.

"Last year, Mayor Koch took swift action after hearing concerns from teachers and parents by providing immediate funding for substantial security enhancements at every public school building in the city.

"Ms. Isola, Ms. Lebo and Mayor Koch bring an exceptional level of professionalism, dedication, and optimism in their roles on School Committee and in the Mayor's Office. This makes them ideal public leaders who provide invaluable service and leadership to our community," the QEA added.

The Quincy Education Association represents more than 930 members including the PK-12 teachers of Quincy Public Schools as well as the faculty and education support professionals at Quincy College.

New Quincy YMCA Facility Expected To Open By Dec. 2

The new Quincy facility of the South Shore YMCA – originally scheduled to open Oct. 31 – will now be open for use by Dec. 2, the Y announces.

According to a statement issued by the South Shore YMCA, the Y has been informed by its construction management team that due to unanticipated difficulties in getting permanent power set up in the building, the new Quincy YMCA facility will not meet the projected Oct. 31st open date.

"After a thorough analysis of how these new challenges will impact our projected timeline, it has been determined that the new facility will be open for use by Dec. 2," the Y said.

Until the new Quincy Branch is open, Quincy Y members will continue to have access to the South Shore Y's Emilson Branch in Hanover and any local YMCA through the My Y is Every Y Reciprocity Program.

Temporary swim opportunities run by SSYMCA Aquatics staff will continue to be available to members at the Lincoln Hancock Community School pool. During this time, no electronic bank drafts on monthly membership payments will be made. Refunds on all Aug. 30th bank drafts and all Fall Program registration fees have been issued. Once the new facility is open for use, members who pay membership fees annually will receive an extension to their membership for the amount of time they were without facility access.

The Quincy Learning Center will continue to operate out of its temporary classroom space at Germantown Neighborhood Center until the new building opens. Afterschool and Community Center programs will continue to operate as usual at all sites. Information on the Quincy YMCA winter program session in the new building will be available soon.

For questions, concerns or membership inquiries, call the Quincy YMCA Hotline at 617-479-8500 or email quincysupport@ssymca.org.

City Celebrates New Central Middle School Opening

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

A mixture of emotions swept over the crowd of over 700 students, faculty, staff, and city and state officials as the sign of the old Central Middle School came down and student paraded up Hancock Street to the new Central Middle School on Monday.

"There is no better sense of community than when you have a day like this. There is no greater sign of this city's commitment to our greatest resource, our kids, than a day like this. What a beautiful day," said Mayor Tom Koch.

"The new Central Middle School has been talked about for decades, and if we weren't working together we wouldn't get it done. It's said that a nation is really dependent on the character of its citizens and the character of those citizens is built in part in the classroom. We can build beautiful buildings but it happens in the classroom."

The parade Monday followed a celebration and dedication ceremony that took place Sunday afternoon in the new schools gym, where over 600 people toured the new facility.

"The entire process from the initial stages to this wonderful day certainly has been a tapestry blending challenges and opportunities," Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said Monday.

"Yesterday was a real magnificent day, certainly for our school system and our city, but so much for our 620 students that go here, as well as the outstanding staff. There had to be well over 600 people go through this building and all very very appreciative of what it offers our kids. It's been a long time coming but certainly the wait was really worth it for so many. It really is rewarding to hear the kids reactions. We were here so long without kids, never lost focus of course, but knew that when they came in here they were really going to be astounded by its beauty and also as time goes by all the great things it offers them from the classroom."

A CROWD OF over 700 including some 600 Central Middle School students marched Monday from the old Central to the new school building located at 875 Hancock St. to celebrate the opening of the new school. Quincy Sun Photos/Emily Armstrong

Central Principal Jennifer Fay-Beers noted during the ribbon cutting ceremony that although talk of building a new Central has been on going for many years the finished product was worth the wait.

"I've spent 20 years of my life at Central Middle School. I was a student, a teacher, a very proud parent, the assistant principal, the principal and a very proud member of the Central Psych Committee," Fay-Beers said during Sunday's ceremony.

"This project did start 16 years ago, Joann Bragg and I walked through the halls with our PTO President Mrs. McCarthy and talked about how much we needed a new school, my son was eight and I said 'oh great he'll get to go there.' Five years ago our goal was to create a building that was modern enough to meet the needs of today's students and their families yet versatile enough to be relevant to our future students as well as our community 50 years from now. This beautiful building encourages student learning, enhances teacher practice, welcomes families and nurtures their support. It was worth the wait."

Fay-Beers added that her initial fear was that the new building wouldn't feel like Central.

"My biggest fear during this process was that the new building wouldn't feel like Central but the architects, the teachers and the families have captured the spirit of Central Middle School through the maroon and gold, the wide hallways, and the historical tributes," said Fay-Beers. "The building feels like Central. As you look in the classrooms the teachers have filled the rooms with their personalities and tomorrow will fill the halls with our students smiles. It was never the building that made Central such a special place its always been the people."

As students entered the new school for the first time Monday, with their mouths open wide in awe, they could be heard saying 'wow' and 'this is amazing' while passing through the main entrance.

"It means a lot to come to this new school but it is sad to leave the old one," said eighth grader and the Mayor of Central Middle School Douglas Brown. "The old school meant a lot to us eighth graders because we spent two years there and it has been a part of our lives for so long. We are sad to say goodbye but excited to enter our new school."

A Message From The Office of Mayor Thomas P. Koch

The City of Quincy intends to incorporate memorial bricks into the park in front of City Hall.

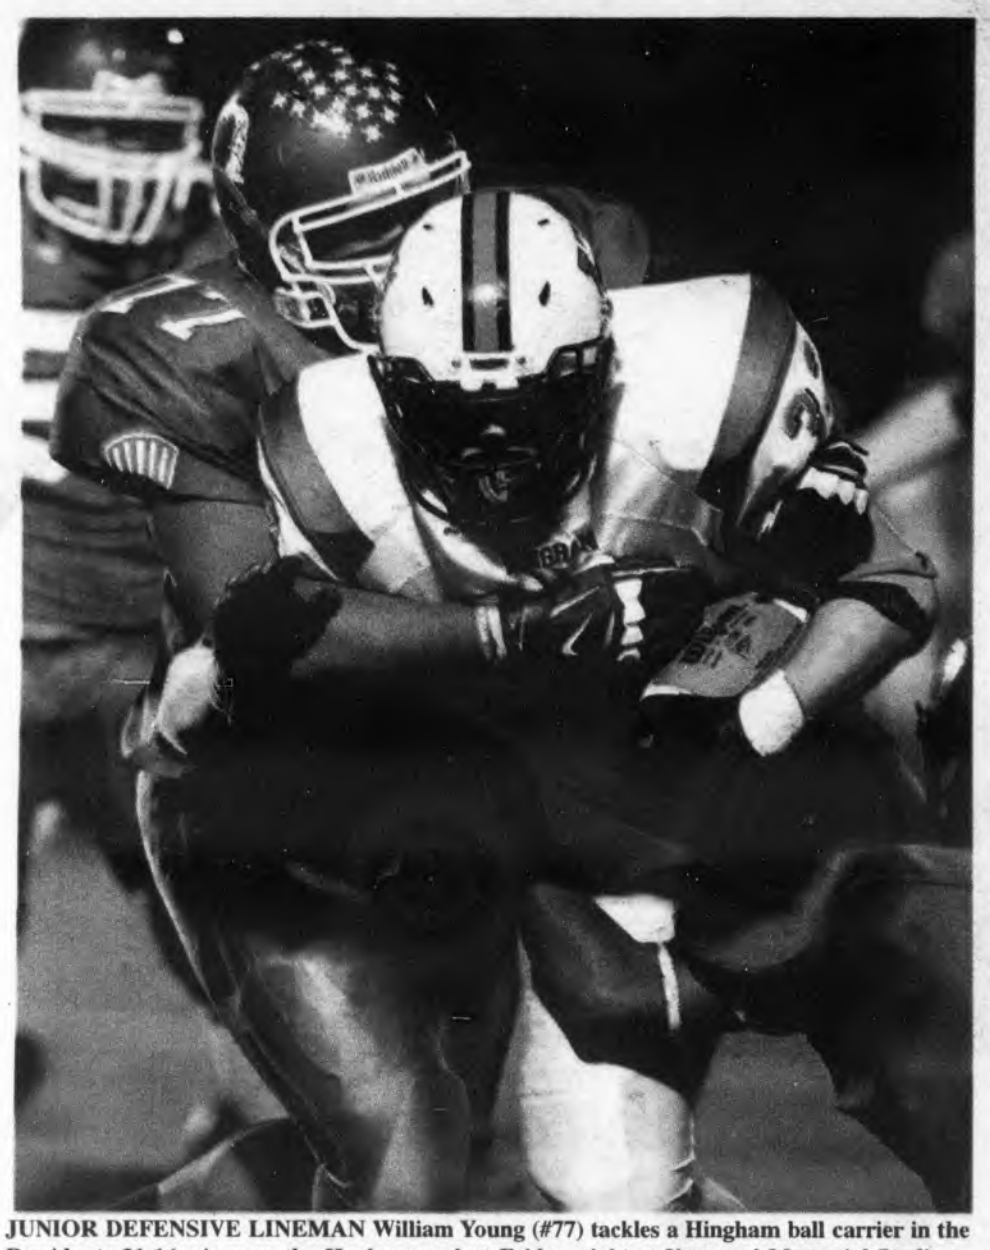

Because of necessary construction at old City Hall, the bricks have been carefully removed and preserved for future use. This process took several months of extensive planning and was performed with the utmost care.

In an abundance of caution, the City openly discussed a back-up plan for a scenario in which the bricks could not be reused. In that case, a new monument will be built bearing all of the memorial messages, and the original bricks will be offered back as a keepsake for families.

This alternative exists solely as a contingency to the City's plan to incorporate the bricks as part of the park.

Mascarenhas, O'Shea Power Presidents Past Red Raiders

By BILL GRIFFIN

After controlling most of his final match against North Quincy from the center of the field with the brilliance of his dribbling, control and passing, James O'Shea stood at the back post and waited for a corner kick from Cian Moriarty. The score was tied 2-2. Less than 14 minutes remained in a match between two great rivals.

O'Shea knew Moriarty saw him and he knew that the kick would come to him. He knew this because the two friends had worked this play more often than November follows October.

Moriarty sent the kick in the perfect arc at the perfect speed to the perfect spot above the maze of twisting, pushing bodies in front of the goal. O'Shea timed his leap, flicked his head in a flash of timing and skill, and sent it home for the game-winner.

O'Shea also handed out three bull's-eye assists on each of Yuri De Barros Mascarenhas' three goals to lift Quincy past North, 4-2 in an exciting, well-played Patriot League match at Veterans Stadium Saturday afternoon.

"We made eye contact. I saw Cian and he saw me," said O'Shea. "The corner was perfect. All I had to was wait and get a head on it."

The win lifted Quincy to 8-8-2 on the season and kept the Presidents' tournament hopes alive. Quincy needs a win or a tie against Bridgewater-Raynham Thursday at home at 5:30 to qualify for the tourney.

"All hats off to North Quincy. They played great," said Quincy coach Mark Spendlove. "The nature of this match scares me. We needed it for the tournament, but all form goes out the window because each team wants the win so much."

North (2-15) could not have played harder or better, and it was the quality of its play which made the match worthy of the rivalry. AK Nguyen scored two beautiful goals. Keeper Joey England was terrific. Ivan Zeng, Dennis Calero, John Lopes, and Enea Milo played tough, skilled soccer at midfield and on the backline marking their men and battling for every possession.

Lopes, in particular, prevented three certain goals with blocks of smashes and clearing kicks of soccer balls dribbling towards the net.

"It was a great match. I couldn't be prouder of them," said North coach Rich Hanlon "I thought we played them well. They have a little edge in talent, but we gave a great effort for 80 minutes. That's all you can ask."

Quincy's plan was to drop O'Shea deeper in the middle of the field and use him as a playmaker and a passer. O'Shea pinballed his way through North's aggressive checking. He controlled the ball with his dribble, drew in the defense with his speed, and sent through passes to the left wing to Mascarenhas. Some of the passes were soft, some were swift, all caught Mascarenhas in full stride.

"We wanted to spread them wide and get Yuri the ball so that he could use his skills and his shot," said O'Shea.

All three of Mascarenhas' goals came off the same play. O'Shea's passes bounced through to an open patch of grass. Mascarenhas settled the passes, used his wonderful footwork and let fly rockets for the far corner of the net. The first goal tied it at 1-1 with 23:10 left in the first half. The second gave the Presidents a 2-1 lead just before intermission. The third provided insurance with less than 2:00 remaining in the match.

"They are quite a combination, and I think we found today was the best way to use them," said Spendlove.

"In my estimation, O'Shea is the best player in the league and he showed it with the way he controlled the match today," said Hanlon.

Quincy needed all this from O'Shea and Mascarenhas because Nguyen matched well their skill. His first goal put North up 1-0 with 29:00 left in the first half. Milo hammered a direct kick from midfield which was blocked and trickled loose in front of the goal. Nguyen calmly settled it and picked the far corner with a low drive for the goal.

"He's a great goal-scorer," said Hanlon. "He's been hurt for a lot of the year, but he has a beautiful touch around the net.

His second goal tied it 2-2 with 33:20 left in the match. Mouad Abibi made a splendid move along the right wing, cleanly beat a defender and set up Nguyen from 20 yards out. Nguyen's high, precise drive settled just under the crossbar to tie the match and set the stage for O'Shea's finale.

"Those were two beautiful goals. He is a dangerous soccer player," said Spendlove.

It was more than a two-player win for Quincy. Moriarty dominated the midfield. Roy Bander stopped threats at center-back and boomed long kicks deep into North territory to set Quincy's attack in motion. Aidan Smyth and Ben Morse were solid on the fullback line. However, the player who snatched the spotlight for Quincy was freshman Tristan McCormick who gave away at least six inches and 40 pounds to his rivals, but created openings and chances with his hustle and skill.

"He never stops," smiled Spendlove.

After his winning goal, O'Shea had a run of celebration toward midfield. His long hair flopped in the wind, he clenched his fists and howled with joy as one arm pointed toward the ground and the other toward the air like a plane in flight. Finally his teammates caught him and they savored their goal. It was a fine moment.

"This is our last time with North, so it means a lot," said O'Shea. "I'll miss playing North. We know all the kids. They are our rivals and our friends."

In other action last week, Duxbury beat Quincy, 3-1 and the Presidents fell to Randolph, 1-0. Bander scored against Duxbury, and Connor Dane was excellent in goal in each game.

Hanover defeated North, 2-1. Andrew Jayne scored for the Red Raiders. Lopes, Zeng, and Calero all played well for North.

North is at Randolph Thursday and at Milton Saturday.

Mistakes Haunt Red Raiders, Fall To Titans

By BILL GRIFFIN

So many times this season, one mistake, one play, one series has haunted North Quincy.

Against Pembroke, it was a two-minute patch of time at the end of the first half when the Titans scored twice, stopped North in the end zone and turned a 50-yard interception return into a touchdown.

Quarterback Corey Brandon threw four touchdown passes and Pembroke used its burst just before halftime as a springboard to drop the Red Raiders, 26-14 in a Patriot League Fisher Division meeting Friday evening at Veterans Stadium in the first game of a twilight doubleheader.

Quincy defeated Hingham, 21-14 in the nightcap.

"Every game, it is a mistake. Sometimes a penalty we take or a big drive we give up, but we keep hurting ourselves with mistakes," said North Quincy coach Mark Nutley whose team slipped to 1-5 with the loss.

Before Pembroke's outburst, North led, 8-7. Each team scored once in the second half, and, as they did against Middleboro, the Red Raiders had the better of the play over the final two quarters. Take away the two-minute spree at the end of the second quarter, and it's a dead-square, even game.

"I thought for the most part we played well. We moved the ball and the kids played hard. We have to avoid making the big mistakes that cost us," said Nutley.

The Red Raiders led, 8-7, and had Pembroke trapped in a second-and-10 at the North 33 with 2:47 left before halftime. Brandon then found Ken Blasser clear on the left side, and Blasser tight-roped down the sideline for the score and a 13-7 lead. A 25-yard pass on fourth-and-18 late in the second period hurt North against Middleboro. The big play stung the Red Raiders again.

"Pembroke's quarterback has a strong arm. He throws a good ball," said Nutley.

North fought back. On third down from his 39, senior tailback Antoine Allen, who had another brilliant all-around game, bounced an off-tackle run outside, outraced the corner, and broke a 33-yard run to the Pembroke 29 with 2:16 left before intermission. The Red Raiders were within range. They had the time and the weapons to take the lead.

Earlier in the half, quarterback Andrew Kiley and wingback Dayvon Jones had connected off a beautiful play-fake by Kiley for a 14-yard touchdown. North ran the same play again. Jones broke clear towards the end zone, but Pembroke's Bill Watts stepped in for the interception and returned it to the Pembroke 48. Only a terrific hustle play by Kiley who ranged to the right sideline to make the tackle saved a touchdown return.

"Andrew said the ball slipped out of his hands. I think Dayvon was open," said Nutley. "It was a play we had put in this week, the same play we ran earlier. Andrew made a nice play hustling to make the tackle."

NORTH QUINCY'S Antoine Allen stiff arms a Pembroke defender in the Red Raiders' 26-14 loss to the Titans last Friday night at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. Allen rushed for 101 yards on 19 carries and added three receptions for 48 yards. He also amassed 70 yards on two kick-off returns, scored a touchdown and ran for a two-point conversion and blocked an extra point. Other game photos at www.TheQuincySun.com (under galleries). Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

Five plays later, Brandon found Watts for a 20-yard score with 59 seconds left in the half for a 20-8 lead. In less than two minutes, on just three plays, the game had changed and changed completely.

"It's the kind of thing that's been happening for us all season," said Nutley.

Once again, Allen played a total football game. He played every second of every snap on every down. He had 101 yards on 19 carries, added three receptions for 48 yards, scored a touchdown, ran for a conversion, blocked an extra point, and had two kickoff returns totaling 70 yards. If it can be done on the football field, Allen can do it.

"He's one of the best backs in the league," said Nutley. "I can't say enough about him. He does so many things for us. He has a lot of touches and I wish I could get him more."

Allen was not alone in doing two-way duty for 44 minutes. Senior lineman Vinny Tran had another fine two-way game. He tore open holes in the middle of the line on offense. He rushed the passer, stuffed the run on defense and made a crushing, Hall of Fame block on Allen's two-point conversion run midway through the second period.

"I love that kid," said Nutley. "He never stops, not even in practice. He goes so hard kids don't want to practice against him."

Don Sharp and Nick Manning joined Tran in rugged, effective two-way duty on the line of scrimmage against the Titans who had a substantial edge in size. Alex Chen (end), Pat Janeiro (linebacker), and Aidan Brown (cornerback) were solid on defense. Zach Dangora had a strong game at linebacker and blocked well at tight end. Sophomore offensive linemen Derek Hounh and Seamus Broughton continue to progress.

Kiley completed six passes for 97 yards and a touchdown. Jones ran five times for 32 yards and caught two passes, good for 22 yards. For the second straight week, Matt Donovan made an acrobatic catch, outmuscling and out-jumping a Pembroke defender for 21-yard reception in the fourth quarter. Donovan also boomed three punts for a 45-yard average. The Red Raiders do not have depth or numbers, but they do have players who are playing hard and well.

"We don't quit. We have a lot of kids who are going both ways and playing special teams," said Nutley. "The effort is there. We need a win to show for it."

After Pembroke went up, 7-0 on the second play of the second period , North scored on a 36-yard, 10-play drive set up by a 49-yard kickoff return from Allen. The big play was a 21-yard swing pass from Kiley to Allen on fourth-and-16 from the Titans' 30. Kiley and Jones connected for a 14-yard TD and Allen rushed for the points behind Tran's block for an 8-7 lead.

After Pembroke went up 26-7 in the second half, North scored on a 14-play, 66-yard drive which took over nine minutes off the clock. North ran 11 rushing plays on the drive. Kiley converted a quarterback sneak on fourth-and-one at Pembroke's 38. Allen finished it with a three-yard blast behind Sharp, Manning and Tran.

IT MAY NOT ALL BE IN THE WRIST

Orthopedic surgeons usually treat "carpal tunnel syndrome" by focusing on the area in the wrist where the median nerve passes from the forearm into the palm of the hand. They believe that carpal tunnel symptoms are caused by irritated and thickened tendons that overlie and compress the median nerve. To relieve this pressure, orthopedic surgeons may prescribe splints or even resort to surgery. Chiropractors, on the other hand, know that the median nerve runs from the spine, down the neck, through the shoulders and elbow, and into the wrist. Impingements along the way can weaken the nerve and sap its regenerative strength by the time it reaches the wrist. Chiropractors concentrate their efforts along the entire length of the median nerve.

Presidents Rise To Occasion, Sink Harbormen 21-14

By BILL GRIFFIN

Flash back to two weeks ago and the one-point loss to Silver Lake. Quincy's pass rush was inconsistent. The Presidents didn't make the clinching plays on defense in the fourth quarter and didn't grind out first downs to wind down the clock.

Flash back to last Friday night against Hingham in a game Quincy had to win to keep alive its playoff hopes. Led by captain Matt Hines, the pass rush was relentless for 44 minutes. The defense stopped four fourth-down plays. The running game made a statement 65-yard drive for the winning touchdown and pounded out two first downs to finish the clock in the closing minutes.

"It was a complete 180-degree flip from the Silver Lake game," smiled coach Bill Reardon.

Senior tailback Alex Alexandre ran hard and strong between the tackles for 121 yards and junior quarterback James Lam threw for one touchdown and ran for another to carry Quincy past Hingham, 21-14 in a Patriot League Keenan Division contest in the nightcap of a doubleheader at Veterans Stadium Friday night.

Pembroke defeated North Quincy, 26-14 in the first game.

The win lifts Quincy to 4-2 on the season. The only blemishes are one-point losses to Braintree and Silver Lake. The Presidents must win at once-beaten Duxbury (a 13-10 loss to Division 1 power Bridgewater-Raynham) to remain in the Division 2 South playoff chase. Duxbury has ruled the Patriot League since the world began, so it will not be an easy ride.

"Even if the playoffs weren't at stake, it would be a huge game," said Reardon. "I can't remember the last time, if ever, we've beaten Duxbury. It's a big challenge."

You want big plays from a team? Have a look. Three times in the fourth quarter Hingham took possession in Quincy territory with the Presidents protecting a seven-point lead. Three times Hingham did not score. The defense had three sacks for 17 yards led by Hines, Jake Bergonzi and Alexandre in the final quarter.

Aramani Cardoso turned back a drive at the Quincy five with a fourth-down interception. Bergonzi, Hines, and Dan Guarente stopped a fourth-and two run at the Quincy 49. Rob Munroe, Lakuan Mason, and Jahvae Handsome-Fields broke up a fourth-down pass at the goal line with 2:14 left.

Munroe had a first-half interception to stop a scoring drive. Cardoso and Handsome-Fields stuffed a fourth-and-one on Hingham's opening march. After Quincy's final stop, Lam and Alexandre ran for first downs to waste the clock. Every time the Presidents had to make a big play, they made it.

"I think the kids remembered Silver Lake," said Reardon. "When we needed to get off the field, the defense made the plays. When we needed to kill the clock, we ran the ball for first downs."

Quincy's foundation is its run game. Alexandre had 121 yards in 19 tries. Handsome-Fields had 43 in six carries and a 40-yard kickoff return. They form an effective power-speed combination. Lam had 35 yards rushing and 36 yards passing in the first half. When Hingham's Sam Benger flew 58 yards to tie the score at 14-14 on the first play of the second half, Quincy went back to what it does best and ran the ball.

"That's the kind of football I like to play. I'd like to run the ball on every play," said Reardon.

Following Benger's score, Quincy took it 65 yards on nine rushing plays. 65 yards. All on the ground. Alexander had six carries for 39. Handsome-Fields added 26 on three ties, including a six-yard TD off a perfect cutback run. Mike Munroe, Steve Scolaro, William Young, Matt Kozlowski, Abraham Hoti and Hines supplied the blocking. Thomaz Silva added the third of his extra points and the defense had a 21-14 lead it protected well until the end.

"I thought we needed to make a statement and we did with that drive. Alex and Jahvae are a nice power-burst type of combination," said Reardon.

Rested from its bye week, Quincy came out flying and scored in the first 63 seconds of the game. Handsome-Fields set it up with a kickoff return to the Hingham 45 and Lam finished it with runs of 25 and 10 yards for the score and a 7-0 lead.

Quincy upped it to 14-0 with 5:28 left in the second on an 11-play, 51-yard march which nicely mixed the inside running of Alexandre, the passing of Lam and Quincy's second successful fake punt in two games. Lam hit Munroe for 16 on the fake punt, clicked with Jalen Chase for 13 and finished it with a rollout and bull's-eye pass to Hines between two defenders on fourth down from the seven. Two fourth-down plays. Quincy converted both.

"It gets back to big plays," said Reardon. "I liked our balance on the drive. It lets teams know they have two things to worry about. The fake punt? I hate to give up the football."

Hingham drew within 14-7 on a 19-yard pass from Caleb Brodie to Pat Koenen with 35 seconds left in the half.

Duxbury is next. Considering the playoff chances and Duxbury's stature, it is likely to be, with the exception of Thanksgiving, the biggest game Quincy has played in many years. Last year, the Presidents were within a touchdown with the ball in the fourth period before losing, 37-28. The keys for Quincy? Defend the pass, run the ball and make the big plays the Presidents made against Hingham.

Attend Hockey Game Before Deployment With Assist From Quincy Businessman

Bruins Honor Local Soldiers

By SCOTT JACKSON

Three local U.S. Army soldiers, including two from Quincy, were honored at a recent Boston Bruins game after a Quincy businessman purchased their tickets to the game.

Army PFC Josh Batres and PFC Andrew MacPhail, both of Quincy, and Specialist Mike Powers of Topsfield were all home over Columbus Day Weekend. Batres was scheduled to be deployed to Afghanistan, while MacPhail and Powers were being deployed to Qatar.

The three soldiers, along Powers' wife Katrina, were able to attend the Oct. 14 against the Detroit Red Wings game thanks to Dan McCarthy, the president and founder of the Quincy Group. McCarthy purchased the tickets after hearing about the soldiers on Facebook.

"I have a half-season package but didn't have that game," McCarthy said. "I contacted someone I know with the Bruins and I purchased the tickets through them."

As a half-season ticket holder, McCarthy also had passes to the Legends Club, a restaurant exclusively for season ticket holders. He made reservations for the group to eat lunch at Legends two hours prior to the opening faceoff. McCarthy's contact within the organization also provided the group with new Bruins apparel, including hats and tee shirts.

ARMY PFC Andrew MacPhail of Quincy poses with Boston Bruins 2011 Stanley Cup championship ring. The ring belongs to Rene Rancourt, the team's national anthem singer, who met with MacPhail and his fellow soldiers before the start of Boston's Oct. 14 home game against Detroit.

"It was very kind of them to do that," McCarthy said.

The four were able to head down to ice level during the start of the pregame ceremonies. They met with Rene Rancourt, who sings the national anthem prior to every Bruins home game, and took turns wearing his 2011 Stanley Cup championship ring. During the game's second period, the three soldiers appeared on TD Garden's jumbotron as they were honored with the '8-Spoked Salute' the team gives each to service members at each home game.

"They had a great time," McCarthy said. "It went better than they hoped."

The soldiers left for overseas following the game. McCarthy, whose son attended the former St. Ann's School with MacPhail, said he was happy to have been able to help the group out.

"It's what you do as a small business owner, you support people in the community when you can," he said.

NQ Girls' Soccer Closing In On Tourney

By BILL GRIFFIN

Freshman keeper Shannan Kennedy and a solid defense didn't allow a goal in two matches and brought North Quincy girls soccer team within three points of a tournament berth last week.

Emily Anglehart, Courteney Campo, and Delia Devane scored while Kennedy posted her seventh shutout of the season as North stopped Abington, 3-0 in a non-league match.

In other action, Julia O'Donnell, Alyx Patey, Molly Kate Cannon and Sydney Chang all delivered strong defensive efforts as North played Hanover to a 0-0 tie in Patriot League action.

It was the third straight match in which Hanover and North have ended in a scoreless deadlock.

North is 7-7-3 and needs three points in its final three matches to make the tourney. North meets Quincy at Veterans Stadium Wednesday at 6 p.m. The Red Raiders travel to Dilboy Field to face Somerville Friday at 6 p.m. North ends the regular season at home against Middleboro Monday at 4 p.m.

Against Abington, coach Paul Bregoli stayed with strategy he started in the Pembroke game, using sophomore Marissa McGue in the midfield and moving the talented Campo up to the forward line. McGue's ball-control and passing skills are used well in midfield and Campo can jump-start the North attack.

"It worked out well again," said Bregoli. "We had some good chances early. Courtney had a good shot on goal and Haley Houlihan hit the post."

Anglehart gave North a 1-0 lead with her second goal of the season. Patey took her first corner of the year and made it a good one, finding an open Anglehart for the goal.

Annie Doherty made an excellent move and forced a trip in Abington penalty area. Campo took the penalty kick and buried it inside the post for her third goal of the season and a 2-0 lead.

Devane finished the scoring by converting a nice cross from Ciara Forde for her fourth goal of the year and the 3-0 final.

HaleyMcKay,O'Donnell, Patey, and Cannon all played well on defense. Anglehart, Doherty and Kara Carchedi gave North a boost off the bench.

In the Hanover match, Forde and Campo each had excellent chances and McGue returned from her leg injury suffered against Pembroke with a strong match.

"I didn't start her, but when she did play, she was excellent with 50-50 plays and balls in the air," said Bregoli. "I thought we outplayed them in the second half, but we didn't finish our chances."

Senor Abby Smith and Devine had solid matches. Sophomore Charlotte Chretian stepped in for Molly Donahue and played well.

Two Wins Each For NQ, Quincy Volleyball

By BILL GRIFFIN

North Quincy's volleyball team posted 3-0 wins over Whitman-Hanson and Brockton, but fell to Duxbury in a Patriot League showdown last week.

The Red Raiders finished the week at 15-2 and in second place in the league. Both losses have come to Duxbury. North has 48-9 edge in games-won on the season.

North rolled by W-H, 25-15, 25-15, 25-15 and scored its second non-league win over Brockton, 25-19, 29-27, 25-16.

Duxbury stopped North 25-22, 25-16, 18-25, 25-12. Maya Umoren and Carolyn Schwartz had excellent matches for the Red Raiders.

Umoren had 14 digs, 10 kills, and four aces in the 3-0 win over Brockton.

Lauren Magoon added five kills, three aces and seven digs. Cindi Hazelton had a fine match setting the ball with 25 assists. Freshman Isabelle Flaherty had a dominant game at the net with 14 kills.

North is at Quincy for the second meeting between the two rivals Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Quincy's girls volleyball team scored a pair of 3-0 wins. The Presidents dropped Pembroke, 25-10, 25-14, 25-14. The Presidents had 22 kills in the victory.

The Presidents defeated Brockton, 25-18, 25-23, 25-18 to up their record to 12-4 on the season.

Cross Country Runners Shine

The atmosphere was electric and the Quincy and North Quincy runners delivered with outstanding performances at the Third Annual Bob McIntyre Twilight Invitational held at the Barnstable County Fair Ground in Falmouth.

Ten races were run beginning with the freshman runs at 4:30 p.m. putting the girls varsity at 8:20 at night. The one-mile loop was illuminated with permanent as well as portable lighting and runners and spectators were given glow sticks giving the night a unique atmosphere. Music was also pumped into multiple sound systems and the competition was outstanding.

Highlight of many on the evening was Emily Bryson's third place finish in the Division 1 girls Varsity race. Bryson ran 18:17 over the 3.1-mile course establishing herself as the fastest girl in Eastern Mass Division 1. Her twin sister Julia was 33rd in 19:22 also a personal best.

In the boys race Mike Mullaney placed 16th in 16:10.

Girls JV featured Emily Zheng who ran 23:11. In sophomore girls Inayah Paul was 23rd, LaQueen Arias 26th and Victoria Deery 53rd. Top 25 in all races received medals. Quincy's Peter Saccoach placed 70th in a field of 308 in sophomore boys.

In freshman races Samin Charepoo was 6th and Julia Brady 55th, there were 236 girls in their race. For 92nd place in a field of 272. In freshman Boys Jimmy Cannon was 21st. Kevin Fitzgerald was 34th Aidan Golden was 102nd and Nick Cheney (121), Evan Bausemer (122), Chris O'Brien and Kevin White all turned in great performances in the over 300 runner section.

"To my knowledge Bryson's time is the fastest ever run by a North or Quincy girl over a 5K course," said Head Coach Geoff Hennessy. "This puts her in good shape for Saturday's league meet and Division I Emass at Wrentham (11/9). We're not done but the workouts are going well for everyone and if we stay healthy we might make it as a team for All-state."

North ran at Pembroke Tuesday. A win there will be an outright division crown for the North girls. They can do no worse than tie for it, which they did a year ago.

Manets' Abdallah Alhazmy Returns After Heart Surgery

Quincy Youth Football Houghs Neck Manets' player Abdallah Alhazmy – also known as "Double A" – has rejoined his team after having heart surgery a few weeks ago at Boston Children's Hospital.

Alhazmy returned this past weekend as the Manets played the Squantum Storm. Manets' Head Coach Mike Flavin said "Double A's" story of overcoming his surgery and returning to the team has inspired not only all the players but also the his coaching staff.

"Double A resiliences and courage has shown the entire Manets organization that anyone can accomplish anything if they work hard enough and have the courage to do so," Flavin said. Flavin also went on to say it's just amazing how the kids have embraced him and he couldn't be more proud of his team.

Manets franchise owner Bill Luggelle along with Flavin and teammates Nate Steinberg and AJ Samuels recently visited Double A at his home after surgery with a gift basket.

The Houghs Neck Manets are playing this Saturday evening at 6:30 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium against the West Quincy Elks in a playoff game. Winner will advance to the Championship game. Double A will be on the Manets Side line wearing # 91.

Quincy, North Quincy Alumni Flag Football Game Nov. 23

Quincy and North Quincy football alumni will square off in a flag football game Saturday, Nov. 23 at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The game will be a fundraiser for the two schools' football programs. Proceeds from a cash raffle will benefit the Presidents and Red Raiders gridiron programs.

Quincy and North Quincy football players will once again take to the field—this time as husbands, fathers and alumni—all in an effort to rekindle the rivalry and raise money for their alma mater. The flag football game between the storied programs will take place Nov. 23 following the freshman and junior varsity games between the Red Raiders and Presidents.

Immediately following the game, a 50-50 drawing will take place at The Commonwealth Pub. One hundred tickets will be sold at $100 per ticket with fifty percent going to the Quincy and North Quincy football programs and the other 50 percent going to the ticket holder.

"The rivalry that exists between these programs is a long, historic one. It's great to see our alumni coming back to participate and keep that rivalry moving forward," said Bill Reardon, Quincy High School football coach.

His counterpart Mark Nutley, North Quincy's first year head coach, agreed. "Coach Reardon and I have both played and coached in the Thanksgiving Day football game. We love the tradition and appreciate all of the support from former players and alumni."

Those interested in playing or purchasing a 50-50 raffle ticket or for more information, contact Scott Campbell at scampbell0714@yahoo.com or 857-939-9692.

Over 70 Atherton Hough Students Walk to School

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Over 70 students from Atherton Hough Elementary School walked to school together on Oct. 9th in celebration of International Walk to School Day in conjunction with the start of the 'walking school bus' program which encourages students to walk to school each Wednesday morning.

ATHERTON HOUGH PRINCIPAL Robin Moreira (left) and parent volunteer Heather Wakelin (right) were among the many adults who helped get the program started. The walking school bus will take place every Wednesday where students throughout Houghs Neck walk their designated route to school.

"It was exciting. It was definitely a success for the first day, we had a good amount of parent volunteers helping us out and a good amount of students participating, and we all got to school on time which was great," said Atherton Hough Principal Robin Moreira. "We're really a great community school and a walkable school so we wanted to encourage more kids to walk to bring the community together."

Last spring a group of Atherton Hough parents presented the idea of starting a walking school bus at a PTO meeting.

"It started off as an idea to have kids bike to school but then we teamed up with MassDOT and decided to have them walk to school," said parent coordinator Jeff Earnest.

"I figured we should have them walk before they cycle so we got the walking part started. The folks at MassDOT have created four routes for walking to the school that cover most of Houghs Neck, the blue, green, orange, and red lines. It was a perfect day to kick it off because it was International Walk to School Day and we got a very good turn out and perfect weather for the occasion."

Earnest said that over the years more and more parents have been driving their children to school and on any given morning at Atherton Hough the streets are crammed with cars dropping kids off which is where the idea of the weekly walking program originated.

"Atherton Hough is lucky because it is a neighborhood school they still have a fair amount of walkers," said Earnest. "There are a lot of kids, however, not walking to school that could easily do so. Walking to school provides benefits such as exercise and increased alertness when coming to school. Ironically, walking to school in a walking school bus, instead of driving, may reduce tardiness as well."

International Walk to School Day is an international movement to promote safe routes for walking to school and includes students from all 50 states and over 40 countries.

"The plan we've come up with is to create a "walking school bus" for walking to school each Wednesday morning," said Earnest.

"Atherton Hough became the first school in Quincy to sign up for the program, while surrounding communities such as Braintree, Dorchester, Milton, and Weymouth all have multiple schools in the program. For the fall, the focus is on increasing walking to school, while in the spring, we will hopefully focus on cycling."

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Wednesday, October 9, 2013, Officers' Steve Cleary and James Cassidy, assigned to the Anti-Crime Unit in the Quincy Square area, were on patrol separately on foot and dressed in plainclothes. At approximately 10:40 A.M., Officer Cassidy observed two males acting suspiciously in the Ross Parking Garage. He followed the two males into the Rite Aid store on Granite Street. One of the males obtained a prescription from the pharmacy and exited the store alone. The Officer knew from his training and experience that prescription drugs are often sold illegally on the streets for a profit, so he kept the male (suspect) with the prescription under observation. The suspect placed the prescription in his left sweatshirt pocket prior to leaving the store. This suspect then walked from Rite Aid to the Quincy Center MBTA Station. For approximately 20 minutes, the male was off and on his cell phone while pacing around. Officer Cassidy believed that whoever the suspect was talking to on his cell phone could be coming to meet up with the suspect. Officer Cassidy contacted Officer Cleary and advised him of his observations. Officer Cleary responded to the general area and assisted with keeping the suspect under observation. Approximately 10 minutes after Officer Cleary arrived, the suspect met up with two other males and walked to the entranceway of 1250 Hancock Street/President's Place. One of the males entered the north entrance of 1250 Hancock Street while the suspect and the other male walked past the convenience store entrance and onto the sidewalk adjacent to Saville Avenue. At this point, Officer Cleary followed the suspect and the other male down Saville Avenue.

Officer Cleary observed the suspect and the male party turn their bodies towards a wall and bushes, away from public view. Officer Cleary observed the suspect reach into his left sweatshirt pocket and remove an item. At the same, Officer Cleary observed the male with U.S. currency in his right hand. Suspecting a possible drug transaction, the Officers approached both males. As the Officers came in from different directions, Officer Cleary observed the suspect attempt to hand the male the item that he removed from his left pocket while the male was observed attempting to hand the suspect the money. As the Officers closed in from different angles, the suspect and the male spotted them and immediately ceased their action, with both male pulling their hands back as they started walking away. The Officers stopped both males and separated them. The male had two $5 bills in his right hand and the suspect was holding one open Suboxone strip. The suspect was in possession of a total of 28 Suboxone (sublingual) strips, 26 were in the Rite Aid prescription package and two open strips were located on his person. Both suspects were placed into custody and transported to the station for booking. The suspect with the drugs, a 29 year old Quincy resident, was charged with "Conspiracy to Violate Controlled Substance Laws and Possession of Class B w/ Intent to Distribute." The suspect with the money, a 39 year old Brockton resident, was charged with, "Conspiracy to Violate Controlled Substance Laws and Possession of Class B, Subsequent Offense."

Lt. Paul F. O'Brien, 87

A funeral Mass for Ret. Boston Fire Department Lt. Paul Francis O'Brien, 87, of Pembroke and formerly Quincy will be celebrated at 10 a.m. today (Thursday) at Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Lt. O'Brien died Sunday at Brigham and Women's Faulkner Hospital, Boston, surrounded by his loving family.

Although many knew him as Lt. O'Brien, his children knew him simply as Dad. His wife, Elizabeth Frances O'Brien, remembers him as her loving and devoted husband, and his fourteen grandchildren will forever love and remember him as Grampie.

He was born in 1926 in Dorchester, MA and married the love of his life, Elizabeth Frances Hook, in 1955.

He joined the Boston Fire Department in 1957 fulfilling his life long dream to become a firefighter. From his childhood home, he could hear the ring of the firehouse bell that rang as a signal to gather the firefighters before they embarked on another life-saving mission. Every time he heard the bell in his adolescence, his desire to one-day join the men who risked their lives to save the lives of others intensified. He not only fulfilled that dream, but surpassed it as he worked his way to the rank of lieutenant.

As a firefighter Lt. O'Brien saved numerous lives, however, he is most remembered by the Boston Fire Department for one save in particular. In 1973 when the department was responding to a fire, he, then an Acting Lieutenant, saved a woman from a fire in a three-family home. After repeated attempts to climb the front stairs and being driven back by the heat, he made his way over a ladder to the third floor where he rescued an unconscious woman while suffering smoke inhalation and burns on his face, neck and ears.

In recognition of his heroic actions, the fire commissioner awarded him the Walter Scott Medal for Valor on Oct. 22, 1973. "This award is presented by the Fire Commissioner to the Fire Fighter who, in his judgment, has during the calendar year, especially distinguished himself for valor in the performance of his duty as a Fire Fighter. This award shall be made each year unless in the opinion of the Fire Commissioner, there is no Fire Fighter entitled to receive such a

Lt. O'Brien honored the Boston Fire Department throughout his life. His countless stories of his missions on Engine 22 and Ladder 11 shall live on through his family and friends who will continue to remember him as the brave and loving man he was and who will continue to retell his stories to the future generations that survive him.

Lt. O'Brien only had one love that was greater than his love of his days on the Boston Fire Department, and that love was for his wife and his family. He was a husband, a father, a grandfather, a brother, and an uncle, but most of all he was a friend. Paul was the one person everybody could always depend upon as he spread his unconditional love. His memory will live on in their hearts and in their faith.

Loving husband of Elizabeth Frances O'Brien. Devoted father of John O'Brien and his wife Diane, Paul O'Brien and his wife Gail, Kevin O'Brien and his wife Kristen, Ellen Leonard and her husband Edward, Meghan Haggerty and her husband Michael, David O'Brien and his wife Colleen, Gerard O'Brien, and the late William O'Brien. Cherished grandfather of Brendan, Casey, Sean, Sara, Erin, Shauna, Kelly, Liam, Lauren, Olivia, and Hannah O'Brien and Eddie, Mary Margaret and Elizabeth Leonard. One of seven children, he is also survived by his sister, Anna Donahue and his sister-in-law Ellie O'Brien. Predeceased by his siblings Lawrence O'Brien, Rita Strachan, Marion Russo, William O'Brien, and John O'Brien.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You enjoy the attention early in the week, but it might be a good idea to opt for some privacy by week's end so that you can have more time to consider an upcoming decision.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You unearthed some surprising facts. Now you need to consider how to use them to your advantage. Meanwhile, it might be best to keep what you've learned secret for now.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A comment by a colleague piques your curiosity to know more. Best advice: You'll find people more likely to offer information if you're discreet when making your inquiries.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your energy levels begin to rise by midweek. This allows you to catch up with your heavy workload and still have plenty of get-up-and-go to go out on the town this weekend.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're probably roaring your head off about a perceived slight from a longtime critic. Ignore it. That person might just be trying to goad you into doing something you might later regret.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The early part of the week is open to spontaneity. Then it's time to settle into your usual routine to get all your tasks done. A personal situation could require more attention from you.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A meeting of the minds on a workplace project might well develop into something more personal for Librans looking for romance. Aspects are also favorable for platonic relationships.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A more-positive mood might be difficult to assume in light of a recent problem involving the health of someone special. But by week's end, your emotional barometer should start to rise.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Look for a changed attitude from a former adversary once he or she realizes you have your colleagues' full support. Now you can refocus your energies on that workplace project.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This time, a difference of opinion might not be resolved in your favor. But be patient. It ultimately could all work out to your advantage, as new information begins to develop.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A tug of war develops between the artistic Aquarian's creative aspect and his or her practical side. Best advice: Prioritize your schedule so you can give appropriate time to both.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You could be entering a career phase awash with job-related demands. But avoid being swamped by the overflow and, instead, keep treading water as you deal with demands one by one.
BORN THIS WEEK: You are an exceptionally loyal person, and you're respected for your ability to keep the secrets entrusted to you.

School, Ward 4 Races Decided Next Tuesday

Binding 4-Year Mayoral Term, Two Other Questions Also On Ballot

By SCOTT JACKSON

Only 14,000 voters are expected to head to the polls next Tuesday for Quincy's municipal election that features only two contested races and three ballot questions, including a binding referendum that – if approved by voters – would change the term of mayor from two to four years.

City Clerk Joseph Shea predicts about 22 percent of Quincy's 63,687 registered voters – about 14,011 – will cast ballots Nov. 5.

There are two two-contested races on the ballot for Ward 4 city councillor and School Committee – as well as two binding and one non-binding ballot questions.

In the city-wide race for School Committee, four candidates are vying for three seats. Incumbents Barbara Isola of 34 Randlett St., Emily Lebo of 354 Highland Ave., and Anne Mahoney of 12 Ferriter St. are all running for re-election. Isola

DNA Evidence In Puppy Case

CT Man Held On $500,000 Bail After Pleading Innocent To 11 Counts Of Animal Cruelty

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

A 32-year-old Connecticut man was held on $500,000 cash bail after pleading innocent to 11 counts of animal cruelty in connection with the 'Puppy Doe' animal cruelty case.

Radoslaw Czerkawski appeared before Justice Mark S. Coven in Quincy District Court Tuesday afternoon after being arrested in Connecticut last Wednesday, Oct. 23. Czerkawski is not only being charged with 11 counts of animal cruelty, which is an up to five-year sentence in a state prison, but also a charge of misleading the investigation.

Emotions were high in the packed courtroom as Tracey A. Cusick of the District Attorney's office outlined evidence, including DNA tests, which linked 'Puppy Doe' to the 89 Whitwell St. residence where Czerkawski was staying before moving around Sept. 29.

Czerkawski had lived at that address – less than a quarter of a mile from the Whitwell Street Playground where the dog was found on Aug. 31 – as a caretaker of an elderly woman. Czerkawski lived on the

New Sterling School New Focus

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

With the new Central Middle School finishing its second week of classes the focus now turns to the hope of building a new Sterling Middle School.

According to Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro the Massachusetts School Building Authority's (MSBA) recent visit to Sterling Middle School on Oct. 15th, which was a follow-up on the city's statement of interest request, was a success.

"On Tuesday Oct. 15th we were fortunate to have the MSBA senior study visit in regards to Sterling Middle School," DeCristofaro said during a recent school committee meeting. "They spent quite a bit of time at the school touring but they also had many questions. We thought it was a very, very successful meeting. We are hoping that the MSBA will be continuing their process with the Quincy Public Schools in regards to Sterling Middle School."

At the end of March QPS submitted a statement of interest to the MSBA to open the door for discussion with the building authority on whether the middle school needs to be upgraded. The middle school, which was built in 1927, is home to students in grades 5-8.

"We submitted to the MSBA the enrollment of the school and the facility data which shows that the city is supportive of facility management," DeCristofaro said in a recent phone interview with The Sun. "We've put work into the building, including the roof, the boilers, and the technology aspect of

Interior Demolition Underway At 169-Year-Old City Hall

By SCOTT JACKSON

Interior demolition is underway at the old City Hall building, the first step in a 16-month long project to renovate the 169-year old building.

On the first floor of old City Hall, formally known as the James R. McIntyre Government Center, space that was formerly home to the City Clerk's Offices, including the Licensing and Elections Departments as well as vital statistics, workers have begun demolishing finished surfaces and have pulled out carpeting and flooring. Similar work has also commenced in the City Council chamber on the second floor and offices on the second and on the third floors.

"It's a partial demolition of finishes and certain building systems but it has to be coordinated with the removal and abatement of asbestos. It's a very careful process so they don't spread contaminants in the workplace," said Jim Edwards, the architect overseeing the renovations and the president of the Quincy Historical Society.

As part of the project the partitions that divide the offices on the second floor from the council chambers will be removed, as will the offices above them on the third floor. Support columns on the first floor, which hold up the partition, are also slated to be removed.

Removal of the second floor partition and the offices from the third floor will restore the council chamber to its original dimensions, when it was known as the Great Hall. The new Great Hall will seat 200 people on the second floor – two-and-a-half times its current capacity – with additional seating on a new third floor balcony. Edwards and his team are planning to replicate the Great Hall's original appearance in the renovated space.

DEMOLITION IS UNDERWAY inside the City Council chamber on the second floor of old City Hall. Workers have begun tearing the partition, seen here at right, that divides the chamber from offices. The restored council chamber, known as the Great Hall, will seat 200 hundred people and take up much of the second floor. The third floor of the building, including the framing (top left), will be removed to make way for a balcony. The rostrum where the councillors sat during meetings was located in the area shown at bottom right.

FIRST FLOOR OFFICE space previously used by Assistant City Clerk Maureen Hallsen and the city's Elections Department and vital statistics office, has been gutted as the first part of renovations to old City Hall. Once completed, this space will house a new meeting room for city boards, such as the Planning and License Boards. Space on the other side of the first floor will be used for exhibits.

The Great Hall will be reserved for council use and special events, such as mayoral inaugurations. Other public bodies – including the Planning, License, and Zoning Boards – will meet in a new meeting space on the first floor of the building. Additional space on the first floor has been reserved for new exhibition space.

The basement will be gutted as well, and the floor

City Could Reach Host Agreements With Dispensaries

By SCOTT JACKSON

Medical marijuana dispensaries planning on opening in Quincy could reach host agreements that would provide the city with benefits, such as a portion of the profits and educational programs for patients and the public.

The City Council's public safety committee met Monday night to discuss the host agreements. Councillor Doug Gutro sponsored, and Councillors Brad Croall and Brian Palmucci co-sponsored, a resolution introduced in September that calls for the city to reach the host agreements with dispensaries. Palmucci, who is the chairman of the public safety committee, said Monday that Quincy should work with dispensaries so the city could work to mitigate any negative impact they would bring.

"If a facility opens up on Independence Ave. in Braintree and it's right on the Quincy border or in East Milton Square in Milton, or the same in Weymouth or Dorchester, we would get all of the negative impacts we would get if it was opened in the city with probably very little of the mitigation that would come with that," Palmucci said. "I think it's important to be open to working with dispensaries so that we can help target the negative impacts we want to offset."

Palmucci named several ways in which host agreements could benefit the community. He suggested that dispensaries could help purchase new dogs for the Police Department, install security cameras to monitor the streets the dispensary is located on, give a portion of the proceeds to the city and community groups, and hire local residents.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins said the city would work with the dispensaries, similar to how it works with other businesses trying to come to Quincy.

"We've come a long way from the Kid Charlemagne days of the '70s when everything was illegal and phone calls to people who only had first names," Timmins said. "We're now working with business people who have business plans. They're getting investors to buy in because of what's going to be involved in creating these cultivation facilities. This is an industry. This is like permitting BJ's or others."

Valerio Romano, an attorney who represents several groups trying to open dispensaries in Quincy, said he believes a dispensary would inevitably open in the city. Dispensaries, he explained while not referencing any client in particular, would be willing to reach host agreements that could provide the city a portion of gross profits, provide education to patients, fund educational programs in the community, and hire local residents, among other items.

"We want to be responsible corporate partners and citizens in the community," Romano said. "There's been some talk that it's sort of like a Stop & Shop or something, but I think it's more than that. We're trying to provide medicine to patients. By being a responsible corporate citizen, we want to agree to a host agreement that is very beneficial to the city as well."

Under state regulations, the non-profit groups hoping to open one of the 35 dispensaries in the state must submit applications by Nov. 21, and those applications must note the community in which a dispensary would open with letters from community officials indicating either support or lack of opposition to the proposal. Romano and other attorneys present noted that at least one application will list Quincy as a host community.

Councillors at the meeting, including Gutro, said applicants should host community meetings before getting local approval.

"Before you earn a letter of support or even a promise not to weigh-in you've got to give the courtesy to the ward councillor to have a public discussion with the neighbors," Gutro said. "It's got to happen."

Attorney David Mahoney noted that even if a dispensary receives initial approval from the state Department of Public Health in January, they would still have to pass the local permitting process before being granted a license to open. In Quincy, that could include reviews by the Planning and Zoning Boards.

Cottage Avenue Open Throughout Winter

Cottage Avenue reopened Monday and will stay open throughout the winter, Street-Works announced Tuesday in a press release.

The developer said the onset of cold weather and the continuing redesign of the Merchants Row project provided them a 'rational stopping point' for the utility work that required the closure of Cottage Avenue. Similar utility work already took place on Chestnut Street, which was closed from late June to early October.

The utility work is to support the Merchants Row project, the first block of downtown development being undertaken by Street-Works as part of their $1.6 billion redevelopment project. It was originally intended to incorporate two new mixed-use buildings, but Street-Works announced in late August that they had purchased additional buildings on the block and would build three buildings on a larger footprint. Ken Narva, the firm's managing partner and co-founder, said progress will be made this winter on redesign plans for site.

"The modification of design plans for Merchants Row – to incorporate the greater footprint, varied residential buildings, additional retail and expanded public space – is ongoing," Narva said. "This winter will see tremendous progress in the design work and new construction pricing to bring down costs."

A quarterly update on the downtown project is scheduled to take place during the Nov. 18 City Council meeting.

By State Rep. BRUCE AYERS

The City of Boston's proposal for $14 million dollars in "capital improvements" to the 60-year old Long Island Bridge is currently before the Quincy Conservation Commission.

These patchwork repairs are going to cost the Massachusetts and Boston taxpayers' an exorbitant amount to finance a bridge that will continue to have structural exposure to salt air and water.

The two-lane, 3,450-foot Long Island Bridge connecting Moon Island Road and Long Island Road, would take approximately $60 million dollars to replace.

So, the real question is; why is the City of Boston spending $14 Million dollars to "maintain" an unsafe bridge, while other more vital bridges in the City of Boston are neglected.

The Long Island Bridge has approximately 500 vehicles of Average Daily Traffic (ADT) per day.

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation reports that the City of Boston has approximately 37 bridges that are deemed STRUCTURALLY DEFICIENT and have a high volume of vehicular traffic (70,000-150,000 vehicles) per day.

My office has obtained a Massachusetts Department of Transportation 2012 Structures Inspection Field Report, to review the current state and condition of the bridge, including the superstructure, substructure, and deck fortitude. This report emphasizes that the Long Island Bridge is a safety and environmental risk and one of the most dangerous bridges in the state.

Because of Federal and State mandated weight and safety restrictions, the Long Island Bridge cannot support a full-sized school bus or fire apparatus due to its reduced load carrying capacity.

The MBTA is currently spending our tax dollars on three bus routes that service the island, which remain at half capacity, due to weight restrictions on the bridge.

There is strong competition from municipalities for every limited dollar available to be used for infrastructure improvements.

Given the increasingly limited city and state budgets, a feasibility study should be done on the alternative of a ferry service in place of the Long Island Bridge, particularly where there is an operational ferry service pier/dock infrastructure located on Long Island that could be expanded upon for transportation needs.

A ferry service could be a safer and more economical means of transportation to the island. Rather than investing millions of dollars revamping a deteriorating and dangerous bridge, time and time again.

Boaters have also witnessed debris falling from that bridge. This bridge is a maritime safety hazard to all who travel over and under.

I have a responsibility to protect the interests of my constituents but also of the Citizens of the Commonwealth. I have cosponsored legislation pertaining to this issue with State Representative Nick Collins of South Boston, whose legislative district encompasses Long Island.

The Quincy Conservation Commission will be reviewing this proposal next month.

In preparation of that review, I have voiced my concerns to the Massachusetts Department of Transportation's Secretary Davey, for a study to be done on the feasibility for a ferry service, as an alternative means of transportation to the island.

I have also met with Chairman David Linsky of Post Audit and Oversight Committee, to discuss the fiscal mismanagement of funding this bridge; where this $14 Million could be spent repairing other inner city bridges, protecting the commuters and developing the downtown infrastructure. To discuss the wetland concerns surrounding this issue, I recently met with Chairwoman Anne Gobi of the Joint Committee on Environment, Natural Resources and Agriculture to discuss the scope of this project and the environmental impacts it will have in relationship to our beaches, shellfish and maritime use of our coastal community.

I have asked these officials to provide recommendations that I can forward onto the Quincy Conservation Commission to be factored into their deliberations next month.

With new leadership in Boston City Hall, I strongly believe that this $14 Million proposal should be reconsidered and a more comprehensive look and decision should be rendered in regards to the long-term transportation management to Long Island, while protecting the public safety and taxpayers' interests.

Bruce Ayers serves as state representative in the First Norfolk District.

Chamber: Vote Yes On 4-Year Mayoral Term

On behalf of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, I would like to express the organization's support of Ballot Question 1 in the City of Quincy to change the Mayoral term of office from two years to four years. As the sponsor of this Ballot Question, I would also like to thank the over 3,000 residents of this community that signed the petition to put this question to the voters in Quincy.

The office of the Mayor today is similar to a CEO of a multi-million dollar corporation. Like many CEO's, the Mayor is responsible for the administration of hundreds of millions of dollars, the oversight of a multitude of projects and initiatives, the employment of thousands of individuals, and the implementation of a long range vision for a prosperous and sustainable community. These, as well as many other responsibilities attributed to the position of Mayor, require consistent and focused leadership that is afforded by a four year term.

Business leaders and investors need to have a clear understanding of who they will be working with, what is expected, and what the future direction of the city is prior to undertaking a multi-million dollar investment in today's competitive economic environment. A four year term establishes more consistent government leadership and creates a more predictable environment to foster and support economic growth and business development. We have seen the results of this first hand with the recent ground breaking of the $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center; a project that has been over eight years in the making, and which required focused, predictable and stable government sector leadership to achieve the successes it has to date.

A four year administration creates a stable and efficient government structure, providing continuity and predictable services and resources to the overall community. It also establishes a more stable employment environment necessary to attract high quality professionals to oversee and manage the diversity of responsibilities attributed to local government today.

As the city enters a period of unprecedented growth and national recognition, it is time that the voters of Quincy provide their Mayor, their CEO, the commitment and time he/she needs to effectively lead without having to worry about the personal and professional demands of a re-election every two years. The residents of this city should have just as much confidence in the vote that they cast for Mayor, whether it is for a two or four year period.

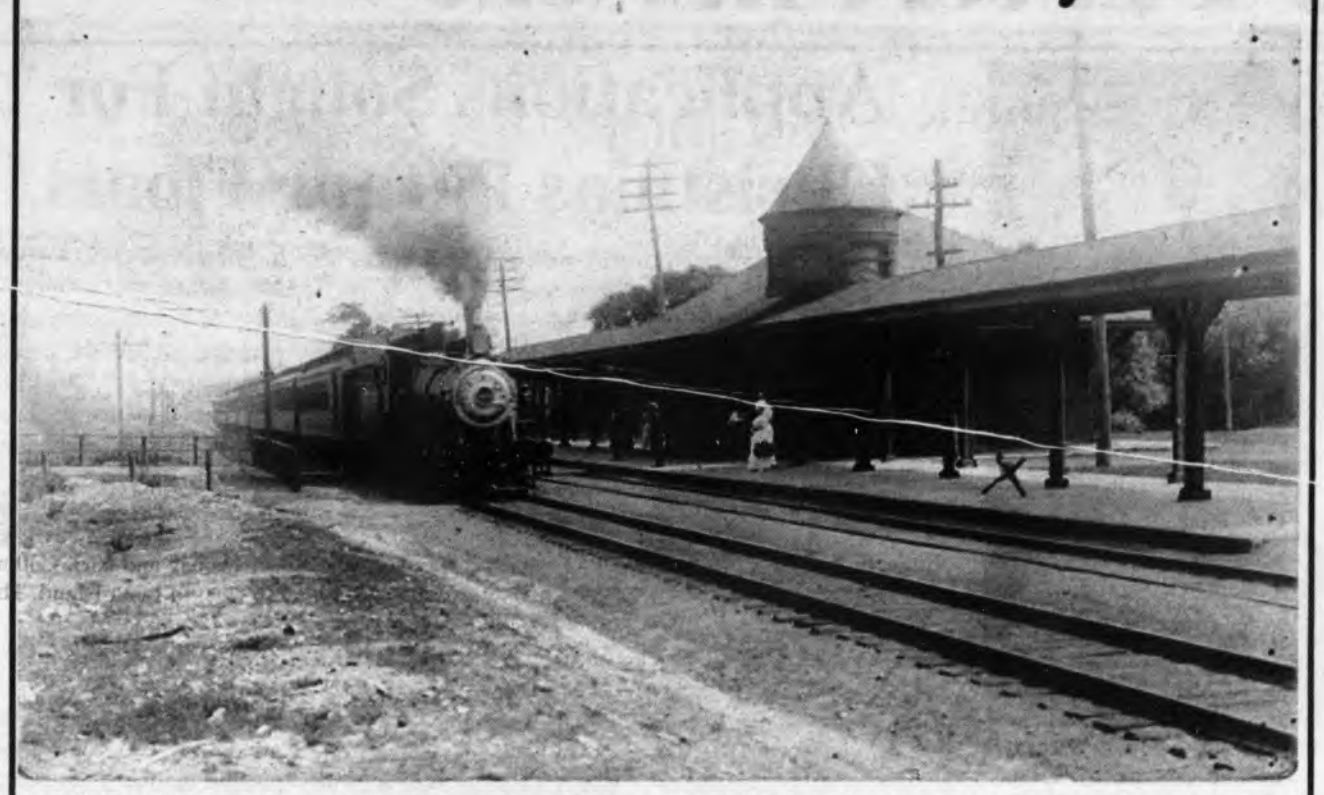

Eight Massachusetts communities have changed their mayoral term from two to four years in the last 15 years, and two others have it on the ballot this year. It is time for the city of Quincy to do the same; providing the community with a governmental system that is consistent, predictable and focused to meet the challenges ahead and effectively take advantage of the opportunities that are provided.

Please Vote "Yes" on Question 1 to change the term of the office of the Mayor of Quincy from two years to four years on November 5th.

Thank you.

Quincy Chamber of Commerce

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1917 real photo postcard view of the old Norfolk Downs railroad depot at the end of Billings Road. This view is towards Wollaston. Built in 1892, the year that the land development company in the area adopted the name of Norfolk Downs for its new subdivision, the Old Colony railroad used the name for its new passenger station. Just south of here on the Newport Avenue side of the tracks the railroad had a freight house on a siding that was used by the many industrial companies that were located in the area. Passenger service ended here in 1959 when the New Haven Railroad closed the Old Colony line. This depot was later demolished when the MBTA built the Red Line. Then Quincy Mayor James McIntyre had convinced the T to build the present North Quincy station nearer the recently filled in Montclair marshes that became home to the State Street Bank office park. This old depot site is now the location of a Mexican restaurant. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Bricks And Better Communication

After a spate of bad press over the engraved golden commemorative bricks now formerly in front of new City Hall, Mayor Koch apparently felt it necessary to buy a full page ad in last week's Quincy Sun to tout his current plans for these bricks.

So much for a well-warranted mea culpa.

Even worse, however, is that the current plans per his ad do not comport with previous statements out of City Hall. For example, Koch Administration spokesman Chris Walker was formally quoted as saying that ". . . the bricks may not be used because they create a slippery, unsafe walking surface in the winter."

Er, ah, what sidewalk isn't slippery during the winter?

Other comments out of City Hall were similarly negative about the future of the bricks.

At best, the Koch Administration has very poorly communicated its plans for the bricks and now is trying to spin its way out of a deep hole of its own digging.

Speaking of poor communications, when is Mayor Koch ever going to explain why his plans for the pending mere 1.3 acre Adams Green between City Hall and the Presidents Church are (currently) projected to run $25 million for ultimately but landscaping?

Also, why were his previous plans to spend "only" $15 million, well, inadequate?

On a cost per square foot basis, his planned spending on the green would easily cover the cost to build as well as landscape an upscale office building or a well-appointed custom home.

Is he planning to pave the front of City Hall with real gold bricks or what?

Editor's Note: The brick ad in last week's Sun was paid for by the Committee to Elect Tom Koch.

Bricks And Ballot Box

This city of Quincy is supposed to be a city of history, not a dictatorship that we have now under Mayor Tom Koch.

Yes, I said dictatorship, with Tom Koch as the dictator. Just for an example,Tom Koch, and his removal of the bricks in front of city hall, that was meant to be there for ever. Mayor Koch never contacted one person that bought the bricks, regarding his plans to turn the front of city hall, into a grassy knoll.

Tom Koch has no idea how much hurt he has caused to the family's that had those bricks placed there for eternity. Tom Koch feels that he can do anything he wants, regardless of how the taxpayer feels. They call that dictatorship, not democracy.

I say, when you go to the polls to vote next Tuesday, check the empty box, and send Tom Koch a message.

78% Turnout Seen For Election Day

By SCOTT JACKSON

Seventy-eight percent of Quincy's 51,908 registered voters were expected to head to the polls on Nov. 4, which would be the city's lowest turnout for a presidential election in many years, according to City Clerk John M. Gillis.

In the presidential race, incumbent President Jimmy Carter, a former governor of Georgia, and his Vice President Walter Mondale of Minnesota were opposed by Republican California Gov. Ronald Reagan and his running mate George H.W. Bush, a former Texas congressman who was born in Milton.

"That is the only office with a real contest," Gillis said of the presidential race.

Most Quincy voters had only one other race to decide. Democrat Peter L. Eleey, a Quincy attorney, was running for Governor's Council against William J. Robinson of Hull. That seat had been held for 33 years by the late Patrick J. "Sonny" McDonough.

Ward 2 voters were also able to cast ballots in a race for state representative. Incumbent Rep. Robert Cerasoli, a Quincy Democrat, was opposed by Gerald E. Lawler, a Weymouth Republican.

U.S. Rep. Brian J. Donnelly, Sen. Paul D. Harold, Reps. Thomas F. Brownell and Michael W. Morrissey, Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall, and County Commissioners James. J. Collins and George B. McDonald, all Democrats, were all running unopposed.

Voters also had six ballot questions to decide.

Question 1 would amend the state constitution to prohibit against handicapped people.

Known as Proposition 2 ½, Question 2 was the most debated referendum on the ballot. It would limit the amount a municipality could raise property to 2.5 percent yearly.

Question 3, the Massachusetts Teachers' Associations' answer to Prop. 2 ½, would also limit local property taxes and state taxes while guaranteeing increased state aid for local educational purposes.

Question 4, if passed, would approve a pay raise legislators gave themselves. Legislators gave themselves a raise to $20,335, with the Senate president and House speaker receiving new salaries of $55,920.

Question 5 would limit the Legislature's power to impose new costs on cities and towns by regulating the conditions of municipal employment.

Question 6 would amend the state constitution to allow a measure to become law immediately by voice vote instead of recorded vote.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Quahog Chowder

My niece Anita and her husband Harry were here recently on vacation from Arizona. We were all set to go out to lunch and she surprised me with a bag of quahogs and one large conch, a rarity around here.

Their friends, Frank and Diane, had gone fishing that morning, and thought I would enjoy them.

I boiled the conch as you would a lobster- about 20 minutes or so.

Conches can be used cut up in a salad, or in a tomato sauce. My daughter Rita used it in tomato sauce for a wonderful flavor.

I cooked the quahogs with water, a can of beer, a large onion, salt and pepper.

My daughter Nancy cut the quahogs in small pieces with a scissors and set them aside.

After they are cooked, pour the juice with a strainer and set aside.

To make the chowder:

Enough water to cover the quahogs, a can of beer, salt and pepper and one chopped onion.

After they are boiled, chucked and cut, set aside. Then for the chowder.

1 stick of butter
1 medium onion (chopped)
3 medium sized potatoes (diced)
Quahogs and the juice
Cream or half and half

In a large pan, heat the butter. Add the onions and cook until translucent. Add the potatoes, and the strained juice and cook until the potatoes are tender. Add the quahogs and heat. When ready to serve, add the cream or half and half and heat until just before coming to a boil. Serve with oysterettes.

We made the base for the chowder and froze it until Labor Day when we were altogether. Then we heated the chowder, added the cream or half and half. It tasted much better with quahogs than clams in our opinion.

Grandmother's Super Potatoes

When I was about 12 years old, my maternal grandmother who was vision impaired taught me how to make today's recipe for potatoes, and one in which I still use with a cast iron pan like she did.

They can also be used in another kind of a skillet, but I do it her way.

BREAKFAST POTATOES

2-3 large potatoes
3- tablespoons oil (I used olive oil)
Salt and pepper to taste
1 small onion (sliced)

Slice the potatoes on a cheese grater or mandolin. They are almost as thin as a potato chip.

In the hot oil, sauté the onion and then add the potatoes, salt and pepper. Cook on medium heat turning until they are crispy. It doesn't take long because the potatoes are so thin.

The last time I made them for breakfast, and the guests were a little late, I placed them in a warming oven until it was time to serve.

This has always been my favorite kind of potatoes, thanks to my wonderful grandmother.

Maria Droste Agency Awards Ceremony Nov. 21

The Good Shepherd Maria Droste Agency will honor its 2013 award recipients Thursday, Nov. 21 from 6 to 9 p.m. at the River Bay Club, 99 Brackett St., Quincy.

This year's recipients are Chris and Jim Driscoll; Paul Hart and the Bernier Family.

The Driscolls will be presented the Personal Commitment Award for epitomizing the "Family Principles" that the Good Shepherd Maria Droste Agency holds in high esteem. The award also recognizes a person or persons devoted to their individual family as well as to their community.

Chris and Jim Driscoll are being honored for their work at "One Life at a Time." This non-profit organization was established in 2008 in response to the rise in unemployment in the New England area. The Driscolls journey is both inspiring and noble and it has become the basis for their work at "One Life at a Time." Their organization has helped over 8,000 individuals who may have been knocked down either professionally or personally; helped them get back up and move on.

Paul Hart, the CEO of The Lantana, will be presented the Maria Droste Agency's Corporate Award. For over 40 years, Lantana's has had a strong reputation that is based on providing excellent customer service.

After Maurice and Joan Hart started a small catering business out of their Roslindale home in 1956, growth forced them to move to the HP Hood plant in Dorchester and then again to accommodate their success to a larger facility in Randolph - the Lantana. Hart will be recognized for his organization's continued help and support they have given Maria Droste each year for their annual fund raising event. The exceptional cooperation and considerations given in so different many ways each year adds to the success of the event.

Maria Droste will also present its inaugural Inside the Agency Award named after the agency's last director, Sister Lorraine Bernier. The first recipient will be Lorraine's family.

"Her sisters and their spouses have faithfully been an integral part of our annual event for many years," said Maria Droste spokesperson Maralin Manning. "Each year they are on hand and always with their arms full of wonderful additions to our extravagant auction tables. Such a wonderful family, who were always so very happy to help their sister in her work. The committee voted to give this first award to the Bernier family in gratefulness for their support and in the hope they will remain part of our family here at Maria Droste."

Since the agency's opening in 1992, the staff and volunteer professionals have proved critical support to individuals, couples and family groups on an adjustable fee scale based on the client's ability to pay. The sliding fee scale is made possible by the generosity of supporting people in the community not unlike those given awards this year.

Friends and families of those receiving awards are invited to attend that evening.

For more information about the event or the agency contact Stacey Campbell at 617-471-5686.

Man Held; DNA Evidence In 'Puppy Doe' Case

second floor while the elderly woman lived on the first floor until she passed away on Aug. 31.

"On Oct. 20 police conducted a search at 89 Whitwell St. in Quincy," said Cusick. "Red/brown spatter stains were apparent in the bathroom, on the two bedrooms on the second floor, including an apparent paw print in red/brown substance on the bathroom floor. Scratch and shoe marks consistent with a dog were observed in the lower corner of a door frame in a room on the second floor. Apparent dog fur consistent with the color of 'Puppy Doe's' coat was found on the carpet and also apparently on the walls.

"Tissue samples from 'Puppy Doe' had been sent to a genetic lab for analysis and a unique DNA profile had been generated, some of the red/brown spatter stains were swabbed by crime scene services, those swabs were also sent to that genetics lab, and it was determined 'Puppy Doe' was a contributor to the DNA spatter in the second room bathroom," Cusick added.

Police tracked down Czerkawski after following a lead from 'Puppy Doe's' previous owner who had told officers she posted an ad on Craigslist after needing to re-home the dog. That woman who is referred to in the Commonwealth's Memoranda as LH responded to the police's call for help in the case and provided photographs of the dog she had owned. Those photographs were examined by the ARL's (Animal Rescue League of Boston) vet and she determined the unique markings on the dogs coat matched 'Puppy Doe.'

That woman, LH, indicated that she ultimately transferred the dog to two people in Worcester, known as KP and AD, who responded to her Craigslist ad. Police met with KP and AD who indicated they in turn transferred the dog via a Craigslist ad on June 8 to a man they described as 28-40 years old. Police then learned that the cell phone number that had been used to contact KP and AD was a subscriber number that belonged to Czerkawski. Police showed a photograph of Czerkawski as part of a photo array to KP and AD in Worcester and they indicated it was the same man they had given the puppy to.

Reports from Craigslist indicate that KP's ad had been posted on Craigslist and a search of Czerkawski's computer shows he had accessed that ad.

Czerkawski is being charged with misleading the investigation after providing false information to officers on Sept. 24. As a part of their investigation police were knocking on doors around the area where the puppy was found and had spoken to Czerkawski who indicated that he had seen two people, a boy and girl, white and black in color, with a dog, or two, when asked about the incident involving 'Puppy Doe.'

The young female pit bull mix was found when a resident on Carrolls Lane saw the puppy laying outside of the Whitwell Street Playground. At that time veterinarians from the ARL determined the dogs injuries were a clear result of repeated abuse, estimated to have occurred two to three weeks before the puppy was found. She had a stab wound to right eye, injuries to her nose, a split tongue, multiple skull fractures in various stages of healing, stress fractures to her spine, front and back leg injuries, and injuries to her shoulders and ribs. The puppy had to be euthanized due to the extent of her injuries.

Czerkawski is citizen of the Republic of Poland. He has no known ties to Massachusetts or the United States. He currently has no legal status in the United States and has over stayed his Visa and was not given a renewed Visa.

"This defendant faces significant potential penalty, he is currently charged with 11 counts of animal cruelty, and animal cruelty is a felony which he can spend up to five years in a state prison for," said Cusick. "Multiple acts committed at different times, injuries of different body parts of this dog. Certainly this defendant is potentially facing a decades long penalty of incarceration."

If Czerkawski is able to make bail Cusick asked that he surrender his passport and all travel documents, be subject to GPS monitoring, have no contact with witnesses, stay in Massachusetts, stay away from Whitwell St. and Carrolls Lane, stay away from 89 Whitwell St. and the owners, he can not possess custody of, or have contact, with any animal, and he is asked to stay away from any area where companion animals would be expected to be found.

A pre-trial hearing is set for Nov. 21.

Czerkawski's next court hearing is set for Nov. 21.

the school but we really do need a new Sterling."

Following their visit to the middle school the MSBA representatives will talk with senior officials at the MSBA and decide when to look at schools throughout the state. When looking at the whole state the MSBA will then determine if the city is in the category of need to get a new middle school.

"We don't have any input beyond the senior study," said DeCristofaro. "I know the MSBA has a meeting in November and in January so we are hoping that during one of those meetings there will be at least a discussion of Sterling and we will have an idea of when we will be invited in for further discussion. We've done everything we need to do."

Until the school department is called in by the MSBA to meet for further discussion details such as funding figures, percentage of how much the city will get back for building a new Sterling, and design can't really be planned.

"There are so many different issues we would have to go through with the MSBA before we can plan anything, it is just too early in the process to think that far ahead," said DeCristofaro. "The funding may not be what it was for Central, and we won't know that until we meet with them. We certainly want to make the same programmatic enhancements as we did for Central with Sterling."

During the Central Middle School opening ceremony on Oct. 20th state Treasurer Steve Grossman told those in attendance that, "the fact of the matter is we can't tell you the exact timing of Sterling, but Sterling will be built because the people of this City of Quincy want Sterling, need Sterling and that's something we'll partner with you on in the near future."

"At the Central opening the state treasurer made clear that he understood the need to build a new Sterling," said DeCristofaro. "We are very grateful to the treasurer for the work he's done with the City of Quincy as well as the Executive Director of the MSBA Jack McCarthy."

DeCristofaro added that if approved by the MSBA they hope to somehow tie together the new Sterling with Lincoln Hancock Elementary School.

"We want to make sure that Lincoln Hancock is tied to Sterling so it physically has more of a campus feel," said DeCristofaro. "When designing Sterling we will certainly look at the model school we have at Central, which was designed to uniquely meet the needs of Central's population."

New Athletic Directors Looking To Boost Sports Participation

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The city's two high school athletic directors told school committee members during the Oct. 23rd meeting that their main goal is to increase the participation rate in athletic programs.

"Our goals are very simple. Participation rate, it has to increase," said Quincy High School Athletic Director Patrick Lane. "The most telling figure is the percent of the school in fall athletics it's 17.5 percent at North Quincy High School, and at Quincy High School it is 17.2 percent.

"Regardless of any enrollment discrepancies between the two schools that's close, that's really close," Lane said. "The same thing is happening at both schools so our goal, not only at the high school level but also the middle school level, is to increase participation.

"It's very simple if the kids are involved they are going to do well."

At North Quincy High School there is a total of 205 athletes and 1,172 students. At Quincy High there are a total of 257 athletes and 1,495 students. The highest number of athletes in both high schools is in football: NQHS has 59 football players and QHS has 100 football players.

Lane added that they plan on conducting a survey at the middle school and high school level in hopes of determining what the main reason is that the majority of students are leaving school at 2:30 p.m.

"Our first agenda is going to be to survey the middle school population and survey the high school population because one of the things that I've notice, in my time in Quincy, not only as a teacher but also as a coach, is the percentage of the kids, this astronomical figure, of kids that leave at 2:30 p.m. every day. I want to know why," said Lane.

"We can figure out the numbers and that's great but I want to know why."

Joyce, who is the North Quincy High School Athletic Director, updated the committee on the goals he and Lane have set for the Athletic Program along with giving some information on the Athletic Advisory Team they created.

"The purpose of this team is to share and discuss the many issues facing our student athletes, coaches, and administrators in the

Garden Club Poetry Contest Open To All Quincy Youth

The Wollaston Garden Club announces the theme of this year's National Garden Club's Poetry Contest is "Protecting and Conserving Our Natural Resources."

The contest is an opportunity for youth to express and explore their creative thoughts through different types of poetry.

The Wollaston Garden Club will again sponsor Quincy student-poets in this year's contest.

Eligible students must be in grades Kindergarten through 9th, in general education, special education, and English as a Second Language. Students compete with other students in their specific category.

WGC Poetry Contest Coordinator Pat Artis reminds participants that "students in special education and ESL are judged separately from general education students, and to make sure to note that on the entry card on the back of the poem. A lot more of our Quincy students, in previous year's contests, would have won recognition and prizes, if our special needs and ESL students had not entered under the "general" category." Artis added that "students should focus on the quality of their writing and the poem itself, not decorating the poem with visuals."

With the 2013 theme of "Protecting and Conserving Our Natural Resources" the contest rules are:

- All entries must be typed and titled
- Include name, address, age, grade, and school of participant on the back of the entry.
- The name of the sponsoring club, "Wollaston Garden Club, Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, Inc" must be identified on the back of the entry.
- "Generation of Gardeners" sponsoring garden club may be that of a grandparent.
- All entries become the property of the NGC, Inc.
- Poems do not have to rhyme.
- Poems may be traditional verse, acrostics, blank verse, cinquains, diamond poems, limerick or Haiku. The Scale of Points used for scoring will be: Title-10; Content-40; Creativity-30 and Style-20. Only regional winners are considered in the judging for National winners.

New Athletic Directors Looking To Boost Sports Participation

Quincy Public Schools," said Joyce. "This team will enhance system communication and create a discussion base for the director's decisions. This team is very important to reach much of our improvement goals. We are very well represented across the board."

The team consists of a parent, a teacher from each high school, a physical education teacher from the middle school and a principal from the middle school with Joyce and Lane serving as co-chairmen.

Three goals the directors decided to retain from last year's improvement goals are:

• Continuing to work with coaches in order to monitor the no tolerance policy in regards to hazing, harassment and bullying;

• Continuing to work in collaboration with the high school deans to monitor students who may be at-risk or have attendance/disciplinary issues, and;

• Collaborating with the system-wide wellness team to ensure compliance of the current QPS wellness policy with the new state and federal regulations governing nutrition and wellness in schools.

"We retained three goals from last year's improvement plan. The reason why we retained them is because now that we are in the high schools we feel we can better implement each one of these goals," said Joyce.

"We're able to really enhance and push the academic requirements that are really stressed by Pat and myself both being teachers in the schools. Students really understand that their grades matter and they will be enforced not just from the coaches' level but the higher ups."

Joyce and Lane also told the school committee that they were improving and increasing access to information on athletics and athletic departments by revamping their webpage and calendars.

We want to increase the access to information for our respective athletic departments," said Lane. "We have improved and modified our athletic web pages. People need to know what we're up to."

QSO Free Concert At QHS Sunday

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra (QSO), under the direction of Music Director Yoichi Udagawa, launches its 60th season with a free concert at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 3 at the Lloyd Hill Performing Arts Center at Quincy High School.

The QSO will perform Igor Stravinsky's Symphony in C and Ludwig van Beethoven's Symphony No. 5.

"Beethoven's Fifth Symphony is one of the greatest and most popular symphonies ever written, and we wanted to start off our 60th Season with a big work," says Udagawa. "Igor Stravinsky's Symphony in C is a neoclassical symphony that absolutely sparkles. I am sure the audience will love the pairing of these great works written by two of the giants of western classical music."

The Lloyd Hill Performing Arts Center at Quincy High School is located at 100 Coddington Street in Quincy. Free parking is available on site. The concert hall is also walking distance from the Quincy Center MBTA station.

Founded in 1955, the QSO consists of more than 50 volunteer musicians including both amateurs and professionals from the Boston Metro-South region. The QSO offers three free concerts every season as well as an annual Pops fundraiser and a holiday concert in partnership with the Quincy Public Schools.

For more information, contact the QSO by phone at 800-579-1618 or visit the QSO online at http://quincy-symphonyorchestra.org.

CITY OF QUINCY MUNICIPAL ELECTION - COMPOSITE BALLOT

QUESTION 1 / 問題 1

"Shall the term of office of the Mayor of the City of Quincy be for four years?"

QUESTION 2 / 問題 2

Shall the City of Quincy, pursuant to G.L. Chapter 44B Section 16(a) amend its acceptance of sections 3-7, inclusive, of Chapter 44B of the General Laws, as approved by the City Council, a summary of which appears below?

昆西市是否須依《普通法》第 44B 章第 16(a) 條，修改其對《普通法》第 44B 章第 3-7 條（含首尾兩條）之認可（該等條文已獲市議會批准，內容摘要見下文）？

Sections 3 to 7 of Chapter 44B of the General Laws of Massachusetts, also known as the Community Preservation Act, establish a dedicated funding source to acquire open space including park and recreational uses, acquire and restore historic buildings and sites and create and preserve affordable housing.

Presently, in Quincy the community preservation is funded through a 1% annual property tax assessed on real property. The first $100,000 of the value of each residential property is exempt from the assessment. The City also presently provides exemptions for those who qualify for low or moderate housing, including senior housing.

By amending the City's acceptance of Chapter 44B section 3-7, the City will maintain its 1% tax assessment, but will be able to dedicate other local funds to allowable community preservation uses, potentially increasing the City's matching funds from the State Trust Fund. Other local revenue sources may include but are not limited to hotel excise taxes, linkage fees and inclusionary zoning payments, parking fines, sale of municipal property, and gifts from private sources. The city is limited on how much revenue it may commit from these other local sources. The amount committed cannot exceed 2% of the annual real estate tax levy for all real property in Quincy.

The amendment to the City's acceptance will also preserve the City's current exemptions, including an exemption for those who qualify for low income housing or low-moderate senior housing, and the first $100,000 of value of each residential property will remain exempt.

修改本市之認可，還將有助於保護本市當前的免稅政策，包括對符合低收入人群住房或者中低收入長者住房條件的人士的免稅政策，而每個住宅物業價值的首 100,000 美元將繼續免稅。

A "Yes" vote on this question would adopt the Community Preservation Act as amended.

對此項問題表決為「是」，即表示會採納經修訂之《社區保護法》。

A "No" vote on this question will make no change to the Community Preservation Act as presently adopted.

This is not binding / 本問題不具約束力：

Should the city of Quincy change its format for high school from the current approach of two distinct high schools-

North Quincy High School and Quincy High School – to a one high school with two campus approach: namely one Quincy High School with students attending Grades 9-10 at the North Quincy campus and students attending Grades 11-12 at the Quincy Campus.

北昆西高中與昆西高中——改為一所有兩個校園的高中：即僅設一所昆西高中，9-10 年級學生在北昆西校園就讀，而 11-12 年級學生在昆西校園就讀。

and Lebo are both running for their second four-year terms, and Mahoney is running for her third four-year term. Also running is Noel DiBona, a resident of 19 Winthrop Park, who is making his first run for office.

Voters in Ward 4 also have a contested council race on their ballot.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, a resident of 138 Willard St., is running for his third two-year term on the council. He is being challenged by Michael Healey, who lives at 44 Stedman Street and is making his first run for public office.

Candidate profiles for School Committee and Ward 4 councillor appear on Pages 16-18.

The other nine officials on Tuesday's ballot, all incumbents, are unopposed. They are:

Mayor Thomas Koch, 249 Newbury Ave.

Councillors at-Large Douglas Gutro, 230 Marlboro St.; Joseph Finn, 15 Williams St.; and Michael McFarland, 140 Summit Ave.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, 236 Rock Island Rd.

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, 53 Summer St.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, 19 Small St.

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes, 116 Willow Ave.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee, 133 Commander Shea Blvd.

The most talked about of the three referendums is Question 1. A binding question, it asks voters to give the mayor a four-year term instead of the current two-year term, effective after the next mayoral election in 2015. The question appears on the ballot as a result of a petition drive backed by the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

A yes vote on Question 1 would enact the four-year term, while a no vote would maintain the two-year term.

Question 2, a binding referendum sent to voters by the City Council, asks voters to adopt changes made to the state's Community Preservation Act. Currently, Quincy's CPA account is funded through a one percent surcharge on property taxes, which the state partially matches. If Question 2 passes, additional revenue streams, such as the hotel/motel tax, could be dedicated to the CPA fund and made eligible for a state match.

A yes vote on Question 2 would enact the amended CPA, while a no vote would keep the current CPA in place.

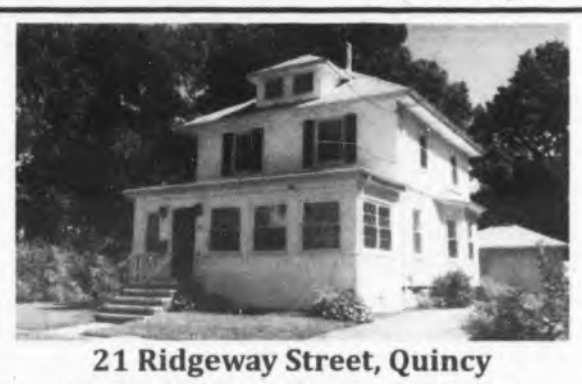

The final question on the ballot, Question 3, asks voters if they would favor merging the city's two high schools into one school with two campuses – students in grades 9 and 10 would take classes at the current North Quincy High and students in grades 11 and 12 would study at the current Quincy High. The non-binding referendum was introduced by School Committee member Paul Bregoli, who collected

CITY OF QUINCY MUNICIPAL ELECTION TUESDAY, NOV. 5

Candidate Profiles For WARD 4 CITY COUNCILLOR Candidate Profiles

Brian D. Palmucci

Address: 138 Willard Street

Occupation: Attorney, Palmucci Law, P.C.

Education: UMass at Amherst, New England School of Law

Municipal Experience: Ward 4 City Councillor 2010 to present; Chairman of the Public Safety Committee, 2010 to present. Previously served on Quincy's Wind Facility Ordinance Committee.

Civic Activities: Board of Director of DOVE, Inc., past president and board member of the Ward Four Neighborhood Association, member of the Quincy Sons of Italy, previously elected to the Sons of Italy Board of Trustees. Member of the Ward Four Democratic City Committee, Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum, Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quincy Environmental Network, Friends of Blue Hills, Sons of the American Legion and Friends of Thomas Crane Library.

Family: Wife Alison, daughter Violet (6 months old)

QUESTION: 'My goals during my term in office are . . .

I've fought hard for our neighborhoods as Ward 4 city councillor, and hope to continue that work in another term. My wife Alison and I followed in the footsteps of my grandparents, who 50 years before us, married and chose Quincy to start their family.

Although much has changed in Quincy over the past 50 years, much has also remained the same. While it may look very different, our strength is still in our neighborhoods.

I'm running for City Council because I believe in Quincy, and I believe that our best days are ahead of us. The Quincy Center re-development is moving from a vision of revitalization - to a reality that will be the economic engine which drives Quincy forward for decades to come.

Our downtown project has been highlighted by the New York Times and Wall Street Journal, it's been held up as a model for public-private partnership. It's a model for protecting taxpayers while investing in our future. A vibrant downtown with new residences, office space, shops and restaurants will provide thousands of new jobs for Quincy. Increased economic growth is key to the vitality of our community. It allows us to invest in our core city services, like fire, police and our school system; while holding the line on taxes.

We've built a new Central Middle School – with the highest possible savings to taxpayers allowed by law. We're moving forward on a new Sterling Middle School, after decades of talk. We've added more teachers to the classroom and upgraded security at every school, to protect our children. North Quincy High School was recently named one of the top 10 high schools in the state. We have much to be proud of in Quincy.

I'm proud of the work I've done over the past 4 years to provide flood relief to our most vulnerable neighborhoods. In March of 2010 our city faced some of the worst flooding ever. People's homes were devastated. Since that time, I've worked with Mayor Koch, engineers, and residents to help put together real solutions to our flooding problems.

BRIAN D. PALMUCCI

Through a comprehensive flood relief plan, that I fought for, we've improved drainage, repaired aging pump stations, dredged and repaired Furnace Brook, entered into landmark agreements with Milton and the State Highway Department to divert flood waters before they reach West Quincy. This effort to address flooding is the largest that the City has undertaken in generations, and it's making a difference. If re-elected, I'll continue to fight for projects that help residents in these areas – including a new pump station on Furnace Ave.

I fight everyday for the residents of South and West Quincy. The fundamental job of a city councilor is to communicate with residents, to be their guy in city hall, to be there when they need him and advocate for them. I've done that and will continue to do that.

I've worked hard to increase communications and keep residents informed of important issues. I've done that by hosting more than 50 community meetings giving residents an opportunity to be heard.

I've sent more than 50,000 letters and 40,000 emails. I send a regular e-newsletter to residents. I've used Facebook, Twitter, and my website to keep folks informed. And in the past year I've created a new telephone notification system that's sent out over 70,000 automated phone calls providing important information about a variety of issues, including storm and blizzard emergencies.

Constituent services will continue to be one of my top priorities. I work hard everyday to make sure that city services are delivered to residents. Whether it is a missed trash pickup, filling potholes, trimming trees, or making sure our streets get plowed – I know how important these quality of life issues are in a neighborhood. If you've ever watched a Council meeting, then you know I'm not afraid to ask tough questions and fight for our neighborhoods.

But elections aren't about the past, and what we've done yesterday, they're about the future and what we'll do tomorrow and the next day. Quincy's future is bright – we're on the right track, moving forward. I'm standing for re-election to the City Council because I believe in a positive vision for Quincy's future and to continue the work we've started.

I've fought hard for our neighborhoods for the past 4 years and I've a lot of fight left in me.

QUESTION: 'My goals during my term in office are . . .

During the last many months of speaking to ward residents I have found that a majority of our ward residents are concerned that the City Council seems not to be aware of what their concerns and interests are, that the City Council only takes on issues when it is politically beneficial for them to do so, Ward 4 has some of the same issues as other areas of the city, but some issues which are particular to Ward 4, specifically. As with all the wards, there are issues with regard to streets, sidewalks, and traffic. However Ward 4 also has some larger issues with regard to development within the ward as well as safety.

Ward 4's proximity to the highway, its denser neighborhoods, and multi-family dwellings make living in this ward convenient and comfortable while providing the close-knit, small town feeling that I love. However that proximity to the highway and small interconnected streets has also brought a dangerous element into our neighborhoods. Sadly, in some of our neighborhoods, drug transactions and use of illegal drugs can be witnessed in broad daylight, for anyone to see. I will work closely with the residents, local and state police, to establish neighborhood watches where there are none, and strengthen existing neighborhood watches.

I will utilize my experience in the private sector and apply private sector skills to city government. We need to keep our city on sound financial ground for the long-term. We must make economic decisions that promote our schools and public safety, while recognizing that our city needs an economic base that allows for funding and improvements in these areas. Private sector budget decisions maximize the value of each dollar spent, cutting waste and redundancies, and identifying areas where changes are needed. Decisions in the private sector weigh the cost versus the benefits, while considering whether or not there are financial implications and drawbacks to not acting. Too often, the benefits to our citizens, our neighborhoods, and our businesses do not outweigh the costs. Those costs are paid by our residents and our businesses. Every individual and business wants to get their money's worth. I want to make certain that the residents and business of ward 4 get the value that they deserve; the benefits must outweigh the costs.

MICHAEL A. HEALY

As your Ward 4 Councilor I will be a true check & balance in the City Council. I'm not afraid to ask difficult questions, be honest, to protect your interests, and to be responsible with how the city spends your money. Too often large developers, special interests, those with deep pockets, or privileged connections have driven decisions within our city. Ward 4 is no exception and the residents here know it. The safety and integrity of our neighborhoods will be my primary focus. Improving and strengthening those neighborhoods should dictate what our future development, businesses, and land purchases look like. Council decisions have a direct effect upon our neighborhoods, whether it is traffic, crime, construction, increased taxes, or public safety.

Sound financial protections, thoughtful spending and borrowing directly affect our residents, our neighborhoods, our businesses, and constituent services. As a private sector Project Manager, I regularly communicate within my organization and with all organizations, at all levels involved in successfully completing and implementing the project. In the private sector when funding questions arise they are communicated immediately and considered thoughtfully. City Government should be no different.

I will encourage smart business growth, not inhibit it, and more importantly maintain and promote our current Ward 4 businesses as well as other business in our city. We need to encourage and agree as a community what our growth should look like long-term, not only in our downtown but across our city and in our neighborhoods.

My primary goal is to honestly address concerns and take ownership of Ward 4 issues. I want to be a single point of contact for Ward 4. I am a homeowner, husband, and parent of three children. My children are in the Quincy Public schools. I know what the issues are, I'm aware of the frustrations of my neighbors because I live and am vested in our neighborhood.

I will never, never compromise the much needed protections that are needed on behalf of our ward residents. I love Quincy very much and am mindful of our history. I want to see our city succeed, be strong, and move forward with the best possible decisions for all.

I respectfully ask for your vote on Tuesday November 5th.

Thank you.

QUESTION: 'My goals during my term in office are . . .

I have been privileged to serve on the Quincy School Committee for the term that began January 2010. I ran for School Committee after 14 years as an active parent. I passionately believe that our public education system is the core of our community and I wanted to continue to be a strong advocate for our schools and our children.

During this term, I have worked to analyze issues that effect our students learning and our professional staff's ability to provide classroom resources. During the budget process, I have advocated for low class sizes, programs that enrich our student achievement and the safety and security of our buildings. I have sought to provide professional development to support our teachers in doing their job. In addition to maintaining a vibrant early Literacy program, the Media program is on the mend, with a plan to add to it in each years to come. A focus on extracurricular activities was included in this budget negotiation to round out the experience of our students.

As Vice-Chair, I was able to institute a Teaching and Learning Sub-Committee. I serve on this committee with my colleagues. We are able to look at data and determine the support needed to boost student achievement. I changed the form of our School Committee agenda to present our work to the public in a smooth and efficient way. I asked my colleagues to participate in a goal-setting meeting at the beginning of the year so that we have a framework to perform our work throughout the year and so the public can weigh in on the work we are doing.

I enjoy an open working relationship with the Quincy Education Association. I recognize the important work of our classroom teachers and specialists. My decisions as a Committee member always include the Serving on the Quincy School Committee is an honor and a huge responsibility. I take my role on the committee very seriously because I recognize that I am representing the students, the families, and the educators in Quincy. As a candidate for reelection to the Quincy School Committee, my goals for a second term in office are supporting student achievement, providing support for educator evaluation, and promoting the safety and wellbeing of our children. My main objective is Leadership for Learning.

My first goal is to support the schools in sustaining and advancing student achievement. Student achievement is not only state mandated test scores but the purpose those scores serve is to let all school systems see how well our students match up to other students in the city, the state, and across the nation. We want our schools to continue to be competitive so we can make that our high school graduates will be prepared to move into the colleges and careers of their choice. By making sure that our graduates are competitive, we will help to ensure that the city can keep up property values. Some home buyers look to state mandated test scores when making decisions about where to live.

QUESTION: My Goals during my term in office are:

The main goal for my School Committee term will be to ensure that education remains a top priority in Quincy. I have always said, "A city is known by the schools it keeps! Great schools attract great people." I believe all citizens understand that a quality school system is what determines the value of our homes and neighborhoods and defines the character of our city. While we have made great strides with 2 beautiful new schools and other physical improvements to our buildings, we need to restore some of the resources and programs that we have lost due to budget cuts over recent years. Difficult decisions have been made and we have endured $9 million in cuts to the school budget. With advocacy and vision, we have managed to maintain our core curriculum, but this does not define a great school system. I've never been afraid to question the decisions made concerning our schools policies and budget, and I never will. I believe my independent voice has maintained a focus on education and it's importance for Quincy's students and families.

With that in mind here are some of my thoughts:

We must continue to maintain small classroom sizes. In recent years due to budgetary constraints, classroom sizes have begun to creep higher throughout our system. To have success with new federal guidelines, Quincy Public Schools must provide an optimal learning environment for our students and teachers.

Our Athletic Revolving account has been in deficit and backfilled with previously budgeted curriculum money. This is not acceptable. I've written a resolve to form the Quincy Public Athletic Association to supplement the budgetary needs of the school athletic programs through a branded banner and signage program. Many communities are already doing this with great success. We have a good business base in Quincy who are seeking to maximize their marketing budgets. Some of these businesses are already sponsoring sports banner programs

My goals during my term in office are the balance of the middle schools, now with the brand new Central Middle school, the students of that facility will have a new state of the art school with a beautiful library a full time media specialists, AP and lab classes. It is very important now with a new variable, a new middle school, that we balance the programs at the other 4 middle schools. We need to start offering a few AP classes at each of the other 4 middle schools. How do we offer new classes and not increase the budget? We have existing eduactors from each school teach a few AP classes. There will be the same number of students in the building, so we don't need to hire new teachers. I would like to see a lab class in there as well. I am advocating 1-2 classes per grade per school at Atlantic, Broad Meadows, Sterling and Point Webster. Don't you think that is fair?

One specific area of concern is the band program at the high schools. Currently, Quincy and North Quincy have a combined band. I have done my research and Brockton high school has 200 students in the band, we currently have roughly 70 students. Granted Brockton has 4,400 students and we have a total of 2,800. My goal as a school committee member on my next 4 years is to raise that number from 70 to 120. I have a vision to restore the band program at both Quincy and North Quincy high schools with 50 more students with uniforms. This will not cost any money to the budget. As the band booster program is where I will be spending my time, helping and working with them. I know that music is an important extra-curricular activity that will help in the classroom and ultimately bring tests scores up.

We need to use all of our resources, like our brand new track at Quincy High. I want to reduce the user fee for track to $25 from $100 and $75 at the high schools for both boys and girls. This is a very inexpensive sport with low overhead. In my next 4 years in office I want to see 100 more children from both high schools participating in spring track. I am very satisfied in the middle school track program.

impact they will have on our professional staff. I am proud to have received the recommendation of QEA for my re-election.

My goals going forward are to support the rollout of the Common Core curriculum by providing the necessary tools to our students and staff. I will provide educational events for parents so they can understand the changes that are being implemented.

I will continue to monitor our Media program to add to the additions that were made this year. The maintenance of our collections and technology will be on the forefront of my goals.

I will continue to explore our programs in Art, Music and Drama to provide the very best to QPS students.

This is an exciting time in education. I believe that by working in collaboration with the Superintendent and his leadership team, our professional staff and QEA, our support staff and each person who works in QPS we can continue to provide an excellent education to our students. I am asking voters to give me one of their votes so that I can continue this very important work.

Safety in the schools is an ongoing concern for parents and children. I want to continue to install state of the art equipment with modern technology devices throughout our schools.

We need to continue to educate our children with Anti-Bullying programs. We need to educate our children with the importance of recycling paper, plastic, glass and other materials. I advocate for a recycling program in each school along with energy-efficient ways to save money and clean the environment. I will personally assist in a city wide recycling program and education for new energy-efficient solutions.

I know we have made huge strides with children and parents with special needs. There is one concern I have in the reading disability and dyslexic area of special needs. I have been knocking on doors for 7 months and parents have alerted me that their children and students are having difficulty reading. I believe that the three basic areas of learning in schools are reading, writing and arithmetic. We need to continue to find ways to help our children with these disabilities without labeling them. I am not a specialist in this area, however, I will voice the concerns that parents have. I think we are making improvements and progress in conjunction with QPAC.

My goal and role as a school committee member is to continue to work hard on school rules and policy, the budget and finance, the schools facilities and security.

It is important for my role on school committee to have an open door policy with QEA, educators and the superintendent of schools. I will work together to solve any problems, issues and concerns. We need feedback from educators, as they are the closest person to the student.

This is not just a school committee race, the future of our city is in the hands of you the voter. One-third of the city's budget is in the Quincy public schools. I ask you on Tuesday, November 5th if you can give me 1 of your 3 votes.

Our city needs to continue to draw strong families into our neighborhoods which are the foundation of any community.

My goal will be to continue to work with the Superintendent and his team through the Teaching and Learning Subcommittee which I began. This subcommittee looks closely at school data, classroom materials, their subsequent budget needs, and assessments.

Other methods of determining how our schools are doing also need to be reviewed. These include: attendance, graduation rates, student supports, Advanced Placement scores, SAT scores, industry credentialing for Career and Technical Educations students, college and career placement and the long term success of our graduates. I have asked that these indicators be included in a school profile report being prepared for the School Committee.

New this year, the district will begin determining how they are going to measure students' success in every aspect of our schools. These are called District Determined Measures and need to be put in place for all courses, classes and supports over the next few years. They need to be developed for nurses, therapists, guidance staff and all others who are evaluated based on a license to work in a school in Massachusetts. This will be challenging but important work as it will lay the foundation for the educator evaluation system. My experience working within these same guidelines for my current job in the Boston Public Schools will enhance my ability to help with this work.

My second goal will be to assist the district in the implementation of the new state mandated teacher evaluation process. I will do this by working with the Superintendent on his goals for the school system. These goals will set the stage for improvement across the school district. Based on these goals the Superintendent will be evaluated by the School Committee using the very same system that will be used to evaluate our teachers and principals. I have attended training run by the Massachusetts Association of School Committees on how to effectively evaluate superintendents. Additionally, I have used this evaluation system in my current job to evaluate teachers, and I have been evaluated myself using the system.

My third goal will be to ensure that the School Committee continues to work with the city to make sure all of our school sites and our children are safe. Under the leadership of Mayor Koch, our school buildings and school safety systems are in good shape. I support his efforts but in addition to our facilities, we need to be sure that we have the necessary policies, practices, and staff in place to prevent student harm and promote wellness.

I feel that with my experience and background I am able to see the educational system from various points of view: as an educator, a school administrator, a parent and a grandparent of Quincy students. Having these different perspectives, I believe gives me an advantage over other candidates and allows me to understand the issues and their impact on our school system from multiple viewpoints.

Anne Mahoney

in other towns. Why not here in Quincy?

Continuing to improve communication with parents is extremely important. I have advocated for a parent portal to allow parent's access to student's progress reports and grades online. I'm happy to say the New Aspen X2 is now a reality in Quincy. This program will allow parents the ability to view their children's progress immediately and eliminate any surprises that often result with our current progress report system. This portal will be up and running in early 2014. With the ever changing state of web technology we must also continue to improve our Quincy Public School's website. The website is a great communication tool that must be maximized.

Common Core is the new federal and state mandated curriculum and PARCC is the new replacement for MCAS. We must ensure we have the correct curriculum and technology support for these new mandates that are concurrently being deployed while we phase out MCAS. I believe arts in the classroom are often ignored by these mandates, so I will continue to advocate for the return of these programs. We must change our standard acronym from STEM to STEAM. (Science, Technology, Engineering, ART and Mathematics). Art is a missing piece of this equation if we want to have truly well rounded students.

Now that we have state-of-the-art Quincy High School and Central Middle Schools open, we must continue to work with our state officials and advocate even more for the need of a new Sterling Middle School.

We must proactively address safety issues regarding our schools. In a recent example, I was the only member to insist on CORI checks for the remaining workers who continue to work in Central Middle School along side our students.

I have been a voice for the Special Ed community and I will continue to make sure their needs are heard and dealt with swiftly and sensitively.

These goals, as well as, dealing with our aging buildings and crowded classrooms must be addressed. I am the only candidate on the ballot with children in the school system. I have the experience and the knowledge of the issues and I have a firsthand view of the impacts of our decisions in our classroom. As your school committee member, I am prepared to tackle any issue head-on. With your help, I would like to continue my efforts on the School Committee. I will continue to be your voice and protect the interests of our students and ensure they are the highest priority in this city. I hope you will support me for re-election to the Quincy School Committee. I ask for only one of your three votes on November 5th and the honor of representing you and the children of Quincy. I am number three on the ballot!

FLUORIDATED WATER HELPS ADULTS TOO

If you are an adult who thinks that the cavity-fighting benefits of fluoridated water are limited to children, think again, because recent research points to the fact that adults also reap benefits. Studies show that, after adjusting for socioeconomic factors and variables in oral health care (frequency of brushing, etc.), people aged 15 years and older who spent at least three-quarters of their lives in communities with fluoridated water had 10 to 30 percent fewer cavities than people who spent less than one-quarter of their lives in such areas. If you are an adult who drinks lots of bottled water and has doubts as to whether you are getting enough fluoride, consult with your dentist.

Fluoridation has dramatically improved the oral health of tens of millions of Americans. Community water fluoridation is the single most effective public health measure to prevent tooth decay. To schedule an appointment, please call us at 617-479-6220. Rely on us to answer all your questions about dental treatments and procedures. Police Lt. Denied Access To Dept.'s Sick Bank; City Says It Has Extended Leave Multiple Times

Paul Turowski: 'I'm Fighting Cancer And City'

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy Police Lt. Paul Turowski said he is ashamed of how the city is treating him as he battles stage three cancer.

Turowski, who joined the Police Department in 1983, is fighting cancer for a third time. In May he was diagnosed with stage three cholangiocarcinoma, cancer of the bile ducts that link the liver to the small intestine.

He said he was twice denied access to the Police Department's sick bank, when he first felt ill last fall and required stents to drain his bile ducts and again after he was diagnosed with cancer and underwent surgery in May of this year. So he began to ask other city employees to donate their sick time to him, which many were willing to do.

"The only option was to ask people to donate time," Turowski said. "They were more than generous enough to do so."

Turowski said his fellow city employees donated more than 140 days worth of sick time to him. But he said he stopped receiving paychecks after 90 days, on Oct. 9, without being informed by the city first.

"On October 9 I didn't get a paycheck," Turowski said. "They (the city) stopped the donated time. People donated time and they're mad."

Turowski said he is disappointed by how the city is treating him.

"I'm fighting on two fronts – one is cancer and the other is the city," he said. "I'm not ashamed because I have cancer. I'm ashamed at how the city is treating me as I have to go through it"

Quincy's Human Resources Director Helen Murphy said in a statement to The Sun that the city has done everything possible under the law to assist Turowski.

"The city has done everything possible under the law to assist Lt. Turowski over the course of many years, and will continue to do so. Federal privacy law prevents the city from discussing many of these issues in more detail publicly. But I can say that the city continues to protect his position by extending his leave multiple times above and beyond the requirements of the Family and Medical Leave Act," Murphy said.

"We will continue to support Lt. Turowski in any way we legally can as he considers all of his options, which include sustaining his leave or pursuing retirement and the substantial pension and health benefits that come with it."

This isn't Turowski's first dispute with the city. In 2010 the state's Civil Service Commission found he was improperly bypassed for a promotion to lieutenant in 2005. The commission ordered Turowski be placed at the top of the next promotion list, and he was appointed lieutenant in 2012 by Mayor Thomas Koch. Turowski said he is still trying to recoup legal fees and back pay related to that dispute.

NeighborWorks Southern Mass. and the City of Quincy will hold a ribbon cutting ceremony next week on a new project that will provide affordable homes to two returning veterans.

To be held Thursday, Nov. 7 at 1116 Sea St. in Quincy, the event will begin at 10:30 a.m. with tours of the new duplex featuring two, three-bedroom townhouses that will be rented to returning veterans and their families. Tours will be followed by the ribbon-cutting program at 11 a.m.

A special highlight of the program will be remarks from Herman Sanchez. A retired sergeant and Iraq War veteran, Sanchez lives with his wife and four children in a four-bedroom, single-family Quincy home that NeighborWorks and the city purchased and renovated for veterans' housing last year.

"As a veteran of Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom, I am truly grateful for being able to provide my family with a safe and comfortable home," Sanchez said. "NeighborWorks has just been awesome: My kids love the house, they have friends that sleep over and play in the backyard. It's just been amazing. I could not ask for more."

Robert Corley, executive director of NeighborWorks Southern Mass., noted that the Sea St. townhomes were constructed on the former site of an American Legion post.

"We're pleased that this location will continue to serve America's veterans," Corley said. "Today's veterans have different housing needs than previous generations. Many soldiers returning from Iraq and Afghanistan have families, and providing our veterans who sacrificed so much with access to high-quality affordable homes is the right thing to do."

Financed with funding from the federal HOME program, the Affordable Housing Trust Fund and community preservation funds, the Sea St. project marks the fourth home for veterans that NeighborWorks Southern Mass. has completed in recent years. These veterans' homes have also received major support from the Quincy and Weymouth Veterans Services agencies and the regional Veterans Affairs Supportive Housing provider, the Braintree Housing Authority.

"Projects like this one demonstrate what can be accomplished when government partners with nonprofit organizations like NeighborWorks," Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch said. "We're pleased that the City of Quincy can direct some of its federal block grant funding to help provide affordable housing to our returning heroes.

SOLAR ENERGY

Bright yellow citrine, November's birthstone, is the rarest of the quartz varieties. Thus, it is understandable why a stone so seemingly full of solar energy has been traditionally regarded to be a good healing crystal. Historically speaking, citrine has been widely referred to as "the merchant's stone" and has been associated with the energy of money. It is also considered the wealth stone in feng shui (the ancient Chinese art of balancing energies). It is important to note that a good deal of the citrine presented to consumers today is actually heat-treated amethyst. Natural citrine has pure yellow to gold coloring, while treated stones tend to have a slight red tint or a deep, burnt orange-yellow coloring.

Citrine is also known as the "healing quartz" and is said to support vitality and health while encouraging and guiding hope, energy and warmth within the wearer. Additionally, topaz is known as a birthstone for November. For several thousand years, all yellow gems were called topaz. They are often confused with citrine quartz (yellow), but quartz and topaz are unrelated mineral species. The prized color of topaz is named the Imperial topaz after the Russian Czars of the 1800s. High School Students March Against Drunk Driving

Over 1,000 Join DA Morrissey At Walk For Designated Drivers

Teams from across Norfolk County, including more than two dozen local high schools, joined District Attorney Michael Morrissey in a 5K walk around the grounds of Patriot Place – raising money and awareness for the Ensign John R. Elliott HERO Campaign for designated drivers.

"The turnout was fantastic, and very encouraging," Morrissey said following the Oct. 20 walk, organized by his office, Patriot Place, Tedeschi Foods Shops and Muriel and Bill Elliott, the parents of a Naval Academy graduate who was killed by a drunk driver in 2000 for whom the campaign is named.

"Society has reversed course on destructive behaviors before. Smoking rates have plummeted since we looked the real consequences of smoking in the face. We can do the same with drunk driving," District Attorney Morrissey said.

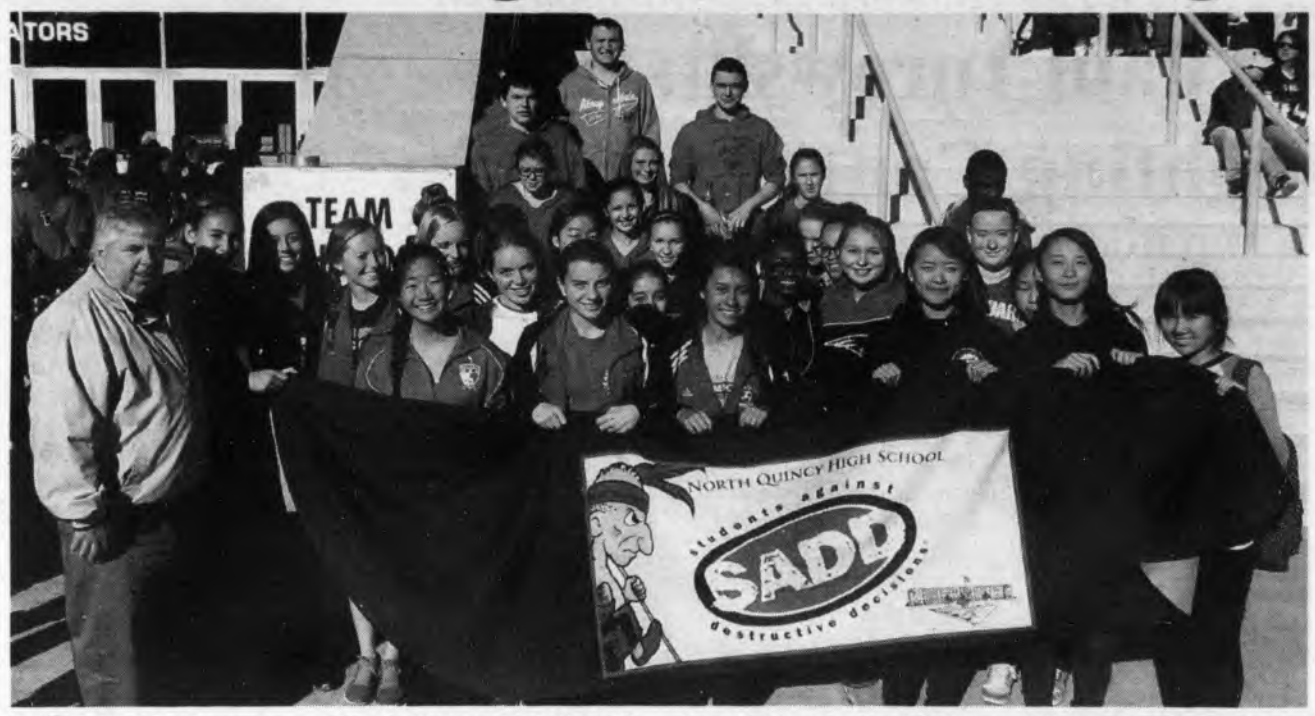

"It has to start with young people appreciating the dangers but also understanding that the cure is having one person in a group of friends step up and say 'I'll be there HERO tonight, I'll be the designated driver.'"

More than 100 members of Morrissey's staff at the DA's office and their family members took part in the walk. "This is something we all very much believe in," Morrissey said. "Every one of the 1,000 plus people who walked, most of them high-schoolers, can go into their circles of friends and talk about this walk, this issue, and make it clear that to be a designated driver is to be a HERO."

Morrissey said he normally deals with the issue of drunk driving "on the other side of a tragedy," like a fatal car crash or arrest. "It was good to be surrounded by hundreds of young people dedicated to being part of the solution."

The HERO Campaign began in the Elliott's home area of New Jersey. It is now in every NFL stadium and many communities, and the New England Patriots lead the NFL in participation.

The Campaign's partnership with District Attorney Morrissey makes Norfolk County the first region in Massachusetts to adopt and promote the campaign.

Bellotti Urges Residents To Sign Up For Emergency Alerts

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti urges all area residents to register with his Code Red Rapid Alert Notification System (RANS), which directly alerts residents about public safety emergencies via telephone voicemail, email, text message, Facebook, Twitter or IPhone app.

The free-of-charge program, developed and operated by the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, notifies residents about flood warnings, hazardous material dangers, power failures, missing person alerts and other situations that local officials deem to be public safety emergencies.

In the event of a local emergency, the notification system sends voice messages to all publicly listed household phone numbers in Norfolk County. Residents who wish to add their cell phone numbers or email addresses to the system's database must register their information with the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office by visiting www.norfolksheriff.com and clicking on "Rapid Alert Notification System (RANS)." All information obtained by the NCSO for registration purposes is kept confidential.

To receive Facebook updates for the program, become a friend of the "Ncso Rans" page. For short, speedy alerts follow @NorfolkCoRANS on Twitter.

"The RANS software has adapted to modern methods of communication by offering more accessible ways for residents to stay informed," Bellotti said. "Residents have the option of receiving alerts through methods that best suit their technological preferences."

The RANS program was originally financed in part through the federal Homeland Security grant money that was awarded to the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office. Local law enforcement and public safety agencies contact the NCSO when they determine they need to send out an announcement, and the sheriff's program carries out the task.

"This is an exceptional service and I encourage all residents to take advantage of it," Bellotti added.

Saint John The Baptist Church Celebrates 150 Years

Cardinal Sean O'Malley Principal Celebrant At Anniversary Mass

By SCOTT JACKSON

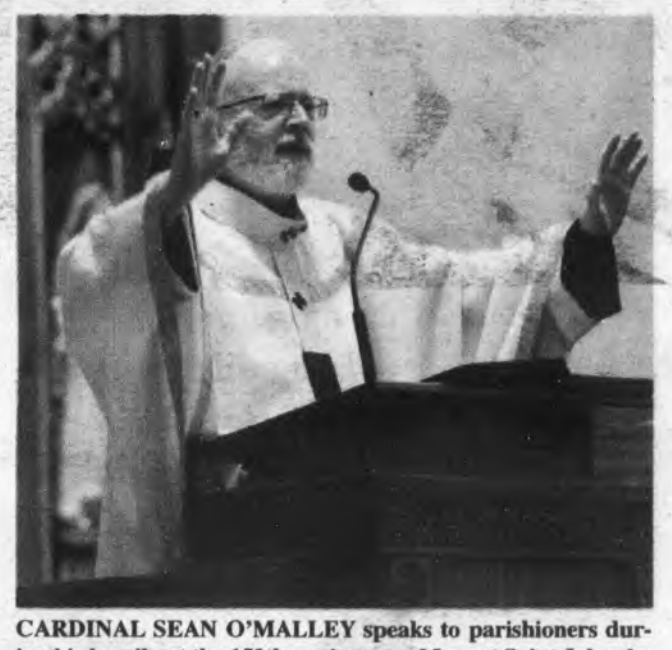

A standing room only crowd was on hand to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the St. John the Baptist Parish.

The church, located at 44 School Street in Quincy Center, is the second oldest Catholic church in Quincy. St. Mary Church on Crescent Street, which opened on Sept. 18, 1842, is the oldest. Later that decade, as an influx of Irish Catholics immigrated to Quincy, a newer and larger church was needed. Construction of that new church began in 1851 and on Nov. 23, 1853, St. John the Baptist Church was dedicated. Ten years later, on Oct. 11, 1863, St. John's became a distinct parish.

The Anniversary Mass of Thanksgiving, celebrated on Oct. 20, commemorated the anniversary of St. John's becoming its own parish. Cardinal Sean P. O'Malley, the archbishop of Boston, was principal celebrant at the Mass.

Following the Mass a reception was held at the Marriott in Quincy. Some 500 people attended that event, according to Richard T. Sweeney, Jr., who served as

NQ Sweeps Series Over QHS; Win 4-0 On Senior Night

GIRLS SOCCER

By BILL GRIFFIN

The final Quincy vs. North Quincy match is usually a night for seniors. It is the last taste of the delicious rivalry for them and they know well it is a match against good friends which can give them bragging rights for a lifetime. This year it was played, fittingly, on Senior Night.

The stage, however, belonged to a gifted junior. Courtney Campo played a wonderful all-around match and scored three goals, but she also looked past her own fine night and saw what it meant to the seniors on her team.

Campo earned her first varsity hat trick, senior Haley McKay added a goal, and freshman goalie Shannan Kennedy supported an airtight defensive effort for her eighth shutout of the season to lead North Quincy past Quincy, 4-0 and give the Red Raiders a sweep of the season series at Veterans Stadium last week.

In other action, Campo scored her seventh goal of the season to give North a 1-1 non-league tie with Somerville which clinched a berth in the state tournament. North finished the week at 8-7-4. North will likely play a preliminary tournament match Thursday or Friday.

"This game (Quincy) was for the seniors," said Campo. "That's all they talked about. We knew it was their last game against Quincy and it was so important to them."

Campo was brilliant. She used her superior speed to zip like a roadrunner through the defense, feed teammates and put hard shots on goal with either foot. She settled and controlled passes moving at full throttle, dribbled to open spaces, and kept the North's attack moving without pause.

NQHS FRESHMAN GOALTENDER, Shannon Kennedy has been solid in net recording seven shutouts this year for the Red Raiders.

"I was happy to see Courtney get the three goals, because she usually just feeds other players and doesn't get a lot of credit," said sophomore Marissa McGue who was a powerful force for the Red Raiders in the midfield in both the Quincy and Somerville games.

Campo's three goals showcased well her range of talents. Molly Donahue set up the first with a great run down the left side. She crossed the ball in front, and McGue deflected it to Campo. Campo controlled the ball in heavy traffic and buried it in the open corner for a 2-0 lead with just over 31:00 left in the first half.

Just past the midway point of the second half, Campo took a through-pass from Julia O'Donnell and picked the top corner for a 3-0 lead. She finished the scoring by sliding a low drive home off a penalty kick with 4:42 left in the match. She easily could have had four goals, but Quincy goalie Natalie O'Donovan made an outstanding save on a blast Campo had labeled for the far corner off a second penalty kick.

"Courtney is a great player and she worked hard for her goals," said Quincy coach Courtney Harnais whose team finished the season at 6-13. "We gave her a little too much space and when a great player has space, she can hurt you."

It was appropriate that McKay, a senior, opened the scoring with 33:30 left in the first half. She headed home a perfect corner from Donahue. McKay played with a cast on her right arm and a heavy brace on her left knee. Her teammates richly

NQ Prevails In Volleyball Showdown Over Quincy

By JOE REARDON

With the tournament just around the corner, it was important for North Quincy to get the feel of going into a hostile, opposing gym against a quality team and put up a win.

It doesn't get much more hostile for the Red Raiders when they take on arch rival Quincy in the Presidents' home gym. Last Wednesday night's showdown with Jacqui Niosi's squad was exactly what North Quincy needed to help get ready for the postseason.

The Red Raiders continued their hold over Quincy, but nothing about the evening was easy. North Quincy had to come back from deficits in both the second and third games before sweeping the Presidents 3-0.

The victory improved North Quincy's record to an impressive 17-2 on the season and Quincy fell to a none-too-shabby 13-5 when the smoke cleared from the Patriot League match.

Ivy Pham and Lauren Magoon gave the Presidents all they could handle up front, finishing with 11 and four kills apiece. Pham also notched 13 digs away from the net while Jane Minton served up seven kills.

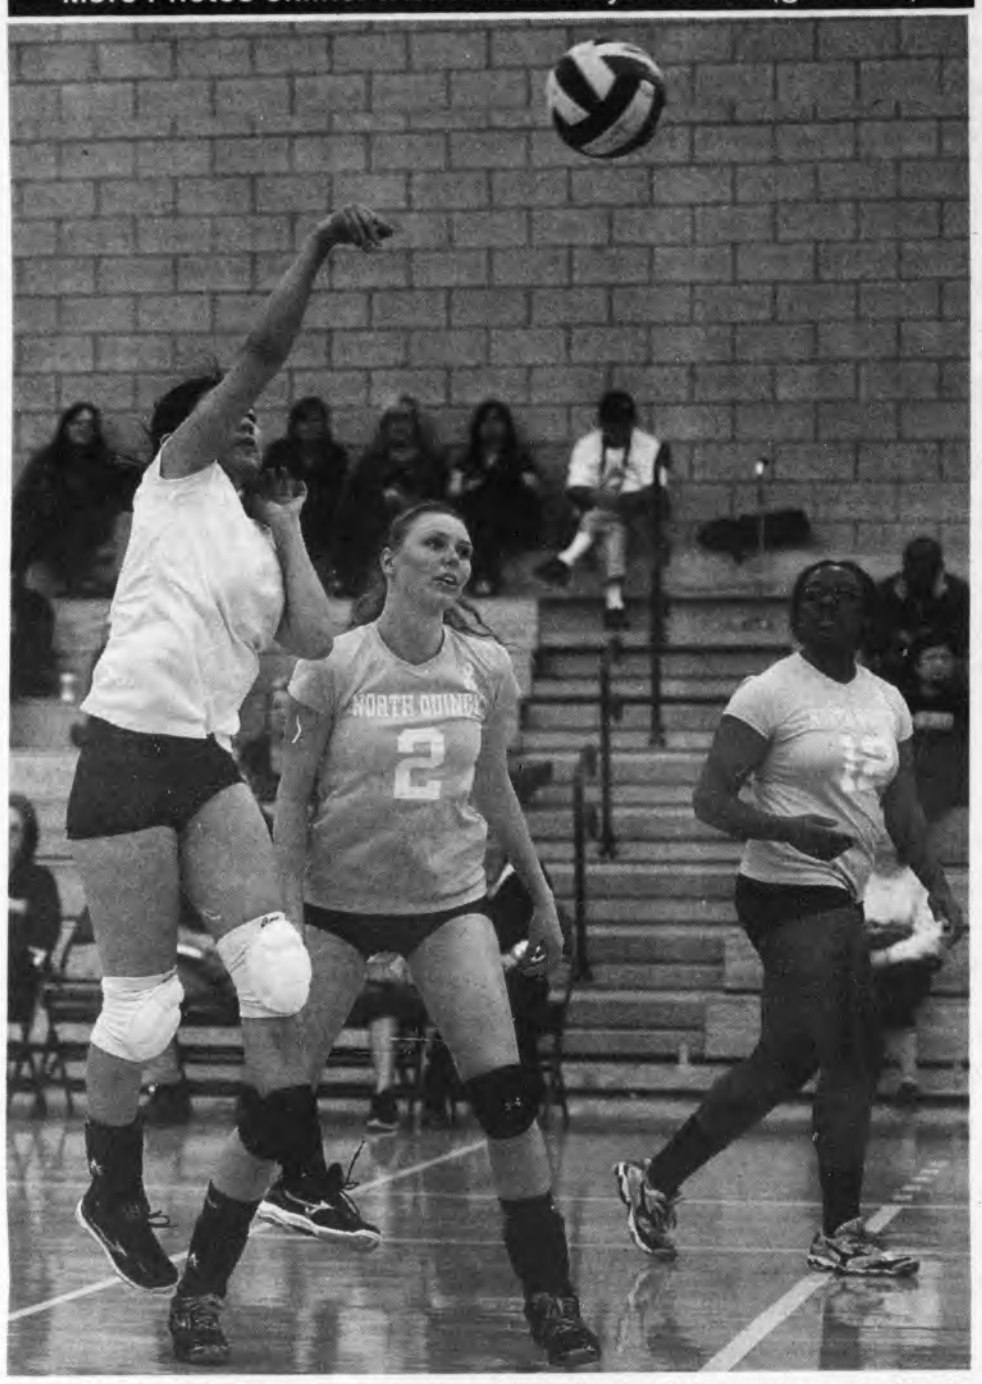

Quincy's Nicole Jorgensen was especially tough at the net with nine kills and five blocks. Defensively, Emma Kelly posted 15 digs and Courtney Ryan fed the front line with 17 assists. Rachel Papile also had a strong match, serving up three aces and registering six digs.

The match had a postseason feel to it from the start and marked the first time the Red Raiders have defeated Quincy on their home court. North Quincy won at home earlier in the season by the same 3-0 score against a team they are very familiar with.

"The atmosphere in that gym is great," said North Quincy head coach Kerry Ginty. "It was great to go into a place with that kind of energy in the room and getting ready for the tournament. We were excited. It's always amazing when you play Quincy because of that energy and excitement. Not a lot of teams get that. A lot of the girls play together in the offseason. They all know each other so well. There's a rivalry there, but in the end they know each other to the point where it makes it more important. They're tough and competing together, but I'd like to think they're all friends."

The first game proved to be the lone lopsided contest of the three. North Quincy broke the tie at 4-4 and the Presidents weren't able to break into the lead from that point forward, falling 25-15.

More Photos online: www.TheQuincySun.com (galleries)

NORTH QUINCY'S Nancy Haung returns a volley for the Red Raiders as teammates Carolyn Schwartz (#2) and Maya Umoren (#12) look on. The Red Raiders defeated Quincy 3-0 in a competitive match on the Presidents' home court. The scores were 25-15, 25-23 and 25-22.

Carolyn Schwartz and Abby Mayo had big points during an early 8-1 run and Maya Umoren knocked down three consecutive points late to extend the Red Raiders' lead to 20-12.

The Presidents looked sharp in the second game as the lead changed nine times. Gabby Zorkers fueled a 7-0 scoring burst to put Quincy ahead 13-10, but Cindi Hazelton picked up three points on a 6-0 run as the Red Raiders put on a burst to retake the lead 15-13. The lead went back and forth until Umoren ended it with a ferocious service point that skimmed the top of the net and gave North Quincy the 25-23 victory.

Ginty has been happy with the team's growth during the season, especially its mental toughness when falling behind.

"We're trying to learn that (put teams away)," she said. "When we got down we kept fighting and that's not something we did at the beginning of the year. It's something we're working on and I'm really proud of how my team reacted. We kept fighting and stayed the course."

Both teams had strong runs in the third contest. Jorgensen, who was tough at the net all evening, had three points during Quincy's 8-3 run to tie it at 21-21 after a North Quincy 10-2 spurt, fueled by Schwartz and Magoon, put the Red Raiders ahead 14-9 before clinching the match 25-22.

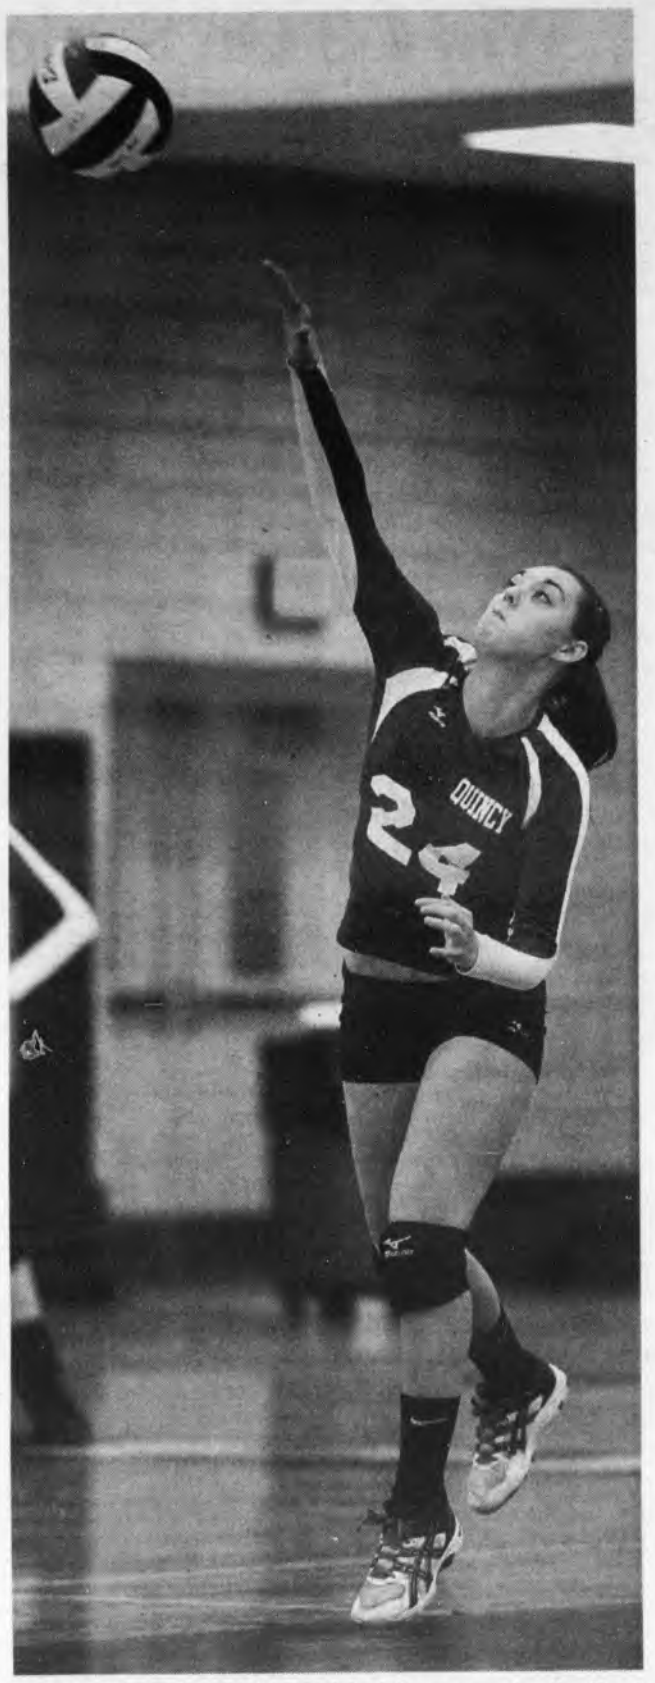

Ginty said her squad fully concentrates on putting runs together. Against a lesser team, North Quincy would have sewn up the victory quicker.

"Volleyball is such a game of momentum," said Ginty. "It's hard to get and it can be pretty easy to lose. We had it at some points and they took over at a lot of points. It's really important to get more than two points in a row. You need strings of three, strings of four. That's when the momentum starts getting on your side. You can build a comeback or develop a little bit of a lead."

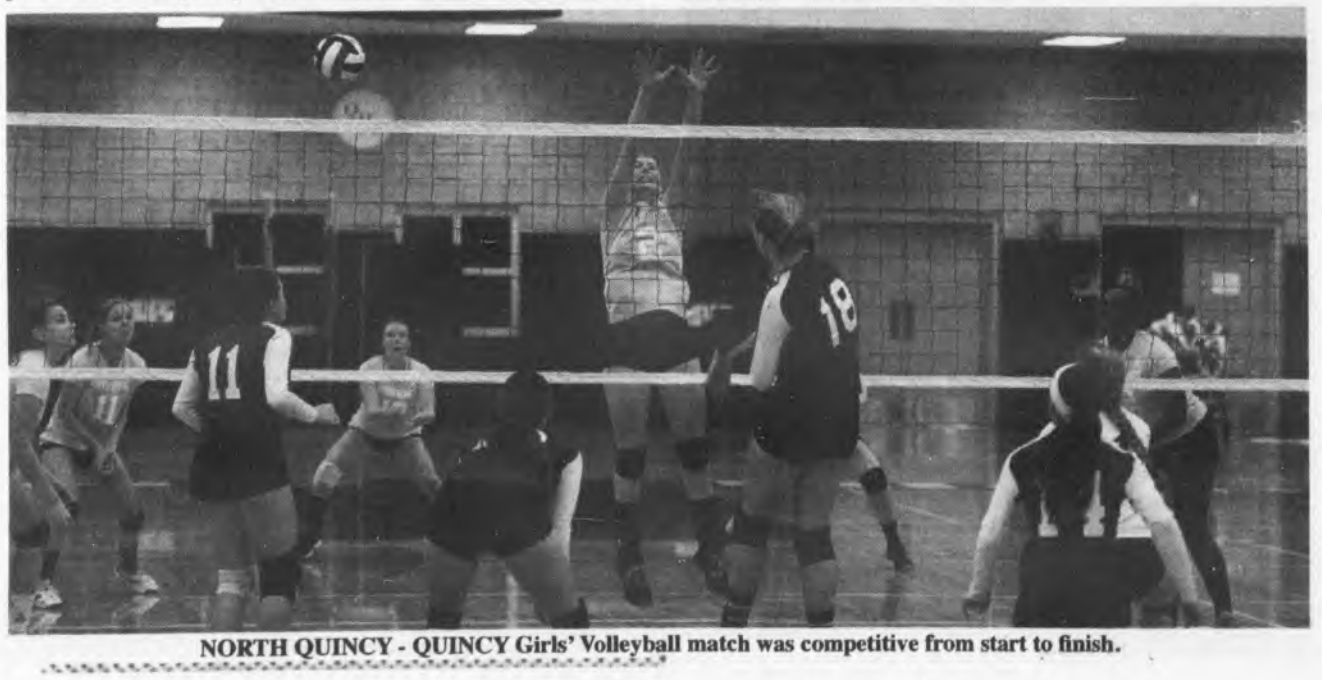

Niosi, too, is looking towards a strong push in the tourney with a team that has only improved since the beginning of the season. "We played them much better than we did the first time," said Niosi. "We made a lot of improvements with our block and our defense. We're definitely taking steps in the right direction. The younger players have gained some more confidence and they're more comfortable on the court. They know what their responsibilities are.

"Those last two games could have gone either way. You have to step on the court with the attitude you're not going to let the ball hit the floor. We have a stacked schedule at the end of the year, which was done on purpose to give us some challenges because that's what we're going to see down the line.

"Quincy, North Quincy is always a tournament atmosphere. You can't replicate something like that in practice. It's great for us to have those games. They were a little disappointed after, but it was an emotional game. I think they're feeling alright about it now."

"When Haley scored that goal, I actually got chills. I was so happy for her," said McGue.

"Two goals in the first eight minutes were important. The last game against Quincy, we didn't start well," said North coach Paul Bregoli. North won the first meeting of the season, 1-0 on a goal by Abby Smith with 2:00 left in the match.

North had many contributions. McGue won countless balls in the air in midfield and headed them with power and accuracy which helped North control the territorial edge for most of the match.

"That's why I'm there," smiled McGue. "That's my specialty. I'm the header."

Sophomore Molly Kate Cannon did a terrific job marking Quincy's talented forward Emma Papile all over the field. Donahue was excellent on the wing all night. Kennedy was steady and sure in goal. Smith, Ciara Forde, and Sydney Chang, who assisted on Campo's goal against Somerville, kept the ball flowing through midfield to the attack.

"Molly Kate has deceptive speed and she was spectacular on Emma," said Bregoli. "I thought Donahue and Forde were dominant on the left wing for the whole game. Forde also played an excellent game against Somerville."

Despite being checked by one and frequently two players, Papile shook free for the Presidents and created chances in the second half with strong crosses from the right wing. O'Donovan was solid in goal. Michelle Lam created openings with her constant hustle. Freshmen Nina McDonald and Joelle Robinson continued their strong play.

"Emma showed a lot of composure. It takes poise to receive the ball, knowing that there are always two players right behind you," said Harnais.

Too often, the best part of the rivalry is only seen through the eyes of the winners. This is foolish. Quincy senior captain Kayla McArdle suffered a dislocated kneecap on September 11 against Randolph. Just over five weeks later, on Senior Night, she willed herself back to play against North. Her knee was wrapped and in a heavy brace, but in her final soccer match against North Quincy, Kayla McArdle played and played well.

"She was cleared to play Monday, just two days before the North match. She hadn't run, played, or touched a soccer ball since she was injured," said Harnais.

"The football team has its Turkey Day. This is our Thanksgiving," said Campo.

Presidents Boys Soccer Fall Short Of Tourney Bid By 1 Goal

By BILL GRIFFIN

In the end, Quincy's boys soccer team fell shy by just one goal.

Bridgewater-Raynham scored just past the midway point of the first half and held off a furious Quincy rally for a 1-0 win in the season finale for the Presidents at Veterans Stadium last Thursday night.

Quincy finished the season at 8-9-2, just one point short of qualifying for the state tourney. If the Presidents had beaten or tied B-R, they would have made the tourney.

"We played fantastic. It was a wild second half," said coach Mark Spendlove. "I told the boys after the match that even if they had won, 7-0, I couldn't be prouder of them."

B-R, who defeated Quincy, 3-1 earlier in the season, controlled the first 20 minutes and scored off a scramble from a corner kick. Slowly, Quincy took the play back late in the half and the Presidents never relinquished their edge. They simply couldn't knock home that one goal that would have put them in the tourney.

Cian Moriarty and Eduardo Paulino stepped up in midfield and swung the play in Quincy's direction. Forwards James O'Shea and Yuri De Barros Mascarenhas also began to click with chances in the scoring area.

"They controlled early in the match, but we had good play at midfield late in the half, and that helped us," said Spendlove.

Keeper Connor Dane made a great save midway through the second half to keep it a one-goal game. The rest of the second half was full of Quincy corner kicks, scrambles in front of the B-R net and shots which were maddeningly close, but not in the net.

"We had good corner kicks and all kinds of chances. We just couldn't connect," said Spendlove.

Paulino had an excellent opening off a corner which was blocked. Roy Bander, who was outstanding at center-back, chipped an indirect kick to O'Shea. O'Shea deflected it high, but the B-R goalie tipped it just over the crossbar. Aidan Smyth also a fine opportunity off a corner.

The loss marked the end of an era for five seniors: O'Shea, Bander, Moriarty, Dane and Bjorn Armiri. Spendlove credits them with energizing the Quincy program.

"They changed the whole mentality at Quincy. It will be hard to see them go," said Spendlove. "It's a mind-set that they brought. You have to love the game. You have to be dragged off the pitch. They all loved the game that much, and they spread that influence to the whole program."

O'Shea, Armiri, and Bander started on varsity as freshmen. Moriarty and Dane began on JV and quickly moved their way to varsity.

"I saw so much improvement in all of them, particularly in Connor," said Spendlove. "He always had the physical ability, and he became a confident, polished keeper. Cian was outstanding at midfield. James, Roy and Bjorn were varsity players right from their first match as freshmen. I'll miss them."

Girl's Place 2nd In PL Championships; Mullaney 2nd Place for Boy's

Harriers' Dual Meet Win Vs. Pembroke

CROSS COUNTRY RESULTS

The Red Raider girls worked a 1-2-3 finish into a 24-31 win over the Titans to take sole possession of the Patriot League Fisher Division. Twins Emily and Julia Bryson and rapidly improving freshman Samin Charepoo took the top three spots ensuring a win with Julia Brady and Marguerite Belcher also placing in the top ten. Last year the girls were in a three-way tie for the title, having beaten Pembroke but losing to Scituate. North's only losses were to Keenan division juggernauts Whitman-Hanson and Hingham, both perennial division champs in Eastern Mass. Quincy runners Inayah Paul, LaQueen Arias and Victoria Deery all ran well but lack of depth spelled defeat 24-38 for the Presidents. On the boys side Mike Mullaney placed 3rd behind two Pembroke runners. Pembroke is a nationally ranked team and the defending Division II boys champs State-wide.

In the Patriot League Championships held Saturday at Silver Lake regional Mike Mullaney placed 2nd. North only ran three boys in varsity preferring to run most of the predominantly freshman team in the JV race. Jimmy Cannon and Aidan Golden both did well, as did Peter Saccoach and Kevin Fitzgerald for Quincy. In the girls race Emily Bryson made a move at the halfway point to forge to the lead and never looked back handing Silver Lake superstar Anna Pearsons her only defeat this season - and on her home course to boot. Julia Bryson placed 5th and Samin Charepoo was 6th (top freshman) as the girls placed third with 86 points behind Whitman-Hanson (49) and Hingham (78), North only ran Julia Brady and Marguerite Belcher as additional varsity. Both ran well. For Quincy Inayah Paul was 15th and LaQueen Arias and Victoria Deery also made the top 25 for the presidents. Maryanne Ly and Katy Deng also ran varsity for Quincy. In the JV Grace Anderson (NQ) ran her best race of the year a 23:34 over the challenging 3.1-mile course leading all Quincy and North Quincy girls. Emily Zheng was also outstanding for North.

The harrier's next event is the State Coaches Invitational at Wrentham this Saturday. The MIAA Eastern Mass meet will also be held at Wrentham the following weekend.

PROBING AN ELUSIVE DISEASE

Fibromyalgia is actually a collection of problems that includes pain, decreased concentration, and sleep deprivation. Those suffering from this elusive malady often come to the attention of chiropractors based on their experiencing "tender points" on various parts of their bodies, including the back, arms, shoulders, and legs. While this is a disorder of soft tissue, fibromyalgia sufferers (who count in the millions of Americans, primarily women) experience the pain in their joints. The cause is largely unknown, but many speculate that the central nervous system may be involved. Changes in chemicals that regulate parts of the brain and spinal cord probably play an important role in understanding and finding treatments for fibromyalgia. In some cases chiropractic treatment may help.

Fibromyalgia is a common and complex chronic pain disorder that affects people physically, mentally and socially. Elks-Panthers Rematch For QYFL Title Sunday

By SEAN HALPIN

The Quincy Youth Football League has set the stage for this week's Championship Sunday. It all starts at noon at Veterans Stadium with the annual QYFL-Cheerleading Competition. Each cheerleading squad from the six teams will perform and compete in three levels of competition: Freshman, Junior Varsity and Varsity. Each level will have trophies awarded to the Championship team.

Following the Cheer Competition, there will be an Awards Ceremony to recognize the top football players and coaches in the QYFL; Most Valuable Player, Offensive and Defensive Players of the Year, Offensive and Defensive Linemen of the Year, Unsung Hero, Sportsmanship Award and Coach of the Year.

Kickoff of the 63rd Annual QYFL Championship Game will be at 2 p.m. between the Quincy Point Panthers (7-0-1) and the West Quincy Elks (6-2). This is a rematch of the 2012 title game in which the Elks prevailed 27-0 over the Panthers, winning their third straight QYFL Title. The Panthers won an earlier match up this season, when they beat the Elks 18-12 in the closing seconds of the game. Head Coaches Justin Thorley (Elks) and Noel DiBona (Panthers) will have their squads ready for battle.

This will be DiBona's second straight trip to the Championship Game in just two years as Head Coach. This will be Thorley's fifth consecutive trip and his Elks have appeared in six of the last seven Championship Games, their only absence was in 2008.

The QYFL action began at 10 a.m. this past Saturday, as the league kicked off its marathon day of football. This started Junior Varsity Jamboree at 10 a.m. followed by the Freshman Jamboree at 12:30 p.m. Both Jamborees were the season finale for the young athletes of the QYFL in grades 3rd thru 7th. Each team played one another for two, 8-minute quarters. There was fun had by all as cheerleading squads rooted for their teams and the stands were packed with fans.

The Jamboree rolled in the varsity playoff games under the lights. The undefeated, Myers Division champion, Quincy Point Panthers hosted the North Quincy Apaches in the latest installment of the epic rivalry that dates back to 1951.

This battle would be as advertised.

On the Apaches' opening series the Panther defense forced North Quincy to punt from the 46 yard line. Apaches punter, Dara Griffin used his big leg to punt it into the end zone. The Panthers return-man attempted to field the punt and fumbled it. Apaches center Miles Easterling raced down and recovered the ball in the end zone for a TD. The conversion attempt failed as the Apaches took an early 6-0 lead. Defense was the story throughout the rest of the first half as Nathan Sleiman (INT) of the Apaches and Robert Wilson (fumble) and Ronin Contreras (fumble) of the Panthers had takeaways for their teams.

The Panthers recovered a bad punt snap on the Apaches 26 yard line before the half. The Panthers drove inside the five yard line but were stopped on fourth down with a big play from Apaches DB Connor Donaghey. The Panthers entered the locker room trailing the Apaches 6-0.

Panthers coach Noel DiBona channeled his inner Sean Payton (New Orleans Saints) when he called for an onside kick to open the second half. The Panthers recovered and drove the ball deep into Apaches territory until DT Devin Ganno stripped the Panther runner of the football. On the very next play, Panthers DB Jules Wiggins intercepted a pass and returned it to the Apaches 48 yard line. Panthers RB Mario Vrapi drove the ball down to the Apaches 3-yard line. Again, the Apaches defense held as Easterling, Ganno, Liam Murphy and Jake Roos came up with some big plays on the goal line stand.

The Apaches took over and drove the ball out past the 20. Panthers DB Jules Wiggins got his second turnover of the evening when he recovered an Apaches fumble on the 25. Three plays later, QB Nick Mayberry hit WR Melvin Gonzales on a 15 yard TD pass to tie the game at 6-6. The Panthers lined up at the 3 to attempt the one-point conversion but a false start penalty moved the Panthers back to the 7 yard line. Coach DiBona decided this time, to go with his kicker Gonzales for the 2 point conversion. Gonzales booted it right through the uprights for the victory, 8-6 over the North Quincy Apaches and a trip to the QYFL Title Game.

For many of Coach Ted Arnott's squad, this was the final game in Apache red and black. "I've been coaching many of these players since they were in 3rd grade and I couldn't be more proud of the way these boys played tonight," said Arnott. Coach Arnott had praises for Dylan Malcolm, Nate Sleiman (INT), Donaghey, Bryan Jackson, Chris Donaghey, Jake Roos (9 tackles), Win Tran, Ganno, Griffin, Josh Moore, Easterling (10 tackles, TD) Liam Murphy, Jake Bianculli and Joe Stafford.

The Panthers' road to the Championship was paved by Vrapi (13 carries, 92 yards) Mayberry, Jayo LaRosa, Bryan Hanly, Ronin Contreras, Robert Wilson, Jackson Quinn, Gonzales, Domenic Laptiste, Jason Fratus, Cullen O'Connell, Joey Spano, Glayston Barbosa, Ryan Boretti and Jules Wiggins. The undefeated Point Panthers host the West Quincy Elks next Sunday at 2 p.m.

The final game of the evening featured the Desmond Division champion, West Quincy Elks hosting the Houghs Neck Manets. The Manets were led out for the coin toss by honorary Captain; "Double-A" Abdalallah Alhzuri. Alhzuri, a 6th grade JV player, recently returned to full duty after having a major surgery just over a month ago. He has been an inspiration to the Manets team all season.

The first quarter of the ball game was a scoreless defensive battle between two of the QYFL's original teams. Early in the second quarter Elks DB Shorn Hawthorne intercepted the Manets passer on Elks 35 yard line. Elks RB Adam Vu broke free for a 65 yard TD run. Curtis Frazier kicked the 2 point conversion as the Elks took an 8-0 lead over the Manets.

On their next offensive series, QB Frazier connected with WR Hawthorne on a 51 yard TD pass. Frazier's kick was good as the Elks extended their lead to 16-0.

Later in the ball game, Elk DB Tyreek Woodley intercepted a Manets pass and returned it 53 yards down to the 1 yard line and fumbled. Elks tackle, Connor Ainsley recovered the ball in the end zone for a TD. The Manets offense started to get on track late in the game. Anthony Epps, Nate Steinberg, Patrick Deery and Wilmer Duran combined for some fine running, passing and catching but, were unable to reach the end zone.

Elks DB, Anthony Rizzatano intercepted a pass to seal the victory over the Manets. The Elks advance to their fifth straight QYFL championship game next Sunday against the Point Panthers. Coach Thorley had some fine performances from Frazier, Adam Vu, Davi Soares, Jamal Williams, Corey Shaw, Connor Ainsley, Matt Pittman, Danny Keegan, James Crump, Michael Toldness, Noah Herrera, JJ Camara, Hawthorne and Rizzatano.

This was the final game in Manets black and gold for many of Coach Mike Flavin's 8th graders. Coach Flavin had praises for Epps, Duran, Hunter Schofield, Jason Lam, Sonny Cugini, Tommy Feeney, Steinberg, Peter Reed, Shawn Daly, Jake Walsh, Christ Pham, Dan Riley an Zack Walsh.

Many of these eighth-grade players will have one last opportunity to suit up as a QYFL player, as many players have been selected to play in the First Annual QYFL Desmond-Myers All-Star Football Classic on Sunday, Nov. 10 at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The All-Star Game features top players from each team playing on each Division All-Star Team. Team Myers will be Manets, Panthers and Mustangs players and Team Desmond with be Elks, Apaches and Storm players.

Kickoff is at 1 p.m.

Ted Walsh New Quincy High School Hockey Coach

By BILL GRIFFIN

If ever a man and a job were a perfect fit, it is Ted Walsh as coach of Quincy High's hockey team.

After working for 23 years as an assistant to Bob Sylvia and Tim Lewis, Walsh brings a treasure of knowledge and experience to the Presidents' hockey program as head coach this winter in a season which is full of great expectations.

"I wanted to wait until I could put 100 percent into the job," said Walsh. "In the past, I had a son playing college hockey and I wanted to follow him. It wasn't the right time. Now, I can put every ounce of energy that I have into the kids and the team. That's what I wanted."

He inherits a team which has a rare blend of talent and experience. It is largely a team of talented juniors and seniors who have earned two priceless years of varsity experience. However, it is the quality of the person as much as the quality of the player which excites Walsh most about his new job.

"They're great kids to work with. There are no problems," said Walsh. "They are dedicated and put a lot of work into the off-season. More importantly, off the ice they do the right thing. I know them. They are good kids."

There are players here who have legitimate potential to play in college, and Walsh will stress the academic part of their future as much as the hockey part.

"The first priority is school," said Walsh. "I want them to do well in school. I've talked to a lot of them about college hockey and the first thing a college wants to see is their grades. If they want to play in college, they have to do well in class."

Many of his players started as freshman. They won one game. Last year, the Presidents won six and went 3-1-1 in their final five games, including a 4-1 victory over North. Walsh knows exactly what he has. In some cases, a new coach needs a period of adjustment to better know his players. Nobody knows his players better than Walsh.

"Being familiar with them should help," Walsh said. "We have a good foundation and the transition should be seamless."

There is talent here. Junior winger Patrick Freeman led the Patriot League in scoring as a sophomore. Sophomore center Jake Hallisey is a skilled scorer and passer. Junior Brian O'Callaghan is an excellent two-way winger. Aidan and Mike Pugsley are effective forwards. Jimmy Brennick and Steve Ross lead an experienced defense. Junior goalie Ryan Higgins was excellent over the second half of last season.

They formed the core of the Midget 16-and-under team which went to the national championships. They learned and grew through hard tests on varsity as freshmen and sophomores. This season is their time. Walsh embraces the challenge.

"We had a meeting and I told them the time for excuses is over," he said. "We set our goals. We want to make the tournament and hopefully do some damage when we get there."

Walsh graduated from Quincy High in 1983. He was a captain and defenseman on the hockey team and a standout fullback and linebacker on the football team. He attended Plymouth State with his goal set on football, but one day the hockey coach saw Walsh in the weight room. Things changed.

"He talked me into playing hockey," said Walsh. "I played as a walk-on. That's not something you see in college any longer. I played defense, and I loved it."

He took his first assistant job and worked for 20 years for the legendary Sylvia. He learned important lessons.

"I learned two things from Bob that I won't forget," said Walsh. "I learned how to protect the integrity of your hockey program and how to communicate with the kids."

Walsh's last three years were with Lewis who resigned from his position. Walsh saw this group of players tested by varsity fire at a young age. He saw them struggle, improve and show at the end of last winter that they could play and play well with the best in the Patriot League.

"Timmy brought enthusiasm and discipline. He gave us a good foundation," said Walsh. "I know the kids and I know the tradition of Quincy High hockey. I can't wait to get started."

Quincy Bows To Duxbury, Eliminated From Playoffs

By BILL GRIFFIN

It was a case of not only facing a team which is big, strong and has a rich tradition. It was a case of facing a championship club with a high football IQ which can influence and determine the course of a game.

"We had them scouted. We knew they were good, but we didn't know how good until we stepped on the field with them," said Quincy coach Bill Reardon about his club's meeting with Duxbury.

Duxbury raced to a 13-point halftime lead, built a 27-point cushion and withstood a strong second half from Quincy to defeat the Presidents 27-14 and clinch their sixth straight Patriot League Keenan Division crown Friday night in Duxbury.

Quincy is 4-3, with two one-point losses, and was eliminated from playoff contention with the loss to Duxbury. Quincy is at Taunton this week with the time and the day for the game still to be determined. On Friday, Nov. 8, Quincy will host Braintree in a rematch of a game earlier this season won by the Wamps, 17-16. The game will be played at 4:30 p.m.

On Friday, Nov. 15, Quincy will host Durfee at 7 p.m.

"What impressed me was their football intelligence," said Reardon. "I knew they had a three, four, and five man front in defense. They showed them all in just the first period. They had audibles on defense against what we were trying to do and depending on the formation, they were able to audible out of them.

"They had just a real good football team," said Reardon. "I thought we played well. Our defense was good the entire game and our offense played well in the second half."

The Dragons went up 6-0 and 13-0 in the first half. The first TD came off a blitz which forced a fumble in the Quincy end zone which Duxbury recovered after Quincy was backed up by a holding penalty. The second came off a reverse pass which covered nine yards.

"Again, they run so many formations, they make it hard to defend," said Reardon.

Then Presidents had a chance to draw close late in the first half when a Randy Turpin interception led to a drive which moved to the Duxbury 16. A penalty set the Presidents back and Duxbury blitzed off the edge to force a sack and end the threat.

Quincy had another excellent chance midway through the second quarter when quarterback James Lam connected with Matt Hines for a 50-yard gain which would have moved the ball to the Duxbury 25, but it was called back for clipping.

"James faced enormous pressure, but I thought he played a great game," said Reardon.

Quincy played its best football in the fourth period after Duxbury had built a 27-0 lead. The Presidents, who had played good defense all night, got their running game going and pushed across a pair of touchdowns.

"On defense, we put Rob Munroe on their best receiver and he held him to one catch and that was on a screen pass over the middle. Turpin stepped up big at corner and Matt Hines played an excellent game at defensive end."

The first Quincy score came off a solid 50-yard drive which Jahvae Handsome-Fields finished from the two to cut the margin to 27-6. Quincy's defense held firm once again and, Handsome-Fields used his speed, cutting and weaving through the Duxbury defense on a punt return and took the ball down to the Duxbury 15. Quincy drove it across from here with Lam hitting J.T. Bain for the score from eight yards out. Lam connected with Jake Bergonzi for the two-point conversion for the 27-14 final.

"I thought it was J.T.'s best game," said Reardon. "He had a nice reception and I thought he blocked well down field for us."

Duxbury scored from two trick formations. One was the reverse pass. One was on a play on which the Dragons used the formation to hide the tight end. Quincy scored twice, had a chance called back for a clip and another turned aside in the shadows of the Duxbury end zone. Quincy was not that far away.

"I'm proud of the progress I've made since taking over in 2008," said Reardon. "But Duxbury is the model. They are a great football team. They can beat you in so many ways."

Quincy, with only four starters returning from last year, stands at 4-3 with three games left. Braintree is the only game the Presidents have lost by one point. They did not make the playoffs, but would seem to have plenty of incentive for the closing rush, including back-to-back winning seasons and, of course, Thanksgiving.

"It all depends on how we finish. That will determine our season," said Reardon.

North Quincy Battles Playoff-Bound Scituate

Visits BF Friday, Hosts Milford Nov. 8

By BILL GRIFFIN

North Quincy had a choice to make.

The Red Raiders trailed by two touchdowns less than three minutes into the game. They were missing two starting linemen. They had lost five of their first six games. They were facing playoff-bound Scituate who averages more than 30 points per game and has more size than the Indianapolis Colts.

North could fold or play. The Red Raiders played.

The Sailors used their fast start to build a 25-point halftime lead, but North used a powerful running game led once again by tailback Antoine Allen to test Scituate before falling, 38-20 Friday in a Patriot League Fisher Division contest on Senior Night at Veterans Stadium.

North Quincy, which did not qualify for the Division 3 Southwest playoffs, will travel to Bishop Feehan Friday at 7 p.m. On Friday, Nov. 8. North Quincy will host Milford at 7:30 p.m. On Friday, Nov. 15, the Red Raiders will travel to Norwood at a time to be determined.

"I told them they could fold and I'd start waiving in the JV or they could keep fighting," said coach Mark Nutley. "They showed me something. We played hard and I thought we moved the ball well on them after the first three minutes of the game."

The reason was the running game which was a bit surprising because North was facing a Scituate roster which had 17 players over 200 pounds and five players over 265. The Red Raiders were giving up 30, 40, 50 pounds and more across the line, but still gashed out holes with quickness and toughness, good for 215 yards rushing, 22 first downs and scoring drives of 62, 70 and 79 yards.

"The offensive line played great. They were physical and they fired out off the ball hard all night," said Nutley.

In the middle of it all was Allen who had 149 yards in 28 carries, a pair of three-yard TD runs, and a reception off a screen pass good for 44 yards. He has the elusiveness, vision, quickness and acceleration of all great backs, but his best asset can be easily summarized. He simply refuses to go down to the ground. He never quits on a play, the legs keep pumping, and two-yard losses turn consistently into big runs because of his determination.

"He sees things other backs don't see," said Nutley. "He can make something out of nothing and he doesn't need much of a hole. Week in and week out, he's been a great back."

There was more than Allen. Junior wingback Dayvon Jones ran hard for 48 yards in seven carries and an eight-yard touchdown run. Speedy Bryan Turner burst for 31 yards on three carries on a late drive which finished at the Scituate three when the game ended.

"I liked the way Dayvon ran," said Nutley. "He hit the holes hard and showed good speed. He's improved every week. He gives us a good 1-2 punch with Antoine."

Mostly it was the offensive line. The Red Raiders were without junior two-way starter Nick Manning, but Fred Barsamian stepped up and anchored the line with a strong game at center. Vinny Tran, Don Sharp and Zach Dangora were solid once again. Sophomores Derek Hounh and Seamus Broughton continued to show striking improvement on the right side of the line.

"Fred goes about 160 and the kid he was blocking was almost 300 pounds, so he did a quite a job," said Nutley. "I like the way the two sophomores have played. They've worked hard and improved. We had some big third and fourth down plays tonight, and I ran them right behind Seamus and Derek."

Barsamian was not the only depth Nutley found in the game. With Manning and Alex Chen missing from the defensive line, Chris Clare played a hard-hitting game. North also discovered a placekicker in freshman Brendan Kinsbury who converted a pair of extra points. Kinsbury is a throwback. He's an old-fashioned, straight-on kicker. He takes one step and kicks it. None of this side-saddle, soccer-style stuff. Remember those old, grainy film clips of Lou Groza and Pat Summerall kicking them. That's Kinsbury.

"Even on kickoffs, it's the same, he takes one step and kicks it," said Nutley.

Scituate (6-1), who has clinched the Fisher Division crown and will likely host a Division 4 playoff game, scored on a 55-yard run by Dawayne Kirton and a 50-yard pass from Christian Brady to Noma Okundaye for a 14-0 lead just 2:37 into the game. North answered when Allen finished from the three

However, Okundaye scored on an 18-yard TD pass, Kirton had a 21-yard scoring run and Fran Donovan kicked a 24-yard field goal for a 31-6 halftime lead.

North answered with a 17-yard possession which consumed all but 1:06 of the third period and drew within 31-13 on a three-yard run by Allen.

After Scituate went up 38-13 on a five-yard run by Kirton, the Red Raiders continued to pound the ball behind its offensive line in the fourth. Jones scored from eight yards and Turner had North on the Scituate three when the game ended.

After the first three minutes of the game, it was a 24-20 contest. North didn't fold. They played.

"I like the way we fought, but we're not good enough to spot a team like Scituate 28 points.

The seniors and their families who were honored before the game were: Allen, Tran, Sharp, Clare, Joe Phoenix, Matt Donovan, Anthony Capone, Eddie Guinto, Bryan Ayers, Greg Clarke, and Pat Janiero.

signatures for it to appear on the ballot.

A yes vote on Question 3 would support merging the high schools into one school with two campuses, while a no vote would oppose that setup.

Shea anticipates between 20 to 22 percent of Quincy's registered voters will cast ballots in the election, putting the total turnout between 12,700 and 14,000.

"All indicators are that it's going to be a light year," Shea said. "There are very few contests."

Shea based his estimate in part on the number of absentee ballots already cast. He said his office had received 522 absentee ballots through Oct. 25, ten days before the election. In last year's presidential election, which had a turnout of 72 percent, a total of 2,501 absentee ballots were cast and more than half were received ten days prior to the election.

In person absentee balloting – held at the City Clerk's Office, 1259 Hancock St. – ends at noon on Monday, Nov. 4. On election day, Nov. 5., polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Ballots will be printed in two languages – English and Mandarin – following guidelines set by Massachusetts Secretary of the Commonwealth William Galvin. Quincy is required to print the bilingual ballots because 22 percent of city residents who answered the 2010 Census said they spoke Mandarin. Quincy is one of the 17 communities in the state who have bilingual ballots; the other 16 all print their ballots in English and Spanish.

Tuesday's election will cost the city about $80,000, Shea said. That money was already included in Quincy's budget for the current fiscal year. The city did save approximately $80,000 because there was no preliminary election held in September. This is only the third time in the last 73 years where there was no preliminary city election. Besides 2013, there was no preliminary in either 1940 or 2007.

Koch, who is seeking his fourth two-year term, is the fifth Quincy mayor to run unopposed joining Thomas Burgin (1940), Francis McCauley (1983), James Sheets (1991, 1993, and 1995), and William Phelan (2005).

The three ballots questions are the most in a city election since 1999, when voters were asked to weigh in on three non-binding referendums. That year voters showed support for taking a lot in Marina Bay by eminent domain for open space preservation and for protecting low and moderate income tenants in government housing, while rejecting casino boats. The last citywide referendum was in 2006 during the state election, when voters authorized adopting the CPA.

63,687 Eligible To Vote Tuesday

By SCOTT JACKSON

When voters go to the polls Tuesday, 63,687 Quincy residents will be eligible to cast ballots.

That number, which includes both active and inactive voters, is down slightly from the 63,736 who were eligible to vote in June's special U.S. Senate election. City Clerk Joseph Shea also said the number is down about 1,200 from last November's presidential election. Shea said the number of eligible voters increases in presidential election years then decreases in the following years.

"It surges every four years and then goes down," Shea said.

Nearly half of all Quincy voters – some 31,172 – are unenrolled, meaning they haven't registered with any party. Democrats continue to outnumber Republicans in the city, with 26,060 registered Democrats compared to 6,030 Republicans. The remaining voters, a total of 425, are enrolled in third parties.

Ward 4, which has the only contested City Council race this year, has the most registered voters with 11,545. Ward 1 is second with 10,885 voters, Ward 6 has 10,653, Ward 5 has 10,376, Ward 2 has 10,235, and Ward 3 has 9,993.

FIFTH ANNUAL Cause 4 Paws Walk and Run at Marina Bay raised more than $27,000 for the Quincy Animal Shelter. Among those supporting the cause are (from left) Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, state Rep. and runner Bruce Ayers, state Rep. Tackey Chan, Fox25 Anchor Sorboni Banerjee and Bourne Police Officer Lee Desrosiers with QAS adopted dog, Dutch, who is now a drug sniffing dog on the Bourne police force. Quincy Sun Photos by Lisa Aimola completely removed so a new one can be built. Design plans call for the basement to house a meeting room and mechanical equipment. In addition, the vault located in the basement – which was used first for city records and later as a jail – is set to be preserved.

PETS AND PET LOVERS enjoyed the Quincy Animal Shelter's fifth annual Cause 4 Paws Walk and Run including Herbert Whiffen of Quincy who holds his QAS adopted dog, Sugar, and Dusty, a Shepherd Chow mix, who came dressed as a canine cowboy.

"That room is going to be kept as it is as a historical artifact at this point in time," Edwards said. "It's rather handsome. It has a beautiful coffered brick ceiling. We'd like it to be exposed so people can look at it. There aren't too many historically significant original components to this building."

In addition to the ongoing demolition inside the building, the stucco-clad addition at the back of the building, originally constructed in 1902, is slated for demolition in the coming months along with the glass-enclosed link between that addition and the City Hall annex.

Replacing the 1902 addition will be a larger one with enough space to accommodate an elevator and staircase, as well as bathrooms on the first two floors and a room for Quincy Access TV on the third floor. The new one will be made of glass to allow people to view the granite walls in the rear of old City Hall.

"We will be able to expose the rear wall of the old City Hall, which really hasn't been able to be viewed for well over 100 years. We're going to clean that wall up. We're going to repair it as needed. This stucco-clad, rather clumsy and homely addition when that gets ripped off the new one will be all glass," Edwards said.

"You'll not only be able to see in and out, but you'll be able to see through it too."

The rear of the new addition will be clad in Quincy granite salvaged from the now-razed Quincy High School.

"We're cladding anything that's not glass in the back with granite that was salvaged from Quincy High School. There was a tremendous amount of granite that was able to be salvaged," Edwards said. "The new addition is going to be a combination of historic Quincy granite and glass. We think that's going to be a nice combination and I think that it's a nice touch – you can't quarry Quincy granite anymore."

A new, one-story link between the annex and the old City Hall will be added as part of the project to replace the old link.

Old City Hall will also be given a new slate roof.

ARCHITECT JIM EDWARDS points to the 111-year-old stucco addition to old City Hall, which will be torn down as part of the renovation project and replaced by a larger one constructed of glass and granite. The glass connection between the old building and the annex, seen here at right, will also be torn down and replaced by a one-story corridor.

All the mortar between the building's granite blocks will be replaced, as will windows. New shutters, designed to look like the building's original shutters, are going to be added as part of the project as well.

The general contractor for the project, Nauset Construction, will ensure fire watches are put in place to safeguard the building during the project. Plans also call for a fire detection system to be installed in case anything happens when the building is unoccupied during the renovation period.

"There will be fire watches. We're going to be very, very, very careful about not performing any operations that could cause a fire without proper safeguards," Edwards said.

The renovated building will have a sprinkler system, as well as code-compliant HVAC, electrical, and plumbing systems, and a fiber optic data network.

Designed by architect Solomon Willard and completed in 1844, the old City Hall building is being renovated at a cost of about $8 million. The project is being done in concert with the $10 million renovation of the Coddington School. Approximately half of the projects' combined $18 million price tag will be paid for by community preservation money, with the remainder financed by bonds.

Work on the Coddington School began in June and is expected to be finished by June 2014. That building will accommodate the School, Planning, and IT Departments, as well as a new meeting room for the School Committee.

Renovations of the old City Hall building should be completed in early 2015, Edwards said. At that time, the council will be able to relocate to the Great Hall. The council's temporary chamber on the second floor of the City Hall annex will then be renovated to accommodate the City Clerk's Offices. The city's Municipal Finance Department, currently located on the second floor of the annex, will at some point move into the third floor area currently occupied by the Planning Department.

master of ceremonies for the reception and organized the event with his wife, Ornella M.L. Sweeney.

Sweeney said a number of priests who ministered at the parish attended both the Mass and the reception, along with two religious sisters who taught at the former St. John's Parochial School, which closed in 1974. The Rev. Robert J. Cullen, the church's current pastor, gave the welcome at the reception. The Rev. Richard E. Cannon, St. John's pastor from 2005 to 2012, gave the invocation and the Rev. Peter F. Quinn, pastor from 1995 to 2005, provided the benediction.

The main speaker at the reception was the Rev. Robert J. Deehan, the pastor at Holy Family Parish in Duxbury. Deehan grew up in Quincy, was a parishioner at St. John's and graduated from St. John's Parochial School in 1967.

"He is truly a son of the St. John's. He grew up in the parish and was very active in the parish," Sweeney said. "He was so happy about being able to speak at the reception."

The parish received a number of commendations at the reception, Sweeney said. Mayor Thomas Koch issued a proclamation, Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall presented one on behalf of the City Council, and Sen. John Keenan and Rep. Tackey Chan presented a joint Senate and House resolution.

The reception also included a raffle for a watercolor painting of the church done by Barbara McEvoy, a parishioner at St. John's.

Sweeney, who has been a member of the parish since marrying his wife in 1975, said he was honored to be able to help out with the anniversary celebration.

"We were honored to be able to assist in the celebration," he said. "It was a pleasure for us to be able to help."

CARDINAL SEAN PATRICK O'MALLEY (fifth from left) was the Principal Celebrant at the 150th anniversary Celebration of the Liturgy at Saint John the Baptist Church Oct. 20. Con-celebrants were Rev. Chamber Music Concert Sunday At St. Chrysostom's Church

Brass and string chamber music will be featured Sunday, Nov. 3 at a 12:30 p.m. concert at St. Chrysostom's Church, 1 Linden St. (corner of Hancock Street), Quincy.

The Wenham Street Brass will be joined by pianist Sarah Troxler and oboist Elizabeth England, performing music by Ewazen, Muczynski, Brahms, and Reinecke.

Children and families are welcome. The church is fully accessible.

More information is available at www.stcquincy.org or 617-472-0737.

Two Trios at St. Chrysostom's features the Wenham Street Brass (Justin Stanley, horn; Joseph Walsh, trombone; Matt Baker, trumpet) plus pianist Sarah Troxler and oboist Elizabeth England, and was developed as a means to bridge the gap between the brass "world" and chamber music as a whole.

November's opens with Eric Ewazen's Philharmonic Fanfare, originally written for members of the New York Philharmonic. After this traditional brass fanfare, the work of American composer Robert Muczynski, famous for his music for winds, is presented with his brass trio, "Voyage." The second half of the concert travels back in time to songs by Brahms, and Carl Reniecke's Trio in A minor.

All of the performers perform regularly across New England, and teach at such institutions as Eastern Nazarene College, the South Shore Conservatory, and the All Newton Music School.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Wednesday, October 23, 2013, at approximately 9:20 P.M., Officer Steve Kelly and numerous other officers were dispatched to the parking lot of 215 Quincy Avenue on the report of a male breaking into vehicles. Upon arrival, Officer Kelly observed Sergeant J.P. Kelly, Officer Lauren Lambert and Lieutenant Kevin Tobin (with ride-along Quincy High School Protective students) speaking to a male suspect. Officer Kelly immediately recognized the suspect from past incidents – and as recent as an hour earlier when the Officer was dispatched to the Kam Man store also located at 215 Quincy Avenue. Officer Kelly spoke with the manager who stated he caught the suspect attempting to steal a case of beer. The manager elected not to press charges, so Officer Kelly located the suspect in the parking lot and advised him not to return to the store. The suspect denied breaking into any vehicles. A witness then approached Officer Kelly and confirmed that the male the Officers had detained was the man he saw break into a Dodge pick-up truck parked nearby. The witness added that he first saw the suspect attempt to enter his (the witness's) vehicle by trying the door but it was locked. The witness watched as the suspect then entered the Dodge pick-up truck as well as other vehicles in the area. Upon seeing this, the witness called the Quincy Police to report the incident. Officer Kelly inspected the area around the vehicles that had been entered. On the ground near the Dodge pick-up truck, the Officer found a Rayban Sunglass case on the ground. It appeared in good condition. The Officer returned to where the suspect was being detained to check on the brand of sunglasses the suspect had atop his head. The brand turned out to be Rayban, which matched the case brand found just outside the truck. The Officer also noted that the suspect, seen an hour earlier, did not have a pair of sunglasses on his head. Since it was dark out and had been for many hours, it was odd that someone would have sunglasses still on. In addition, it was dark and had been very cloudy all day. Based on this information, Officer Kelly placed the suspect, a 41 year old Quincy resident, under arrest for "Breaking and Entering into a Motor Vehicle, Possession of Burglarious Tools and Receiving Stolen Property."

Officer Lambert then searched the suspect and found a wrench and a pair of pliers in his coat pocket. In another pocket, Officer Lambert found a box of unopened batteries from Radio Shack, which is also located in the mall area of 215 Quincy Avenue. Officer Lambert also located a cell phone holder/clip in the coat pocket, yet the suspect did not have a cell phone. Officer Kelly took these items as evidence, believing that these items were also stolen. The wrench and pliers were taken as "burglarious tools" evidence. As the suspect was about to be transported by cruiser, he said, "I didn't steal anything."

The owner of the vehicle was notified. Nice Work!

SCAMS: "Free money for college." The victim was searching through the computer looking for money to pay for college. She gave out her cell-phone number to a company that was offering "free money." Soon after, she was called by a male claiming to be from the federal government, offering her $7,500.00 to go back to school and best of all, "you will never have to pay the money back." The only stipulation was that the victim would have to purchase a gift card and send it to the program first. The victim went to Wal-Mart and purchased a prepaid Visa card in the amount of $280.00. The victim then called the suspect and asked if he received the gift card. The suspect told the victim that she would first have to pay Massachusetts taxes and it was then that the victim became suspicious, asking for her money back. The suspect told her that he could not give money back and he would be in touch with her. The telephone number's area code is Washington, D.C.

It is highly unlikely that the victim will ever recoup her losses.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The high standards you set for yourself don't always translate into the behavior you expect of others. That relationship problem can be resolved if you're more flexible and less judgmental.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Not enough party bids to satisfy the Bovine's fun-loving side this week? Go ahead and throw one of your own. Then prepare for some serious work coming up early next week.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A new and intensely productive cycle is about to kick in. Be careful not to get too stressed out, though. Make time to restore your energies by relaxing with family and friends.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This could be a good time to share some of your plans with those closest to you. Their comments could give you some added insight into how you might accomplish your goals.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) An attack of self-doubt might be unsettling for the usually super-assured Feline. But it could be your inner voice telling you to hold off implementing your plans until you've reassessed them.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a great time for you to reward yourself for all your hard work by taking a trip you haven't spent months carefully planning, to somewhere you never thought you'd be going.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Some misunderstandings resist being resolved. But your sincerity in wanting to soothe those hurt feelings wins the day. By month's end, that relationship should begin to show signs of healing.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A hectic job schedule begins to ease just in time to blow off all that work-generated steam on Halloween. A family situation runs into an unexpected complication.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A cutting remark in the workplace needs to be handled with finesse. Remember: How you respond could determine the depth of support you gain from colleagues.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Once again, that Capricornean stubborn streak sets in and could keep you from getting much-needed advice. Fortunately, it lifts by week's end, in time to make an informed decision.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A surprise trip early in the week could lead to other unexpected offers when you return. Word to the wise: Avoid talking too much about this until you've made some decisions.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Learning dominates the week for perspicacious Pisceans, who are always looking to widen their range of knowledge. A series of important job-linked commitments begins late in the week.
BORN THIS WEEK: Your sense of humor generates good feelings and good will everywhere you go.

Mary V. Pickering Scott, 53

A funeral Mass for Mary Virginia Pickering Scott, 53, of Irvine, CA and formerly of Quincy was celebrated Oct. 24 at St. Thomas More Catholic Church, Irvine, CA.

Mrs. Scott died Oct. 20 after battling a long bout of cancer.

At the age of 16, Mrs. Scott was crowned Miss Quincy Bay in 1976.

She had been described as: nurturing, vivacious, determined, compassionate, funny, inspiring, generous, courageous, inviting, selfless, and strong. Anyone who met her was instantly moved by her illuminating smile, which could truly change the world.

Mrs. Scott frequently dropped in her own little song and dance in conversations, reflecting her positive spirit. It was once said that she gave 100 percent in everything she did but because she did 100 different things she was 10,000 times the person. She was never boring. She had always been real – had real emotion, felt each emotion, and expressed it without holding back. She always loved the house filled with friends, family and laughter.

Quotes frequently heard by Mrs. Scott include: "because it's all good," "our God is an awesome God," "women never start a fight but we can finish one," "love you big bunches," "my baby's coming home," "save room for the holy ghost" and "rock on."

Voters Approve 4-Year Mayoral Term

DiBona Tops School Race

By ROBERT BOSWORTH and SCOTT JACKSON

Voters elected a new school committee member and overwhelmingly approved a ballot initiative doubling the term for mayor from two to four years in Tuesday's municipal election that drew about 17 percent of the city's voters to the polls.

In an impressive political debut, first-time candidate Noel DiBona topped the School Committee ballot easily winning one of three seats and unseating incumbent Emily Lebo.

NOEL DiBONA
School Committeeman-Elect

Making his first run for elective office, DiBona, 38, of 19 Winthrop Park, finished first in the four-way race for three school committee seats. DiBona's vote of 6,482 was 924 votes more than the nearest incumbent.

Study: 'Town Center' For Germantown

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The Quincy Housing Authority (QHA) in conjunction with Urban Land Institute (URI) recently conducted a study using a technical assistance panel to improve upon the Germantown neighborhood.

Technical Assistance Panelists (TAPs) suggested a number of improvements that could be made to the area including creating a town center.

"I think the findings were just great," said Executive Director of the Quincy Housing Authority Jim Lydon. "The most significant thing they were able to come up with was to identify the town center which starts with the (Snug Harbor Elementary) school and the Germantown Neighborhood Center. This visit has given us a focus and an area to begin improving upon, starting with the traffic circle. The mayor has promised us 100 trees for Germantown and by next spring we hope to have those trees planted along with other improvements specifically to the traffic circle."

URI is a research and education institution with over 35,000 members worldwide representing the entire spectrum of land use and real estate development disciplines, working in private enterprise and public service. TAP brings together a group of URI members with a range of professional expertise to provide focused, collaborative consultation to a local government or qualifying non-profit organization.

Panelists were asked to address three questions: how to improve the overall environment of public housing developments with streetscape and landscape

John Adams' Legacy Remembered On 278th Birthday

By SCOTT JACKSON

At a wreath-laying ceremony commemorating the 278th anniversary of John Adams' birth, speakers remembered the second U.S. president for his love of learning and books, his distinguished legal career, and founding the U.S. Navy.

During the ceremony, held Oct. 30 at the United First Parish Church (the Church of the Presidents), Mayor Thomas Koch said the legacy of John Adams – who helped draft the Declaration of Independence, served as an ambassador during the Revolutionary War, wrote the Massachusetts constitution, and served as the first U.S. vice president and second U.S. president – is one worth preserving.

"The legacy of John Adams is pretty incredible," Koch said. "It's a legacy that's really unmatched in our history and it's important that we continue to tell the story of that great legacy to continue to inspire future generations to go on and serve our nation."

The ceremony included for the first time speakers from all three high schools in Quincy. Lydia Grace Culp, a junior at Quincy High School, said Adams loved learning and used knowledge to better himself.

"John Adams loved learning and always tried to better himself, which is clear by his many efforts to seize every possible opportunity to learn more about the world surrounding this curious young man," Culp said. "John Adams wanted to become a more refined, educated individual just for the sake of learning and achieving the numerous high goals he set for himself."

Culp also recalled that Adams put his country's well being ahead of his own. During his presidency, for example, Adams refused to declare war on France despite support for doing so from prominent members of his own party. That mindset, Culp said, is lacking in current politics.

"As a young adult who is about to inherit the nation's debt and problems as I enter the real world, this heartless sacrifice for the good of the nation speaks volumes – especially in the current state of the nation," Culp said. "With the recent sequestration in the nation and constant gridlock in Washington, there is no doubt the mindset of John Adams would serve as a great help for the government."

THE 278TH BIRTHDAY anniversary of President John Adams was commemorated Oct. 30th with a wreath-laying ceremony at United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents) in Quincy Center. The wreath ordered by the White House was placed on the tomb of the Second President in the church crypt. Also entombed there are John Quincy Adams, the Sixth President of the United States and son of John Adams; and their wives - First Ladies Abigail Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams. Maura McDonough, a senior at the Woodward School for Girls, noted that Adams incorporated public education into the Massachusetts constitution. Adams, McDonough said, believed education was key to democracy.

"It was John Adams belief in an ideal education

Ceremony Saturday At Bishop Field

L/Cpl. David Owen Sullivan Playground Rededication

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

A rededication ceremony at Bishop Field will be held Saturday, Nov. 9 to honor Marine Corps Lance Cpl. David Owen Sullivan who was killed in action during the Vietnam War.

Quincy Veterans' Services in conjunction with the Park and Recreation Department, Mayor Tom Koch, and the Vietnam Combat Veterans' Combined Armed Forces will hold the ceremony at 10 a.m. at L/CPL David Owen Sullivan Playground on the corner of Stafford Street and Hamilton Avenue.

"Last year on Vietnam Veterans Day we were dedicating the corner of Stafford Street and Hamilton Avenue in memory of Sullivan when we learned that the family had put a child's play area at Bishop Field and that there was a plaque there in memory of him," said Veterans Services' Director Tom Stansbury. "We then learned that after some construction in that area the plaque was never put back so we decided we needed to get it back where it belonged. After tracking it down we re-bronzed it and cleaned it up and decided to hold the ceremony."

Sullivan was killed in battle in South Vietnam on Feb. 14, 1969 during action near the Unninghat Fire Support Base close to Vietnam's border with Laos. Sullivan was only 20 years old when he was killed.

Sullivan threw a grenade into a machine gun nest occupied by four North Vietnamese soldiers. The grenade killed two of the soldiers and the other two ran away. Sullivan chased and killed both soldiers before he was mortally wounded by sniper fire. He was awarded a Silver Star for the actions that led to his death.

Tuesday marked a special milestone for longtime friends and former Mayors Walter Hannon and Frank McCauley.

The two marked the 50th anniversary of their first election to public office Tuesday with about 20 friends, former government colleagues and family at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

It was exactly 50 years to the day – Nov. 5, 1963 – that Walter and Frank won their first elections: Walter as Ward 5 councillor and Frank as Ward 1 councillor. It was the beginning of a public service journey that would see each elected mayor of Quincy eight years and 18 years later respectively.

Walter served as the city's 27th mayor from 1972 to 1975. Frank served as Quincy's 30th mayor from 1982 to 1989.

Tuesday's special anniversary remembrance at the Neighborhood Club was an opportunity to reminisce about their time in public life. Their stories and memories are seemingly as abundant as the number of votes they tallied while winning campaigns.

But long before they were public service contemporaries, they were pals who grew up around the corner from each other in Houghs Neck.

Walter lived on Stoughton Street while Frank lived on Manet Avenue. They both attended the Atherton Hough Elementary School and Blessed Sacrament Church, where they both served as altar boys. They were also in the Boy Scouts together and enjoyed playing basketball and baseball.

In 1945, Walter informed Frank that his family was moving to Wollaston.

"I was thunderstruck. Wollaston was like the Riviera to me," Frank – a lifetime 'Neckah' – says with a laugh.

The two kept in touch but attended different high schools. Walter enrolled at North Quincy High School while Frank attended Boston College High School.

By the late 1950s and early 1960s, both were bitten by the political bug.

Their first attempts for office were not successful but in 1963 they were each triumphant in races for ward councillor.

It's a milestone they both cherish and celebrated Tuesday.

"I just thought it was worth celebrating," Frank, who turns 84 in December, said about organizing the remembrance. "Two guys from the same neighborhood, grew up together, participated in the local community, and we both made it to the mayor's office."

Walter, age 82, added: "It was very nice of Frank to organize this reunion. It's something I wouldn't have even thought about. I admire him and I thank him for doing it."

Tuesday's remembrance included a lot of political reminiscing, swapping campaign stories and reliving tough decisions as a city councillor and the mayor at a time when the net pay for being Quincy's chief executive was a mere $138 a week.

Issues that made headlines in their hey-days of government included the development of State Street South in Montclair, the expansion of the MBTA Red Line to Quincy and South Quincy, and the Quincy shipyard.

"You could sit down and write a book about all the memories," Walter says. "But there were a lot of hard decisions. We (the City Council) took 56 houses (by eminent domain) on Upland Road one night to make way for the Red Line. I was the chairman of the committee and the placed was packed. After we voted, I walked out and I felt terrible."

But politics can also have its humorous side.

In 1971, when Hannon was running for mayor, McCauley was on the ballot for school committee. One of McCauley's campaign supporters had a "Hannon for Mayor" sign on the roof of his car.

They stopped to do some canvassing in Montclair. Walter was not too popular in this area of Quincy because of his support for the State Street South development. Many in the neighborhood were against the project that – after it was built – would employ hundreds (including many Quincy residents) and be the city's largest taxpayer for years to come.

"The people were coming out of the houses and they were screaming to get that car out of here. I came in dead last in Montclair," noted Frank – who still won one of the three school seats in that election. "I guess it was guilt by association," he said as the two chuckled.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A postcard reproduction of an early photo of the Jacobethan Revival styled Adams Building on Hancock Street in Quincy Square. Built in 1880 by John Quincy Adams II, it was owned by the Adams family for over 70 years. On the left, construction was underway on the Temple Street wing added in 1890. The upper floors were mostly offices and the home of an Odd Fellows Hall. The street level has almost always been retail shops. The awning on the left was Rogers Brothers provisions and groceries store that later became a Foy's Market. The center awning was George Saville's gents' furnishings, boots, shoes and rubbers shop. He was a prominent Quincy citizen and businessman and Saville Avenue and Street where he lived was named for his family. The right awning was Edgar Souther's shop for periodicals, stationery, cutlery and cigars. The Saville and Souther shops were later home to Woolworth's 5 & 10 Cents Store for 50 years before they moved to the corner of Cliveden Street. The small building on the right, also owned by Adams, was the Quincy Savings Bank for 20 years until 1897 when they bought it and moved it to build the large brick building on this spot today. Patrick Gavin's Plumbing and Sanitary Engineering Shop was in the old bank building, without an awning, in the same street level space now occupied by The Quincy Sun. Reagan In Landslide, Kerry Wins Senate Seat

By SCOTT JACKSON

President Ronald Reagan won Quincy's vote as part of a landslide victory over former Vice President Walter Mondale, which saw Reagan win every state except Mondale's home state of Minnesota.

But the California Republican's coattails were not sufficient enough to carry millionaire Republican Raymond Shamie into a U.S. Senate seat as Democratic Lt. Gov. John Kerry won the Quincy vote en route to winning to capturing 55 percent of the vote statewide.

Reagan and Vice President George H.W. Bush, who was born in Milton, took Quincy by a vote of 20,118 to 18,962 over Mondale and his running mate Geraldine Ferraro, the first woman to run for vice president. Reagan had won the Quincy vote four years prior in 1980, defeating then-President Jimmy Carter 18,038 to 17,977.

Kerry totaled 21,006 votes in Quincy, compared to 17,918 for Shamie.

U.S. Rep. Brian J. Donnelly, state Sen. Paul D. Harold, and state Reps. Thomas F. Brownell, Robert A. Cerasoli and Michael W. Morrissey, and Register of Probate Thomas Patrick Hughes were all re-elected without opposition.

Peter L. Eleey of Quincy was easily re-elected to the Governor's Council over Patricia A. Ruskiewicz of Brockton.

County Commissioners George B. McDonald of Quincy and James J. Collins of Milton, both Democrats, turned back their Republican challengers, as did County Treasurer James M. Collins of Milton.

A hefty 79.4 percent of Quincy's 49,735 registered voters turned out to cast ballots.

The vote count in Quincy wasn't completed until 2:30 a.m. on Wednesday, as the city used hand-counted paper ballots. The City Council was considering a proposal to purchase punch-card voting machines to replaces the hand-counted ballots, beginning with the 1985 municipal election.

RUTH GORDON AMPHITHEATRE OPENS

After more than years of construction, the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre in Merrymount Park opened following a re-dedication ceremony with the Wollaston-born actress as the guest of honor.

The amphitheater was originally dedicated by then-Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia on Dec. 31, 1977, as his last official act in office. At the time the amphitheatre was about 75 percent complete.

The Quincy South Shore Cultural Commission, chaired by City Councillor LaRaia, endeavored to complete the amphitheatre and began finishing work on it two-and-a-half months prior to the re-dedication. The commission co-sponsored the ceremony along with Mayor Francis X. McCauley.

The amphitheatre, which was constructed with more than $500,000 in federal funds, is situated in natural cavity in Merrymount Park. It has seating for 1,000, and 200 additional seats were added for the re-dedication.

What Veterans Day Means To America

"A nation reveals itself not only by the men it produces by the men it honors, the men it remembers."

-President John F. Kennedy

The above quote is found chiseled on the base of the Vietnam Memorial Clock Tower in Marina Bay Quincy and in reflection it is saying how much we should both remember and honor all who serve, have served and will serve their country in our armed forces.

Another Veterans Day will soon be upon us. Again veterans will march across this country on this holiday honoring the sacrifices of all who answered the call and served their country in both peace-time and times of conflict.

A few years ago I viewed the Moving Wall exhibit when it showed up near me and looked at all those names of those who perished in the Vietnam War. Dead many years but never forgotten. As I looked around I saw many veterans staring hard at the mini-wall and seemingly remembering with lingering pain friends they lost long ago in battle.

Over in Dorchester there stands a small square dedicated to someone named Michael Scalia who must have lived in the Clam Point neighborhood of Dorchester. Does anyone remember him, where he lived , who his parents were or how and when he died? All we know is he sacrificed his life for his country and his name will be part of the future of the Clam Point community.

Over in East Boston inside Sacred Heart Church is a stained glass window dedicated to those who dedicated their lives to God and fought for their country. Looking at it each Sunday morning, it is difficult not to remember the sacrifices always being made by those who serve their country.

Finally, the recent death of Air Force General J. Robinson Risner at 88 who had been tortured inside the Hanoi Hilton as a POW during the Vietnam War. He and so many others were beaten, starved and thrown for months into dark cells crawling around in the dark like rats for months at a time. Risner spent seven years, four months and 27 days a prisoner of war, a colonel at the time, the highest ranking American POW.

His credo as a POW simply stated, "Resist as much as you can, give as little as possible and then resist again."

Once again I will be marching in Quincy on Veterans Day never forgetting those who have made our liberties possible. Never every forget their courage and sacrifice without it, we would have nothing.

Sal Giarratani

Proud To Be A Veteran

I proudly served my country
I did all that I could
To protect our land . . . keep it free
Its cause great and true.

Our freedom is a precious gift
That never can be lost
Worth living for . . . worth dying for
To protect any any cost.

And though I can no longer serve
You will always see in me
Someone proud to be a veteran
And someone thankful to be free.

Sarah Malloy To Perform In 'Stage Door Canteen'

SARAH MALLOY

Quincy's Sarah Malloy will appear in Riverside Theatre Works' presentation of "Stage Door Canteen," a musical tribute honoring the heroes of World War II and all American warriors, then and now, on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 16 and 17.

Presented by the ensemble Sweet Harmony, the show salutes the "Canteen Girls," who joined celebrities entertaining, serving food and comfort at the Stage Door Canteens or on the radio, visiting and singing for the troops and their loved ones. They did whatever they could for the war effort.

The show is written and directed by Marietta Phinney, founding director of RTW, 1981. "Having lived through the golden era and as a teacher/mentor, I thought it was time to make this presentation as the 70th anniversary of D-Day approaches in 2014," Phinney said.

"This is my way to pay homage to our heroes and also to keep this memory alive by educating our young adults through their performance of this sentimental journey, reflecting a part of this history."

Sweet Harmony is an ensemble featuring six young women based out of Riverside Theatre Works. Their fresh vocal talent features the powerful music of the Golden Era, including: Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy, I'll Be Seeing You, Come Rain Or Come Shine, This Joint Is Jumpin' and much more.

'Feed The Hungry' Gala Dec. 5 To Benefit Interfaith Social Services

Interfaith Social Services (Interfaith) will hold its 16th annual "Feed the Hungry Gala" Thursday, Dec. 5 from 6 to 10 p.m. at Granite Links Golf Club at Quarry Hills, Quincy.

The event, featuring a festive carnival theme, will be co-chaired by NECN's Ally Donnelly and Greg Wallingford of New England Schooner.

Interfaith Social Services, founded in 1947, relies heavily on community volunteers and donors to deliver compassionate, client-centered programs focused on hunger, mental health and emergency assistance. Operating one of the largest food pantries in Greater Boston, Interfaith distributes almost 600,000 pounds of food to hungry South Shore residents every year.

This year's Gala will feature Carnival entertainers, interactive games, a silent and live auction with chances to win items including: JetBlue Vacation get-a-ways, Tosca wine dinner, in-home dinner prepared by Chef Paul Wahlberg, wines from SLM Wines, Intercontinental spa and stay escape, Davio's chef's dinner, a time share in Cabo San Lucas, sports tickets and memorabilia, as well as shopping packages, and much more.

The evening's program will highlight Interfaith's Community Hero of the Year given to two local awardees who inspire others through selfless service. Since 1997, the Feed the Hungry Gala has raised almost one million dollars for local families. This Gala has allowed Interfaith to meet the growing demand for emergency assistance currently being experienced on the South Shore.

Proceeds from the gala will help to support Interfaith's fight against poverty.

"For over 65 years our mission has been to help local children and families," said Rick Doane, Interfaith's Executive Director. "This fundraiser has made it possible for us to keep up with the demand for services that we have seen steadily increasing since the recession began. We are extremely fortunate to have such a strong pool of volunteers and corporate partners supporting us. This Gala exemplifies the amazing support Interfaith receives from the community."

Guests will be treated to a celebrity chef dine-around reception featuring Boston's Davio's Northern Italian Steakhouse and restaurants from the South Shore including Alma Nove, Burtons Grill, and Steel & Rye.

The presenting sponsor for this year's gala is Arbella Insurance Foundation. Other top sponsors include JetBlue, Eastern Bank, and State Street Corporation.

General admission tickets are $100 per person, which includes a dine-around reception, carnival games, silent and live auction, and a dessert reception.

To purchase tickets to the event or for more information, visit www.InterfaithSocialServices.org.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Scallops & Shrimp

When I cook seafood sauce I usually place the scallops and shrimp in the tomato sauce at the very end and cook them until they are done.

But I recently decided to sauté the seafood and set it aside which gave the dish an extra boost.

Both ways are delicious especially it you enjoy seafood with a tomato sauce. I used a curly spaghetti that used to be called non-skids, easier for the fork to hold guess.

SCALLOPS & SHRIMP SAUCE OVER NON-SKIDS

½ pound large scallops
½ pound large shrimp
1 16 -ounce can tomatoes (I used crushed)
3 tablespoons olive oil plus more for the sautéing
2 cloves garlic (chopped)
1 small onion (optional)
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons fresh parsley
1- pound pasta (I used the curly spaghetti)

In the hot oil, sauté the garlic and onion for a couple of minutes. Add the tomato sauce and the parsley, salt and pepper and cook for 20 minutes.

Meanwhile, sauté the scallops and shrimp in hot oil until done. Set aside.

Boil the pasta according to directions. When pasta is done, place in a shallow serving dish, toss with the sauce and then place the shrimp and scallops on top. Not only do they look tempting placed on top, but the flavor is terrific. If you prefer, sprinkle either Parmesan or Romano cheese over it.

Balsamic & Wine Chicken Casserole

There must be hundreds of ways to make chicken, and I think I have made it almost as many times because it is a family favorite.

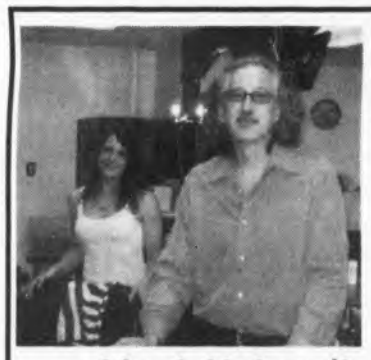

I prefer dark meat, but today's recipe could also be made with chicken breasts also as long as the slices are fairly thick. Or even a combination of any preferred type.

CHICKEN &WINE, BALSAMIC

4 chicken thighs (with bone in)
1 small onion (sliced)
2 carrots (cut in thick slices)
2 small potatoes (cut in bite sized pieces)
¾ - cup Bell's stuffing mix
¼ - cup white wine
¼ cup Balsamic vinegar
3 tablespoons olive or vegetable oil
Salt and pepper to taste

Season the chicken thighs with salt and pepper. In a slightly greased casserole dish, place the chicken. On top of that, place the carrots, onions and potatoes. Then add the wine and Balsamic vinegar. Sprinkle the stuffing mix over the top with a little water over that.

Bake covered in a 350 -degree oven for 30-35 minutes. Turn and cook uncovered until it is done, and the juices have a chance to reduce.

The ship was at sea for most of a two-year tour, often for six to eight months at a time throughout the North Atlantic, Mediterranean and Far East waters. While on board Narva qualified as one of the youngest officers of the deck in the Atlantic Fleet.

In late 1970, Narva was selected by the Department of the Navy to be part of the commissioning crew of the USS Joseph Hewes, the first of the Navy's Knox Class destroyer escorts. Narva spent more than six months helping the Navy get this new class of destroyer seaworthy, then participated in its first six-month tour of duty at sea. Narva was the ship's communications and RPS officer with the rank of lieutenant (junior grade).

House Supports Bill To Expand Veterans' Benefits

House Majority Leader Ron Mariano (D-Quincy) joined his colleagues in the Massachusetts House of Representatives Oct. 30 to unanimously pass the 2013 VALOR Act which builds on existing legislation to expand services for the over 385,000 veterans in the state.

The legislation expands benefits, increases access to services, and strengthens the recognition and honor given to our service men and women.

Rep. Mariano said he is proud to support the bill, which will provide veterans with services they have rightfully earned.

"In Massachusetts, it has always been a priority to support veterans and their families who sacrifice so much," Mariano said. "The Valor Act II is our way to honor our veterans by helping those who put themselves in harm's way to defend our freedom."

Quincy Representatives Bruce Ayers (D-Quincy) and Tackey Chan (D-Quincy) are also strong supporters of the bill.

"I was honored to work with my colleagues in the House of Representatives to pass the 2013 VALOR Act and wholeheartedly support enhanced benefits and services for our many service men and women who protect and fight for our country," Ayers said.

Rep. Chan said he believes the legislation will provide important resources to help veterans and the families on real life issues. "I am happy we are able to update our laws and veteran service programs to assist our servicemen and servicewomen coming home."

One of the most important parts of this legislation is assisting students who are called to active duty by giving students who are unable to complete their coursework the option to complete the course at a later date or withdraw with a full refund of tuition. If the student chooses to withdraw, the academic record must reflect that the withdrawal was due to active military service.

This bill also requires the Division of Professional Licensure, the Department of Public Health and boards of registration to waive license and certification fees for service members and their spouses in areas where they have received training in the field.

Some other highlights of the bill include:

• Establishes a post-deployment council to make recommendations and study mental health issues to support military members transitioning to civilian life after deployment;

• Requires the Department of Public Health to issue guidance to acute hospitals and ambulance service providers to ensure the identification of veterans in emergency settings;

• Extends the award qualifications for the Medal of Liberty and updates criteria to qualify for a Purple Heart, Gold Star and the Support Our Veterans license plate;

• Creates a home modification program for veterans to help individuals stay in their homes and function independently.

The original VALOR Act, which Representative Mariano supported, was passed by the Legislature in 2012 and created an option for cities and towns to opt-in to a program allowing veterans to volunteer services in exchange for a reduction of real property tax bills.

This legislation builds on the VALOR Act and extends the volunteer veteran property tax credit to the spouse of a veteran who is deceased or disabled.

Committee Seeks Floats For Christmas Parade

The Quincy Christmas Parade Committee announces its final call for floats for the 61st annual Christmas Parade set for Sunday, Dec. 1.

This year's parade theme is "The Music of Christmas."

The Christmas Parade Float competition is ideal for school groups and nonprofit organizations in working together creating unique floats seen by the thousands of parade spectators. Knowing the time and effort needed to create floats for a parade, floats are judged and cash prizes are awarded in several categories at the conclusion of the parade.

The grand prize for best overall float is $2,000. First prize is $1,500, second prize is $1,000, third prize $750, and fourth and fifth prizes are $500 each. Commercial floats may also be entered in the parade, however they are not considered for the cash awards and an entry fee is charged.

For more infornation or to receive a float package application contact the Christmas Parade Committee at 617-376-1394, or by email at crooney@quincyma.gov.

The number of floats accepted is limited and early entry is encouraged. The Christmas Parade Committee will work with groups and organizations in creating the Christmas float that represents the song chosen as a float theme.

Council To Consider Gas Station Food Sales

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new proposal by City Council President Michael McFarland would allow gas stations to begin selling food.

McFarland proposed striking the part of Quincy's municipal code that prevents any facility that sells gas or other petroleum products, or repairs motor vehicles, from selling food or dairy products, during a recent council meeting. He noted that many surrounding communities already allow gas stations to sell food items.

"This is an old ordinance, which is really a 20th century ordinance. I'd like to bring our code up to the 21st century. All the surrounding towns around us allow gas stations to sell candy bars, Coca Cola, coffee and so forth," McFarland said.

"This would delete the section that says you cannot sell food in a gas station and it would allow the gas stations wanting to do such would have to go through the regular process of getting a common victualler's license from the License Board, Health Department, and so forth."

Councillor Doug Gutro noted that similar proposals have been rejected by the council in the past. One concern of his was whether gas stations had adequate parking to accommodate food sales.

"I know that Councillor [Kevin] Coughlin and I have been on the council and we've subsequently voted it down. I don't know what the vote was. Different attorneys representing gas stations have advanced this," Gutro said.

"I agree with what [McFarland] said – that many neighboring communities have this provision. Part of the rationale that was in my mind when we went forward was these things were built without parking. In the City of Quincy many of them don't have parking to be a convenience store."

The proposal was referred to the council's ordinance committee. Gutro requested that City Clerk Joseph Shea provide the committee with a list of convenience stores and gas stations in Quincy.

Nominations Open For Henry Bosworth Award

The other 27 individuals were honored when the award was known as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's Quincy Sun.

Nominations will close Tuesday, Dec. 31. After nominations close, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2013 Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Bosworth Award
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the their nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January or February.

improvements, how to improve parking and traffic circulation, and how to improve the connections to the water.

To improve upon the connections to the water around the Germantown neighborhood, the panel suggested two major frameworks to look at: the civic amenities that define the neighborhood and the recreational opportunities available.

"Looking at the civic amenities there is already a civic heart within this community. The school is one and the other is the Germantown Neighborhood Center," said panelist Kartik Shah of Cannon Design. "These are what kind of form the civic spine of the entire Germantown Neighborhood. We thought that improving the streetscape around these few civic amenities would really help and create a distinct identity for the civic spine."

Shah also suggested adding signage at the traffic circle entering Germantown and also adding more landscaping to that area.

For the recreational opportunities, panelist Scott Payette of Scott Payette Architects suggested reinvigorating a number of different areas within the neighborhood.

"Our first recommendation is to reinvigorate the beach, which may require some dredging or permitting to restore, but I think there is an opportunity to use it more intensively than it has been," said Payette. "The second opportunity is to re-do the basketball court which I understand there are funds currently for, and I think in conjunction with that we could put in a boat launch and perhaps use the jetty for fishing. The largest zone we are envisioning maintaining is the soccer field, probably increase the use, and adding tennis or some other recreational use."

Improvements suggested on landscaping and streetscaping consisted of changing streetlight height, sidewalk width, along with adding wayfinding and branding signage.

"At the street edge we suggest adding some colored trees to bring the whole scale of the entire site down to a pedestrian level. Those trees would be around 40 to 50 feet in height," said TAP Co-Chair Jason Denoncourt of Guiterrez Company. "Also to allow for transitions from the street edge towards housing we suggest bring in smaller trees, ornamental trees, flowering trees, 25 feet maximum in height."

Denoncourt also suggested decreasing the height of streetlights from 35-40 feet to around 20 feet and increasing the sidewalk width from three feet to anywhere from five to eight feet.

Panelists also looked at the parking issues within the Germantown neighborhood.

"We noticed a bunch of things going on at the site regarding parking. It seems that people park pretty much wherever they want," said panelist Scott Turner of Nitsch Engineering.

"Parking, in general in that area where there are parking lots, is inefficient. It's not really aligned properly. There are pavement areas that seem there is pavement there for pavement sake and so people park there. What we want to do is make the parking more efficient which we hope will result in a more orderly systematic way of parking."

"Our idea was to provide a parking ratio of two spaces per unit, that's a goal and we think it can be obtained," said panelist Steve Cebra of Walker Parking Consultants. "During our interviews we had varying feedback regarding how much parking is needed and how much parking is out there, so we felt that two spaces per unit was reasonable and consistent with the City of Quincy's zoning. We are proposing parallel parking along the streets and so we are proposing widening the streets a little to provide for parallel parking spaces."

DEMOLITION BEGAN last week on the Whitney Road side of the Quincy Masonic Temple after a four-alarm fire ripped through the temple on Sept. 30th destroying the historic building. The front facade of the building, located at 1170 Hancock St., will be saved while the rest of the building will be demolished and rebuilt. The fire started in the basement while duct work was being done. Quincy Sun Photo/Emily Armstrong

"This is very emotional for me," DiBona told The Sun Tuesday night. "It's so emotional I can't believe it's happening. I put a lot of work into this and I had a great team. I credit this to a lot of people.

"I think it send a message that anyone can do this," DiBona said. "I think the low election year helped me because we prepared for that and I was able to get my turnout up."

Anne Mahoney received 5,558 votes to secure second place and win a third four-year term. Barbara Isola captured the third seat and a second four-year term with 5,066 votes – 273 more than Lebo who finished fourth with 4,793 votes.

In the other contested race on Tuesday's ballot, Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci cruised to a third two-year term defeating challenger Michael Healy by 1,185 votes. Palmucci polled 1,547 votes while Healy received 365 votes in his first bid for elective office in Quincy.

In the other main election draw Tuesday, voters overwhelmingly approved a citizens' initiative petition changing the mayor's term in office from two to four years. The measure – which will take effect in January, 2016 after the 2015 municipal election – carried by a better than two-to-one margin.

The YES vote for the four-year mayoral term was 7,071 votes while the NO vote was 3,339 votes – a margin of 3,732 votes (or 67.93 percent to 32.07 percent).

The four-year mayoral term initiative was sponsored by The Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

"First and foremost, thanks to the many residents who worked to get it on the ballot," Chamber President Dean Rizzo said in a phone interview shortly after the election results were tallied Tuesday evening. " We were pleased we could bring it to the voters so they could decide.

"The Chamber began this initiative because we feel it makes business sense. Quincy, in many ways, is like a major business and it's important to have successful leadership stay in place. We are confident residents will see the benefits of it now that it is has passed," Rizzo added.

Question 2 – another binding referendum calling for changes to the Community Preservation Act – was also adopted by voters. The YES vote was 6,161 votes and the NO votes were 3,328 – a margin of 2,833 votes (64.93 percent to 35.07 percent). With Tuesday's passage, additional revenue streams such as hotel/motel tax could be dedicated to the CPA fund and make it eligible for a state match.

Voters also sent a clear message that they do not want Quincy High School and North Quincy High School to merge. Question #3 was a survey that asked voters if they prefer the two high schools to be consolidated into two different campuses – one campus for 9th and 10th graders and another campus for 11th and 12th graders.

Those voting NO (against consolidation) was 6,527 votes. Those voting YES (for consolidation) was 3,096. The margin was 3,431 votes (or 67.83 percent NO and 32.17 percent YES).

Mayor Thomas Koch – who did not face a challenger Tuesday – was re-elected to a fourth two-year term and was the overall top vote getter with 8,272 votes. Koch won the mayor's race in 2007 unseating incumbent William Phelan. He defeated Phelan in a rematch in 2009 and two years ago turned aside a challenge from School Committeewoman Anne Mahoney for his third term.

Eight city councillors were also re-elected without opposition Tuesday.

ANNE MAHONEY
Wins 3rd Term
School Committee

BARBARA ISOLA
Wins 2nd Term
School Committee

BRIAN PALMUCCI
Wins 3rd Term
Ward 4 Councillor

They are:

Councillor Doug Gutro was the top vote getter in the council at-large race. Gutro received 6,705 votes enroute to winning a second-term. Gutro also served five terms as Ward 5 councillor before winning an at-large seat in 2011.

Councillor Michael McFarland finished second in the at-large race – 19 votes ahead of incumbent Joseph Finn – and was re-elected to a fifth term with 6,453 votes. McFarland, who also served on the school committee, is in his second year serving as City Council President.

Finn – re-elected to a seventh term – finished third in the at-large race with 6,434 votes.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest – third term – 1,464 votes.

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall – second term – 1,160 votes.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin – seventh term – 1,224 votes.

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes – second term – 1,295 votes.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee – fifth term – 1,338 votes.

Tuesday's turnout may be the lowest for a final municipal election ever. Only 10,791 of the city's 63,621 voters or 16.96 percent went to the polls Tuesday.

The last city election without a contested mayor's race was 2005. Turnout that year was 25 percent.

While the 2013 city election is in the books, voters in one Quincy neighborhood will be called on to vote again sometime after the new year.

That's because state Rep. Martin Walsh – whose district includes Ward 3 Precinct 3 in the Montclair section of Quincy – was elected mayor of Boston Tuesday night. The Dorchester Democrat defeated John Connolly 51% to 49% - or about 3,000 votes – to win the seat held by Tom Menino for 20 years. Menino did not seek re-election Tuesday.

Walsh will likely resign his state representative seat in the coming months. If he resigns, it would be up to House Speaker Robert DeLeo to call for a special election to fill the vacancy in the 13th Suffolk District. The primary election could be held in February, with the final election set sometime in April.

Ask the GEMOLOGIST
BY JEFFREY M. BERTMAN
GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

RUBY LITE

Without question, ruby is one of the rarest, most valuable, and highly desirable of gemstones. Finer pure-red rubies in larger sizes often bring higher auction prices than flawless diamonds. However, fine stones over two carats are rare and, thus, quite costly. It is worth noting, therefore, that another gemstone that nearly rivals ruby in color (along with red spinel) provides consumers with a less expensive alternative. Rubellite, the red or pink variety of tourmaline, is the rarest member of its gem family and can be found in crystals up to three feet long. While rubellite may appear pinker than ruby, its saturated red color has been so ruby-like that it was mistaken for ruby in the Russian crown jewels.

Overall, good quality colored gemstones should, as a rule, be as free of inclusions as possible, in the case of the rubellite, subtle inclusions are regarded favorably. Interestingly, it is inclusions that make this stone really interesting to the connoisseur. The inclusions should not disrupt the way in which light passes through this gemstone, making it look cloudy or milky. A rubellite with only a few fine inclusions is more valuable than one with inclusions which are clearly visible. Choose a perfect pair of the finest quality earrings, ring, or pendant at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center or contact us at 617-773-3636.

Quincy Volleyball Downs Revere, Bows To Brookline

By BILL GRIFFIN

They put up an impressive victory in their tourney opener and then forced the top seed in the sectional to play its best to beat them in the quarterfinals.

Quincy's volleyball team had a fine showing in the Central-East Division 1 Tournament. The Presidents rolled to a three-game sweep of Revere and pushed No. 1 seed Brookline hard before falling in three tough, close games Monday night.

"I thought we played well, but Brookline is very good. They have two outside hitters who are excellent," said coach Jacqui Nioisi. "I thought we hit our spots well and played scrappy defense. We adjusted our blocks, but their top two hitters were strong."

No. 8 seeded Quincy finished the season at 15-8 after its 25-21, 25-21, 25-17 loss to Brookline.

The Presidents were right there, contending in each game. Junior Emma Kelly had another terrific match with 17 digs while Caroline McBride had seven kills at the net.

Senior setter Courtney Ryan directed the offense with 22 assists and also had three aces. McBride, Gabby Zorkers and Nicole Jorgensen all did a fine job blocking at net.

Quincy was dominant in its opening round victory over Revere at home Saturday night, winning 75 of a possible 98 points in a 25-9, 25-10, 25-4 decision. There were no holes in the Presidents' game. They served accurately, kept the ball in the air, passed consistently at the right tempo and height, and ruled the net behind Jorgensen who had a team-high 14 kills.

"I thought we played really well," said Niosi. "I liked our intensity. We were scrappy, we kept the ball off the floor and put it in good position for our hitters."

One of crispest parts of Quincy's game was its serves and Kelly served better than anyone. She served 13 straight winning points in the second game and six straight in the third. She had five aces. Her serves were hard and flat, difficult to return with any control. However, her placement was more important than speed or spin.

QUINCY SENIOR Caroline McBride (right) drops a shot over the net for a point in the Presidents' 3-0 win over Revere High School Saturday night.

"Emma is very accurate. She was trying to place her serve between players and she found her spots," said Niosi. "As a team, we took care of the ball with our serves. We didn't make many errors."

Kelly (five digs) also had a fine night on the back line. She returned serve well, chased down shots and sent them up front with low, soft passes which were easy for Ryan to set for smashes from Jorgensen, Zorkers, McBride, and Rachel Papile.

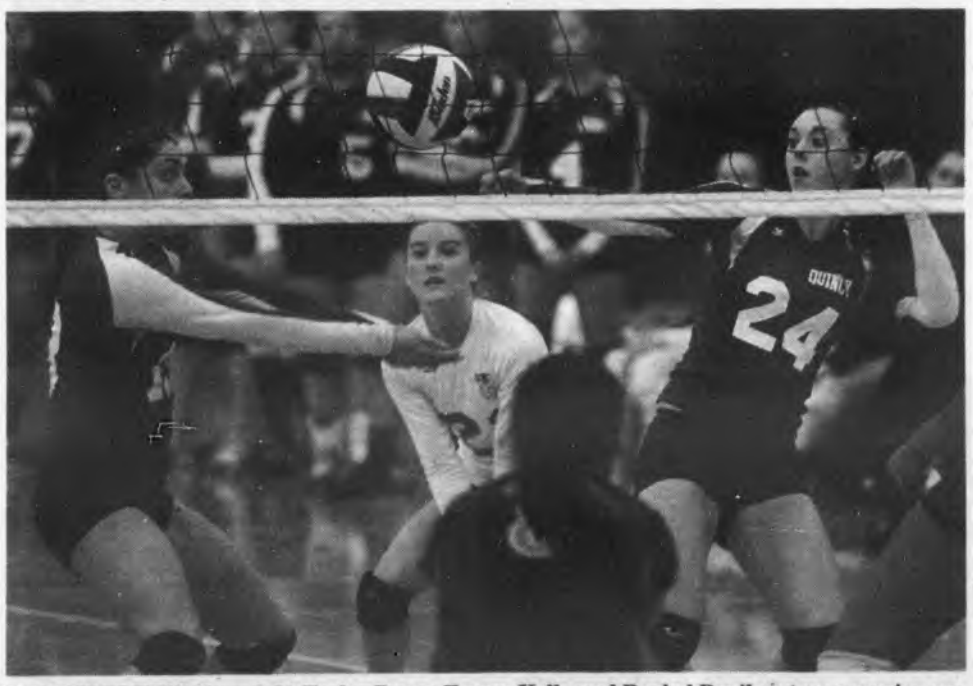

"Emma has great volleyball instincts," said Niosi. "She understands the game and the situation. Plus, this year, she's become stronger and more consistent."

Jorgensen, who also had four aces, has the power to dominate up front, and increasingly as she gains experience, she is seeing the court better and varying the speed of her hits. At 6'5", her smashes don't usually come back, but she is also using a touch volley to open spots when the blockers commit too early and the back line retreats leaving inviting openings in the middle of the court. This year, Jorgensen is finding them. She is such a good athlete that, at times, it is easy to forget that she is only a sophomore.

"Her judgment and ability to see the floor has improved this year. She is growing as a player," said Nioisi. "She understands what a points requires, when it's a hard smash and when she can finish it with a touch shot. She'll only get better with more experience."

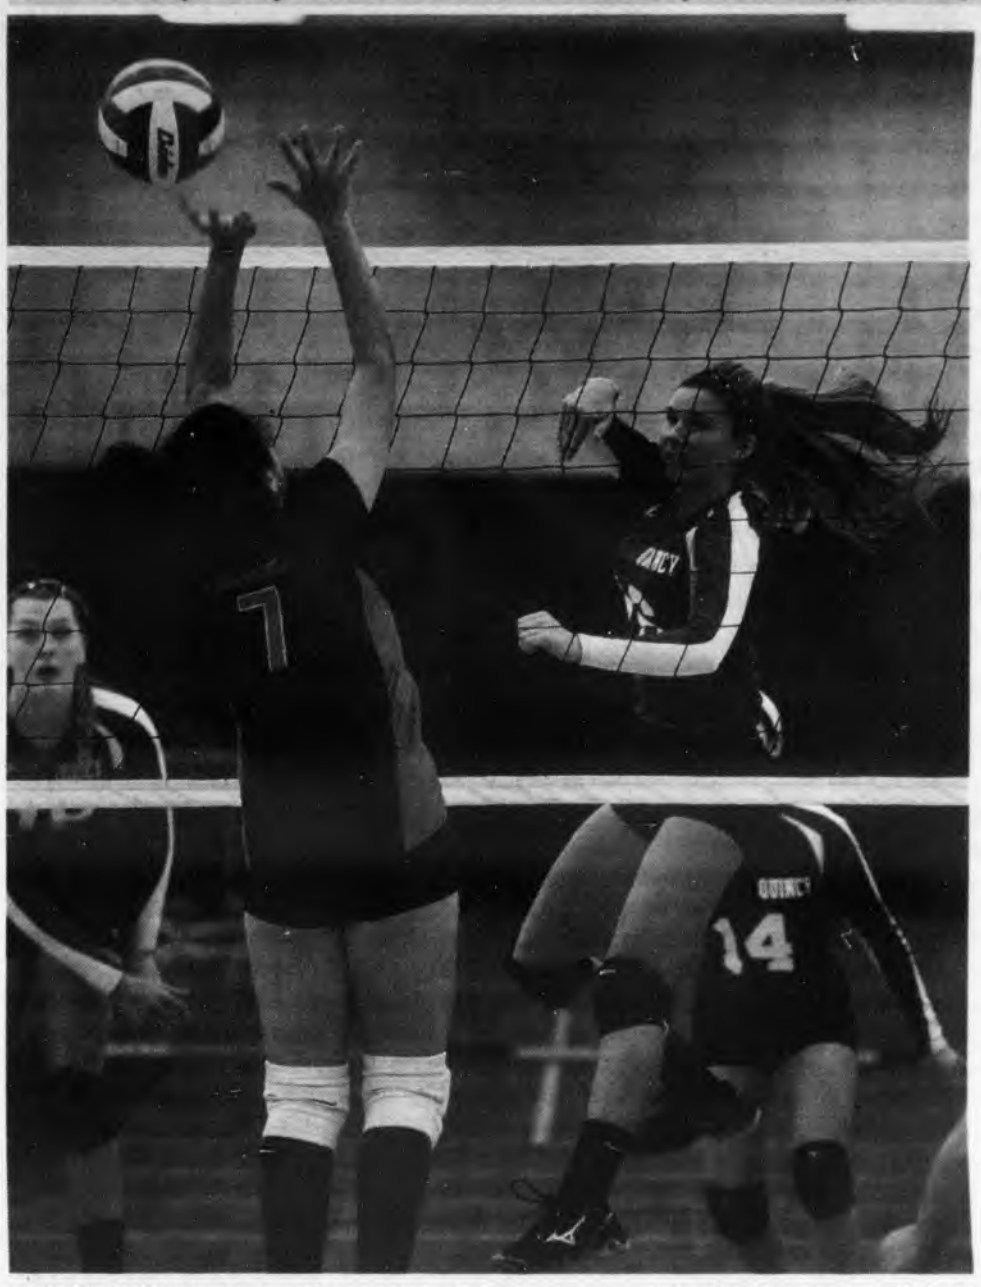

Senior co-captain Taylor Parry had an effective game retrieving shots and moving the ball to the setter and forwards. Emma Kimmell added four digs on the back line. Papile, Ryan, Jorgensen, Parry, and McBride ran streaks of at least five winning points on their serves. Jorgensen, Papile, Zorkers and McBride all finished points efficiently.

"I thought Taylor Parry, in particular, played great, especially early in the match. She was very consistent," said Niosi.

Quincy was able to showcase its depth. Joanne Ruan ran six straight points off her serve and was 3-for-3 in kill opportunities. Angela McDonald had a run of eight straight winners off serve and added a kill while Sarah Gibbons had two kills and had a solid third game at net. Jillian Mulvaney also played well at setter.

"Noreen Plabutong gave us quality play off the bench as well," said Niosi.

It was a season in which Quincy mixed in a blend of new players and veterans and Niosi was happy with the progress her team made.

"We improved a lot, no question," she said. "If we had played Brookline earlier in the season, they would have won convincingly, but we gave them a tough match. I was proud of our effort."

Red Raiders Knocked Out Of Tournament By Milford

By BILL GRIFFIN

It took a great play by a great player to beat them.

There was no blame. It was not anyone's fault. North Quincy played nearly 90 minutes of tough, blue-chip tournament soccer before a breathtaking rush and a perfect finish by Milford's Julia Masionis ended the Red Raiders' season.

Masionis flew up the right wing, cut to the middle in the penalty area and left-footed an unstoppable rocket into the far corner to lift Milford past North, 2-1 with 2:17 left in the first overtime of their preliminary round Division 1 South Sectional contest Friday at Veterans Stadium.

"She is their best player, a great player, and she made a tremendous play," said North coach Paul Bregoli whose team finished the season at 9-8-4. "Both of their goals came on shots that were perfectly-placed. I thought we played well. We created chances and we easily could have had a couple more goals."

The Red Raiders lifted the quality of their play to tournament intensity and enjoyed a clear edge against a Milford team which beat Oliver Ames twice and tied defending state champion Franklin. Led by freshman keeper Shannan Kennedy, fullback Haley McKay, midfielder Marissa McGue and forward Courtney Campo, North made splendid saves, headed and booted away threats, passed crisply from offense to defense, and created a bushel-full of opportunities.

"It's tough for the players because they're kids and it means so much to them, but they played hard. They played their hearts out. They left everything on the field and that is all you can ask," said Bregoli, whose teams have qualified for the tournament 14 times in 19 years.

After Campo, Ciara Forde and Molly Donahue had carried the attack to Milford early in the match, Haley Houlihan gave North a 1-0 lead with 22:20 left before intermission off a low, accurate corner kick by Donahue. Campo had a drive which was blocked. Forde settled the ball for Houlihan and she slipped it in the corner for the early lead.

"Molly put the corner kick right where you want it," said Bregoli. "Ciara did a good job controlling it in the scramble and finding Haley."

Milford tied it with 13:05 left in the half on a direct kick from 15 yards out on the right side by Katie Brown. Brown curved a looping high floater which bent in just under the crossbar, just inside the far corner. A perfect shot.

"You can't place a shot any better," said Bregoli.

From there until Masionis won the match, the best chances belonged to North. Campo sped all over the field from the fullback line, to midfield to the front line creating chances for North. Late in the first half, she had a header off a corner kick from Donahue which sailed just wide.

In the opening minutes of the second half, she slipped through a crack in the defense for a clean breakaway, but Milford goalie Erika Figueroa denied her. Seconds later, Campo blocked a clearing pass and picked the short side with a laser, but Figueroa dove and flicked it aside.

"I could not believe she made that save," said Bregoli.

With five seconds left in regulation, North called timeout and set up a corner kick. Ali Coleman boomed a drive at the right height and speed into the mass in front. North got a head on it, but the ball deflected off of a Milford defender and stopped just short of the goal.

"I could see it going in," said Bregoli. "We got just the chance off the corner that we wanted."

North only loses four seniors from its tournament team. It was fitting that each was terrific in her final game at North. McKay, who has been rock-solid all year, used firm headers to clear away threats and open up chances with long, accurate throw-ins. Delia Devane played well through a painful back injury. Arianna Viscione used her high soccer IQ and strong foot to keep the scoring area clear. Midfielder Abby Smith was excellent, especially late in regulation, blocking a Milford rush and creating two chances with long through passes.

"We had a lot of injuries this year and we just gutted it out. The seniors get a lot of credit for that," said Bregoli. "Faith Whooley was another senior who played well before she was injured."

Kennedy, a freshman who had nine shutouts on the season, did just fine in her first tourney test. Early in the second half, she won a race for the ball and a one-on-one battle in a collision with Masionis, who was in clear. Early in the overtime, she stopped Masionis on a clean break and a hard drive which was labeled for the far corner.

"We lost our starting goalie, Rachel O'Driscoll, to a knee injury before the season began," said Bregoli. "Shannan stepped in and played well all year. She was excellent today."

Sophomore Kara Carchedi moved the ball well on the front line. Fullback Molly Kate Cannon cleared aside what looked to be two certain goals in the first half. Julia O'Donnell was steady on defense and McGue, once again, was dominant in midfield.

"McGue is a coach's dream. She never stops," said Bregoli.

The future is bright. The front line is back. McGue and Alyx Patey return in the midfield. Cannon and O'Donnell gained experience on the back line.

"The four seniors will be hard to replace," said Bregoli. "We have big shoes to fill on defense, but we should have a strong team."

NQHS'S HALEY HOULIHAN wins the race to the ball in the second half. Houlihan put the Red Raiders up 1-0 with a goal in the first half.

CIARA FORDE dribbles the ball past Milford's senior captain Megan DePaolo. Forde assisted on the first goal of the game to Haley Houlihan.

In the final match of the regular season, North defeated Middleboro, 2-0 in a Patriot League meeting behind goals by Houlihan and Donahue. Campo and Forde earned assists.

Patey, Sydney Chang, Ali Coleman, Emily Anglehart, and Annie Doherty had solid games for the Red Raiders.

Joe Brill - 'The Comeback Kid' - Celebrates Sox Title

Fan Recovers From Heart Attack, Attends Game 6, Rides In Rally

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Boston Red Sox went from worst to first in 2013, winning their eighth World Series in franchise history after finishing last in their division last year. But one Red Sox fan from Quincy, who was in attendance when the team clinched the title on Oct. 30, made a much greater comeback.

Joe Brill was at Fenway Park on Sept. 15 for Boston's game against the New York Yankees. It was the team's last home game against New York this season, and the Red Sox were honoring Yankees' closer Mariano Rivera before the game. Shortly after the 58-year-old Brill took his seat to watch the game, he suffered a major heart attack and had to be rushed to Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center.

"Not too long after I sat in my seat I ended up keeling over and I had a major heart attack and they couldn't get my heartbeat back," Brill said. "I went 25, 30 minutes without a heartbeat. When I got to the hospital they got the heartbeat back but the picture wasn't too rosy. They were talking heart transplant. I was on life support with an artificial heart pumping blood."

Despite the negative prognosis, Brill was walking around the hospital within weeks of the heart attack, leaving his doctors in disbelief. Shortly thereafter he was released from the hospital and a just over a week later found himself back at Fenway Park for Game 6 of the World Series.

"Three or four weeks later I was up walking around and the doctors are shaking their heads," Brill said. "I got out and a week and a half later, I was able to go to the last World Series game when the Red Sox won it. The Sox invited me in – I had a very emotional, wonderful reunion with the medical staff over at Fenway. The Sox won the World Series that night."

JOE BRILL (right) rode in the Boston Red Sox victory parade Saturday with members of the team's front office, a little over seven weeks after suffering a major heart attack while at Fenway Park prior to the Sept. 15 home game versus the New York Yankees. Brill's first game back at the park was Game 6 of the World Series on Oct. 30, when Boston clinched the World Series at home for the first time in 95 years.

The World Series win was even more special to Brill because the Red Sox defeated the St. Louis Cardinals to win the title. Brill's brother Bob pitched in the Cardinals organization before his untimely death in 1983.

"It was very, very special. I always bring him with me," Brill said, referring to his brother's jersey that he wears to games.

Brill joined in the team's celebration on the field after the game's final out. This time he was the one in disbelief.

"I was down by the dugout when they won it and then on the field with the celebration going on and everything else, being interviewed by Joe Amorosino of Channel 7 sports – we talked about my brother being with the Cardinals and me having the heart attack and showing my brothers shirt," Brill said. "What more could I ask for – I was wondering if I was actually dead or just dreaming."

After the celebration at Fenway wrapped up, Brill was invited to the team's private party at Game On!, a sports bar located across Lansdowne Street from Fenway, where he was able to meet and mingle with many Red Sox players and staff. In addition to being able to attend the private party, the Red Sox offered Brill a chance to ride on a duck boat during the team's victory parade on Nov. 2.

"I was flabbergasted," Brill said. "I went from being dead at Fenway to coming back watching the World Series seven weeks later and on a duck boat – two million people throughout the City of Boston and on the Charles River. It's hard to put into words."

Brill, a lifelong fan of baseball and the Boston Red Sox, was chauffeured to the ballpark for the parade by retired Red Sox pitcher and three-time all star Luis Tiant. At Fenway, Brill met many of the current Red Sox.

"It was a great, great celebration," Brill said. "I had Luis Tiant pick me up in the morning at seven o'clock Saturday at my house. It was just wild – totally wild. Shaking hands with Big Papi (World Series MVP David Ortiz), John Lackey, Dustin Pedrioa and all the guys – Jonny Gomes and Mike Napoli. It was just unbelievable."

The Red Sox plan to honor Brill before a home game next season, when he'll be able to throw out the ceremonial first pitch. He'll be joined on the field for that ceremony by members of the team's medical staff who helped save his life.

Brill is grateful to the Red Sox's medical team, the Boston EMTs who took him to the hospital, and Beth Israel's doctors and staff for saving his life. He is also grateful for the many people who prayed for him and those who sent him and his family the many messages of support they received as he recovered from the heart attack.

JOE BRILL (center) was all smiles as the Red Sox rolling rally made its way through downtown Boston before taking a dip in the Charles River Saturday. Upwards of two million fans attended the parade, some lining up 30 or 50 people deep to catch a glimpse of the team. "It was a great, great celebration," Brill said. Photos Courtesy Joe Brill

North Quincy Volleyball Advances To Semi-Finals

A Special Senior Class - Story Page 23

By BILL GRIFFIN

The match hadn't quite slipped into the danger zone, but it had become a bit uncomfortable.

After rolling to convincing wins in the first two games, North Quincy found itself down, 23-12 in the third after Cambridge ran eight straight points. The momentum had shifted. However, this is the tournament and the momentum can change directions more quickly than a leaf on a windy day.

Nancy Huang flicked the switch back on for North. She served out the final 13 points of the match with a remarkable display of accuracy and poise to lift the No. 2 seeded Red Raiders to a 25-23 decision in the third game and a 3-0 sweep of No. 7 Cambridge Rindge and Latin in the quarterfinals of the Central-East Division 1 Volleyball Tournament Monday night.

North (18-3) will host No. 3 seeded King Philip (18-3) Wednesday night in the semi-finals at 7 p.m. The Red Raiders have lost in the semi-finals the past two years after winning the sectional title in 2010.

"The first thing I wanted to do was get the ball in," said Huang. "I stressed accuracy more than speed. I thought if I could get the ball in play, my teammates would take care of the rest, and they did."

It was a moment for a senior. Huang is a senior on a team of 13 seniors. She has been tested before. She plays the whole match with a smile on her face. She enjoys all this. Rather than shrink from the challenge of serving out of an 11-point hole, she embraced and savored it.

"Nancy has a blast out there. She enjoys every minute she plays," said North coach Kerry Ginty. "She's exactly the player you want out there. She's been in big situations before. We tried two timeouts to stop Cambridge's momentum, but a coach can't do it. It comes down to the player."

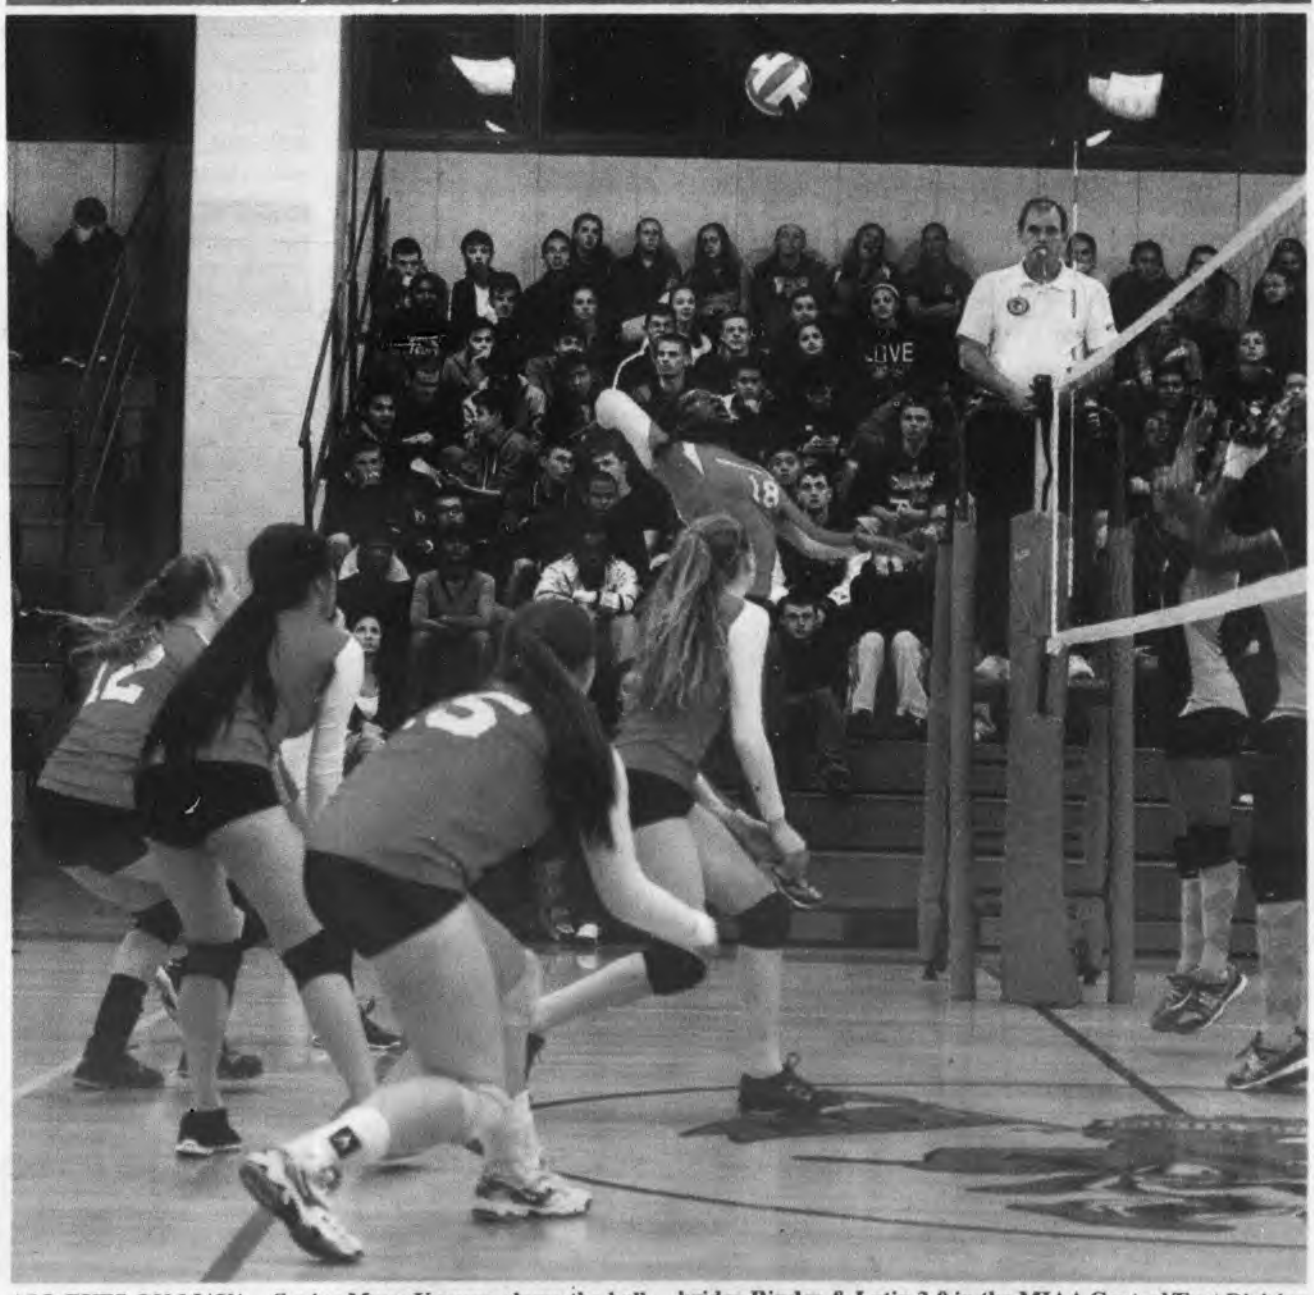

Her serve was low, hard, precise, sometimes barely skimming over the top of the net. For 13 straight serves, she made no mistakes. There were four service winners, but more than overpowering Cambridge, she moved the ball around the court the way a good pitcher moves the ball around the strike zone. She never let the Falcons get set because they didn't know where the next serve was going.

"I tried to serve to spots. I tried to serve between players and at certain players depending on the situation," said Huang.

Cambridge could not control its returns. Some spun into the net, some scraped the ceiling, some floated over the net for easy putaways. Serve by serve, point by point, the run fed on itself. Everything had changed and changed com-

EFFECTIVE TREATMENT OF SCIATIC PAIN

"Sciatica" is actually a set of symptoms (including lower back and buttock pain and pain, numbness, and weakness in the leg and foot) caused by irritation of one of the five spinal nerve roots that lead to the sciatic nerve. Treatment of this often debilitating pain includes surgery as well as spinal manipulation performed by the chiropractor. According to one study, chiropractic treatment provides as much pain relief as surgery. In fact, 60% of the sciatica patients who didn't get relief from other therapies and then tried chiropractic got the same amount of pain relief as those who eventually underwent surgery. Non-invasive chiropractic treatment may create a response in the nervous system that reduces pain and promotes mobility.

Sciatic pain can vary from infrequent and irritating to constant and incapacitating. Chiropractic care is becoming the number one choice in restoring and maintaining optimal health for all family members. Presidents Foiled Again By One-Point Loss

Three one-point losses.

Most teams are unfortunate if they have to deal with three one-point losses in three years. Quincy has endured three in eight games, the latest a 28-27 heartbreaker on the road to Taunton Friday night which was especially difficult because the Presidents dominated the contest with a powerful running game highlighted by a breakout performance from sophomore tailback Jahvae Handsome-Fields.

"We moved the ball up and down the field, but we made a couple of mistakes on defense which really hurt us," said coach Bill Reardon.

The Presidents lost by one to Braintree and Silver Lake earlier in the year. They are 4-4 and there are surely thoughts that they are three points, three plays away from being 7-1. However, it is not a time for regret. It is time to have a short memory and play good football. The best cure for looking back is to look ahead.

"We have to put everything that's happened in the past behind us, regroup and look ahead," said Reardon. "We need to go one day, one game at a time. First, we need a good week in practice. We didn't practice well last week."

The Presidents will have a chance to wipe away the memory of one of the tough losses when they face Braintree in a rematch in the first game of a doubleheader at Veterans Stadium Friday at 4:30 p.m. Braintree edged Quincy, 17-16 in the second game of the season, a game in which the Presidents spent the entire fourth period in Braintree territory.

"The best way to take away the bad taste would be to get a win against someone who has beaten us by a point," said Reardon.

Handsome-Fields played his second game as a full-duty tailback. Alex Alexandre has missed the last two games with a shoulder injury. Handsome-Fields put his multiple talents on display, running inside and out for big plays and short gains which kept the chains moving. He broke the 200-yard rushing mark for the game, scored twice, one on a 60-yard blast to bring the Presidents within a point with 2:30 left in the game.

Senior fullback Jalen Chase also scored once, blocked and ran inside well. Junior quarterback James Lam scored one TD and had a 30-yard scramble to set up a touchdown. The Presidents ran the ball all night and led the contest for the first 3 ½ quarters.

"Jahvae was excellent. He was well over 200 yards," said Reardon. "He also had to go both ways with Alex out. Jalen has been consistent all year for us, sort of an unsung hero. I was glad to see him get a touchdown."

The issue was tackling, something Reardon stresses every week. The Presidents missed two tackles in the second quarter which gave Taunton two touchdowns, just when it looked like Quincy was going to take full control of the game.

"Every week, we talk about turnovers, penalties, and missed tackles," said Reardon. "They are the three things that can determine a football game. We missed more tackles than they did."

Just as they did against Silver Lake and Braintree, Quincy broke fast with a quick touchdown, covering 60 yards in three plays. Two tosses to Handsome-Fields moved it 59 yards to the one and he went in for the score. Thomaz Silva kicked the first of his three extra points for a 7-0 lead.

"It was like deja vu," said Reardon. "We scored in three plays against Silver Lake and against Braintree, Jahvae ran the opening kickoff back for a touchdown. We scored quick and ended up losing by one."

After Taunton drew within, 7-6 on a short TD run, Quincy scored on a 60-yard drive in seven plays. Lam had a 30-yard run to highlight the drive and took it in from the one for a 14-6 lead.

Then came the first missed tackle. Quincy had Taunton trapped in a third-and-11 from the Presidents' 35. Taunton ran a screen pass, Quincy had the receiver trapped in the backfield, but he broke free for a touchdown. Linebacker Dan Guarente made a fine tackle to stop the conversion and Quincy held a 14-12 lead.

Midway through the second period, William Young recovered a fumble for the Presidents at the Taunton 41. Handsome-Fields and Lam worked it close by staying on the ground and Chase scored from the one for a 21-12 lead.

Then came the second missed tackle. With 1:30 left before the half, Taunton had a third-and-long on its 25. The Tigers hit a short, 10-yard completion over the middle, but the Presidents were unable to make the tackle and Taunton broke it for a 75-yard TD play. Despite being clearly outplayed, Taunton only trailed by 21-20 at the half.

"We gave them one and that changed the whole feel of the game," said Reardon. "I felt like we were in control, but we only led by a point at the half."

There was no scoring in the third. Taunton went up 28-21 midway through the fourth on a short run. On the second play after the kickoff, Handsome-Fields busted a 60-yard run right up the middle and outran the Taunton secondary to bring Quincy within 28-27 with 2:30 left.

The Presidents went for the two points and the win, but Taunton stopped a rush off the right side to protect its one-point victory.

"In the one-point losses, we were in control in spurts, but in the end the other team made more big plays which decided," said Reardon.

Against Braintree, Quincy will have the motivation of washing away a one-point defeat. The keys will be to defend the Wamps' passing which hurt the Presidents in the first game and to execute more cleanly on offense.

"The motivation from losing the first game should help us," said Reardon. "We have to defend the pass better. We have to be in the right coverages and execute them. On offense, we need to be disciplined. In the first game against them, when we tried to change snap counts to counter their blitz, we jumped offside. We can't afford to do that."

Quincy and North Quincy football alumni will square off in a flag football game Saturday, Nov. 23 at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The game will be a fundraiser for the two schools' football programs. Proceeds from a cash raffle will benefit the Presidents and Red Raiders gridiron programs.

Quincy and North Quincy football players will once again take to the field—this time as husbands, fathers and alumni—all in an effort to rekindle the rivalry and raise money for their alma mater. The flag football game between the storied programs will take place Nov. 23 following the freshman and junior varsity games between the Red Raiders and Presidents.

Immediately following the game, a 50-50 drawing will take place at The Commonwealth Pub. One hundred tickets will be sold at $100 per ticket with fifty percent going to the Quincy and North Quincy football programs and the other 50 percent going to the ticket holder.

The state coaches invitational held in Wrentham this year is a special meet for the younger runners across Eastern Mass. Races are run by grade with no team scores.

Six Quincy and North Quincy athletes earned medals by placing in the top 50, and most turned in personal bests for the season.

Peter Saccoach was 68th in a field of 333 sophomore boys with a time of 18:28. Mike Mullaney turned in his best performance of the season a 16:15 good for third in Junior-Senior boys over the 3.1-mile course. The freshmen ran a shorter 3k course and Jimmy Cannon led the boys with a 17th place clocking a 10:34. Other freshmen boys were Nick Cheney 95th in 11:29, Aidan Golden 114th in 11:43, Evan Bausemer (173) 12:17, Kevin White 180th 12:24, and Charlie O'Brien 208th 12:40. There were 297 boys in their race.

SAMIN CHAREPOO

LaQUEEN ARIAS

VICTORIA DEERY

In the girls races Inaya Paul led the Sophomore girls with a 14th place running 20:54, LaQueen Arias was 48th in 22:08, Victoria Deery 52nd in 22:27 and Grace Anderson 95th in 23:40 in the 191-girl field.

In the freshmen girls race Samin Charepoo ran the fastest time ever for a North Quincy freshman over a 3k course with an 11:45 good for 6th. Julia Brady was 50th in 13:03.

Head Coach Geoff Hennessy rested the Bryson twins as they will be racing in the Eastern Mass meet next weekend.

"They've been running all summer and went to running camp and are in super shape." Hennessy said. "We're not favored to advance to Allstates as a team but who knows. We get to combine for States as the MIAA gives us (Quincy and North) cooperative status through 2016 so Inayah Paul, LaQueen Arias and Victoria Deery combine with the Brysons, Charepoo, Brady and Marguerite Belcher (out with a leg injury this weekend)."

pletely. The momentum had swung. Players, coaches and fans didn't need to look to the scoreboard for proof. They knew. They just knew.

"You can feel it when you're out there. I could feel our hope come back. By the time we reached 20 points, I knew it had changed," said Huang.

"Sometimes it takes just one play," said Ginty. "Maya (Umoren) had a quick tapback (the 21st point) and that was a big play for us."

Serving was a key to the entire match. Huang won 15 points on 16 serves. Abby Mayo won 16 points on 19 and served a string of nine straight as North cruised to a 25-11 win in the opening game.

"Abby has been a consistent server all season," said Ginty. "Both her and Nancy have the ability to pick a spot and hit it which is especially important in the tournament."

Umoren and captain Carolyn Schwartz had six kills apiece and gave the Red Raiders control of the net in a 25-17 victory in the second game. Cindi Hazelton (11 assists) and Angela Kou (nine assists) did a fine job putting the ball in good position for the hitters for the entire match.

Lauren Magoon had three kills while Mayo and Camille Mullaney each had a pair. Huang, Mullaney, Ivy Pham, Jane Minton, and Isabelle Flaherty had solid all-around matches, especially digging the ball out and keeping alive points.

"I liked our balance," said Ginty. "I thought we hit well at the net. Our back line was excellent. I'd like to see us improve our blocking going forward."

Burke Remembers Celtic Legend Bill Sharman

for all Americans that I can speak about with gratitude from a student's perspective," McDonough said. "John Adams was strong in the belief that educated citizens were essential to establishing and sustaining a democracy. He wrote that 'liberty cannot be achieved without the general knowledge among the people who have a right and a desire to know.'"

Michelle Murphy, a senior at North Quincy High School, spoke highly of Adams' wife, Abigail. Murphy said she often thinks of Abigail Adams, one of only two women to be a wife of one president and mother of another, at times when she is discouraged.

"I felt like I could identify closely with the things she had to deal with and the type of woman that she was. As a high school senior I have to worry about school, club activities, volunteering, and jobs and sometimes it can be a lot. Then I also have to think about what I'd like to do after high school and figure out my place in life," Murphy said.

"If I feel discouraged I can think of Abigail Adams and ask myself what would Abigail do. Thinking of Abigail and her accomplishments helps put my trivial [things] into perspective. I take solace in the fact that even though Abigail and I are 200 years apart in age she is still a relevant figure to a girl like me growing up in Quincy in 2013."

Beth Pringle, the curator of the John Adams Library at the Boston Public Library, discussed Adams and his love of books and education. But she noted that Adams didn't always love books growing up, and had begged his mother to stay home and farm rather than go to school at age 13. Later in his life, however, Adams owned more than 3,000 volumes of books.

"John Adams ultimately discovered the pleasure and the usefulness of books and reading. And what a transformation that would take place over his life – from this young man who clearly stated he did not love books to an octogenarian who wanted nothing more than to spend time in his study surrounded by his personal collection of more than 3,000 volumes," Pringle said.

"As a side note this was in an era before cheap books. Before popular publishings. Before a literate public. Before Amazon."

Books also played a role in thawing the icy relationship Adams had with Thomas Jefferson, Pringle added. Adams gifted a book to Jefferson, sparking a lengthy correspondence that continued until both former presidents died on July 4, 1826.

"It was the gift of book by John Adams to Jefferson that marked their first exchange after years of icy silence," Pringle said. "Jefferson was touched by that gesture and from the first gift came a long and wonderful correspondence between these two lions of the early American republic."

John Adams VII, a seventh generation descendant of the second president, reflected on his forefather's career as an attorney in Boston.

"By the late 1760s John Adams, while still in his 30s, had become one of Boston's foremost attorneys," John Adams VII said. "He practiced throughout New England, a distance of more than 200 miles, taking him from the island of Martha's Vineyard north into Maine and as far west as Worcester. He handled every kind of case, from land transfers and trespass to robbery, rape, and murder."

In particular, John Adams VII pointed out the one case his ancestor is best remembered for. Following the Boston Massacre in 1770, Adams, along with his cousin Josiah Quincy II, represented British Army Capt. Thomas Preston and eight soldiers charged with murder for their actions during the massacre. Preston and six of the soldiers were acquitted of all charges and two of the soldiers were convicted on the lesser charge of manslaughter.

"Years later he would call the case the most exhausting he had ever undertook saying that his part in the defense was 'one of the most gallant, generous, manly, and disinterested actions of my whole life and one of the best pieces of services I ever rendered my country,'" John Adams VII recalled.

U.S. Navy Lt. Jennifer Moore, the executive officer at the Navy Operational Support Center Quincy, represented President Barack Obama at the wreath-laying. She remembered Adams for backing the establishment of the U.S. Navy while president.

"President Adams has also often been called the father of the Navy for championing the establishment of the American fleet. President Adams' American fleet left a legacy of wartime experience, traditions and heroes that continues to guide and inspire sailors and civilians in the United States Navy today," Moore said.

"John Adams truly dedicated his life to serving all people of this country. It's an honor to wish him happy birthday."

North Quincy Volleyball Seniors A Special Group

By BILL GRIFFIN

If ever a group of student-athletes deserved a Senior Night, it was the class of volleyball players at North Quincy.

North Quincy played unbeaten Barnstable last week. Barnstable is the top-ranked team in the state and defeated North, 3-0. However, the story of the night was the introduction of North Quincy's 13 seniors and their families before the match.

North ended the regular season at 17-3 and earned the No. 2 seed in the Division 1 Central-East Sectional.

"I'm very happy with the season," said coach Kerry Ginty. "This is a senior class which deserves it. They deserve it for the kind of people they are as much as their volleyball skills."

The seniors who were honored were Angela Kou, Nancy Huang, Simone Matthews, Annie Wong, Ivy Pham, Jane Minton, Cindi Hazelton, Carolyn Schwartz, Noelle Brady, Natasha Sautter, Abby Mayo, Lauren Magoon and Maya Umoren.

They were part of the teams that won the sectional in 2010 and the league in 2011.

As they were introduced, it was remarkable to note their accomplishments as students, athletes and citizens. There were Patriot League All Stars, members of the National Honor Society, and young women who have contributed a great deal to their school community. There were scholarship winners and students who will pursue challenging majors at prestigious colleges.

"They are a special group, the cream of the crop. I couldn't be prouder to be their coach," said Ginty. "They are role models for young girls all over the city."

One of the best stories is Natasha Sautter. She is a captain of the volleyball team and has one of the best serves in the Patriot League. She was a starting pitcher on the softball team and fired a no-hitter last spring. She is a member of the National Honor Society. She joins her sister Katie and Cindi Hazelton in singing a beautiful rendition of the National Anthem that is played before every North home match. She makes a significant contribution to the school choir.

A few weeks into the season, she tore the ACL in her knee in practice. The only volleyball act she can perform is serve. She cannot move around the court. She asked her coach if she could just serve a point against Quincy. Guess what her coach said? She served against her rival. She also served a winner against Barnstable.

"She could ask me anything and I'd say: Yes. She probably knows that," said Ginty.

Offensively, North played well against Barnstable. Umoren had 10 kills, Schwartz had five kills and two blocks, Camille Mullaney and Magoon each had a pair of kills.

"I thought offensively we hung with them," said Ginty.

Defensively, North is usually very good. Huang had 16 digs, Minton returned serves well, but there were stretches when North was a bit inconsistent. Against a team like Barnstable, that is dangerous.

"When we played good defense, we were phenomenal, but we were not consistent. That hurts against a team like Barnstable," said Ginty.

Hazelton was the No. 1 star of the night. She controlled the offense and set up the big hitters with 19 assists. With her team trailing by two games and six points in the third, she dove head-first into the bleachers to keep alive a point. Later in the the third game, she blocked a smash and sent it cross-court into an open spot for a winner.

"Cindi was amazing," said Ginty. "She directed the offense and she made plays all over the court."

Hannon, McCauley Mark 50th Year Of 1st Election Wins

Then there was one particular snowstorm during Walter's mayoral term.

He was out on a snowplow during the storm on a Saturday night. He goes to bed at 2 a.m. and then the phone rings a short time later waking him up. A guy is calling him and asking "when are you going to plow my street?"

So Walter takes his name and phone number and he calls then DPW Commissioner Pete Ricciuti. There's a plow in the area and they clear the street.

Walter sets his alarm for 4 a.m. and calls the guy back, waking him up.

"Hey Charlie, this is Walter Hannon. I just want to let you know your street's been plowed."

"Oh," the guy says. "I was asleep."

"Oh yeah, I was asleep at 2:30 when you called me. I'm sorry to bother you but we have your street cleared curb-to-curb. You're all set.

"And he says, 'Gee, did you have to call me?'

"And I said, "Well, you woke me."

While each made it to the mayor's office, Walter and Frank had different experiences that propelled them into public service.

"I was a great reader of history," Walter says. "I didn't go to college. I went into the tire business and after my father died I ran the business. I was an avid reader. I read political stuff."

Walter served as a delegate at the Republican Presidential Convention in 1964 that nominated Barry Goldwater for President.

"I became a Republican in 1952 because of (President Dwight) Eisenhower. If you read the life of these guys you learn how they made decisions. I liked politics and that's why I got into it. I thoroughly enjoyed it. And I met some wonderful, wonderful people."

For McCauley, his decision to run for office was sparked by a letter he received in the mail in May of 1957.

"I was 27 years old and living in a modest home in Houghs Neck. The letter was from a real estate broker and asked "will urban renewal take your home?

"I said to myself 'what's urban renewal?' I had never heard of it. I thought as long as you paid your mortgage every month that you were okay.

"I found out that there was an urban renewal committee and they were recommending that urban renewal go into Houghs Neck, sweep the area where there's a lot of cottages and they were going to take my house. I was in the zone.

"They had this rally in Quincy High School and it was packed. An engineer stood up and when he was introduced somebody yelled, 'throw the bum out!' Everyone cheered. He went through the proposal and the council voted it down.

"I decided that if these guys had voted for it, I'd be out of a house. I don't know where I would have gone."

McCauley, who was working several jobs and going to night school, started attending city council meetings.

He ran for councillor at-large in 1959 but lost – finishing sixth out of six candidates.

He didn't run in 1961 but when the Ward 1 seat opened up in 1963, he successfully won his first election by 163 votes defeating Leo Hannon (no relation to Walter) 3,475 votes to 3,312.

Walter wasn't successful in his first attempt for public office, either. He lost a bid for state representative in 1962 but his high vote total in Ward 5 encouraged him to run for the ward seat the following year. He defeated George Smith (4,171 to 2,578 votes) to win the Ward 5 seat in 1963.

Walter served as Ward 5 councillor for eight years before winning the mayor's office in 1971. He served two terms and was defeated by Joe LaRaia in 1975. He also served as a state representative from 1967 to 1972.

Frank – Quincy's "Political Mount Rushmore" – is the only citizen to have served in all four local elective offices.

He served as Ward 1 city councillor from 1964-1967; school committee 1972-1977 and 1996-1997; councillor at-large 1978-1981, 1998-2005; and mayor 1982-1989. He also served two years as city council president (2004-2005).

A half century has passed since Walter and Frank celebrated their first election victories.

Today they are still good friends with a sincere and mutual respect for one another.

Frank, a well-known Quincy political historian, notes it was Walter who made it to the Mayor's Office before he did.

"But Frank was in the mayor's office for eight years," Walter remarks.

Frank then adds: "But you had the toughest road to hoe. You had some tough things to do and a lesser man wouldn't have done them."

Walter then finishes his thought. "I always say this about Frank. Frank was never – and I say this with complete respect – Frank was never a flamboyant guy. If you needed something, he'd be there to help."

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Tuesday, Oct. 29, at approximately 4:55 a.m. Officers Dan Clark and Robert Connell were dispatched to the area of Quincy Shore Drive and Rice Road for a report of a male sleeping in the street with his pants down.

Upon arrival the officers initially did not find anyone in the area, but after an in depth search of the area Officer Connell located a male on nearby Labadine Street. This male appeared to be "staggering" back and forth from one side of the road to the other. The male said that he was coming from Wollaston Beach and that his girlfriend was to pick him up at the Quincy Center T station but she did not. The male said that he could not remember how he got to Wollaston Beach or his present location.

The officers noted that the male's jeans were falling down, which led them to believe that his was the male they were looking for. The male said that his pants were down because he lost his belt.

At this point the male inquired, "Why am I always being harassed?" Officer Clark explained the initial call to the male and added that the sight of leaves stuck to the back of the male's fleece jacket indicated that he was most likely lying on his back. Officer Clark told the male that they were concerned for his well being and since no one else was around they had good reason to believe they had the right man. The officers asked the male if he had been drinking or taking any drugs, which he initially denied then admitted to taking Suboxone, providing a prescription for 8 mg Suboxone strips.

LT. DAN MINTON

A closer examination of the male showed dried blood from an unknown source on the male's face, so Fallon Ambulance was dispatched to the scene. Concerned for the male's safety, Officer Clark asked the male to empty his pockets onto the hood of the cruiser, which he did.

From one pocket, the male removed over $7 in change, two cigarette lighters, scratch tickets, a USB cellphone charger, a small knife, a library card, and a black case. Officer Connell opened the black case, which contained a Garmin Nuvi GPS system. The male said that it was his girlfriend's GPS and she lived nearby on Wollaston Avenue. He could not explain what he was doing with it at that time.

The male was cleared medically by the EMTs. The officers examined the GPS and hit the "home" feature on the Garmin GPS unit, which showed an address on Merrymount Road. Officer Joe Cox proceeded to the address and found a vehicle that appeared to have been ransacked. Officer Cox spoke with the owner of the vehicle, who confirmed that her GPS was stolen from her motor vehicle. He advised her to be careful when cleaning her vehicle because there was blood inside. Officer Cox found a second vehicle that was also ransacked and this owner was also contacted. Both vehicles were unlocked.

Based on this information the suspect, a 31-year-old Wollaston resident, was arrested and charged with "Breaking and Entering a Motor Vehicle in the Nighttime (two counts) and Receiving Stolen Property Over $250." Nice Work!

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You enjoy the attention early in the week, but it might be a good idea to opt for some privacy by week's end so that you can have more time to consider an upcoming decision.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You unearth some surprising facts. Now you need to consider how to use them to your advantage. Meanwhile, it might be best to keep what you've learned secret for now.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A comment by a colleague piques your curiosity to know more. Best advice: You'll find people more likely to offer information if you're discreet when making your inquiries.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your energy levels begin to rise by midweek. This allows you to catch up with your heavy workload and still have plenty of get-up-and-go to go out on the town this weekend.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're probably roaring your head off about a perceived slight from a longtime critic. Ignore it. That person might just be trying to goad you into doing something you might later regret.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The early part of the week is open to spontaneity. Then it's time to settle into your usual routine to get all your tasks done. A personal situation could require more attention from you.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A meeting of the minds on a workplace project might well develop into something more personal for Librans looking for romance. Aspects are also favorable for platonic relationships.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A more-positive mood might be difficult to assume in light of a recent problem involving the health of someone special. But by week's end, your emotional barometer should start to rise.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Look for a changed attitude from a former adversary once he or she realizes you have your colleagues' full support. Now you can refocus your energies on that workplace project.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This time, a difference of opinion might not be resolved in your favor. But be patient. It could all ultimately work out to your advantage, as new information begins to develop.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A tug of war develops between the artistic Aquarian's creative aspect and his or her practical side. Best advice: Prioritize your schedule so you can give appropriate time to both.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You could be entering a career phase awash with job-related demands. But avoid being swamped by the overflow and, instead, keep treading water as you deal with demands one by one.
BORN THIS WEEK: You are an exceptionally loyal person, and you're respected for your ability to keep the secrets entrusted to you.

The rain cleared around noon, just in time for the start of Quincy Youth Football & Cheerleading's annual Championship Sunday. The afternoon started with the annual Cheerleading Competition featuring cheerleading squads from the Squantum Storm, Quincy Point Panthers, North Quincy Apaches, West Quincy Elks and Houghs Neck Manets. The girls prepared all season for this event as they competed in three divisions: Varsity, Junior Varsity and Freshman. The Houghs Neck Manets also showcased a Flag Football Cheerleading squad, the only one of their kind.

The competition was fierce in this cheerleading event. QYFL Cheerleading Coordinator Nancy McNulty said, "I was so impressed with how well these girls performed today. The great routines and the level of athleticism, cheerleading has come a long way since I was cheerleading in this league."

The Freshman Level of competition featured five awards in different categories. The Panthers won the "Best Cheer" award. The Apaches won the "Best Motions" award. The "Best Jumps" trophy was awarded to the Hough Neck Manets. The Storm took home the "Best Dance" award and the "Most Creative" trophy went to the West Quincy Elks.

In the Junior Varsity Division, the Houghs Neck Manets placed third, followed by the North Quincy Apaches in second place. The Storm cheerleading squad took home first place in the Junior Varsity Division for the second year in a row.

In the Varsity Division, The Quincy Point Panthers place third followed by West Quincy Elks in second. The Storm took home their second title of the afternoon, for first place in the Varsity Division.

The cheer competition was followed by the QYFL Football Awards presentation. The "Coach of the Year" award was presented to Rich Laine of the Milton Mustangs. The "Unsung Hero" award went to Christ Pham of the Houghs Neck Manets. The "Sportsmanship Award" went to Miles Easterling of the North Quincy Apaches. "Offensive Lineman of the Year" was awarded to Mark Monahan of the Storm. The "Defensive Lineman of the Year" was Bryan Hanly of the Quincy Point Panthers. "Defensive Player of the Year" went to Jayo DaRosa of the Quincy Point Panthers. "Offensive Player of the Year" was Davi Soares of the West Quincy Elks and "Most Valuable Player" award went to Max Storch of the Storm.

The main event of the afternoon was the 63rd Annual Quincy Youth Football League Championship Game. The game featured the undefeated, Myers Division Champion, Quincy Point Panthers (7-0-1) hosting the Desmond Division Champion, West Quincy Elks (6-2). The game was a rematch of the 2012 title game in which the Elks won their third straight QYFL Championship. The Panthers defeated the Elks 18-12 in an earlier match-up this season.

The Panthers entered the ball game without star quarterback Nick Mayberry who went down earlier in the week with a shoulder injury. Fullback Joey Spano started at QB for Panthers, who would also be missing star WR Jayo DaRosa for much of the first half.

The Elks got on the scoreboard early in the first quarter as WR Shorn Hawthorne took an end around in for a 19 yard TD run. The kick failed but the Elks led 6-0 with 7:19 left to go in the opening quarter. The Elks scored again in the opening minutes of the second quarter when RB Adam Vu ran for a 17 yard touchdown. Panthers' DT Bryan Hanly blocked the kick on the conversion but, the Elks led 12-0.

On the next series Elks defensive end Adam Vu recovered a fumble on the Panthers 41. The Elks capitalized as Davi Soares scored on a 37-yard TD run. Curtis Frazier kicked the extra point as the Elks lead 20-0 at halftime.

The second half opened with a defensive stalemate through most of the third quarter. Curtis Frazier connected with Shorn Hawthorne on a 12 yard touchdown pass as time expired in the quarter. Panthers DB Jason Fratus blocked the conversion kick but the Elks were still ahead 26-0 at the start of the fourth quarter.

The Panthers mounted a drive into Elks territory but were quickly halted when Elks middle linebacker, James Crump intercepted the Panthers passer. The Elks turned it over on downs. The Panthers took the ball over, but penalties forced them back inside their own 10 yard line. Elks defensive lineman Ryan Warner tackled the Panthers' ball carrier in the end zone for a safety.

The West Quincy Elks defeated the Quincy Point Panthers 28-0 to capture their fourth consecutive Quincy Youth Football League Title.

Elks' head coach Justin Thorley was proud of his team's performance. James Crump, Frazier, Hawthorne, Jamal Williams, JJ Camara, Adam Vu, Soares, Matt Pittman, Danny Keegan, Connor Ainsley, Corey Shaw, Noah Herrera, Brian Nguyen and Anthony Rizzatano lead the Elks in their Championship run.

Panthers Coach Noel DiBona had praise for the efforts of Jason Fratus (8 Tackles), Ronin Contreras, Robert Wilson, Domenic Laptiste, Bryan Hanly (10 Tackles), Mario Vrapi, Cullen O'Connell, Jules Wiggins, Nick Cedrone, Melvin Gonzales, Ryan Malloy and Jackson Quinn.

The two coaches, Noel Dibona and Justin Thorley, will face off once again, next Sunday in the First Annual QYFL Desmond-Myers All-Star Football Classic. Thorley will be the Head Coach of the Desmond Division Team as his Panther counterpart DiBona will be the Head Coach of the Myers Division Team. Team Desmond will be comprised of West Quincy Elks, North Quincy Apaches and Squantum Storm players as Team Myers will feature top players from the Quincy Point Panthers, Milton Mustangs and Houghs Neck Manets. The All-Star game will be held Sunday, Nov. 10 at Veterans Stadium, Quincy. Kickoff is at 1 p.m. and admission is free.

Navy Years Among The Most Important Of Vets' Life

By SCOTT JACKSON

Before Street-Works managing partner Kenneth Narva became an architect and developer, he served as a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy for four years, spending much of that time as a communications officer aboard two destroyers. During Quincy's Veterans Day observance, Narva called those years the most important of his life.

"I spent four years in the Navy during the Vietnam Conflict. I lost many close friends during that conflict, but I would tell you that those four years serving my country were perhaps the most important four years in my life," Narva told the crowd of nearly 200 who attended Monday's ceremony at the Adams Academy.

KENNETH NARVA, managing partner for Streetworks and Navy Veteran was the guest speaker at Quincy's Veterans Day Parade Monday.

"I grew up, learned what it was like to put country first. I learned what it was like to really be a man. If I had my way every 18 to 21 year old would be serving in the military."

As the head of Street-Works, Narva is in charge of the ongoing $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center. The 67-year-old has been involved in the Quincy Center project since 2005, when the project was still in the planning phase. Narva said his involvement in the project is a privilege, as was serving in the Navy.

"Quincy is a proud city, a loved city, and an important city. Not only to its residents. Not only to the South Shore. Not only to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts but to the country as the home and resting place of two of the most important early presidents in the United States and their wives," Narva said.

"Helping Quincy restore its place as an urban center in the region is a privilege for me. A privilege that matches that of serving my country – they really sort of come together, which is what makes being here this morning so important to me and really memorable. It is working on something that is bigger than me or any one person. It's about sacrificing a lot of time and energy to do something for more than just me or the people that work with me."

The city, Narva continued, is one that represents the best of the United States.

"[Quincy] is a place that represents the best of America. A city of great neighborhoods where multiple generations of family live near each other. It is a city of strength, of character, and of fortitude – the same characteristics that represent the best of our armed forces," Narva said. "It is a city of parades and celebrations where people are proud as ever to come out on Flag Day or Veterans Day and wave the stars and stripes and salute each other. It is a city where fathers and sons and now daughters have for generations stepped forward and made the sacrifices required to keep us all safe."

During the ceremony, Mayor Thomas Koch said he was proud of how everyone in Quincy works together to help serve the city's veterans.

"The Vietnam veterans have that motto 'leave no veteran behind' and there's a lot of meaning to that. Obviously we want to bring our men and women home – those who are missing in action. But there is another meaning to that, and that's when they get home. It's more than just 'thank you for your service,' but we as a community have to do our part to truly welcome our veterans home," Koch said.

"We do that so well with our Veteran's Services Department – Tom Stansbury and his group. The City Council supports appropriations every year as we serve those veterans. We just opened a two-family home on Sea Street and we're about to break ground on 12 units in Quincy Point for veterans housing. We have to be more than 'thank you,' we have to put up and this city continues to do that. I'm so proud of our city."

Quincy Veterans Council Commander George Nicholson noted that other communities across Massachusetts have canceled Veterans Day ceremonies because there aren't enough veterans in those communities. But that's not the case in Quincy.

"Our veterans' posts are slowing down, the membership is dwindling, but there

Six New SUVs For Police Dept.

The Quincy Police Department is changing out its fleet of police cruisers with a newly styled Ford SUV that will make for better driving during winter months, officials said.

Mayor Thomas Koch allocated $200,000 in this year's City budget to the Police Department for new cruisers as part of a broader City effort over the last several years to ensure the fleet of heavily used police vehicles is kept from deteriorating.

The six new Ford Police Interceptor SUV models are now being used to patrol city streets, replacing traditional sedans. The Police Department expects to continue to change-out its fleet with the SUV model in coming years.

"An up-to-date cruiser fleet is vital for both the safety of our residents and our officers who use them. We made it a priority to make these public safety investments an annual component of our budget, and will continue to do so in coming years," said Mayor Thomas Koch.

According to city officials, the specially designed Ford model is just as efficient as sedan models, but comes equipped with all-wheel drive. The new feature means the cruisers will be better equipped to handle difficult driving conditions.

"Even during the worst of a blizzard, we have to be out there driving, and these cruisers are certainly going to make a difference in tough conditions," said Police Chief Paul Keenan.

QUINCY POLICE DEPARTMENT has purchased six new 2013 Ford Police Interceptors costing around $34,000 a piece. The new SUV's will replace the department's Ford Crown Victoria vehicles. Quincy Ave. Pedestrian Accident

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Quincy Police are investigating a pedestrian accident that left a 7-year old boy with serious but non-life-threatening injuries after he and his family tried crossing Quincy Ave. around 7:45 Saturday night.

"The family of four, a mother and father and their 7-year old son and 6-year old daughter, just got off an MBTA bus and were crossing near 337 Quincy Ave. when they were struck by a 2012 Buick Regal," said Quincy Police Capt. John Dougan. "The family crossed three lanes before being struck by the car driven by 83-year old Alfred Bornemann of Milton. Alcohol or any other impairment do not appear to be a factor and neither does speed."

The boy was taken to Boston Children's Hospital. The father and daughter were also taken to the hospital with minor injuries. The mother was not struck.

Ayers: Close Long Island Bridge

By SCOTT JACKSON

Rep. Bruce Ayers wants the City of Boston to close the Long Island Bridge until a peer review of the bridge is completed.

Boston is planning $14 million worth of capital improvements to the bridge, which connects Long Island to Moon Island. Moon Island is within Quincy's jurisdiction, meaning that any repairs to the bridge must receive approval from the Quincy Conservation Commission, which ordered a peer review of the bridge on Nov. 6.

Following that meeting, Ayers requested that Boston order the bridge closed during the review. In a letter to Para Jayasinghe, Boston's city engineer, Ayers cited concerns raised by Jayasinghe during the Conservation Commission meeting that people traveling on the bridge could be at risk while the peer review is ongoing.

"I agree with your statements that were made at the meeting in which you expressed that while a third party review is underway to ensure the environmental safety, public safety to commuters on the bridge could be at risk," Ayers wrote in the letter, dated Nov. 8. "Therefore I request that the Long Island Bridge be temporarily shutdown in the interest of public safety, until such time that the peer review is completed along with the Quincy Conservation Commission's decision on this capital improvement."

About 500 vehicle trips are made each day over the Long Island Bridge. To provide access while the bridge is closed, Ayers said an existing pier and dock on the island could be upgraded so ferry service could access the island.

"I think it would be more economical and more environmentally friendly," Ayers said about the ferry service in a phone interview.

Ayers first criticized Boston's plan to repair the bridge in an op-ed piece first published on Oct. 31 in The Sun. In that op-ed, he expressed hope that a new mayoral administration in Boston would reconsider the proposed repairs and revisit Boston's long term plans for transportation to the island. In the phone interview on Nov. 8, Ayers said he is optimistic that he could work Rep. Marty Walsh, a colleague of his on Beacon Hill and the mayor-elect of Boston, on the bridge issue, but said outgoing Boston Mayor Thomas Menino must act to close the bridge first.

"I'd like to see the Menino administration take action," Ayers said. "They should take action because this needs to be addressed in a timely fashion. I'm sure we could work with [Walsh], but this is time sensitive."

"It's important we protect public safety of passengers on the bridge during this process," Ayers added. "I think City of Boston and City of Quincy officials all agree that public safety is paramount. Until the environmental and public safety concerns are addressed it's in the best interest of all that it be shutdown. We don't want to put any passengers at risk given the safety issues."

DiBona Was Everywhere

The best one-liner summing up last Tuesday's election has to go to School Committeeman Dave McCarthy.

Commenting on political newcomer Noel DiBona's rare feat of topping the school committee race ahead of three incumbents (and unseating one of them), McCarthy quipped:

"Noel campaigned everywhere. If you went to the men's room, he was in the next stall."

Funny and practically true.

While the 2013 election may be remembered as the year voters changed the term of mayor from two to four years, DiBona's win was worthy of the lead headline in our election coverage.

Why?

According to research by city Political Historian and former mayor Frank McCauley, DiBona's victory is the first time a political newcomer finished ahead of three incumbents on the school committee in 60 years.

It happened in 1953 but the political newcomer actually topped four incumbents. In that election, all six school committee seats were up because of a new provision that allowed the city to have staggered terms for school committee members.

So, the top three finishers won four-year terms while the bottom three won two-year terms (and thus those latter seats would be up for re-election - and full four-year terms in 1955).

In the 1953 school committee race, Dr. Charles Djerf - a well-known Quincy pediatrician making his political debut - finished first ahead of four incumbent school committee members. Those incumbents (in order) were A. Wendell Clark and Dr. Joseph McDermott who won four-year terms and Paul K. Duffey and Ethel B. Wiley who won two-year terms. Alice Mitchell won the final two-year seat.

Last Tuesday, DiBona polled 6,482 votes – 924 votes ahead of School Committeewoman Anne Mahoney who was re-elected to a third-four year term. Mahoney, a former school vice chairwoman who had topped the school ballot twice before, received 5,558 votes.

The third seat was claimed by current Vice Chairwoman Barbara Isola who won a second four-year term with 5,066 votes.

The odd candidate-out in this school committee musical chairs was Emily Lebo who finished fourth with 4,793 votes – 273 behind Isola.

DiBona – a virtual political unknown before announcing his bid for school committee in February but familiar among veterans and youth sports circles, was also the third overall vote-getter in Tuesday's election.

Mayor Thomas Koch – winning a fourth two-year term without opposition – received the highest number of votes with 8,272 votes (or 76 percent of the 10,791 who went to the polls.)

Councillor Doug Gutro topped the council at-large ballot with 6,705 votes – 223 more than DiBona. In second and third place were Michael McFarland and Joseph Finn with 6,453 votes and 6,434 votes – 29 and 48 votes fewer than DiBona respectively.

How does DiBona sum up his election success?

"I worked my tail off."

He knocked on more than 10,000 doors, wore out multiple pairs of shoes and lost 15 pounds campaigning two to three hours a day for five to six days a week from March until Election Day. He was on doorsteps, ball fields and community meetings and other civic gatherings being seen.

But he was also listening.

"When I was door knocking, instead of telling them what I was going to do (if elected), I explained who I was, where I came from (Quincy) and do you have any questions or concerns," said the 38-year-old co-owner of Russ DiBona & Son Landscaping and member of the Park and Recreation Board.

"Instead of putting all of this stuff on what I was going to do, I asked them what they wanted.

"I listened more than anything. I gave them 15 to 20 seconds about my background and then I let them talk because I wanted to know what the people of this city wanted for improvements. Some of improvements aren't even school committee issues.

"I was somebody that they could talk to and I listened and I got a lot of good information."

What did they tell him?

"They told me they hadn't seen a school committee member for a while knocking. In some areas of the city they told me they hadn't seen anybody in many, many, many years. I think they realized I was willing to work and they were willing to give me a shot at this because I put the work in."

DiBona didn't target any one incumbent. He focused on one of the three seats up this year.

"I didn't run against them. I ran for a seat. Even though it was three incumbents and there was no open seat, I still ran as if I was running for a seat and not against them."

Finishing first never crossed his mind. In fact, hours before the polls closed, DiBona had doubts that he'd even take one of the seats.

"I didn't think I was going to take first place. As a matter of fact, at 3 p.m. on election day I thought I was going to lose. I really did because I kept listening to everybody else in the city who said 'you're running against three incumbents.'

"Well guess what? I believed in myself. I didn't think I'd ever top the ticket. When the numbers came out I just couldn't believe it. I worked my tail off. I sacrificed a lot. But I had a great team. I had a group of people who had been through these campaigns before who actually coached me and I listened to everybody's advice.

"I did everything I could to make this happen. I knew it would be a tough race. It was a city-wide election, my first time out, against three incumbents: you got everything against you on this one."

But he stayed focused mentally because "you have so many outside forces telling you 'you can't do it.' If you believe in what you can do, then you can do it. I enjoyed door knocking because the people gave me energy."

DiBona said time spent away from his family campaigning was a major adjustment.

"My wife Niamh and I have a 13-month old little boy. This was tough when you have a baby and we're a young married couple and it's a huge strain on the family. But I told them there's an end to this and she stuck by me all the way. It was hard and I made a huge sacrifice and she made a huge sacrifice. That's the one thing I don't like – being away from your family."

DiBona never considered bowing out of a race that some gave little chance to win.

"Once I put my mind to it, at the end of February when I announced, I was going to go all out and put everything into this and that's how I live my life. If I'm going to go do something, I'm going to go all out for it.

"When you a campaign, it's not just you. You may be the name with a face but there are so many other people involved in this thing. You have their reputations on the line as well. My campaign manager, Dan Hanley, my family, I had other people who helped me out and those are people I represented them too and I didn't want to let them down too because they spent so many hours of time with me that I wasn't going to let them down and not do the door knocking.

"I call it just like I do in youth sports or any sporting event: it's a team effort and not's just me."

He thanked the voters who elected him.

"One thing I will do in office is I will voice their concerns and their opinions because I think that's an important role as a school committee member. I'm not in this for my agenda," he said.

Some political observers wonder if DiBona's victory will have a ripple effect and lead to other first-time candidates challenging incumbents in 2015.

The city's newest school committeeman-elect certainly thinks so.

"It is so important that people keep the school committee and councillors accountable for their positions. I predict more people running for positions in two years. The only elected official that nobody can touch is the Mayor.

"My motto is represent the people of this great city. I plan on doing that."

VOTER TURNOUT last week was 16.96 percent. Only 10,791 out of 63,621 registered voters cast ballots. A poor showing by any measure – but it shouldn't come as a complete surprise.

In 2005 – the last municipal election without a contested mayor's race until this year – turnout was 25.2 percent. Some 13,735 registered voters out of 54,899 went to the polls. There were also three school committee seats and two council seats open that year.

Last Tuesday could have the dubious distinction of the lowest voter turnout in a final municipal election (not a primary) in the city's history.

WE KNOW SOME political obserservs like to look at the number of blanks that incumbents "receive" on election day when they are unopposed on the ballot.

The vote totals – and the number of blanks and write-ins – incumbents received last Tuesday:

• Mayor Thomas Koch – 8,272 votes, 2,009 blanks and 510 write-ins.

• Councillors Doug Gutro, Michael McFarland and Joseph Finn (vote for three). Gutro 6,705 votes, McFarland 6,453 and Finn 6,434. There were 12,620 blanks and 161 write-ins.

• Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest – 1,464 votes, 548 blanks and 71 write-ins.

• Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee – 1,338 votes, 483 blanks and 37 write-ins.

In the contested Ward 4 race, incumbent Brian Palmucci polled 1,547 votes to defeat challenger Michael Healy who received 365 votes. There were 44 blanks and 4 write-ins.

In the school committee race (vote for three) there were 10,406 blanks and 62 write-in votes.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1907 POSTCARD shows the old Central Middle School on the corner of Butler Road and Hancock Street as it looked when originally built in 1894 as Quincy High School. Major additions beginning in 1907 totally obscured its late 19th century look that was designed by architect E.G. Thayer. He had incorporated some features similar to those of the Thomas Crane Library's Richardson Building such as roof dormers and a projecting centered tower along with arched entrances and windows. Before this school was built, the high school was in a wooden frame building opened in 1851 on High School Avenue behind today's Central fire station. Rising Sea Levels And Global Warming

A concern has risen that parts of Quincy will be six feet under water by the end of the century during storm surges due to rising sea levels. The fact that global warming has not increased over the past 16 years has given me pause. The earth has been subjected to four ice ages. A chart of interglacial temperatures shows a rise to a peak and a sharp drop-off. Currently we are in an interglacial period which has lasted 10,000 years; a plateau of temperatures, not a peak. During this time, agriculture has arisen and civilization has flourished. Could we now be entering into a new ice age, which may or not be mitigated by global warming? Is the Old Farmer's Almanac correct in predicting a snowy winter this year?

The next few years may tell the tale.

Brett Pledges Support To Mayor-Elect Hannon

By SCOTT JACKSON

Rep. Joseph E. Brett, who lost the mayoral election to Walter J. Hannon, pledged his support to the mayor-elect to help further the interests of Quincy.

"I will continue to do everything I can to support the mayor in city government as long as I feel it is in the best interest of the people," Brett said.

Hannon, a state representative and Ward 5 councillor, was on a post-election vacation and unavailable for comment. He was elected over Brett by a margin of 17,966 to 15,373.

During his campaign, Hannon has said he was at a disadvantage as a Republican running in a predominantly Democratic city. Brett, however, was concerned that prominent Democrats had publicly backed Hannon.

After his defeat, Brett said he and Hannon had worked together before while serving on Beacon Hill.

"I am sure we can continue to disagree on certain issues without becoming disagreeable," Brett said.

BROWNELL, McGOWAN VIE FOR HOUSE SEAT

Twenty percent of voters in Ward 1 were expected to head to the polls for a special election to fill the House seat vacated by Sen. Arthur H. Tobin.

Two attorneys – Democrat Thomas H. Brownell and Republican John W. McGowan – were competing for the seat.

Brownell, a former assistant state attorney general, defeated William A. Dwyer, Paul D. Harold, and Thomas J. Buckley in the October primary. McGowan defeated John J. McNally in the GOP primary.

Tobin, the City Council president, was elected in a special state senate election to fill the Senate seat vacated by James R. McIntyre. Tobin defeated Republican attorney Richard Rogalin in the July special election. That July special election was the first election held in Quincy, and one of the first in the country, that 18-year-olds were allowed to vote in.

McIntyre resigned his Senate seat in May to become the Senate's counsel. He also chose not to seek re-election for mayor.

COUNCIL CALLS FOR VETERANS DAY CHANGE

The City Council voted unanimously to petition Congress to change the observance of Veterans Day back to Nov. 11.

Veterans Day had been observed annually on Nov. 11 in recognition of the armistice that ended World War I. But that changed beginning in 1971 with the passage of the Uniform Monday Holiday Act, which moved the Veterans Day observance to the fourth Monday in October.

Ward 6 Councillor J. Vincent Smyth introduced the resolution. He said observing certain holidays on a Monday made sense, but that Veterans Day should continue to be observed on Nov. 11.

"The thing that bothered me was that Veterans Day was observed on Oct. 25 this year, which had absolutely no significance to anybody," he said.

The resolution was approved by the council and signed by Mayor James R. McIntyre. It was sent to U.S. Senators Edward Brooke and Ted Kennedy, U.S. James A. Burke, and veterans' organizations in the city.

Gettysburg Address 150th Anniversary Topic Nov. 21

Quincy Historical Society will mark the 150th anniversary of the Gettysburg Address with a talk by Society executive director Edward Fitzgerald Thursday, Nov. 21, at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy in Quincy Center.

Dr. Fitzgerald will look at the speech in the context of Quincy's contemporary experience of the war in 1863 and will explore the possible connections between the ideas and language of the Address and the ideas, language, and work of John Quincy Adams.

President Lincoln gave the Address at the dedication of the Gettysburg National Cemetery on Nov. 19, 1863. At that time, Quincy—like other communities—had already sacrificed much in the war and was about to sacrifice more. It was also, like other communities, undergoing profound intellectual, emotional, and moral challenges. The talk will look at the relation of these experiences to the ideas expressed in Lincoln's speech.

The Gettysburg Address has of course come to be seen as one of the basic documents of American democracy, described famously as "the words that remade America." Although John Quincy Adams had died in 1848, historians have increasingly come to recognize his work as president and especially as an anti-slavery congressman as an influence on President Lincoln.

Dr. Fitzgerald will examine the ways in which the Adams legacy in general and that of John Quincy Adams in particular can be seen to have contributed to the ideas and spirit of the Gettysburg Address.

Everyone is welcome to attend. There is no charge for admission.

Butternut Squash, Coconut Milk Soup

Relax while getting a shot in the back? It's hard to believe, but it happened recently when I was receiving a Cortisone shot at the Spine Center.

Conversations with Jill, the nurse who sits beside me taking my vital signs is always about food and any new recipes that we exchange during the procedure. I think she knows that talking about recipes will certainly take my mind off of what is going on, and really passes the time.

She was telling me about a delicious butternut squash soup that she had made the night before. It sounded so wonderful that I asked her for the recipe. Just as I was ready to leave, she handed me the written recipe which I hope you will enjoy as much as I did.

BUTTERNUT SQUASH AND VEGETABLE SOUP

1 onion (chopped)
4 cloves garlic (chopped)
4-5 carrots (peeled and cut)
1 large butternut squash (peeled and cut in one- inch cubes)
2 sweet potatoes (peeled & cut)
8 cups vegetable stock
2 cups coconut milk
3 tablespoons olive oil

In the hot oil, sauté the garlic and onion. Add the carrots, sweet potatoes and butternut squash with the vegetable stock. Bring to a boil and then reduce the heat and simmer covered for 25 minutes.

Remove from heat and add the coconut milk. Puree in blender and add salt and pepper and serve hot.

Popover Pizza

There are two foods that I think most people enjoy, and those are pizza and popovers.

Today's recipe is from a cookbook that was done from a group of volunteers at the hospital. The combination of both is all made in one pan which is always a good thing. I used ground beef, but turkey or any ground meat can be used.

POP-OVER PIZZA

For the filling
1 pound of ground beef
1 large onion (chopped)
1 large can of tomatoes (I used crushed) or ready made tomato sauce
1 teaspoon or so of basil and oregano (optional)
8 ounces sliced mozzarella cheese

For the batter
2 large eggs
1 -cup milk
1 tablespoon oil (any kind)
1 cup of flour
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese

For the filling, sauté the onion and beef. Add the tomato sauce and the basil and cook until well blended. Set aside.

For the batter, beat the eggs, and add the milk and the oil. Add the flour and beat until smooth.

In a 13x9 greased baking dish, spoon out the filling. Top with the mozzarella cheese. On top of that, place the batter completely over the filling. Top with the Parmesan cheese. Bake in a 400-degree oven for 30 minutes until golden brown and bubbly. Cut into squares.

Wollaston Garden Club Members Visit Frederick Law Olmsted Site

By PAT ARTIS

Members of the Wollaston Garden Club recently visited the Frederick Law Olmsted site in Brookline.

WOLLASTON GARDEN CLUB members recently visited the Frederick Law Olmsted site in Brookline.

The renowned American landscape architect's residence, office and garden grounds are located at 90 Warren Street. These grounds at "Fairsted" are a rare resource in the history of American landscape and architecture. In moving to the garden suburb of Brookline in 1882, to work on the "emerald necklace," Frederick Law Olmsted demonstrated his belief that "no great town can long exist without great suburbs." Many of the design principles Olmsted was famous for were applied at Fairsted: barriers of earth and plantings used along borders to hide private living space; the use of massed trees and shrubs and simple landscape elements, like a specimen tree.

Members of the garden club were impressed at the profound affects Olmsted's garden designs have on us today: planting beds with curved lines, effective use of rock in the garden, creation of specific and separate garden rooms to evoke a "sense of place", and the creation of vistas.

Frederick Law Olmsted (1822-1903) was a reformer, engineer and artist. He is best known for creating urban parks. Olmsted saw the need for preserving green and open spaces where people could escape city pressures, places that nourished body and spirit. He combined his love for the land with his belief in the democratic ideals of community and equality. His work, designing many well-know parks and landscape projects in the United States like Central Park, the Chicago World's Fair, the U.S. Capital grounds, the Emerald Necklace in Boston, and the Biltmore Estate embodies his passion for restraint and rural simplicity. He is credited with establishing the profession of landscape architecture in America. Olmsted's impact is incalculable; the informal natural setting he made popular characterizes the American landscape today.

Garden club members found, especially interesting, the residence and design offices of Frederick Law Olmsted and his sons (Frederick Law Olmsted, Jr. and John Charles Olmsted) who practiced landscape architecture from the 1860's to 1980. The Olmsted firm prepared over 6,000 designs, photographs and projects in 44 states during this time. The Olmsted Archives represent a rare continuity of work by a single professional office; both the Office and Archives provide evidence of the profound changes in technology throughout the years. Frederick Law Olmsted had a number of Quincy connections; he advised on the planning of Merrymount Park; and in tree selection, for his Brookline neighbor and architect friend, Henry Hobson Richardson, for the Thomas Crane Library main branch grounds. Members of the garden club were reminded of the basic tools and procedures need to plan, design, and document our own home and civic landscapes. Today researchers use the collections in planning restorations and preservation of Olmsted landscapes.

The Frederick Law Olmsted National Historic Site is free and open to the public; the Olmsted grounds are open for self-guided tours 365 days a year from dawn to dusk. Guided tours of the residence/office during 'winter hours" are offered on Friday – Saturday at 10 a.m., 11 a.m., 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. For more information call 617-566-1689, extension 221.

Pat Ellis Artis is a past president of the Wollaston Garden Club, and member of the Gardening Study Council and Landscape Design Council of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, Inc.

BLUE DIAMONDS

While many diamond fanciers want their favorite gemstone to be colorless, there are other colors that diamond aficionados find most appealing. Most recently, attention has been focused on the world's biggest (to date) round "fancy vivid" blue diamond. The Premier Blue, as it is known, was taken from the Premier (formerly known as Cullinan) mine near Pretoria, South Africa, which is the world's main provider of blue diamonds. The Diamond's blue color is the result of boron. The higher the concentration of boron, the more intense the blue color will be. The round, 7.59-carat, brilliant-cut, internally flawless blue stone is not only rare, but it also has connections with royalty and power, which deepens its appeal even further.

Natural blue diamonds are so rare that most jewelers have never seen one. It is estimated that the earth produces 10,000 white diamonds for every one colored diamond, of any color. Naturally fancy-colored diamonds are outside the normal color range. Shop our large selection of brilliant diamond jewelry at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center or contact us at 617-773-3636. Koch Inauguration At New Central Middle School

Mayor's Fourth-Term Priorities Include Infrastructure, Flooding, Seawall Projects

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The inauguration of Mayor Thomas Koch and other elected officials will be Monday evening, Jan. 6 in the new Central Middle School auditorium.

Koch, who will be sworn in to his fourth term by City Clerk Joseph Shea, said he selected the new Central Middle School as a venue for the inauguration to give the public an opportunity to see the new facility.

"There are some people who attended the (school) dedication, there are some parents who have children in the school who are in and out of the school on a regular basis, but I've heard from a lot of folks that I would love to get in and see it," Koch said.

This will be the fourth different location for Koch's inaugurals. His others were at the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel, North Quincy High School and Quincy High School.

A collation will also be in the new school with students from the high school culinary arts program participating.

Also being sworn in to new terms Jan. 6 are the nine current incumbent city councillors, School Committee members Anne Mahoney and Barbara Isola and newly-elected School Committeeman Noel DiBona.

Koch said some of his goals during his fourth term that begins in January will be to continue work on flooding projects and seawall projects as well as forwarding plans on a new Sterling Middle School and window replacements in other school buildings.

He also said infrastructure, public safety, parks and open spaces will be among his priorities.

"We're making good progress on our infrastructure but there's still much that remains to be done and we'll continue to chip away at it. We've made improvements to our public safety areas with additional manpower in the police department the last couple of budgets. We'll look to continue to beef that up. I think we've made great strides in our parks and open spaces.

"We're making good progress. We are going to complete those things that we've talked about and those things that are on the agenda and continue to move the downtown forward as complicated as it is."

Asked if he expects Merchants Row – the first major development in the new Quincy Center project – to be completed by the end of his fourth term in 2015, Koch replied:

"I believe that we will see vertical construction coming out of the ground by late spring of 2014. How long that vertical construction takes I'm not sure but I believe (the project) will be completed within that time frame."

The Adams Green project will also begin taking shape next year.

"The Adams Green traffic piece will absolutely be done because that's going to get underway very, very

South West Quincy Neighborhood Association Updated At Fall Meeting

By ANNELI JOHNSON

The South West Quincy Neighborhood Association (SWQNA) held recently its fall meeting and get-together hosted by the Granite Street Café, 378 Granite St., Quincy.

Guest speaker was Kristina Johnson, Quincy city planner and director of Transportation. Johnson was in charge of the planning and restoration for Brewer's Corner's major upgrading.

She spoke of the history the Brewer's Corner and the work it entailed, such as new crosswalk design, which allows the motorist better focus on crosswalks; green space and its street furniture; the Princeton Elm Tree plantings and the new traffic signals, which now ease traffic flow in the five corner intersection.

The Association commended Phill Jerry for his beatification work, by planting fall mums around the Princeton Elms, and Parks Department for their work in Brewer's Corner and West Quincy area parks and school grounds.

The Community Police Officer, James Silcox and Lt. Tim Sorgi briefed the Association of the Quincy Police Department's continued work in the area, their monthly interagency meetings such as the South Shore Mental Health and their residential facility on Water Street in West Quincy.

The SWQNA also went on record to support City Councillor Brian Palmucci's initiative to zoning change to prevent future drug testing laboratories to be placed the Quincy's residential neighborhoods. The Association also collected additional signatures to further support Palmucci's initiative to zoning change.

Committee report prepared by Nick Loporto and presented by Maryann Morton, Co-Chair of the Association to have the Quincy school buses away from Granite Street and utilize the Lincoln Hancock Schools designated bus lane on Water Street side of the said school.

Granite Street is a one-way single lane street leading to Quincy Center and Quincy Medical Center and is also an designated emergency artery. Committee was asked to present the issue at a future Quincy School Committee meeting.

The Association is exploring the possibility of securing cameras for Brewer's Corner to help monitor any probable negative activity in the neighborhood, in addition to the NO LOITERING signs.

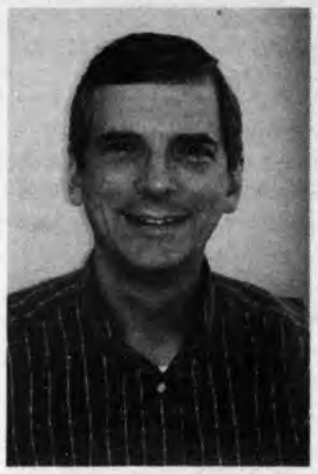

Councillor Doug Gutro spoke of the Quincy Center development and its far-reaching benefits beyond Quincy Center to the neighborhoods as well, such as the Gateway Program tied to the downtown development, new Central Middle school and the demolition of the old Quincy High School and the open green space in its place.

Association membership is open to anyone living in Wards three, four or five, as all of these wards meet in South West Quincy neighborhoods.

For future meetings of the Association refer to The Quincy Sun or contact Association members at 617-479-1601 or 617-376-0746.

A Message From Impact Quincy

Fostering A Drug-Free Community

MICHAEL SHANAHAN

I want to introduce myself as the new Executive Director of Maria Droste Counseling Services. I am Michael Shanahan and I assumed this job in mid-June 2013, after Sr. Lorraine Bernier, who led Maria Droste since 2006, very suddenly passed away on Friday, April 26, 2013. Although staff, family, friends and clients of Maria Droste were shocked and saddened by her loss, they have graciously welcomed me into their company to continue the mission and work of this agency.

As I immerse myself into my new role here, I am struck by the many friends and clients, both current and former, of Maria Droste, who tell me how their experience has healed, changed, and enriched their lives. I will continue to promote this agency as Sr. Lorraine did along with ensuring the succession of its mission to provide mental health and holistic services to all who need it regardless of their insurance status.

The staff at Maria Droste Counseling Services appreciates the dedication of Impact Quincy towards fostering a drug-free community as well as promoting healthy living. These goals are implicit in our own mission aimed at healing people so that they can find their self-worth and be reconciled with themselves and others. Our vision is "Bringing hope to life" and we know that mental health and substance abuse issues left untreated can cover up and destroy a sense of hope in a person. Substance abuse in particular is known to radically alter a person's goals, dreams, and way of life in a matter of weeks and sometimes tragically sooner. We have several counselors on staff who specialize in treating substance abuse issues. I am trained in dual diagnosis disorders for people who have mental health issues along with substance abuse issues. We also see couples, families, and individuals for a wide variety of mental health needs where substance abuse may not be present or active. In addition, we offer holistic services including massage therapy, reiki, polarity therapy, and craniosacral therapy which helps to promote wellness and recovery.

We recognize that by partnering with other like-minded organizations and by working together we can all truly make a difference in our community. Maria Droste Counseling Services has benefited from our relationship with Impact Quincy by our attendance at Advisory Board meetings which I look forward to joining. In the past, we were fortunate to have Arlene Goldstein, Program Coordinator for Impact Quincy, conduct a training on Opiate Overdose Prevention. Currently, one of our counselors is trained in the use of Narcan. We look forward to our continued collaboration with Impact Quincy.

South Shore Mental Health Receives Excellence In Best Practices Award

The Association for Behavioral Healthcare (ABH), a statewide organization representing over 80 community-based behavioral healthcare provider organizations, announced its 2013 Recognition Awards recipients at its recent Salute to Excellence event.

Jennie Hallisey Trains To Be Teacher Mentor

Jennie Hallisey of Quincy recently trained through project SUCCESS to mentor fellow teachers in the Boston Day & Evening Academy school district.

Project SUCCESS is designed to help school districts retain new teachers while increasing skill levels through best practices.

The program creates a quality mentoring culture to strengthen the teaching profession statewide.

This is the third year the educators at the UMass Dartmouth's Center for University, School, and Community Partnership (CUSP) are training some of the state's top teachers to mentor their colleagues in "high-need" areas like special education, English as a Second Language, science, and math.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Nov. 30, 1886, the Folies Bergere in Paris introduces an elaborate revue featuring women in sensational costumes. The highly popular "Place aux Jeunes" established the Folies as the premier nightspot in Paris. The Folies followed the Parisian taste for striptease and quickly gained a reputation for its spectacular nude shows.

• On Dec. 1, 1913, Henry Ford installs the first moving assembly line for the mass production of an entire automobile. His innovation reduced the time it took to build a car from more than 12 hours to 2 1/2 hours.

• On Nov. 28, 1925, the "Grand Ole Opry," one of the longest-lived and most popular showcases for country music, begins broadcasting live from Nashville, Tenn. The showcase was originally named the "Barn Dance."

• On Nov. 26, 1931, the first cloverleaf interchange to be built in the United States, at the junction of NJ Rt. 25 (now U.S. Rt. 1) and NJ Rt. 4 (now NJ Rt. 35) in Woodbridge, N.J., is featured on the cover of the Engineering News-Record. (By contrast, a piece on the under-construction Hoover Dam was relegated to the journal's back pages.)

• On Nov. 25, 1952, "The Mousetrap," a murder-mystery written by novelist and playwright Agatha Christie, opens at the Ambassadors Theatre in London. The crowd-pleasing whodunit would go on to become the longest continuously running play in history, with attendance by more than 10 million people to date.

• On Nov. 27, 1965, the Pentagon informs President Lyndon Johnson that if Gen. William Westmoreland is to conduct the major sweep operations necessary to destroy enemy forces during the coming year, U.S. troop strength in Vietnam should be increased from 120,000 to 400,000 men.

• On Nov. 29, 1975, Silver Convention earns a No. 1 pop hit with "Fly, Robin, Fly." Suddenly, the world wanted to see the "artists" behind it. The problem: Silver Convention didn't exist. The two unknown singers who'd cut the record couldn't be hired again, so two others were pressed into service to appear in their place.

Door Open On Bid For School Seat In 2015

Lebo Disappointed By Defeat, Will Miss Committee Colleagues

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

School Committee member Emily Lebo may have received the lowest number of votes during last Tuesdays elections, being replaced by newcomer Noel DiBona, but don't count her out just yet.

"I don't know if I will run in two years. You know, I think the landscaping is changing very quickly in education and I'll have to see," said Lebo. "I wish him (DiBona) all the luck in the world. He campaigned for it, I'm not sure he knows what he is in for, because I didn't know what I was in for when I started it. It really is a lot of work, it's a tremendous amount of reading and analysis and discussion with the district leaders.

"Believe me I learned. When I worked for the district, the first 14 years I was in Quincy I taught, but the next eight years I was in administration so I went to every single school committee meeting. I thought I knew what the school committee was about, but the subcommittee meetings are completely different, that's where all the work takes place, and I didn't realize that it was so much work. So people who think the school committee is what you see, it really isn't, that's the tip of the iceberg, the work is very, very comprehensive, and it's a great group of people, most of who support all the subcommittees,"

EMILY LEBO

Lebo added.

Lebo said she was disappointed when she heard the news of her defeat but she said she takes some responsibility for the outcome.

"I was really disappointed. I didn't think my work was done, at all, on the school committee, so it was disappointing to me," said Lebo.

"I'll take some responsibility for it, I'm not good at campaigning, I'm a great worker, but unfortunately the school committee is not a job it's a political position that you get voted into so whether or not you're good at doing the work is not enough if you're not good at campaigning. I was disappointed because I think that we've done some really, really good work and I think there is a lot of work that still has to be done. I think it's important to have somebody on the school committee who really knows what the education environment is like out there for the district so they can sort of mitigate the rest of the stuff that is coming in and to understand what they're up against and help to support them get through all of these changes."

"People vote for people for various reasons, whatever that reason is sometimes they are more familiar with them, more comfortable with them. I'm not good at going up and saying vote for me because I'm a nice lady, I just like doing the work. I really don't like campaigning, I don't mind answering questions, I don't mind going to a forum because I think I have the answers so if there had been more of those I think I would have done a whole lot better," added Lebo.

Throughout her tenure Lebo worked tirelessly on creating a new subcommittee, working with the Quincy Education Association on the new educator evaluation system, and championing the media positions.

"Teaching and learning (subcommittee) was the biggest thing I did," said Lebo. "I also worked with the QEA on the educator evaluation system; I was on the negotiating team for that. I had used the system to evaluate my staff and had been evaluated by my supervisor using the system, so I was very familiar with it, so it was easier for me to negotiate between both bodies, both the school system and the teachers, on what to worry about and on what not to worry about on that system.

"Certainly I championed the media positions, it didn't come from me, but I took the ball and ran with it. I made sure we got out to look at other districts; I got job descriptions and went to the two colleges that produce media specialists. I had the superintendent and citywide parents, and the assistant superintendent visit a school and he became convinced very easily that it is an important position if it is done right," added Lebo.

Lebo, who will say goodbye in January, said she will miss her colleagues on the committee.

"I think I will miss the collegiality," said Lebo. "It's a great group of people on the school committee, we've worked so well collaboratively, we really have, and everybody brought different strengths. I sure will miss working with them."

School committee member and Vice Chairwoman Barbara Isola said she would miss Lebo who brought a wealth of knowledge to the table as a former Quincy Public Schools teacher and administrator from 1987-2007 and currently as a Boston Public Schools administrator.

"Emily brought a wealth of knowledge to the committee that will be sorely missed," said Isola. "She was a constant professional and her presence on the committee made me a better school committee member."

are still over 5,000 veterans here in the City of Quincy," Nicholson said. "We are a long way away from becoming ghosts in our own city, and I ask all of you to keep that in mind…as long as we are able we will be here to represent our fellow veterans of every generation."

Monday's observance was preceded by a parade up Hancock Street. Hundreds of residents lined Hancock Street's sidewalks to catch a glimpse of the parade, which included veterans, the Police and Fire Department honor guards, the Police Department's motorcycle unit, the North Quincy High Junior ROTC, the Quincy/North Quincy combined band, Scouts and Sea Cadets, and city and state officials.

Towards the end of the ceremony Monday, Nicholson and Gold Star Mother Angela Durkin – whose daughter Ciara died on Sept. 28, 2007, while serving in Afghanistan – placed a Gold Star wreath in front of the "Doughboy Statue," which honors the men and women of Quincy who served in World War I. Leo Reardon, a past commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, placed a red, white, and blue wreath at the base of the statue.

Monday marked the 95th anniversary of the armistice that ended fighting in World War I on Nov. 11, 1918. The Rev. John Carl Swanson, a former Navy chaplain, spoke of the United States' role in the war and the nation's treatment of World War I veterans during the Great Depression two decades later.

"America's participation in [World War I] was brief and brutal. In two-and-a-half months of actual combat, the United States lost 53,000 soldiers. Contrary to popular belief, the United States did not arrive late in the war when the war was over. It actually provided the troops and the manpower to win the war," Swanson said.

"A World War I veteran came home to a ticker tape parade. Twenty years later they were shot on the mall in Washington, D.C., during the veterans' bonus march. We need to remember that freedom is never free. We need to remember always our veterans."

Veterans Day had been known as Armistice Day in commemoration of the end of World War I until President Dwight D. Eisenhower proclaimed it as a day to honor all veterans in 1954. City Council President Michael McFarland recalled Eisenhower's proclamation of the first Veterans Day when he address the crowd Monday, saying the quote had much meaning to him.

"On this day let us solemnly remember the sacrifices of all those who fought so valiantly on the seas, in the air, and on foreign shores to preserve our heritage and freedom. Let us re-concentrate ourselves today to the task of promoting enduring peace so that that effort will not have been taken in vain," McFarland said, quoting the 34th president.

ROBERT NOBLE (fourth from right) stands with his family at Flags for Veterans Island at Sunday's Veterans Day observance. The Noble family donated an honor flag for Mr. Noble who served in the Army during World War II and is a former POW. The Sons of the American Legion, Morrisette Legion Post #294, donated a memorial flag in memory of Bob's wife, Gloria, who passed away Oct. 1. Bob, a member of the Morrisette Legion Post, the Bryan Post and Quincy Cavanaugh DAV Chapter, has served as the commander of the American Ex-Prisoners of War, Department of Massachusetts. He and Gloria also served as commander of the Southeastern Chapter, American Ex-Prisoners of Wars. Koch Inauguration At New Central Middle School soon. All those intersections changes – that was a federal earmark that we had received – and that will go forward. The park design continues. The park funding is through the ICube program with the state. The ICube grant program dollars don't come into effect until we're in the ground with the foundations for the new buildings. That's how, it's tied to how it's paid back.

"We might have a little gap to bridge. We're going to work with the state to see how we can do that with other programs so that we can keep the progress moving."

The mayor also expects the renovations at Coddington Hall and old City Hall (James R. McIntyre Governmnt Center) – will both be completed during his fourth term. Coddington Hall is on scheduled to be complete next June while "City Hall is probably a good year away," he said.

The mayor was also asked whether he thinks he will seek a fifth term in 2015.

"I just got re-elected to a fourth term and I am truly humbled and honored by the vote of confidence that people have in me and it's not just about me. I think they like the direction that city is going, what the administration is doing and how we are working with our colleagues in government.

"I'm taking the terms one at a time."

Asked what factors would weigh in his decision about running for a fifth term – and the first four-year mayoral term in Quincy – Koch replied:

"I love the city. I love what I do. I still have the fire in my belly for what I'm doing every day and as long as that's around I want to continue to serve. I don't want to overstay my welcome. I want to go out on my terms at the right time. I don't know when that right time is. I really don't.

"Two years goes by rather quickly as I have learned. You try to get projects going, getting moving and getting completed and you have that schedule in your head because you're working in the confines of your two-year term. You have two years to get something done. I remind my staff of that all the time. Let's get it done.

"It's a tremendous honor to sit here and serve as the mayor and I think we're making tremendous progress. I know there are some folks who will never vote for me for whatever reason. I get that. There are some folks who will always vote for me and I get that. It's those folks in between that judge our results. It's one thing to put a vision out there and it's another to get results and I think we're getting it done and I think people appreciate that so we'll take it one at a time."

A five-member commission has been formed to analyze the salaries of the mayor, city councillors and department heads. They will make recommendations to Koch and he'll make a decision before forwarding the information to the City Council.

Serving on the commission are David Colton, former Quincy DPW commissioner and Milton town manager; Beth Ann Strollo, executive director, Quincy Community Action Programs; Quincy businesswoman and community activist Dolly DiPesa, local businessman and Realtor Ed Flavin and former Quincy Personnel Director Kathy Yaeger.

The mayor currently earns $122,000 and city councillors make $22,000 annually.

The mayor's salary last adjusted under Mayor William Phelan while the council's pay was revised when Jim Sheets was mayor. Department heads received 3 percent bumps this year after six years without an increase. City unions have received a number of raises in recent years.

"We're doing some analysis of other communities and we'll see what the commission comes up with in terms of recommendations," Koch said.

Regarding the mayor's salary, Koch added: "It's about the position – it's not the person. We're going on seven years without an increase in the position. It's time to look at it."

The mayor also commented on the four-year mayoral term passing, the election of Noel DiBona to the School Committee and Martin Walsh as the mayor-elect for the City of Boston.

On the four-year term passing:

"I believe in the four-year term. Whether I was sitting here or not I would have been voting for it. I've had 25 years in government and I've seen the merits and the argument made for it and I believe in those arguments.

"In this day in age, two years just doesn't cut it. When City Hall was built in 1844, it was approved at town meeting in April and it was built by November. I started a process to fix a seawall and it took me 10 months to get through permitting with a state agency. Things just take so much more time today.

"I think you need the four-year time frame as the chief executive to get anything accomplished. I'm not saying you get everything done but to get something done you need more than two years."

On Noel DiBona:

"I'm happy for Noel DiBona – he worked very hard. He brings a different perspective. He's a fine young man and great family from Quincy and I look forward to working with him for the benefit of the kids."

The mayor also had kind words for outgoing School Committeewoman Emily Lebo who lost her re-election bid last Tuesday.

"I'm sad for Emily Lebo because Emily Lebo brings one of the greatest resumes of any school committee member we've probably ever had. Her experience in education her whole life – and she's been one who hasn't been afraid to speak up.

"It's all about the classroom, the policy. I've never seen her get caught up in the politics of anything and that is refreshing. There was no hidden political agenda. What you saw with Emily is what you got and you got a straight answer, straight opinion and you may not like it all the time but that's what it's all about. When we have those meetings we talk about real issues and you leave your feelings at the door.

"Emily was terrific. I'm going to miss her on the committee. She's a friend and I'm sure I'll be seeing her around and soliciting her opinion on issues particularly with the schools on a regular basis."

On Marty Walsh:

"I have a good relationship with Marty. I supported him. I admire his story. He's a hard-working legislator. I've known him for a number of years.

"There are some shared interests that Boston and Quincy have. Marty and I have discussions about economic issues, development but more importantly being able to make that phone call for him to take the call and talk about Moon Island and Long Island and transportation issues that come through Dorchester Street and Squantum to get to that island.

"We'll have a guy who will be listening to us and I'm sure more than listening he'll be assisting us of whatever our challenges and needs are.

"I'm very happy for Marty and his family and I think he'll be a great mayor for Boston."

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

WHY IMPLANTS WORK SO WELL

Dental implants have become the preferred method of tooth replacement because of their natural look and unsurpassed functional ability. To understand why implants work so well, it is important to understand the process of "osseointegration," which occurs when bone cells in the jaw attach themselves directly to the surface of the titanium implant. First noted by a Swedish researcher in the 1960's, osseointegration is the same process that hip implants rely on to ensure the functional integrity of replacement joints. It is strength that can be relied upon.

With dental implants you can make a huge difference in the way you feel about your smile. Good cosmetic dentistry can give you a smile that is the envy of others. We stress good oral hygiene and preventive dentistry for the whole family. The recommendations we make are always in the best interest of our patients. Patient education and awareness are keys to prevention and early detection of dental problems. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are committed to providing you with the best possible dental care in a warm and caring environment. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Once set firmly in place and outfitted with a prosthetic tooth replacement, patients notice no difference between implants and their own natural teeth.

Seniors Attend NFPA Fire Prevention Presentation

The National Fire Protection Association recently hosted older adults from the Quincy area for an event at NFPA headquarters to celebrate Fire Prevention Week.

The visitors were treated to a turkey dinner, cooking safety tips, and photos with Sparky the Fire Dog®.

NFPA employees Casey Grant and Sue Marsh presented "Memories That Still Burn: Remembering the Cocoanut Grove," an informative presentation about the history related to historic Boston night club fire in 1942.

Guests were also encouraged to visit the Cocoanut Grove Fire website (http://www.cocoanutgrovefire.org/) to learn more about the fire, how the fire impacted changes to safety codes, and to share historical information they have about the fire. More than 30 NFPA employees volunteered to help facilitate the event.

NFPA has been the official sponsor of Fire Prevention Week for more than 90 years. Each year during this week, fire departments, schools and other organizations across the country host events and activities to raise awareness for fire prevention and safety.

At age 65, older adults are twice as likely to be killed or injured by fires or falls compared to the population at large. Safety information used during the presentation were based on Remembering When™: A Fire and Fall Prevention Program for Older Adults, developed by NFPA and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) to help older adults live safely at home for as long as possible.

The program is a free downloadable resource for educators that centers around 16 key safety messages – eight fire prevention and eight fall prevention. (www.nfpa.org/rememberingwhen)

NFPA is a worldwide leader in fire, electrical, building, and life safety. The mission of the international nonprofit organization founded in 1896 is to reduce the worldwide burden of fire and other hazards on the quality of life by providing and advocating consensus codes and standards, research, training, and education.

NFPA develops more than 300 codes and standards to minimize the possibility and effects of fire and other hazards. All NFPA codes and standards can be viewed at no cost at www.nfpa.org/freeaccess.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Monday, November 4, 2013, at approximately 4:20 p.m., Drug Unit Detective Keenan was parked in an unmarked vehicle at the Star Market/Rite Aid parking lot on Granite Street. He was observing this location because there have been numerous arrests there for narcotics violations.

Detective Keenan spotted a vehicle parked in the lot with two males in it. The vehicle was registered to a female from Marlborough, MA. After watching the two males make several cell phone calls and not enter any store, Detective Keenan contacted additional Drug Unit Detectives to assist in the surveillance.

Detective Sergeant Tapper, Detectives' O'Brien, Coen and Barkas responded. The suspect vehicle left the parking lot and drove a short distance, parking in the Burger King lot, backing into a spot. The two males stayed in their car for several minutes, then walked over to the side door of Burger King. They remained outside for a few minutes before entering the restaurant. Sergeant Tapper observed them sitting at a table near the front of the store. Suspect #1 then exited the restaurant and walked over to a black Volvo and got into the rear seat. A minute later, the brake lights and reverse lights of the Volvo went on and suspect #1 got out and went back into Burger King. The Volvo drove off on Granite Street. Detectives' Coen and Keenan went into Burger King to speak to suspect #1, while Sergeant Tapper and Detective O'Brien followed the suspect vehicle. Detectives' Coen and Keenan approached suspect #1 and suspect #2 at their table and identified themselves. Suspect #2 blurted out, "This is f@#$%^& b@##$%^& - I know the law." The Detectives found this remark interesting since all they had done at this point was identify themselves.

LT. DAN MINTON

As Detective Coen and suspect #1 walked out to the front of the store, the Detective advised him that he (suspect #1) had been observed getting in and out of the vehicle parked in the lot. Detective Coen asked suspect #1 where the drugs were and the suspect confessed that it was inside his inside jacket pocket. Detective Coen asked what it was and the suspect responded, "One ounce of marijuana." Suspect #1 stated that he paid $340.00 and got the drug from "the dude in the black car," who he knew as "Ace." He then handed over the bag of marijuana to Detective Coen, estimated to be an ounce.

Detective Coen contacted Sergeant Tapper and Detective O' Brien about the recovered illegal drugs from the suspect. Detective O'Brien contacted Quincy Police Communications and requested a marked vehicle stop the Volvo. Officer Dan Parisi and Detective O'Brien stopped the vehicle on Newport Avenue and observed the passenger (suspect #3) reach his right arm down towards his pocket, so he was led from the vehicle and secured in handcuffs and informed that he was not under arrest. Officer Parisi led the operator/suspect #4 from the vehicle and advised him of his Miranda rights. Detective O'Brien advised passenger/suspect #3 of his Miranda warnings and he agreed to speak to Detective O'Brien. When asked what happened at Burger King, the suspect (#3) responded, "Nothing," then denied that anyone got into the car with him. Suspect #4, the driver then yelled over to Detective O'Brien, "He had nothing to do with it. It is on me. I gave the kid some weed and did not get any money." Suspect #4 said that suspect #1 paid for the weed earlier in the day. Suspect #4 was placed under arrest and transported to the station. Suspect #3, the passenger, was checked for warrants and sent on his way.

During the inventory of the Volvo, which suspect #4 was driving, Sergeant Tapper located a digital scale inside the center console and marijuana inside a plastic container. Additionally, a plastic sandwich bag containing numerous clear empty capsules was located inside the vehicle.

Detectives involved in this investigation believe the capsules were used as a means to package crack cocaine. Detective Coen examined the scale at the police station and noticed white residue on the scale, so he conducted a field test and confirmed that it was cocaine. A further search of the vehicle uncovered a small clear plastic corner baggie that contained

Dec. 31 Last Day To Submit Nominations

Henry Bosworth Memorial Award Nominations Open

Nominations are open for Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award presented by The Quincy Sun.

The award – formerly known as the Sun Citizen of the Year – was renamed in 2010 in memory of Mr. Bosworth, The Quincy Sun's founder and longtime publisher.

Last year, Paul F. Moody, Sr., commander of the Sons of the American Legion, Morrisette Legion Post 294 and coordinator of Flags for Veterans Island, was honored for longtime volunteer service and support of veterans, youth and others in need.

Moody, a lifelong Quincy resident, was selected for the award by a judging panel from among 19 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

He is the third recipient of the Bosworth Award and the 30th individual overall to be recognized by The Quincy Sun for outstanding community service.

The others are Ruth Elizabeth (Betty) DeCristofaro, a lifelong Quincy Point resident and community volunteer; and former Quincy City Clerk and current Norfolk County Commissioner John M. Gillis whose public service has spanned more than 50 years.

The other 27 individuals were honored when the award was known as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's Quincy Sun.

Nominations will close Tuesday, Dec. 31. After nominations close, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2013 Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Bosworth Award
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the their nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January or February.

an off-white, rock-like substance believed to be crack cocaine which was also confirmed by a field test. Back at the station, Detectives informed suspect #3 that they believed he may have more cocaine on him, so they were going to search his body in a private room. Suspect #3 stated that if he was being searched he wanted it to be on video, so this was arranged.

During the search, another clear plastic bag containing cocaine was found. Suspect #3 had $995.00 on him when he was arrested. The money was in five separate folds ($5, $10, $20, $620, $340). One fold contained $340.00 which is exactly what suspect #1 said he paid suspect #4 for the marijuana. Suspect #4, a 31 year old Boston resident, was charged with, "Distribution of Class D/Subsequent Offense, Possession of Class D with the Intent to Distribute/ Subsequent Offense, Possession of Class B with Intent to Distribute/Subsequent Offense and Conspiracy to Violate the Controlled Substance Laws." Suspect #2 was advised that he was going to be summonsed by mail to Quincy District Court for "Possession of Class D and Conspiracy to Violate the Controlled Substance Laws."

In addition, Suspect #1, the driver of the original vehicle, was checked for a license status and warrants, which showed that he had a revoked license and no warrants. He too was told that he would be summonsed by mail to Quincy District Court for "Operating a motor vehicle with a revoked license." Nice Work!

Presidents Avenge Earlier Loss, Blank Wamps 20-0

By BILL GRIFFIN

The wind blew hard and cold from the north. It was a night for November football. There would be nothing fancy or cute. Passes fluttered and died in the wind. Trick plays were bobbled and doomed. It was a night for the basic stuff: Run the ball and play good defense.

It is the kind of football Bill Reardon loves and it was the football Quincy played and played well. Sophomore Jahvae Handsome-Fields ran for 200 yards, junior quarterback James Lam added 106 and the dynamic duo led Quincy to a 20-0 victory over Braintree in the first game of a doubleheader at Veterans Stadium Friday night.

North Quincy defeated Milford, 42-34 in the nightcap.

The win broke a two-game losing streak, lifted Quincy to 5-4 on the season and avenged a one-point loss to Braintree earlier in the season.

"We had lost two straight and we wanted to get back to playing good, crisp football," said Reardon. "For us, that means running the ball and playing defense. We played a good, hard physical game and, for the most part, avoided mistakes. That's our game. That's what we play well."

The numbers tell the truth. Quincy has two straight games with over 300 yards rushing, 309 against Braintree, and a whopping total of 737 yards in two weeks. Handsome-Fields has two straight 200-yard games and a two-game total of 429. Lam has 198 over the past two games.

The running begins up front with Matt Hines, William Young, Matt Kozlowski, Mike Munroe, Steve Scolaro and Abraham Hoti, but the truth is Handsome-Fields and Lam are a lethal 1-2 punch that needs little room to break big plays.

It all combined to produce scoring drives of 80, 52, and 70 yards. All on the ground. No passes completed. Football in November.

"We didn't throw much because of the wind," said Reardon. "We wanted to get them both going because we don't want to be one-dimensional on offense. We need the 1-2 punch they give us."

When Lam and Hand-

Allen's Runs For The Ages Power Red Raiders, 42-34

By BILL GRIFFIN

It was one of the finest performances by a running back in the history of the city. It should have been seen on a warm sunny day with fans in shirtsleeves standing and roaring on every play. Veterans' Stadium should have been packed. Every seat should have been filled and overflow spectators should have ringed the field and stood three and four deep to watch the game when Antoine Allen touched greatness.

Instead it was played out on a bitter November night when chill cut through layers of clothing and touched the bone. It was the second game of a doubleheader and the stadium was almost empty. The crowd had long fled from the cold. There were isolated groups of loyal supporters sitting together almost like stragglers seeking warmth, but mostly there were vacant rows of silver benches stretching from end zone to end zone.

His performance deserved better. Allen ran for 307 yards and scored five touchdowns on runs of 65, 65, 47, 31, and two yards in an effort which will be long remembered to lead North Quincy to a 42-34 win over Milford in a non-league game Friday night at Veterans' Stadium.

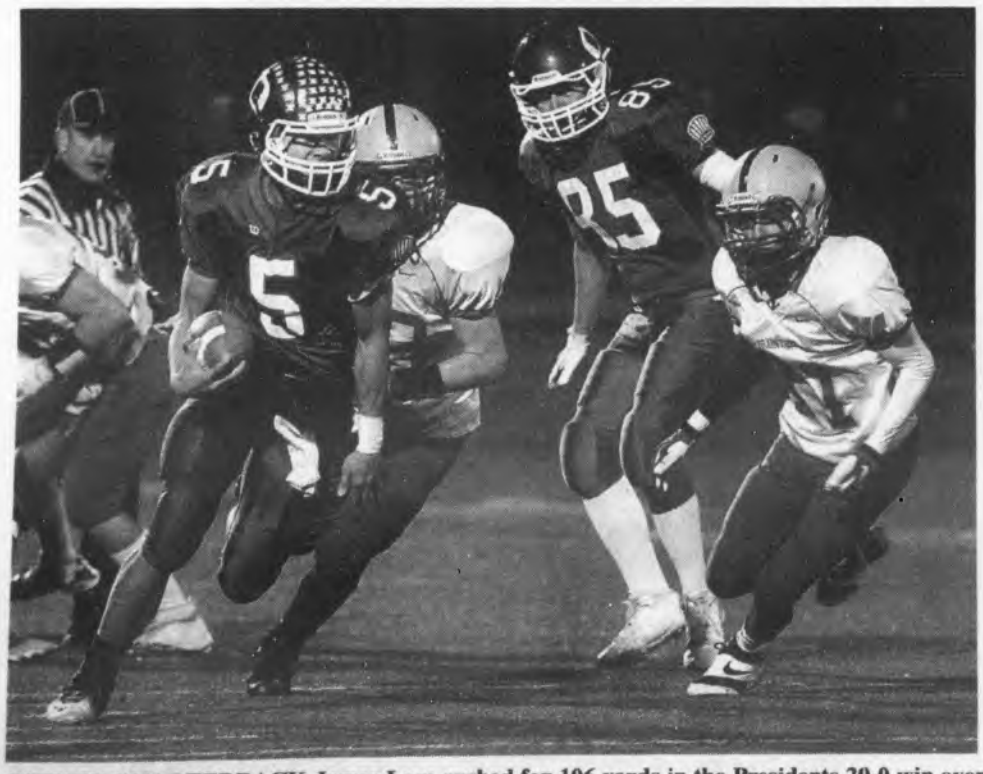

Quincy blanked Braintree, 20-0 in the first game.

"It's the best performance I've seen in my years of coaching in the city," said North coach Mark Nutley after his club went to 2-7 on the season. "He's just a great back. Vision, acceleration, cutting, the ability to make something out of nothing. He has everything and you saw that tonight."

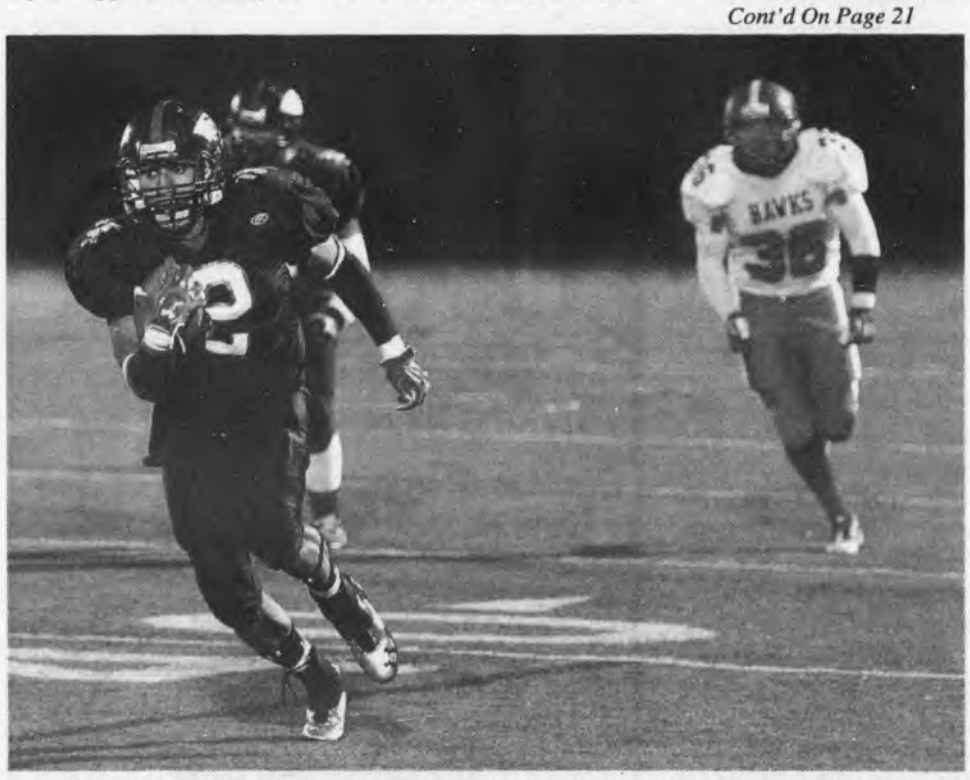

Allen has willed North to its two wins this year. In an earlier 16-3 win over Dedham, he scored twice on an interception return and a run from scrimmage. Each covered more than 60 yards. Against Milford, one of his scores was on a 65-yard kickoff return. He had 372 yards of total offense (all on the ground), he scored on a pair of two-point conversions, and he made the defensive play of the game, a tackle which stopped a Milford rush a yard short of the goal line to preserve a two-point lead early in the fourth period.

"I thought it was my best game and it meant a lot to me," said Allen. "I wanted it for my teammates. It was our last Friday night game at Veterans' Stadium and we wanted to leave with a win. Tonight, my teammates made it happen for me."

That was the difference from the Dedham game. Against Dedham, it was just Allen on two stunning runs on which he broke about 100 tackles. Against Milford, the offensive line led by Vinny Tran and Don Sharp tore open holes against a much bigger opponent. Also, give Fred Barsamain, Derek Hounh, Seamus Broughton, and Zach Dangora plenty of credit for the cracks to run through. When Allen has a crease, an open patch of land to use his pace and speed, forget it.

"The offensive line was great," said Nutley. "I thought I was going to wear Vinny and Donny out, but they gave us holes all night."

The story of the night is well told in Allen's five touchdowns.

The first touchdown. Milford went up, 14-0 in the first seven minutes of the game. North entered at 1-7. The Red Raiders were coming off their worst loss of the season, 28-0 to Bishop Feehan. They were down 14, and they were playing for their season when, for some daffy reason, Milford kicked the ball to Allen.

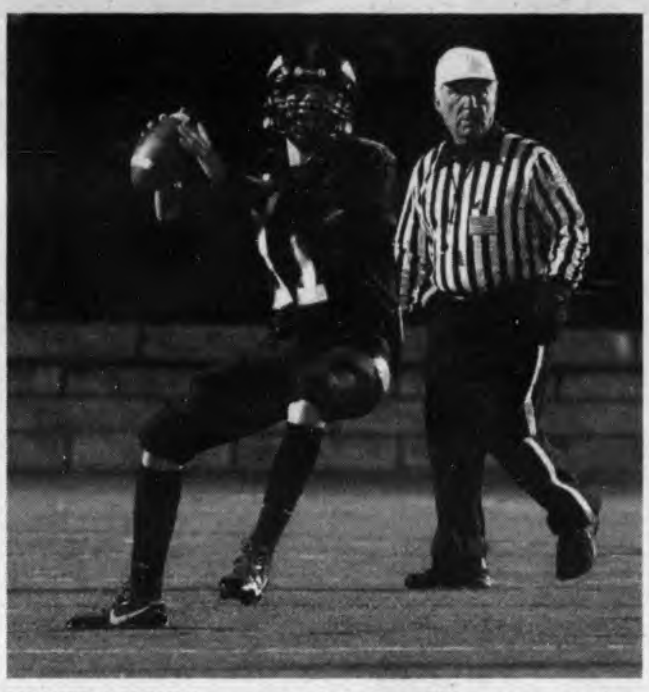

"When it was in the air, I said: What are they doing. Why are they kicking it to me," said Allen.

He took the kickoff at his 25, found a little crack up the middle, veered to the left and raced untouched down the left side line to bring North within 14-6. He was untouched because the blocking was so good and because he is simply too fast to catch.

The second touchdown. Late in the first half, North went 57 yards in 12 plays with Allen accounting for 43 of them including a scoring shot from the four. A fourth-down completion from Andrew Kiley to Dangora kept alive the drive. Allen rushed for the points and a 14-14 tie at halftime

"On those plays close to the goal line, I just try to hit the hole as quickly as I can. On that play, there was a big hole. Give the line the credit," said Allen.

The third touchdown. After Dayvon Jones busted a 67-yard touchdown off a beautifully-run counter play behind Sharp and Tran on the second play of the third period period to give North the lead for good at 20-14, Allen struck again. On fourth-and-two from the Milford 47, he ran a dive left, found enough of a crack at the line, spun through the hole and he was gone. Gone. This one was speed, pure speed. Not a single defender even closed on him after the line of scrimmage. Kiley hit Aidan Brown for the points and a 28-14 lead.

"On short yardage, I just follow the blockers and keep my legs pumping. This time I had room and I accelerated," said Allen.

The fourth touchdown. On the first play of the fourth period after Milford closed within, 28-21, Tran sprang open the middle and Allen ran 31 yards faster than a speeding bullet for a touchdown. He went in standing for the two points and a 36-21 lead.

"Again the hole was there," said Allen. "All night I thought how much we needed this game for our season. We only have two games left. We needed this win and that's the way we all played. I had holes to run through all night."

The fifth touchdown. Milford scored twice to draw within 36-34. The Hawks tried for the points, but Allen closed from cornerback and knocked David Abrego out of bounds a yard short of the two-point conversion and a tie game. On the first play after the kickoff, take a good guess what happened. Allen swept left, picked his way through his blockers, cut back briefly, made two tacklers miss and ran through a hit at the goal line for a 65-yard score and the 42-34 final. Speed and power gave him four touchdowns. Knowing how to run gave him his fifth.

"Milford knew I was coming. When I started off the wing, they were saying: Here he comes again," smiled Allen . "I had to pace that one. I followed my blockers and I had to dodge a couple of tackles near the end zone."

There was, of course, more than Allen. Tran, who has played every minute of every game on the line, had a brilliant two-way effort. Jones had his 67-yard scoring shot and ran for 96 yards in seven plays. Dangora had an excellent two-way game. Captain Eddie Guinto, who has been out since the opener with a knee injury, returned and played well on defense.

Brown and Anthony Capone each had interceptions. Hounh had a fumble recovery. Dangora and Capone stropped a late Milford threat.

There was all this, but mostly, there was Allen on his final Friday night at Veterans Stadium. The smile on his face after the game told well that the cold and the small crowd bothered him not at all. This was his night.

"I'll miss this. I'll miss playing here on Friday nights," he said.

Right back at you.

some-Fields are on the field together, it is like having two tailbacks. Lam does not run linle a quarterback. He runs with speed, vision, power, and he is actually the more elusive one in the open field. He could start at tailback for most teams. Handsome-Fields is an emerging talent with speed and power who can shatter tackles and score from anywhere on the field.

"He has such good control of his body," said Reardon. "When he spins or makes a cut, he can control exactly where he goes. I think that's why he breaks tackles."

In their first meeting, Braintree hurt Quincy with its passing, but the Wamps didn't get their only completion until there was just 1:55 left in the game Friday night. The wind was a big factor. Two bigger factors were the play of Armani Cardoso and Jake Bergonzi. Cardoso and Robbie Munroe anchored the secondary which left few openings. Bergonzi was a terror all over the field at linebacker, making tackles, rushing the passer and dropping into coverage.

Hines, Kozlowski, and James Askins supplied the pass rush which made throwing uncomfortable.

"We rushed the passer, we simplified our coverages and played them well," said Reardon.

The Wamps had their best threat of the game when they moved to the Quincy 20 on the opening drive of the game. Cardoso saved a touchdown with an open field tackle of J.P. Salisbury who had a clear path to the end zone. Bergonzi, Hines, Askins and Curtis Calley made the defensive plays to stop the drive, and after the initial march, Quincy only gave up 80 yards rushing and six first downs.

"The initial stop was important because it set a good tone for us," said Reardon. "We had good penetration into the backfield and that forced them to the middle where we made the plays."

Quincy went 80 yards in 10 plays for a score after stopping Braintree's threat in the first period. Handsome-Fields accounted for 73 of them, including a 25-yard burst up the middle. He finished it from the nine with a perfect cutback off a sweep. Thomaz Silva kicked the first of his two extra points for a 7-0 lead.

The Presidents upped it to 14-0 in the third on a 52-yard, 11-play march. Handsome-Fields had a 15- yard sweep behind a great kickout block by Jalen Chase. Lam scored from the four and Silva's kick made it 14-0.

Quincy's finished the scoring with a 70-yard, 10-play drive in the fourth. Lam and Hansdome-Fields shared the running load. Lam had a 32-yard breakout sweep on which he made a terrific open-field cut that, well, only a tailback could make. Lam scored from the one for a 20-0 lead with 9:05 left which held up until the end.

"I thought in the first game, they were a little more physical," said Reardon. "Tonight I thought we were the more physical team and that lets us do what we do best, which is run the ball."

Chiropractor

RESTING ON A SOLID FOUNDATION

If a foundation is crooked or cracked, the building resting upon it is likely to experience structural problems. Similarly, human feet are subject to wear and tear and injuries that can lead individuals to modify their gait, which leads to significant stresses on the joints of their legs, hips, and lower spine. Even without pain, foot dysfunction can cause the whole body to overcompensate, often resulting in back pain and other symptoms. The chiropractor can perform diagnostic tests, including examinations of gait and foot function, as well as palpate the feet and ankles, to measure any limitations on range of motion. Once the nature of a foot problem is diagnosed, the chiropractor can take steps to avert related problems.

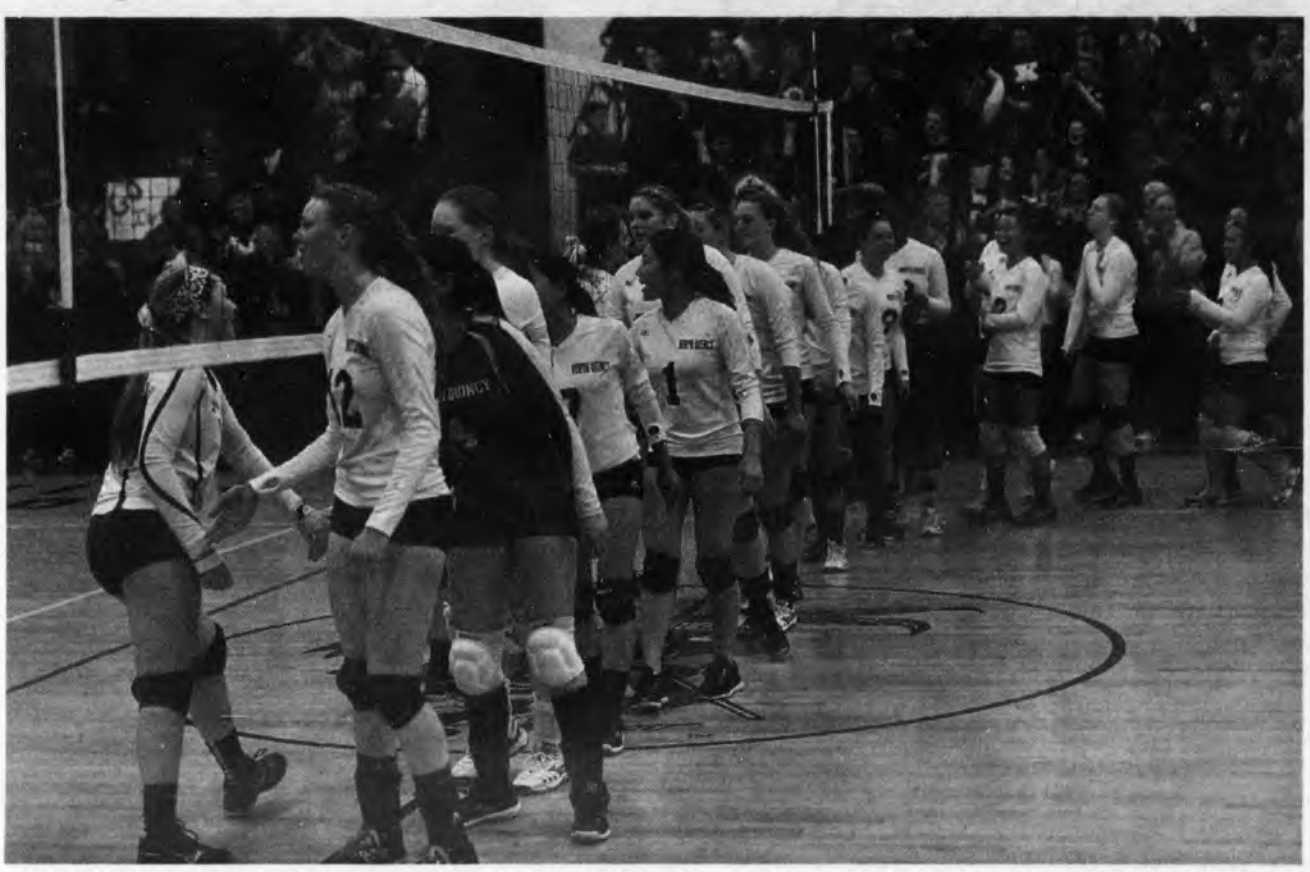

Changing your gait is like learning to write with your non-dominant hand. You may have spent years running with a heel strike, it is impossible to change that overnight. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we suggest a transition period of 2-3 months to make a gait change. To learn how professional, quality chiropractic care can help you, please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We are specialists in body mechanics. North Quincy Volleyball Prevails In Home Finale

Topple King Philip High School In Sectional Semifinals, 3-2

By BILL GRIFFIN

They have played with and against each other since middle school. There have been four years of practices and games in their gym, a place of great memories and great friends. North Quincy's volleyball team, a team of seniors, knew one thing as the final points of the final game of the final home match opened up before them.

They didn't want it to end in this place.

Senior Maya Umoren supplied the power, senior Carolyn Schwartz delivered a masterful finishing kick and a nerveless freshman Isabelle Flaherty showed the softest of touches as North made its home finale an unforgettable one with a thrilling 3-2 win over King Philip in the semifinals of the Division 1 Central-East sectionals before a large rock-and-roll crowd last week.

"We knew it was a our last game at home and we didn't want our season to end in our gym," said Umoren who had 17 kills, 14 digs, and ruled the net with her big hits in the fifth and decisive game. "We've known each other so long. We wanted to make our mark, leave something that people would remember and this was our chance at home."

"Grit and poise," smiled coach Kerry Ginty after her team, which has 13 seniors, went to 19-3 and advanced after losing in the semifinals in 2011 and 2012 with an exhausting 25-17, 22-25, 25-23, 21-25, 15-12 marathon win. "This is a special senior class, just the nicest group of kids you could coach. They make it fun to come to practice every day. I was happy for them."

It was the best of tournament play, a dead-even match, one team's season surely to end and a crowd which stood and roared for nearly 2 1/2 hours. Entering the fifth game, the teams were not only tied, they were perfectly matched. North had scored 93 points, King Philip had scored 90. They had swapped brilliant volleyball full of finishing smashes, diving saves and roller-coaster points which seemed to last through the night. A fifth game was the only proper way to end it.

"We wanted to stay calm, make sure we talked to each other, and remember to play our game," said Umoren.

"I can't remember a better atmosphere for volleyball in this gym," said Ginty. "This crowd was big and it was loud. They helped us a lot. Kudos to the students and teachers for showing this support."

Just as they were in the entire match, the Red Raiders were just a shade better in the fifth game. They never trailed, and were never tied after taking a 2-1 lead. They walked the ledge with a one and two-point lead which was as slender as 13-12 until Umoren and Schwartz nailed down the final two points.

"Experience helps. We had been there before. We knew there were no second chances," said Ginty.

Umoren put away four points in the final game, two on slams that were not coming back and two on perfect touch shots. Schwartz had two kills and an acrobatic save which set up a Umoren kill. Flaherty calmly flicked away two soft volleys at the net. Fittingly, Schwartz, the best player on the floor, ended it with an ace which split the King Philip back line. It was great stuff.

"I just thanked God I was able to hand Carolyn the ball and send her back for the final serve," said Ginty.

Schwartz played a complete match of volleyball, from the net to the back line to defense and keeping the ball alive (17 digs), to finishing points at net (10 kills, four blocks) to being the calm, gifted presence North could always look to when the tension and noise grew and grew.

"All year, Carolyn has been like this. She's played great defense which is something we never asked her to do before," said Ginty.

Umoren varied her finishes from touch shots early to emphatic kills at the end which left no doubt. Lauren Magoon fired winners (13 kills) into the left corner and controlled hard drives (11 digs) from the Warriors to keep alive points. Abby Mayo (four kills, two digs) served hard and well, blocked and finished points at the net.

Nancy Huang (a career-high 33 digs) returned hard, low serves with control and went to the floor all night to breathe life into points. Angela Kou (30 assists, three aces) and Cindi Hazelton (20 assists) moved the ball to the front line and set passes at the right height and speed for the hitters. Ivy Pham entered and gave North just what the Red Raiders needed, a controlled, dependable return against the hard-serving Warriors. Jane Minton (six digs, one kill) patrolled the back line and finished well when an opening appeared.

Flaherty (10 kills, 12 blocks) stood and leaped at the net, smiling throughout the match, and showing an unteachable sense for finding the open space with her touch and slams.

Schwartz, Umoren, Magoon, Mayo, Huang, Hazelton, Kou, Pham, Minton, Flaherty. Eight seniors and a freshman. One memorable match.

"Izzie has a sense for finding space you can't teach," said Ginty. "Lauren is just a great athlete who hit winners all night. Abby was fantastic. All of them, the seniors and Izzie, it was an unbelievable effort."

Great Ride For North Quincy Volleyball

By BILL GRIFFIN

The season ended with a loss in the sectional finals to one of the best teams in the state, but it was a wonderful ride for North Quincy's volleyball team and for its remarkable senior class which set a high standard for all who will follow.

Newton North used a powerful offense to defeat the Red Raiders, 3-0 in the final of the Central-East Sectional at Hudson Saturday, but the golden memories of the season will far outlive the final disappointment.

"They had a big offense that really didn't give us a lot of chances to get the ball to our hitters for opportunities of our own," said coach Kerry Ginty whose team finished the season at 19-4 after the 25-12, 25-11, 25-18 loss in the finals.

Lauren Magoon, who was terrific in the semifinals against King Philip, had four kills. Maya Umoren and freshman Isabelle Flaherty had two apiece.

The hallmark of the season was the leadership and maturity of the 13 seniors who propelled the Red Raiders to a fast start, survived a tough injury to Natasha Sautter, and helped North win every match it should have won. There were no letdowns. Only the best beat them. Duxbury was unbeaten when it defeated North twice. Barnstable is undefeated. Newton North beat top-seed Brookline and many feel Newton will finish as state champ.

"I knew the leadership would be good," said Ginty. "It was better than I imagined. It was there from the first day of double sessions. When Natasha was injured, they stepped up. Izzie, as a freshman, showed a lot of poise. They were a joy to coach."

The attitude was not only set by those who played great minutes, it came from role players who worked hard in practice and filled in just the right spots with their special talents when Ginty needed them during matches.

"It is hard to come to practice every day and work hard when you know you're probably not going to play a lot. It takes a special kind of commitment as a teammate," said Ginty. "We had a lot of kids who didn't get individual accolades, but how hard they practiced made the starters improve and get better. When Natasha was hurt, all she could do was serve. She made us better returners by serving in practice."

Annie Wong, Ivy Pham, Simone Matthews and Noelle Brady all helped. Pham contributed a strong return of serve. Brady played well at the net. Jane Minton and Abby Mayo, both of whom saw good minutes, but received little notice, helped with return of serve, serving and solid all-court play.

Carolyn Schwartz was the captain and one of the finest players in the state. If you ever saw Larry Bird play basketball, you understand how Schwartz plays volleyball. Not only does she have all the skills, she can give her team exactly what it needs in any given match. She was in the top five in blocks in the state and in the top 10 in hitting percentage. She served aces and winners, she dug out shots on the floor, and she returned serve with control and consistency.

"She never had the opportunity to play defense before we asked her to this year. I think her overall skills put her over the top," said Ginty. "She led off the court as well. She was first at the net in practice and she'd be the last one after practice, cleaning up water bottles in the gym. She is a special kid, a tribute to her parents."

The highlights of the season were a five-game non-league win over Fontbonne in the season's opener, a great five-game battle with Duxbury at home and the two tough wins over Quincy.

"The Fontbonne win was important because I thought it helped set the tone for the season," said Ginty.

One of the factors which separated North from its opponents was conditioning. No team is in better shape. Volleyball requires short bursts of quickness in matches which can last 2 ½ hours. Conditioning can decide wins and losses.

"I won't say they love it, but it's part of practice and they do it," smiled Ginty. "We do weight-training as well. Anyone who goes through the four years of our program has a sense of accomplishment because they did the conditioning. I think it gives them confidence and helps them in life."

With 13 seniors leaving, there will be work to do next year for North who has established a volleyball tradition which goes back decades. Gabrielle Flaherty, Isabelle Flaherty, and junior Camille Mullaney are established veterans, and North has a great feeder system from the middle schools and summer camps.

"Most of the hard work is done in the off-season, in the summer camps, not in the fall," said Ginty. "We're fortunate to have the Mass. Juniors played right in our back yard over the summer and that will help us with next year's team."

Mullaney, Bryson Twins Qualify For All-State At MIAA Eastern Mass.

Emily Bryson ran a race for the ages clocking an 18:17 over the winding Wrentham course good for third in the Division II race and sister Julia placed 13th (19:05) making the cut for all state as the North girls racked up 221 points for 8th.

Other members of that squad were Samin Charepoo 37th in 20:01, Inayah Paul 70th (20:51), Julia Brady 98th 21:58, Marguerite Belcher 100th (22:05), LaQueen Arias 103rd (22:06).

In the boys race, Mike Mullaney worked his way through the pack to move from 15th to 8th to also make the cut for Allstate.

"We haven't had this many qualifiers since the early 2000's" said Head Coach Geoff Hennessy. "Everyone had a good week of practice and an excellent speed workout Wednesday so I knew they were going to have a great day.

"The first rain interrupted practice of the season was Thursday, so we've trained effectively."

In fact, the North girls surpassed league rivals Whitman-Hanson and Hingham on the day. "The only school from here to the Cape to outperform us was Plymouth North" said Hennessy. Ironically the Plymouths will be joining the Patriot league next fall.

Julia & Emily Bryson Fast Becoming Elite Runners

By JOE REARDON

November is traditionally championship time for high school cross country, and for twin sisters Emily and Julia Bryson, the solid results they're stringing together now were hatched during the hot, humid summer months.

The 16-year-old North Quincy High juniors spent the summer running up to 40 miles per week on the streets of Quincy and the trails of Northern New England during their time at cross country camp. The weekly long runs were coming at 9 to 10 miles a pop. Their training was moderate, but more importantly, consistent.

They were primed, fit and ready to race when September hit, but it was the November meets that they were most interested in and where they wanted to do the most damage.

For Emily, the goal was very clear cut. She wanted to qualify and run well at the Div. 1 State meet after a disappointing 33rd-place finish last fall at Northfield Mountain. Julia's main objective was to punch her ticket to Saturday's All-State meet at the Gardner Golf Course in Central Mass and qualify as an individual for the first time.

With apologies to Jagger and Richards, North Quincy's "Glimmer Twins" got plenty of satisfaction when they took the Eastern Mass Cross Country Championships by storm and came away with sterling races.

Racing in the Div. 2 event in chilly, windy conditions on the spongy 3.1-mile Wrentham Developmental Center course, Emily ran a controlled race from the start and pushed hard the last mile and a half. She crossed the finish line in third place with a personal-best time of 18:17.7.

Julia picked the perfect day to have the race of her life, ripping a stunning personal best of 19:05.3 for 13th to secure her trip this weekend to Central Mass.

Emily went into the event brimming with confidence, but very aware that she was going up against a solid field. She went hard from the start, but was running well within herself, waiting to make a hard push over the second half of the mostly flat, maze-like layout.

"I just went out and ran fast," Emily said with a huge smile just minutes after garnering the bronze medal. "I ran a new PR (personal record) so I'm happy. I stayed back in the beginning and I picked it up halfway through. I was tired but I really pushed it at the end. I felt comfortable and I think I can do really well next week."

She doesn't intend to let the same scenario play out as last year at Northfield Mountain when she was jostled at the start and fell behind early after running so well the previous Saturday in the Eastern Mass championships to finish ninth.

BRYSON TWINS Julia (left) and Emily are cross-country standouts who continue to improve.

"It wasn't a good race for me," said Emily. "I'm hoping to kind of redeem myself this year. I got a really bad start and we came to this narrow path and I got pushed aside. It (Northfield Mountain) was definitely a challenging course."

Just days before this year's EMass meet, the twins handicapped their race before heading out for a workout at Pageant Field. Julia said she was itching to have a strong race at Wrentham and gain one of the individual slots that would get her to Gardner.

"I really want to see if I can break 19:30 now," Julia said. "My next goal is to get into All-States because I haven't qualified yet. The division is just so competitive. I definitely feel like I have a better chance at going to All-States. Last year I thought I had a chance, but this year I know I can do it."

A seasoned veteran who has been running since the age of 5 when she and Emily tagged along with their dad Jim on runs, Julia's first breakthrough race of the season came at the Twilight Cross Country Invitational in October on the grounds of the Barnstable Fairgrounds. Running under the lights and in the shadows of the notoriously fast course, she broke 20 minutes in the 5K for the first time.

Julia found herself in a racing groove and she took full advantage, earning Patriot League All-Star honors after placing a solid seventh in the league meet, clocking 20:14.34 on Silver Lake's 3.1-mile course.

Up front, Emily was dueling with Silver Lake's Anna Pearsons on the winding trails near the Lakers' campus. Emily surged once and that's all it took to break Pearsons and capture the league title in 19:01.76. Pearson was 40 meters back in 19:09.49.

Emily wasn't surprised by Pearson's gritty run. "I knew she was good and that she was going to be my competition," she said. "I ran with her and she was sticking with me. It was her home course too. I feel like she probably did have an advantage because she knew the course so well. Going in we both had the same amount of training."

The twins feed off one another's success and are each other's biggest fan. Any competitiveness between the two faded long ago. The pair began to catch the eye of the running community when they finished 1-2 in the Quincy Middle School Cross Country Championships.

"It's like having a training partner for life," said Emily. "It's something unique. People think we're really competitive, but we're not like that at all. We really respect what the other one does. We build strategies and encourage each other. As little kids we were more competitive; seeing who could beat the other. She's always been a faster sprinter than me."

Julia added: "There never really was a rivalry. My dad runs and ever since we were little kids we'd go out and run with him. We took it up and followed him. Then we joined the Quincy Track Club."

The Brysons have been under the tutelage of legendary track and cross country coach Geoff Hennessy since elementary school and their days with the Quincy Track Club. Hennessy said the ongoing joke in the Patriot League was his problems would be solved once the Brysons became freshmen.

Both girls have complete confidence in Hennessy as a coach and his approach to preparing them. They credit him with much of their success. "We've known Geoff since we were 5-years-old," said Julia. "He's up there with our parents. He's a big motivator."

The Brysons, Hennessy said, have been a joy to coach and not just because they are such standouts. They're smart, good kids, tough and "have a quiet resolve to get things done."

"In middle school they really started to show what they were made of," said Hennessy. "If they had a bad race, the next race they had would be fantastic. They would always learn something from a loss and apply it to the next experience. They completely understood what is required to be good."

It's the work they put in during the summer months that has led to the Brysons advancing to the next level among the state's best harriers.

"We've met a lot of things we wanted to do," said Hennessy. "It's been a good season but it didn't happen by accident. They did their summer running, they went to camp and they did all the right things. They're very easy to coach. They're extremely bright and they've got good parents. Everything is the way it should be. You wish every kid was like that. The nice part is that they just continue to improve."

Desmond-Myers Fooball Classic

Quincy Youth Football Shines In All-Star Game

By SEAN HALPIN

The Quincy Youth Football League concluded a banner year on Sunday when they played the first ever All-Star Game in the League's 63 year history. The Game was known as the QYFL Desmond-Myers All-Star Football Classic.

The Game is named for two men, the late Joseph L. Desmond (1924-2003) of the North Quincy Apaches and the late William J. Myers (1934-2013) of the Quincy Point Panthers. Joe Desmond and Billy Myers where instrumental in the League's success for many years. The League's two divisions are named after these men who combined for over 90 years of service to the Quincy Youth Football League.

The two squads prepared for the big game by practicing all week, under the lights, at Kincaide Park in Quincy. The teams practiced at opposite ends of the field every night. By Thursday night, curiosity and a competitive itch took over as the two teams squared off at mid-field in a precursor to Sunday's match up.

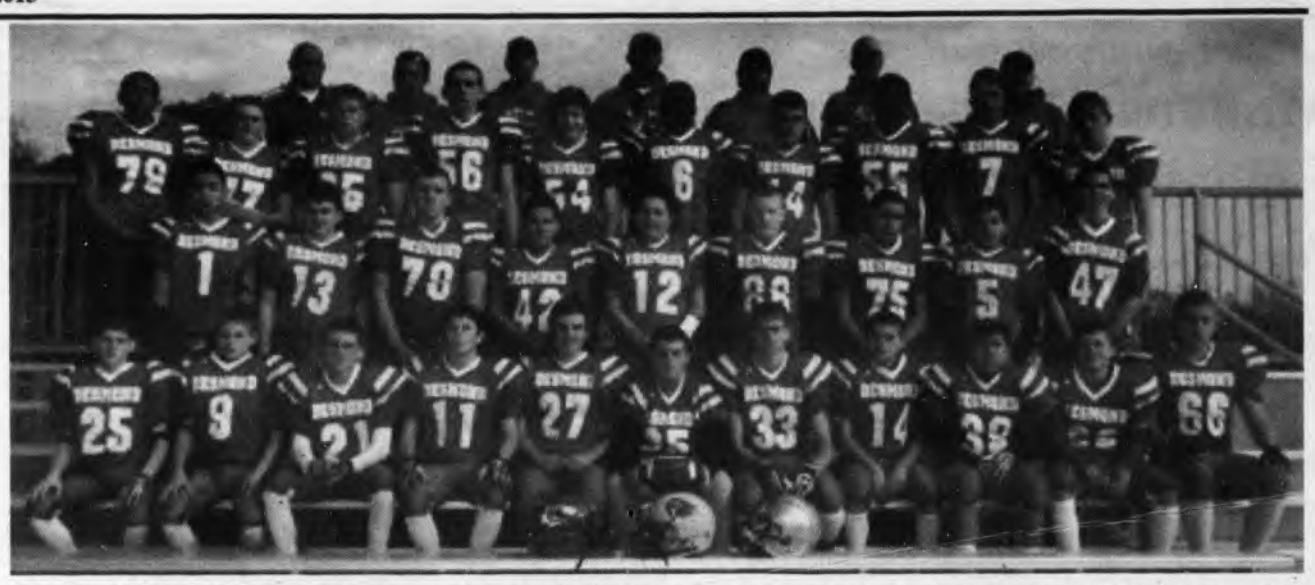

Sunday afternoon was a perfect day for football. Partly cloudy and 54 degrees was the forecast and ideal football conditions.

The captains met at mid-field for the coin toss. Captains for Team Myers were Rich Laine (Mustangs) Christ Pham (Manets) and Bryan Hanly (Panthers). Captains for Team Desmond where James Crump (Elks), Max Storch (Storm) and Jake Roos (Apaches).

Team Desmond's Tri-Captains where also joined by two of Joseph Desmond's great grandchildren: Desmond Joseph Wilkins and his. brother Declan. Desmond shares his great-grandfather's name as well as his birthday and took the field in tribute to him.

Quincy Golf Developing Talented Players, Momentum For 2014

By JOE REARDON

Forget for a moment that the Quincy High golf team put up just one win this fall. The Presidents' biggest accomplishment on the greens was to develop players and gather momentum for the coming seasons.

And with 20 players on the squad, which represents the biggest turnout in 10 years, Quincy is headed in the right direction for future success. What head coach Lou Venturelli needs are players who are willing to take their game to the next level in what is a very tough Patriot League schedule.

"We go up against Duxbury, Hingham and Scituate," Venturelli pointed out. "They're very tough. Their kids started playing golf at a very young age. A lof of my kids come to the high school and haven't picked up a golf club. It's kind of tough to compete with those kids."

Venturelli made a coaching decision to play more of the younger kids in order to give them experience in match play. That move can only be a positive down the line. He did see players polish their game as the weeks went on and is confident that added play in the offseason will bring added success to the team. Talk of starting a golf program in the middle schools has also drawn rave reviews.

"I've talked to all the teachers and they're excited to start something," said Venturelli. "It's (their success) all going to depend on their committment to the sport. I only had two kids who had memberships. The kids got to get out and play. That's how you got better. You have to play a lot. You can't just show up and play. Some of the courses are more difficult than others. Granite Links is far tougher than Furnace Brook. I liked the fact that I played more freshmen at the end and gave kids matches they normally wouldn't have had. I decided to play a whole lof of kids this year."

Despite the one win, there is talent on the roster. Senior captain Mike Pugsley averaged 2-over-par for nine holes this season and is expected to be selected as a Patriot League All-Star. Pugsley has the sectional tourney on the horizon and is looking for his best play of the season.

"He played consistently great golf all season and I am hoping he can wrap up his high school golf career with a good showing in the upcoming sectional tournament," said Venturelli. "Mike put together some great rounds this season, consistently staying close to par in many of the matches in our difficult Patriot League schedule."

Sophomore Ben Regan also played at a high level this fall and Venturelli only expects him to improve the next two years. "He works hard at his game and he comes from a golf family," said Venturelli.

It will be tough losing senior Chris Smith, who was solid from start to finish this season in holding down the No. 3 position. Fellow senior Matt McLellan was especially key in the Presidents' lone win over the season over rival North Quincy. Playing at Presidents Golf Course, McLellan clinched the victory by shooting a 44. Senior Jack Fischer was a starter for Quincy all season and played consistently for the Presidents.

There were plenty of highlights from the junior class and Venturelli is looking forward to having Brian O'Cllaghan, Aidan Pugsley and first-year player Chris Doyle back in 2014. Steve DeIorio should be one of the golfers to set the tone for next year's team after a solid campaign on the fairways. Venturelli regarded DeIorio as the most improved player on the team.

"I expect he will continue to improve and it should pay off in his senior season," Venturelli said.

Sophomore Billy Connors was the top underclassman and cracked into the top eight on the team regularly. As for the remainder of the team, Venturelli and his brother Don, who has been a volunteer assistant since 2002, see nothing but upside.

"We had over 20 boys come out in late August and we couldn't be more thrilled," said Venturelli. "We tried to hold onto all of them and it produced some very promising players."

Among the players who will be back to improve on Quincy's one-win season are juniors Terrold Stark, Ryan Harty and Steve Ross and Ben Brownlow, and a crew of promising freshmen that includes Mike Tervakoski, Shamus McBride, James O'Leary, Luke Marcheski and Sam McGahey.

Venturelli's love for golfing and coaching hasn't wavered after 10 years, "I love what I'm doing," he said. "It's one of my passions."

rooting on the Myers Division squads and the West Quincy Elks Cheerleaders did the same for the Desmond Division All-Stars.

On the opening series of the match up, the Desmond All-Stars drove the ball deep into Myers All-Star territory. The Myers defense forced a turnover on downs on the 15 yard line. On the next play, the Myers QB attempted a deep pass but was intercepted by Desmond DB, Corey Shaw on the 47 yard line. Three plays later, Desmond RB, Max Storch raced in for a 22 yard TD. Dara Griffin kicked the extra points as Team Desmond led 8-0 with 4:05 left to go in the 1st quarter.

On the next series, Desmond DT Miles Easterling recovered a Myers fumble on the 30 yard line. The Desmond offense drove the ball deep but penalties forced them back to the 25. On fourth down, kicker, Dara Griffin attempted a 35 yard field goal but, missed wide left.

Just before halftime, Desmond QB, Frazier completed a 33 yard pass to WR Shorn Hawthorne who ran the ball down to the 2 yard line. On the next play, Frazier ran it in for a 2 yard TD. Griffin's Conversion kick was blocked by Jayo DaRosa. Team Desmond entered the locker room with a 14 point lead.

It was an even battle through most of the 3rd quarter as Anthony Epps got the Myers offense moving at both quarterback and wide receiver. Both defenses were stingy as Myers DB Jason Fratus had a big interception in the end zone to halt a Desmond drive.

Late in the 3rd quarter, Desmond DB, Nathan Sleiman intercepted a Myers pass on the 5 yard line. Two plays later, Desmond RB Storch ran for an amazing, 98 yard TD. Frazier rushed for the conversion as the Desmond team now led 21-0.

On the next series, Sleiman intercepted another pass and returned it 31 yards to the 28 yard line. Sleiman's Apache teammate and Desmond QB, Dylan Malcolm threw a 26 yard TD pass to Hawthorne. Griffin kicked the conversion as Team Desmond led 29-0.

Late in the fourth quarter, Team Myers was driving when Desmond DT, Mark Monahan stripped the ball carrier of the football and was headed for the end zone. Myers DB, Jules Wiggins stripped Monahan of the football and ran it out to the 46 yard line. Moments later, Desmond DB, Storch intercepted a pass and ran it in 51 yards for a TD. Desmond center, Miles Easterling ran a well executed, center sneak in for the conversion. The Desmond All-Stars were victorious 36-0 in the Inaugural All-Star game.

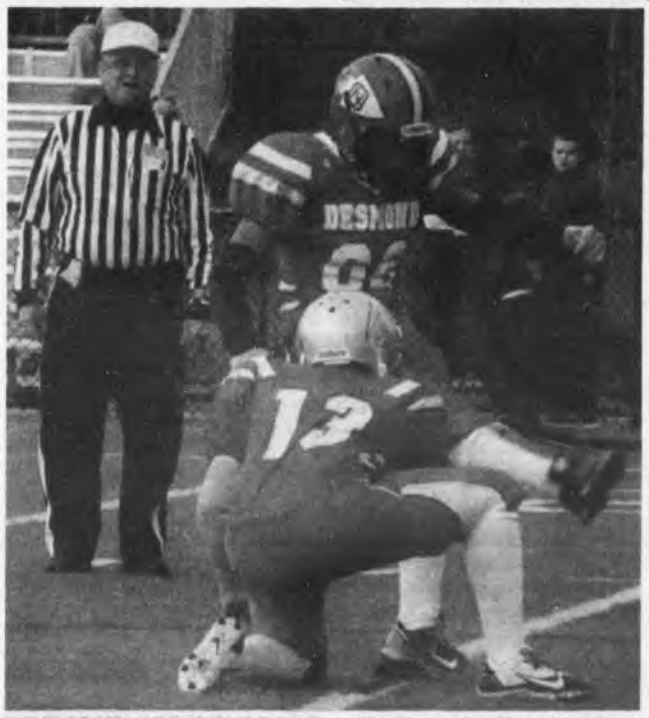

President Paul Doherty presided over a post game certificate ceremony in which each player was recognized for his participation in the Desmond-Myers All-Star football Classic.

"This was a great finale for our QYFL season, every team participated and had a great experience. This All-Star game was made possible by a dedicated group of players, coaches and league officials. This is just the latest in a series of great improvements we are making to the QYFL," said Doherty.

If you are interested in joining the QYFL in 2014, check them out on the web at www.QYFL.com. League-wide sign-up day will be at Pageant field in mid-May.

★ ★ ★ ★ A Call To Veterans Concludes ★ ★ ★ ★

By GEORGE NICHOLSON

As this article goes to press, my term as Commander of the Quincy Veterans Council will be concluded. I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the delegates from all the veteran organizations on this Council for their continued support and dedication. I would like to express my appreciation to Mr. Tom Stansbury, the Director of Quincy Veterans Services for his ongoing enthusiasm for and commitment to all the veterans of this City and their families. I reserve a special thank you to Mayor Tom Koch, each and every member of the Quincy City Council, the various City Departments, Senator John Keenan, State Representatives Tacky Chan, Bruce Ayers Ron Mariano and Walter Timilty, Sheriff Mike Bellotti and District Attorney Mike Morrissey and many others, all of whom, as leaders of our city and community have been our most stalwart supporters, defenders and advocates in pursuing, maintaining and improving Veterans programs and in preserving the legacy of the service of the veterans of this great city. It has been an extraordinary pleasure and honor for me to know and work alongside such a distinctive and distinguished group of political leaders. I would also be incredibly remiss if I did not recognize and thank Bob Bosworth, the editor of The Quincy Sun and Quincy's best-known senior photographer, Bob Noble, for their continuing efforts to sustain the visible presence, events and accomplishments of the veterans of our community within the pages of this fine newspaper.

The mission of the Quincy Veterans Council remains a work in progress and it will always be such. The needs of our veterans, present and future, in this community, change with the times and we need to be able to address the issues and come up with the needed solutions. I have tried in the last two "Call" articles I have done in The Quincy Sun, to paint a clear picture of the status of veterans in our community and to provide some useful information gleaned from my own experience and those of other members of the Council that can be of help to our fellow veterans.

Before I leave office, I feel compelled to expose, one more time, an ongoing and glaring deficiency in the fabric of our veteran community and that is the ongoing deterioration and disintegration of the veterans organizations within our city. We are literally dying on the vine because of the lack of support. There are approximately 5,000 veterans in the city of Quincy and yet we are becoming ghosts in our own community. Everyone knows you exist, but the simple and inescapable question is, where are you? I know that most of the veteran population in the city is comprised of veterans of the Korean and Vietnam Wars. That makes us an aging population without question, but we are supposed to be living longer and better lives. Being 60+ is not as old as it used to be. Being 60+ means a wealth of wisdom, experience, vitality, time and maturity from which all of us could yet potentially benefit.

In my last article, I described the existing veterans organizations, their differences and similarities and how you can contact representatives of each in order to establish or reestablish your association with them. We all know and understand that things change in life as time marches on. Where once there seemed to be a veterans organization post or chapter in almost every neighborhood in our community (15 in total), there now stands only three and each of those currently struggles mightily to keep their doors open. Most of the organizations have seen individual memberships dwindle to the point where they could no longer sustain their own post quarters and the remaining remnants of them meet in one of the other existing post homes, in community centers and the like, but still the attrition continues.

There is no clear-cut or discernible answer for this decline. With so many veterans and their families in our city who are eligible to join our veterans organizations and yet do not do so, the only analogy I can think of, that truly describes the situation is the incongruity of dying of thirst in the middle of a big, fresh-water lake! We may never return to the heydays of our organizations, but at this point, there is certainly no justification for these being the last days of our organizations. Please join us. Help bring us back from the brink. It is up to you.

Speaking of "up to you" and making a giant leap to another subject, there has been a tremendous amount of justifiable attention and focus lately placed upon the Veterans Administrations' current lack of ability to process so many of its disability claims in a timely fashion. Having worked in that very venue for 35 years, I know that there are a number of reasons, ranging from government shutdowns, fiscal appropriations, technology problems and the amount of time it takes to make new personnel become experienced and proficient claim processors. The fact of the matter is that one of the biggest problems, in claims processing, is the quality of the claims as presented by the veterans themselves. Any and every advocate for veterans disability benefits will tell you, with absolute certainty and correctness, that any claim which is fully developed and complete at the time it is submitted to the VA for consideration, will be processed to completion in a remarkably short period of time. The fact of the matter is that a lot of misinformation about the claims process and the appeal process still exists out there and still impedes claim completion. For example, it is not at all true that an automatic denial of your claim is always the first step in the process. No such stipulation exists with the VA claims processing system. It is actually amazingly possible to know exactly what is required of a claim before you file it, in order to give yourself the best chance for success with it. Very often, the longer time period that passes between the time of original illness or injury and the time you file a claim for it, the more difficult it can be to prove that what bothers you now is still the direct result of what happened to you back then.

Do you really know what the Appeal system is and how it works at its several levels? First of all you need to understand that an appeal to the VA of a disability claim (Board of Veterans Appeals) which it has denied, is simply a review, by a separate set of eyes, of the information and evidence provided and the rating schedule provisions applied to it in the original decision in order to see if this second review would come to a different conclusion than that of the first consideration. You already know that the time frame to get this appeal review accomplished is lengthy. If the VA disagrees with the regional office decision, they can overturn the decision and direct that the claim be authorized when it is returned to the Regional Office or they can return it for further development and consideration and that too, eats up more time.

If the denial is upheld, then you have no choice but to go out, get and present to the VA, exactly what is needed in the way of medical evidence, to be successful in that claim the next time it is submitted. If it turns out that evidence was always available to you and yet never obtained, then you get hit with the realization that you have wasted a lot of time and lost a lot of potential retroactive benefit. VA disability decisions are always based solely on the confirmable and sustainable strength of the medical evidence presented in support of the case and never on the basis of the eloquence or influence of the presenter. The Board of Veterans Appeals will not consider new evidence submitted that was not reviewed by the regional office decision. In that instance the entire case would simply be referred back to the regional office for consideration of the new evidence and if denied, a new appeal must be generated.

The higher level of the appeal process, the Court of Veterans Appeals is the appeal process which requires the greatest amount of time. It was designed to review the procedural processes and regulatory applications that were applied in the deliberation of the claim and not review or address any evidentiary issues. This is the level were the lawyers get involved. I want to reemphasize to you here that an appeal is not an integral or mandatory part of the claims presentation process. If you sit down with a valid claim with an advocate who knows what he's talking about and guides you properly and if you have the patience to go out and obtain the evidence prescribed, you will have your disability claim adjudicated quickly, properly, fairly and without the need for any appeal process.

The Veterans Administration has two types of disability programs for which disability benefits are paid. One is a non-service-connected disability pension program, which is actually nothing more than an income supplement program that has a required disability component to it and is based largely on financial need. The second and most wide-ranging disability benefit is the service-connected disability. There are actually five ways in which you can acquire a service-connected disability designation from the VA. All require medical documentation and substantiation. The first category is a claim for disabilities, or the residuals of same, resulting from a documented injury or illness sustained while in active military service. Second category is service connection by aggravation. This disability is granted when it is established that a condition which preexisted your entry into service was clearly aggravated or its deterioration accelerated beyond normal progression during your military service and was not the result of a new injury superimposed upon the old one. A third category for service connection is one where a new injury is acquired and recognized as the direct or contributing result of some other already existing service-connected disability. A classic example of this would be the back condition caused over a long period of time by the mechanical stress of more weight bearing on one side of the back due to an already service-connected leg injury of some sort. The fourth category of service-connected disability is the presumptive service connection. This is associated with the condition you develop some time after service for which no prior treatment or symptoms existed or were documented and modern medicine knows that the standard gestation period for that condition probably began during a timeframe when you were on active duty. Examples of this kind of service connection are the disabilities now recognized for Agent Orange exposure. The fifth and final category of service connection is the disability or injury that is incurred as the direct result of VA medical care and or treatment. This one is, in essence, a Tort Action against the VA.

I began my career, in helping veterans, as a service officer for the American Legion at the Boston VA Regional Office. Over the years there, I developed a reputation as one of the best service officers, among all the veterans organizations service officers there , and I even received several very rare commendations from the Chairman of the Board of Veterans Appeals in Washington for the quality of some of the briefs that I had prepared on appeal on behalf of my clients at that time. When the VA regional office realized that I was interested in working for them, they offered me a job and my federal career was off and running. Over the years I have dealt with thousands of veterans in the office, at bedside in hospitals and in their homes and I cannot tell you the number of times that I have encountered veterans who have lost so much time and so much compensation benefit potential with disability claims because of poor advice, bad advice or general ignorance of the availability of the disability benefit and/or the procedure for claiming them. Over the years I had encountered far too many veterans whose disability claims have been derailed or abandon on the basis of information provided by some well-intended but ill-informed barracks lawyer or bar room barrister. I have given you this information in an attempt to be helpful and informative. You have often heard it said that somebody who represents himself in court has a fool for a client. My final advice to you, if you believe that you have a worthy or potential service-connected disability to claim, is that you not try to present the claim by yourself to the VA, but rather that you employ a competent and reputable veterans disability advocate such as those trained and whose services are provided free of charge by our veterans organizations. Your best interests will be fully served if you listen to what they say and if you work closely with them on your claim. Good Luck and Best Wishes.

New Veterans Home On Site Of Former HN Legion Post

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Two veterans and their families will soon be able to call the old site of the American Legion Post 380 home after a ribbon cutting ceremony on Nov. 7 celebrated the completion of the new duplex homes on 1116 Sea Street.

"Much is getting accomplished in Quincy because we work well together. We continue to move the city forward in so many ways," said Mayor Tom Koch. "When you talk about projects like this it really becomes about community. We're a city of 100,000, but it's really about what makes us what we are and that's a community.

"We have a long tradition and history of people serving our nation for this community, percentage wise higher than most, and as a city we also recognize the service of those veterans but nothing is more meaningful than to physically see something done for a veteran.

"This truly is a welcome home to our veterans," the mayor added.

With funding from the South Shore HOME Consortium, the Quincy Affordable Housing Trust Fund and Quincy Community Preservation Committee funds the project marks the fourth home for veterans that NeighborWorks Southern Mass has completed in recent years. Construction on the duplex began this spring at the site of the former Houghs Neck American Legion Post 380, transforming the location into a new way to serve veterans.

"Our mission here is home matters, for NeighborWorks it's all about home. We're very excited to be opening this beautiful facility here for two veteran families to call home going forward," said NeighborWorks Executive Director Robert Corley.

"Today's veterans have different housing needs than previous generations. Many soldiers returning from Iraq and Afghanistan have families, and providing our veterans who sacrificed so much with access to high quality affordable homes is the right thing to do."

Iraq War veteran Sergeant Herman Sanchez, who served eight years of active duty, two tours in Iraq and a tour in South Korea, lives with his wife and four children at the Empire Street veterans home provided by NeighborWorks. Sanchez spoke during the ceremony thanking the agency for all the work they have done, and continue to do, for veterans.

"You guys are doing a wonderful job for veterans such as myself. For me, home is just some place where you can be safe," said Sanchez. "I'm able to rest in my bed and have peace and quiet, which is important especially coming from Iraq. I'm very grateful for everything you have done for us and for other veterans."

A RIBBON CUTTING ceremony was held Nov. 7 at 1116 Sea St. to celebrate the opening of two new homes for returning veterans. According to Director of Veterans Services Tom Stansbury, veterans haven't seen homes built for them, like the one on Sea Street and Empire Street, since World War II.

"It's a great day in the City of Quincy. We have not seen this type of home for the veterans since World War II when they built all the housing for veterans. Veterans coming back today don't have what WWII (veterans) had," said Stansbury. "Back on April 9, 1998, working with the Neighborhood Housing and Father Bill's, we opened up our first single room occupancy at 191 Burgin Parkway for the homeless veterans. It was a stepping stone for them coming from homelessness to getting a room and then working, getting jobs, and then going out into the community and buying their own homes."

The new duplex, which will be occupied early next year, is just one of a number of affordable housing projects NeighborWorks has completed over the past year.

"NeighborWorks of Southern Mass makes things happen," said Barbara Fields, Region I Regional Administrator for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. "In 2010 the president made a historic announcement. He said that within 10 years we would work to end homelessness. He went further than that and said we're going to make it a priority that within five years to end veterans homelessness, and that's what we're celebrating here today is another step along the way.

"No one in this country should put on a uniform, serve this country, come home, and not have a place to put their head at night," Fields added.

"The work is just impeccable and it's going to provide two families with outstanding housing in Quincy," said Aaron Gornstein, Undersecretary for the Massachusetts Department of Housing and Community Development. "We really consider supportive housing so critical to our veterans, we owe them so much for their service to our country and providing affordable housing is just showing a debt of gratitude to them to repay them in some way so they have a safe place to live."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest said she was happy to see that the loss of the American Legion Post 380 was turned into a positive for veterans and their families.

"What a transformation this project has been," said Laforest. "In Houghs Neck what home means is pride in our community, traditions, and service to our community, which is very integral to our community here in Houghs Neck. Losing the Post was a tough loss for the community, and how appropriate to be able to use this as a positive."

"The Houghs Neck Legion Post has been such an integral part of the community and to have it turned into housing units for veterans there is no greater honor," said City Council President Michael McFarland. "We hope this home provides two nice residences for families for many years to come."

George Alton Brown

A memorial service for George Alton Brown, 96, of Weymouth will be held at 6 p.m. Saturday at the Quincy Salvation Army.

Mr. Brown died Nov. 7.

Born in Ansonia, Connecticut, he had the opportunity to live in many different locations. His parents served as Salvation Army officers, thus causing the family to move frequently. Some of Alton's fondest memories include their time in Keene, NH and Boston. Old Orchard, ME became their home for a time following the death of his father at a young age. His mother raised Mr. Brown and Verna, Estelle, and Dana as a single mother, supporting them while working for the Salvation Army for many years.

Mr. Brown's young life revolved around sports, music and the church. It was during those early years that his love of music was nurtured. He would daily practice his cornet on a self-made, strict schedule. He was often called on to accompany his mother as she led the congregation in singing.

Upon graduation from Boston Trade School, Mr. Brown began working at the Salvation Army's Red Shield Club in Boston, followed by his employment for the Public Relations Department in the Army's Divisional Headquarters. During these years he continued to date the young Gladys Jackson, whom he had met while working at Camp Wonderland. Soon after being drafted into the U.S. Army during World War II, the young couple married in Cambridge in 1944. During his four years of military service, he was stationed at Fort Eustis, Texas and Leyte Island in the Philippines. He was proud to use his musical talents as a bugler in the U.S. Army and also played in various military base bands. After living briefly in Cambridge, the couple moved to Weymouth, where they lived for over 60 years.

Mr. Brown became a printer soon after his military service. After over 25 years in that profession he made a career change to become a stained glass craftsman, which brought him great satisfaction. One of his greatest joys was the completion of the large stained glass window in the South Weymouth Church of the Nazarene.

His love of sports, music and church service remained throughout his life. Mr. Brown was an avid Celtics fan – in some ways considering himself part-owner. He often referred to the team as 'my Celtics.' The Red Sox were also a big part of his leisure time.

Music was also in the forefront throughout his life. Mr. Brown served as the Bandmaster and Songster Leader at the Boston Central Corps of the Salvation Army and was a faithful bandsman for many years in both Boston and Quincy. During retirement he sang tenor in the South Shore Men's Glee Club.

He loved the Lord. He loved his family. He loved his church. Mr. Brown was one to live his Christianity in practical ways.

Loving father of Lt. Colonel Lorraine Bamford and her husband Bill currently serving in Santiago, Chile and Christine Galbraith and her husband, David of Weymouth. Also survived by two sisters, one brother, six grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

A visiting hour will be held 5-6 p.m. Saturday at the Quincy Salvation Army, prior to the memorial service.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Salvation Army, 6 Baxter Street, Quincy, MA designated for the ministry of the Quincy Temple Corps Band Fund.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A project benefits from your organizational skills that get it up and running. Your success leaves a highly favorable impression. Don't be surprised if you get some positive feedback soon.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Spend time on practical matters through the end of the week. Then begin shifting your focus to more-artistic pursuits. Resist being overly self-critical. Just allow yourself to feel free to create.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Restarting those creative projects you had set aside for a while will help provide a much-needed soothing balance to your hectic life. Besides, it will be like meeting old friends again.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A change in plans could make it tough to keep a commitment. But stay with it. You'll get an A-plus for making the effort to do what's right and not taking the easy way out by running off.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Lion's enthusiasm for a workplace policy review is admirable. But be sure you know who is really behind the resistance to change before pointing your finger at the wrong person.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You can expect to have to do a lot of work through midweek. Devote the rest of the week to checking your holiday plans in case some need to be adjusted to accommodate changes.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Try to avoid signing on the dotted line in the early part of the week. You need time to study issues that weren't fully explored. Later in the week might be more favorable for decision-making.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A new development could snarl travel schedules or other holiday-linked projects. Some flexibility might be called for to deal with the problems before they get too far out of hand.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Relatives seek your advice on a matter you'd rather not be involved in. If so, use that sage Sagittarian tact to decline the "offer," so that no one's feelings are needlessly hurt.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A shift in planning direction might help you speed up your progress toward achieving that long-planned goal. Trusted colleagues are ready to offer some valuable support.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An unexpected demand for settlement of an old loan could create some pre-holiday anxiety. But you might not really owe it. Check your records thoroughly before remitting payment.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) It's a good time to get into the social swim and enjoy some well-earned fun and games with those closest to you before you have to resume more serious activities next week.
BORN THIS WEEK: Your ability to sense the needs of others makes you a wise counselor for those seeking help with their problems.

Street-Works Cites Surging Construction Costs

Merchants Row Halted 'Til Spring

By SCOTT JACKSON

Rising construction costs forced Street-Works to temporarily stop work on the Merchants Row site earlier this fall, but city officials anticipate construction restarting in the spring.

Merchants Row, which will incorporate much of the 1400 block of Hancock Street, is the first phase in Street-Works' $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center. A groundbreaking for the project was held in June, but the developer announced they would halt construction in October. During a nearly two-hour long discussion of the downtown project at Monday's City Council meeting, Street-Works partner Richard Heapes said the stop in construction was needed because the developer and its equity partners were concerned about rising project costs.

"You will notice that the site is now closed and it's not under construction. It is clear on our account and by our equity [partners] – both Quincy Mutual and LaSalle – that we can no longer move forward on the site and spend construction dollars until we get a handle on this and understand how it's going to work," Heapes said.

"No one has pulled out. No funding has been removed, but we are in a pause while we collectively tackle

Lebo: Name QHS Green Space In Memory Of Former Educator

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

School committee member Emily Lebo has asked her colleagues to discuss and consider dedicating the new green space that will be developed in front of Quincy High School to long time Quincy Public Schools educator and former QHS English Department Head Bruce MacDonald who died July 16

"I would like to recognize a Quincy High School educator, who was a graduate of Quincy High School, who we lost this past year," said Lebo. "This gentlemen went to Harvard out of Quincy High School where he graduated Magna Cum Laude and earned a Masters Degree at Northeastern and he returned to Quincy High School where he taught for 41 years and was a department head for 30 years, and while he was a department head he continued to teach. I would like to suggest that the new green space that is being developed at Quincy High School be dedicated to Mr. Bruce MacDonald who was an educator extraordinaire, a man of great humor and great compassion for

Quincy Corps Hopes To Raise $150,000 To Help The Needy And Less Fortunate

Salvation Army Kettle Fundraiser Begins Monday

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The Quincy Salvation Army will kick off its Red Kettle fundraiser Monday, Nov. 25 – a week later than usual because Thanksgiving falls on Nov. 28 this year.

"Our goal this year is to raise $150,000 which potentially could be difficult to reach because of the late start to the Red Kettle Fundraiser," said Quincy Salvation Army Captain Timothy Ross. "What we raise depends on the generosity and donations of others. People just have to remember that these funds are used throughout the year for people in need."

Last year, Ross said they raised a little over $134,000, which went towards toys for children, clothes for children and adults, food, and other necessities.

"Many families are still finding it very hard to stay afloat, and we've seen it firsthand in the numbers of people coming to us for help," said Ross. "It's especially hard during the holiday season, when so many of our neighbors don't know how they'll have the means to provide for their families. That's why The Salvation Army looks to our community for their generosity: so we can show that same compassion and kindness to the less fortunate."

This year, Ross said they would also have their canteen truck in the annual Christmas Parade in hopes to raise money and make up for the week they lost because of the late start.

"We joined the parade this year partly to make up for the time we are losing but the main reason is because we want to be an active participant in the community," said Ross. "It's just another method to add to our fundraising and to continue to be a part of this community. We will definitely continue to do it in the future."

This year's campaign theme, "Please Don't Forget, Remember to Give," is encouraging people to continue to give to those in need.

"Sometimes they have a national theme and sometimes they have a state theme, this year is a state theme that emphasizes to help people and families in need, especially now with the shortened fundraising time," said Ross. "This year we have seen a 16 percent increase in our food pantry and an increased need overall. We are starting to see some donations already coming in such as toys and other items needed throughout the holiday season."

Red Kettles can be found outside of all Stop & Shop and Shaw's/ Star Markets locations in the Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, and Hingham area as well as Roche Brothers and Walmart in Quincy. Other locations include the South Shore Plaza in Braintree and the Walmart in Weymouth.

A community leader kettle manned by public officials, businessmen and women and directors of social service agencies and others will be set up near the John Adams statue in front of Quincy City Hall Thursday, Dec. 5, Friday, Dec. 6 and Thursday, Dec. 12. Kettle hours will be 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"Reaching out to those in need by volunteering to ring bells is a wonderful way to connect with the community, to give back, to share blessings, and to be blessed in return," said Ross.

Those looking to donate or volunteer can visit the Salvation Army website, Quincy Headquarters at 6 Baxter St. from 9 a.m to 4 p.m Monday through Friday or call for more information (617) 472-2345. Online Red Kettle donations can be made at www.onlineredkettle.org/Quincy.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY Michael W. Morrissey and State Fire Marshal Stephen Coan pledged to address the dangers of illegal apartment like the scene of the 2009 fatal fire at 100 Robertson Street during their press conference following the manslaughter convictions of the landlords of that property. The public hearing on the resulting legislation was held Wednesday.

Illegal Apartment Bill Public Hearing Wednesday

A move by the Norfolk DA, State Fire Marshal and Senate Chairman of the Committee on Public Safety to stop landlords who rent unsafe apartments had a public hearing at the State House Wednesday. The bill follows the successful manslaughter prosecutions of three Quincy landlords held accountable for the 2009 Quincy fire that killed a father and his two sons.

The bill is co-sponsored by both Sen. John Keenan and Rep. Bruce Ayers, who represent that part of the city.

"Manslaughter convictions did not bring those children or their father back. It was important to secure convictions for those crimes, but it is equally important that we move to prevent this from happening again if we can," said Morrissey whose office prosecuted the case. "We worked very closely with Fire Marshal Stephen Coan's office to draft something that is tight and enforceable, and Sen. James Timilty was immediately supportive when we asked him to sponsor it."

The new law would make landlords renting dangerous, illegal apartments subject to a fine of up to $15,000 or even jail time. A second offense could bring a penalty of $35,000 or up to 5 years in State Prison.

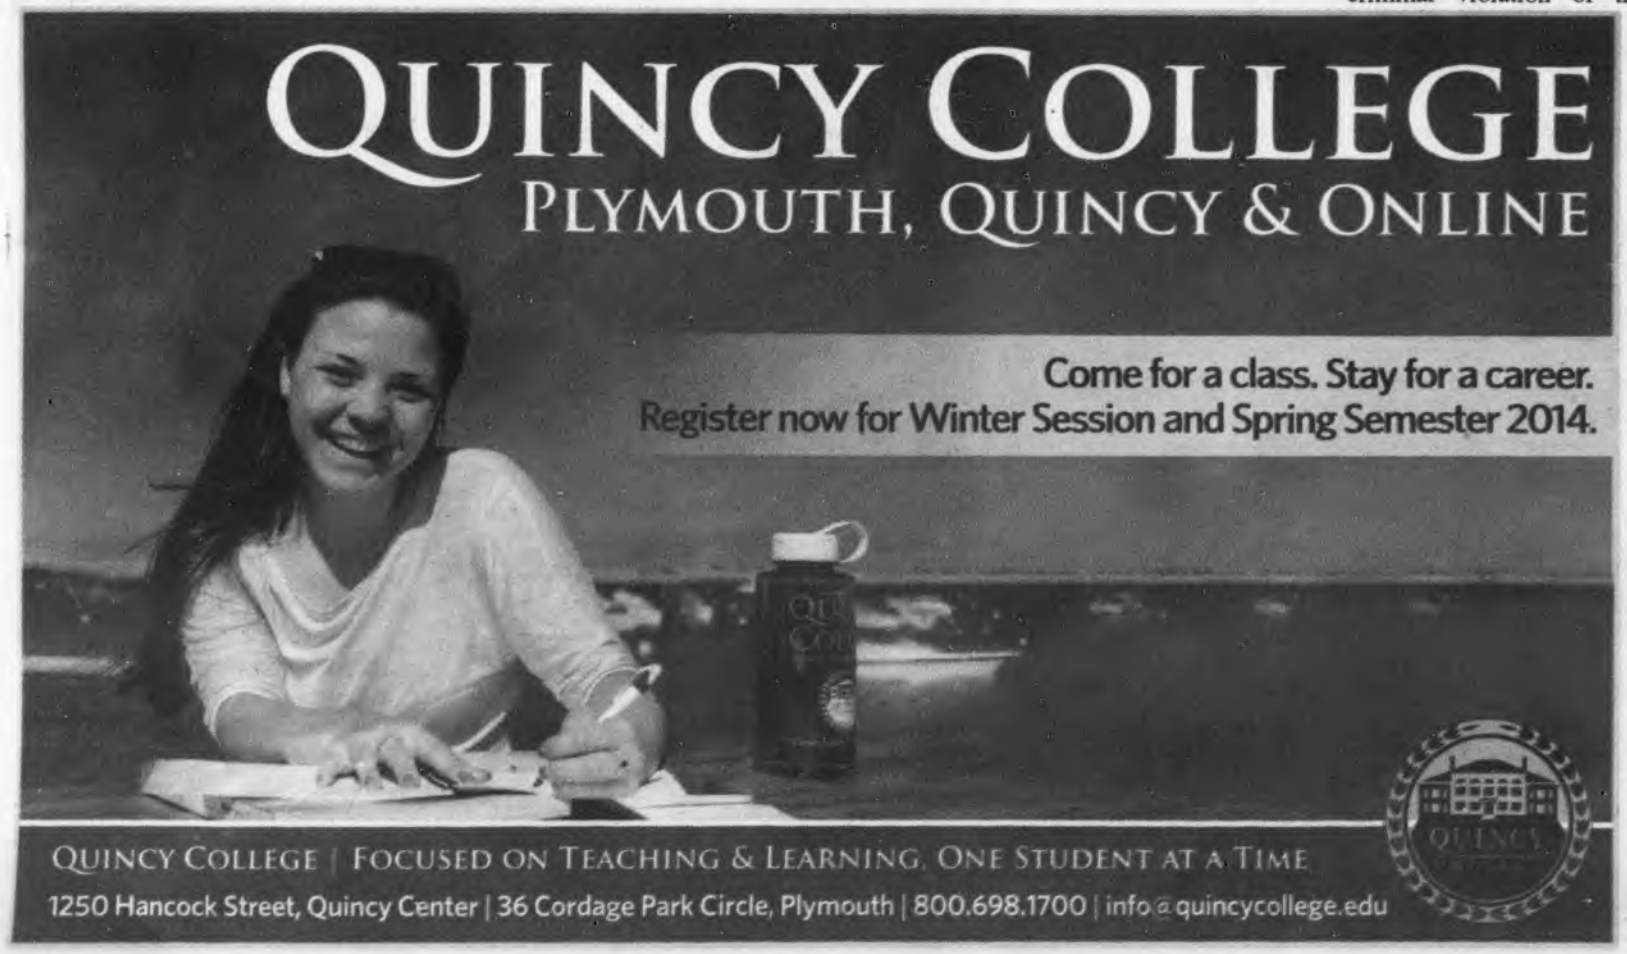

The basement apartment at 100 Robertson St. had only one exit and undersized windows that could not be used to escape. A lamp started a fire in an area between the only door and the sleeping quarters in the apartment. Evidence presented in the manslaughter prosecution showed that Oudah Frawi died trying to carry his sons Hassan and Ali to safety through impenetrable heat and flames.

Currently, it is not a criminal violation of the General Laws to rent out an apartment that is a literal deathtrap. "Stopping the renting of unsafe apartments now relies on a confusing set of municipal ordinances that vary in substance and quality from community to community," DA Morrissey said. "The process is slow and inefficient."

When a code enforcement officer is unsuccessful addressing an illegal apartment on the local level, that enforcement officer can apply for a municipal code violation complaint at a district court – which carries a maximum fine of $300. "That meager penalty is itself a problem, but the greater problem is the difficulty of enforcing municipal codes through the criminal session of a district court. What might sustain a violation in Braintree or Weymouth might be insufficient in Milton or Quincy, or the other way around," Morrissey said. "Creating a section in the General Laws with clearly defined elements, fixed definitions and state wide application, will provide a tool that can be used effectively to safeguard the public."

"I am proud to support District Attorney Morrissey and Senator Timilty's efforts in addressing the unfortunate common practice of renting unsafe apartments," said Senator Keenan. "What happened in Quincy was a horrible tragedy, and this legislation will help prevent something like this from happening again. We're sending the message that the safety of tenants across the Commonwealth must come before profit."

Rep. Ayers added "As legislators we have an obligation to protect residents of the Commonwealth. This commonsense measure would stiffen the penalties for landlords who put others at risk by renting out illegal, hazardous apartments. I fully support this bill and will be working with my colleagues in the House of Representatives and State Senate for its passage."

Mayor Unveils Upgrades At NQHS Wednesday

Mayor Thomas Koch will unveil a proposal for major improvements to the North Quincy High School campus at a community meeting in the school's auditorium Wednesday night at 7 p.m.

The Mayor's Office said it would wait until the meeting with community members before releasing details, but noted that the plan includes substantial improvements to the NQHS campus that will have "broad positive impact for the school and the community as a whole."

"This will be exciting and important project, and I am greatly looking forward to sharing our plans on Wednesday evening," said Koch.

In addition to the announcement, Mayor Koch will also be discussing the schedule for planned improvements to the intersection of Hancock and Squantum Streets as well as a number of other improvements planned or underway at North Quincy High.

Crisis Center Seeks Drivers, Food For Thanksgiving Deliveries

Volunteers are needed to deliver bags of non-perishable food and a turkey to over 300 households throughout Quincy and the South Shore. Families and youth groups are welcome to participate together.

Delivery help is also needed Nov. 25-27. If interested call 617-847-6967 to schedule a delivery time.

In preparing for the holiday deliveries the following food is needed: desserts, turkeys, soup, pasta, peanut butter, gravy and stuffing mix. Donations are accepted at 282 Billings Rd., Quincy, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Squantum Elementary School Awarded $5,000

MacDonald graduated from Quincy High School in 1952 and went on to attend Harvard graduating in 1956. He came back to Quincy and taught at Quincy High School from 1960 to 2001. He was the Head of the English Department from 1971 to 2001.

The committee voted unanimously to move the suggestion into the Policy Subcommittee meeting for further discussion and approval.

"Bruce was a person with so many talents. He was a real friend to all with no bounds to his friendships with students and staff," said Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro. "His unceasing desire for excellence and compassion was contagious with anyone he came in contact with at Quincy High School."

JFK And Photographer Tim Prendeville

The nation will mark a somber and solemn anniversary tomorrow – Friday, Nov. 22 is the 50th anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas, TX.

Those old enough to remember will never forget where and when they heard the tragic news that the President had been fatally wounded riding in an open motorcade through Dealey Plaza.

Images from those dark days in our nation's history are being reprinted and rebroadcast across the country this week.

But the anniversary of JFK's death should also give pause to his life. And in this week's Quincy Sun, we are grateful to share with our readers some photos of President Kennedy that are rare and in some cases unpublished – until this week.

They are courtesy of Christine Prendeville, a Quincy resident and teacher at the Sterling Middle School.

Christine's late father, Timothy W. Prendeville, was a freelance photographer who during his accomplished career took thousands of photos of public officials, celebrities, sports figures and clergy and others.

TIM PRENDEVILLE

Mr. Prendeville earned a living as a freelance photographer from the 1950s until shortly before his death in 2000. He often worked for the Dorchester Argus Citizen and the Milton Transcript newspapers. He was also hired to take photos by individuals and groups.

The black and white images of JFK were taken while the 35th President visited Boston. Some were snapped while he was president, others show a very young Kennedy on the campaign trail for either Congress or Senate or stumping for another Democrat.

In some photos, the individuals with Kennedy are clearly identified. In others, those photographed with the President are not identified. And the circumstances of when and where the photos were snapped are unknown.

So, if anyone has any information about the photos – they appear on Page 1, Page 16 and Page 17 – please email me at thequincysun@verizon.net. Christine appreciates any information that can shed light on these photographs.

Timothy Prendeville lived in Dorchester and was a U.S. Marine Corps veteran of World War II. He was among the Marines who fought on Guadalcanal in the Pacific.

He was a sergeant in the Marines and he took photos as a hobby during the war years.

"He lied about his age to get into the service," Christine says about her father's proud Marine Corps service. "When he was in the Marines he did some photography during the war. We have photos that he took in the Philippines and then he went to photography school and made it his life work."

Tim had the personality befitting a photographer. He was outgoing and a perfectionist.

"He was never shy, but he was meticulous. He made sure every single photo looked perfect before it went anywhere," she says. "He would take several shots of a group to make sure everyone had their eyes open.

"It had to be perfect before he let it go out with his name on it."

He also had a wicked wit. Those who knew Tim well affectionately called him "Terrible Tim." The nickname had nothing to do with his camera skills.

"His favorite thing when he didn't like a politician he would make sure he lined that person up at the end of the photo so he could just crop him out of it (when he developed the negative.) We just laughed at how many people he did that to. If he didn't pay his bill, he'd crop him right out."

Tim also enjoyed joking with public officials – the higher the office, the better the jokes.

"He'd be ribbing them and he didn't care when he asked a larger individual to move over because he can't get them in the shot. He would get away with that because they loved him.

"The banter that he would have as a photographer with those people in those photos including JFK was fun."

Tim Prendeville's career spanned five decades. He took thousands of photos doing a job he loved.

"He loved everything about photography. He loved shooting pictures, he enjoyed meeting people. He was a people person. There wasn't a story he wouldn't tell anyone who would listen. He'd tell story after story after story and talk your ear off if you let him," his daughter says.

Before he passed away, Christine and her mother started putting albums together of Tim's photos. They were displayed at his wake: two politician albums, a celebrity one and a third with high-ranking clergy including a pope.

After he died, Chris and her mother cleaned up his dark room which she described as his kingdom.

"We found thousands and thousands of negatives, thousands and thousands of pictures. Many weren't labeled but some we were able to identify."

Tim Prendeville's pictures are photographic gold and a precious family heirloom. They represent a bygone era when newspapers ruled the media and photographers' images conveyed the news as much as a beat reporter's prose. Ironically perhaps it was JFK's death that ushered in TV as the new media king with breaking news bulletins and continuous live coverage that could reach millions within seconds.

Mr. Prendeville's JFK images also show a man who was in the prime of his life. Look long enough at the photos and it's difficult not to drift to that awful day in Dallas a half century ago tomorrow and wonder how history would have changed.

Christine – who was born in 1957 – was just a little girl when JFK was slain. She's asked what emotions her father's photos elicit as the anniversary of the president's death approaches.

"Sadness because I was a little kid when he died. I will never forget watching the funeral. I will never forget watching John John salute his father's casket. I've gone to Washington, D.C. enough to see the graves at Arlington National Cemetery.

"You're sad that something like that would ever happen. He was our President and a Boston guy."

Christine plans to donate some of her father's photos of JFK – and of his brother the late Sen. Ted Kennedy – to the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library in Boston.

"I am keeping some of the JFK and Ted Kennedy photos as keepsakes but if there's a second copy of it I am donating it to the JFK Library to use as they see fit. They may or may not have copies of these.

"I am proud to own these photos. I'm proud to be able to share them with other people and that my father's work will be seen again," she adds.

On behalf of our all readers, thank you Christine for sharing your father's photos with us.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1934 postcard view of the water tower and reservoir on the top of Third Hill, also known as Forbes Hill, in Wollaston. The reservoir was first dug here in the late 19th century to provide water for fire fighting. New homes were being built in the Wollaston Heights subdivision on the adjacent Wollaston Hill and there was no way to get water up there for emergencies. The Metropolitan Water Commission later took over the site and built the larger reservoir shown here that held five million gallons of water. In 1903 they built the water tower that held another 330,000 gallons. There are spectacular views from the top of the tower. During World War II, the Civil Air Patrol used the tower as an observation deck; it now supports an array of antennaes. The reservoir was filled in over 50 years ago and is now used for playing fields.

When John F. Kennedy Came To Town

THIS PHOTO taken in 1958 shows then U.S. Sen. John F. Kennedy visiting youngsters of the Koch Club gathered at Cavanaugh Field in Quincy. Kennedy – who was not fond of wearing hats – wore a Koch Club ball cap to the delight of the youngsters. He was also presented a Koch Club tee-shirt. Kennedy was made an honorary member of the Koch Club at his visit. The photo is courtesy of Mayor Thomas Koch. The mayor's father, the late Richard Koch Sr., was the founder of the Koch Club and served as Ward 6 campaign chairman for Kennedy when JFK first ran for U.S. Senate in 1952.

McIntyre Moves For Drug Crackdown

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor-Sen. James R. McIntyre planned to file new legislation that he hoped would 'untie the hands' of law enforcement to help them crack down on drug abuse in Quincy and around the state.

The legislation McIntyre planned to file would give law enforcement officers the ability to make on-the-spot arrests in cases of false prescriptions and illegal possession of harmful narcotics.

McIntyre, whose late father Capt. William F. McIntyre was head of the Quincy Police Detective Bureau, noted that those offenses were currently misdemeanors. The current law, he explained, meant officers had to summons suspect to court, allowing a suspect ample time to destroy evidence.

"We have got to give police the legal tools with which to stop the tremendous increase in drug abuse,' McIntyre said. "We have got to untie their hands."

RECREATION FACILITY PROPOSED

The 200-member Ward 2 Civic Association unanimously approved a plan to build a recreation facility at Mound Street Beach that would include space for tennis, volleyball, horseshoes and picnics.

The proposal was sent to the Park and Recreation Board for further study. Richard J. Koch, the board's executive director, said the facility would cost more than $300,000, exceeding the Park and Recreation Board's annual budget.

"We realize that it's a big project," commented Ward 2 Civic Association President Theodore P. DeCristofaro, "but we hope the Park Department will take a favorable view."

The Mound Street Beach project was a major goal for the civic association since its inception in 1965. The project also had the backing of Ward 2 Councillor Clifford H. Marshall, who pointed out that the plans represented a preliminary step towards future action.

Both Koch and members of the association had expressed concerns over the mounting vandalism to the park property and the danger it represented to a high-cost development.

In addition to the recreational facility, the development plan also included a plastic boom system to stop the encroachment of oil spillage.

QUINCY, NORTH READY FOR GRIDIRON CLASH

North Quincy High's football team entered the annual Thanksgiving Day Game against Quincy High needing to win to clinch the Greater Boston League championship.

North had a chance to clinch the title in a showdown against Somerville in the previous game, but lost that contest 12-6. The loss meant that Somerville (5-1-1 in league play) stood atop the GBL standings as the prepared to play non-league Waltham in their final game.

The Red Raiders (5-1 in league play) could clinch the title by beating the Presidents (3-2-1 GBL record) on Thanksgiving. North coach Carl Leone said his squad was excited to have a shot at the league title in the rivalry match.

"The boys know they have to win on Thanksgiving so I will have no problem getting them up for it," Leone said. "Not that anyone has to get either the North or Quincy players up for that game in any case, but this game now is a real special one for us."

North's loss to Somerville gave Quincy's players extra incentive as well. Presidents coach Hank Conroy said his players wanted nothing more than to deny their crosstown foes the championship.

"Our boys really have something to shoot for and wouldn't they love to keep North from grabbing the championship," Conroy said. "Now they have to beat us to win it and these kids feel they can definitely beat them. It certainly should be quite a game."

Library Literacy Program Teaches Adults Life Skills

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Over 25 years ago, the Fore River Shipyard closed forcing many out of work, creating a need for a program that would teach the necessary academic skills to help the newly unemployed reenter the workforce, which is exactly what the literacy program at the Thomas Crane Library has been doing ever since.

"The program started over 25 years ago when the shipyard closed down and there was this need. There were a lot of people out of work and realizing they needed different skills to get different jobs, those academic reading and writing skills, so the program was created to help that group that needed to get jobs to survive and needed to get their academic skills up," said Literacy Project Manager Mary Diggle.

"I think the program has grown since then but I think it has also changed. There is always a big discussion of what is literacy, and that depends on what the community needs. The literacy part is for anyone in between a zero and sixth grade reading and writing level. Sometimes the levels are higher depending on if the student is struggling in the community or getting by. If the need is there then we're going to help them. Literacy is more one on one to specifically help the person and what their life needs are.

"It's all about life skills so if a student says I need to get my learner's permit because I need to drive. It's not like we teach them to drive of course, but the tutor may work on that. The tutor will focus on what they need to do in their everyday life," added Diggle.

Over 30 adults, 65 student/tutor pairs, ranging in age from 16 to 82 are partaking in the program currently, with the largest group of students being over the age of 40.

"We get a large group that is over 40," said Diggle. "I think that generation, if they were in classes and they were struggling academically they were able to quit and go get jobs, hands-on jobs. There also wasn't as much of an understanding of how to handle someone with a reading difficulty."

Diggle said there is also a large number of students who have come in asking for help because they are unemployed and competing with college graduates for entry-level positions.

THOMAS CRANE LIBRARY Literacy Program volunteer tutor Paula Cotterill (left) helps Quincy resident Billy Vecchione, a student of the Thomas Crane Library Literacy Program, sound out a word at a recent tutoring session. Vecchione has been a student of the program for three years. The program, which has been around for over 25 years, currently teaches over 30 adults how to read and write.

"For the past three years there has been a lot of people coming in unemployed, scared because they lost their job, and now because everybody is looking for jobs they are hiring the college grads for the entry level positions," said Diggle.

All of the tutors involved in the program are volunteers that go through a training process before being assigned a student. Diggle said that training isn't always easy because of the large spectrum of reading levels students have.

"The average reading level really varies, and that makes it challenging to train our tutors," said Diggle.

"I have some students that come in and they have no reading skills at all. I would say between 65-70 percent are Americans who have either dropped out of school because they weren't following, they weren't keeping up and the school was going too fast leaving them behind. Then there is a group who maybe had so much going on in their life, and struggles that they weren't really concentrating in school because of family issues or moving constantly.

"Then there is this other percent that they are from other countries. They've been here for a long time but they didn't have a lot of schooling in their first language, so they may come and say I don't even know how to read and write in my first language."

For 51-year-old lifelong Quincy resident Billy Vecchione, who has dyslexia, his motivation for joining the literacy program three years ago came from having a young son.

"When I was in school my only handicap was that I couldn't read. I was a good student and a hard worker but I couldn't read," said Vecchione who graduated from Quincy High School. "It was my young son who motivated me to want to learn how to read."

Many who are part of the program are just like Vecchione: creative, hardworking, and have gotten through life without the need to learn how to read or write.

"A lot of our students don't really want many people to know their academic level," said Diggle. "Meanwhile they are brilliant because they've done so many things without having all of that, and they find ways to do very well and survive."

Vecchione, like many other students of the program, comes to the library once a week for two hours to meet with his individual tutor.

"Billy is very dedicated to this program," said tutor Paula Cotterill. "He absolutely will not allow us to stop or take time off even if he is tired or busy. It's not a disadvantage to be dyslexic; he was able to survive this long without learning how to read because of his creativity. It isn't the be all and end all of his life."

Not only does Vecchione have a goal of learning how to read but he is also studying to get his driver's license, which Cotterill is helping him with by taking a half hour a week to go over the driving test material.

"I'm not going to quit until I pass," said Vecchione. "I'm learning so much in this program. I like it and I'm a big advocate of it. I am reading more and understanding more than I did three years ago when I first started."

Diggle said that most students stay in the program for more than the year commitment they are asked for. Some students have even stayed in the program for nine years.

"They are here for quite a while," said Diggle. "The commitment is a year at least, but mostly students stay for a year or more. We've had relationships that have been seven years, one that's been nine years. It's only once a week for two hours, it can be more depending on the student. If you want to get from a third grade up to a seventh grade reading level it's going to take a couple of years. I would say most of the time students are here for about three years because it's not a quick fix."

MESHING RIGHT IN

There are times when a single strand of gold will simply not do and women want a bit more jewelry around their necks to help them convey more of a "rock-and-roll," "anything goes" attitude. If so, mesh necklaces in the form of narrow chokers, collars, or even scarves provide bands of finely linked gold, silver, or platinum chain mail. For a dressier effect, some are dotted with diamonds. Aside from being worn around the neck, these mesh masterpieces may be also wrapped around the wrist. Wherever they are worn, they exude confidence and fun, as well as radiate feminine appeal, making them perfect for pairing with low-cut blouses and cocktail dresses. Mesh necklaces exude attitude.

Chainmail also known as chain mail or chain maille, (maille), from the French and macula from Latin meaning mesh or net is defined as the practice of linking rings to create patterns, or "sheets" of flexible metal for armor or decoration. Mail (mesh) remained in use as a decorative and possibly high-status symbol with military flair long after its practical usefulness had passed. Marie's Kitchen

Jean's Chicken, Sausage Soup

As soon as a cool day comes, my thoughts always turn to soup. Although I still enjoy soup in the summer, there's nothing like a bowl of hot soup on a cold day.

My niece Jean gave me today's recipe for the soup, and I couldn't wait to try it-such a hardy delicious easy one to make.

CHICKEN, SAUSAGE SOUP

2 chicken legs and thighs
4 chicken sausages
2 stalks of celery (cut)
1 onion (cut)
2 large carrots (peeled and cut)
½ pound cheese filled tortellini
1-2 tablespoons fresh parsley
Eight ounces fresh spinach
Grated Romano cheese
Salt and pepper

Place chicken and sausages together in a large pan. Bring to a boil and then add the onion, celery and carrots, salt and pepper. Cover and cook for one hour. When cool, take out the chicken and sausages and cut in small pieces. Put back in the pan, and add the tortellini and the spinach.

Cook until both are done and serve with the grated cheese.

Rita's Pumpkin Bread With Pecans

Very often my daughter Rita brings me a couple of slices of something delicious that she has baked, and last week it was pumpkin bread. There's nothing like the flavor of pumpkin, and this one was amazing –and so moist.

Today's recipe is for two loaves.

PUMPKIN BREAD

Preheat oven to 350 degrees, grease and flour two loaf pans
1-15 ounce can of pumpkin puree (unsweetened)
4 eggs
1- cup vegetable or safflower oil
2/3 cup water
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
2 cups raw cane or white sugar
3 ½ cups all -purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 ½ teaspoons kosher salt
2 tablespoons pumpkin pie spice or a combo of cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice, ginger
1 cup chopped pecans or other nuts if preferred

In a bowl, combine the pumpkin, eggs, oil, water, vanilla and sugar. Beat until well blended.

Whisk together the flour, baking soda, salt and pumpkin spices. Stir the dry ingredients into the pumpkin mixture until well blended. Add the pecans or other nuts. Pour half of the mixture into each loaf pan. Bake for 60-70 minutes until toothpick comes out clean from the center. It's great with cream cheese.

Councillor Brad Croall Engaged To Lorelle Gay

Engagement Proposal Precedes New York City Marathon

By SCOTT JACKSON

The first weekend in November was a busy one for Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, who got engaged one day before completing the New York City Marathon.

Croall had planned to sew the engagement ring into his shorts and propose to his girlfriend of three years – Lorelle Gay, a Walpole resident – after the two completed the race together. But he decided to propose the day before the race in Manhattan's Central Park.

"I thought I'd do it before the marathon," Croall said. "I wasn't sure either of us would have the wherewithal after running 26 miles."

The two spent most of that Saturday – Nov. 2. – shopping and walking around Manhattan. Gay had no idea that Croall planned to propose to her that day.

"I didn't think he'd be carrying a ring," she said.

That afternoon, Croall suggested the two visit Central Park. As they were walking around the park, Gay began to believe something else was about to happen.

"I thought something might be happening because everything was so beautiful," she said.

That afternoon Croall proposed to her on top of a hill in Central Park, and she said yes. Croall and Gay ran the marathon the next day with 'I asked her' and 'I said yes' written on their race bibs. Throughout the race, which weaves its way through each of New York City's five boroughs, spectators congratulated the newly engaged couple. The race itself was an afterthought.

"We were so happy we didn't care about the race," Gay said. "We were enjoying the whole thing, taking in the scenery. It was 26 miles of people screaming congratulations."

"It was awesome – a great weekend," Croall added, summing up the whirlwind weekend. "It was a big weekend in my life."

WARD 2 COUNCILLOR Brad Croall and his girlfriend of three years Lorelle Gay got engaged on Nov. 2 in New York City's Central Park. The two completed the New York City Marathon together the next day.

Gail Covelluzzi New CFO At Manet Communty Health

Manet Community Health Center in North Quincy announces Gail M. Covelluzzi, CPA has been named its new Chief Financial Officer.

Three other experienced health care professionals have also joined Manet. They are: Lisa J. Levine, MPH, Senior Director for Strategic Services; Linda Carberry, Practice Manager; and Ayotomide E. Oyelakin, MPH, CPHQ, Performance Improvement Director.

"In this era of health care reform, when community health centers are expected to deliver greater accountability and evidence-based care, we are excited to deepen the capabilities and resources of our management team," said Henry N. Tuttle, Manet Community Health CEO. "As we continue to evolve to serve our patients, we need such dedicated, seasoned professionals to help us get where we need to go."

Covelluzzi has an extensive history of directing all financial functions of non-profit organizations, including a decade in community health and social justice. Prior to joining Manet, she was CFO at East Middlesex ARC (EMARC) in Wakefield, a $12 million human services agency that advocates for people with development disabilities and their families.

Earlier, she also was CFO at South End Community Health Center in Boston. There, she headed the successful implementation of an Electronic Health Record and Electronic Practice Management systems—both of which Manet has instituted to enhance its financial monitoring, productivity and patient care.

Covelluzzi holds a Master's in Public Administration from Framingham State College, a Bachelor's in Education from Salem State College, and studied accounting at Bently College, all in Massachusetts.

Levine takes on the new post of Senior Director for Strategic Services, where she is expected to help identify and capitalize on business development opportunities. A key focus will be crafting strategies that reflect Manet's mission, vision and values to fuel its future growth. She also will lead Manet's managed care strategy, including all managed care-related contracting with commercial carriers and with entitlement programs such as Medicare and Medicaid.

Previously, Levine led the day-to-day operations of two leading community health centers: Dorchester House Multi-Service Center and the Family Health Center of Worchester. Prior to joining Manet, she was business manager for Steward Health Care Network, Quincy Local Chapter. She holds a Master's of Public Health from Boston University School of Public Health.

Carberry comes to Manet from Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, where she helped lead the development of a new academic department focused on specialty services for adult and pediatric patients with serious and life-threatening illnesses. While there, she worked to enhance management of the Harvard Medical School Center for Palliative Care. Carberry, who also served as Fiscal Director at the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition and at Father Bill's in Quincy, earned her Bachelor's in Healthcare Management, Magna Cum Laude, from Northeastern University.

As Practice Manager at Manet, Carberry will direct and supervise the patient experience at all five practice sites from check-in to check-out—including reception, scheduling, registration, medical records, and customer service. One of her prime responsibilities will be supervising all non-clinical operational personnel.

Also charged with furthering the patient experience is Oyelakin, who joined Manet in October as Performance Improvement Director to oversee its multi-faceted quality initiatives. Oyelakin was previously at Boston Children's Hospital, where she was Quality Improvement Consultant in the Department of Cardiology, responsible for developing a five-year strategic plan for safety and quality.

Oyelakin earned her Bachelor of Medicine & Surgery (MBChB) in her native Nigeria, where she later served as Medical Officer at two hospitals. In 2009, she completed her Master's in Public Health at Harvard University School of Public Health and in 2011 became a Certified Professional in Healthcare Quality (CPHQ).

Her focus at Manet will be to lead and enhance evidence-based quality improvement initiatives in all areas of patient care, including access to services. Having proactive measurements and interventions is crucial to Manet's 2014 goal to become certified by the National Committee for Quality Assurance (NCQA) as a Patient-Centered Medical Home.

"We want to ensure that every patient interaction at every one of our sites is outstanding," said Tuttle. "Ultimately, we want to offer an alternative to a limited private practice setting for patients with choice, as well as for those with limited choices. Having the best management team in place will help us achieve that goal."

Men From Ware, Beverly Arrested

Detectives Seize $37,000, 47 Pounds Of Pot In Drug Bust

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Quincy undercover police detectives arrested a Beverly and Ware man after witnessing an alleged drug deal involving 47 pounds of marijuana and nearly $37,000 in cash while doing unrelated surveillance Monday night at the Highpoint Complex on Quarry Street.

Michael Chu, 41, of Ware and Viet Huynh, 34, of Beverly were both charged with possession of a class D drug with intent to distribute, and conspiracy to violate the drug laws.

Around 7:03 p.m. Monday night an undercover Quincy police detective was parked in the Highpoint apartment complex parking lot watching for suspects in an unrelated tip when Huynh pulled up next to the unmarked cruiser.

"The detective decided to move his vehicle to another spot and when doing so he noticed Huynh was watching him the entire time," said Quincy Police Captain John Dougan. "The detective thought something wasn't right so he decided to switch his focus on Huynh and called in for other officers. While watching Huynh's car Chu pulled up in a 2001 Honda Accord next to him. They both exited their vehicles and opened their trunks. The detective then witnessed Chu take a large black bag from Huynh's trunk and put it in his trunk. The two men than had a brief conversation and left."

Dougan said Huynh was stopped on the East Milton ramp to I-93 north but he said he didn't want to talk without his lawyer present. Chu was stopped on School Street near Quincy Center and appeared nervous. A narcotics police dog was used in searching Chu's vehicle and alerted officers to a drug presence. Officers found 47 pounds of marijuana in 39 vacuum-sealed bags and $32,000 in cash in the trunk along with another $4,800 in cash under the front passenger seat, they also confiscated five cell phones, three from Chu and two from Huynh.

Dougan said the 47 pounds of marijuana has a street value of around $120,000.

Today Is The Great American Smokeout

By JACKIE DOANE

The Great American Smokeout, launched in 1976 by the American Cancer Society, will be celebrated on November 21. The U.S. Surgeon General has stated, "Smoking cessation represents the single most important step that smokers can take to enhance the length and quality of their lives." The Great American Smokeout is a great time to make a quit attempt or to prepare yourself to make a quit attempt. With the cigarette tax in Massachusetts increased by $1 a pack and the excise tax on many other tobacco products increased as well, it is a good chance to not only improve your health, but to improve your bottom line.

When you quit for good, your health improves immediately, regardless of your age or health status. In addition, family members' health is also greatly improved. A child living in a smoke-free environment is less likely to develop asthma, allergies, bronchitis, pneumonia, ear infections, lower respiratory tract infections or die from sudden infant death syndrome. Decreased exposure to secondhand smoke also leads to a lower risk of heart disease and lung cancer for the nonsmoking adults in the family. Remember, health benefits begin as soon as 20 minutes after quitting.

Many free resources are available to help you quit and many health insurance plans cover FDA-approved medicines and counseling for quitting, including MassHealth and Commonwealth Care. When you use quit-smoking medicines or counseling you can double your chances of quitting for good! For more information call the MA Smoker's Helpline at (800) 784-8669 or visit makesmokinghistory.org.

Jackie Doane is a member of the Greater Boston Tobacco-Free Community Partnership, a program of Bay State Community Services.

Merchants Row Project Halted Until Spring

how we are going to get this to a place that makes it a reasonable investment."

Heapes went on to add that construction costs in Greater Boston increased by 37 percent in 2013, a trend that is anticipated to continue in 2014.

"This is not a Street-Works issue or a Quincy issue. It is a bit of a regional Boston issue," Heapes said. "This year costs have gone up approximately 37 percent in Boston – they have gone up about 5 percent in the United States – with an anticipation of another 13 to 18 percent growth through 2014. By my count 37 and 18 is an over 50 percent increase in construction costs that have caused this challenge for us to tackle."

Those rising construction costs, coupled with the purchase of additional buildings on the block after the June groundbreaking, led Street-Works to announce changes to the Merchants Row plan. Originally, the site would have contained two buildings, including a 15-story residential building. In August, the developer said Merchants Row will now include three six-story buildings, with approximately the same square footage as the original plan because of the expanded footprint.

Two councillors Monday night expressed concern about the change from the 15-story building to shorter ones. Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said the 15-story building would have been a selling point for Merchants Row – known as Block 4 in the development plan – and the downtown as a whole.

"Block 4 has to be done and it has to be done right with laser focus. This is our first step – it has to be our best step. This sets the tone for the entire project. If that is not a pluperfect success than you're not going to be able to go any further. I assure you of that," McNamee said.

"You had a beautiful 15-story building that would have offered vistas of the Blue Hills, Quincy Bay, and Boston and we stepped away from that. I can't think of anything that's more saleable than that kind of a structure to set a perfect tone for this development. What you propose is smaller structures, wood structures. It's starting to look like the Weymouth Air Station housing model."

Councillor Doug Gutro, chairman of the council's downtown and economic growth committee, noted that Street-Works sought approval to build high rises up to 20 stories tall to create higher rent apartment units. The shorter buildings, he added, would result in less work for the workers constructing them.

"There was much talk, even dating back to the charettes, about the prospect of at least two high rises and maybe three," Gutro said. "I'm just trying to reconcile the difference. I know what it means in terms of jobs for the ironworkers, I know what it means for the laborers who are going to lose thousands of hours of work when you go to under six stories, essentially."

In response to those concerns, Heapes explained that Street-Works developments elsewhere in the country – including ones in Hartford, Conn., Boca Raton, Fla., San Jose, Calif., and Washington, D.C. – have featured buildings shorter than the six-story ones now proposed for Merchants Row.

"They are all, three, and four, and five-story places around great streets," Heapes said. "Yes, we would have liked the 15-story building. But I personally guarantee you that the environment that's going to be created in downtown Quincy will be unlike none and we will do it right."

Gutro also asked Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines if there were any provisions in Quincy's agreement with Street-Works that protect the city in the event the developer stops work after demolition of buildings. Those provisions, which Gutro referred to as 'anti-Filenes provisions,' are intended to make sure a repeat of Boston's attempt to redevelop the Filenes site in Downtown Crossing – which has sat vacant since being demolished in 2008 – does not occur in Quincy.

Hines said those provisions are in the agreement with Street-Works but the administration does not see the halt in construction as a long-term problem at this point. Work on the site, he explained, should begin again in the spring.

"At this point we don't see that that [provision] has been triggered because work has commenced diligently. Once the new acquisitions of land are closed there will be the abatement and demolition of those," Hines said. "We anticipate the redesign of the buildings and the start up with the spring thaw. I don't see it as a long-term problem from where we stand today."

Hines also added that the stop in construction is a positive move because it will allow Street-Works to incorporate parcels that wouldn't have been developed into the development plans.

"The stop in work now isn't a negative thing. It's a positive thing to allow this redesign – you've got the additional land acquisition – to make a much better project that's going to now be designed," Hines said.

"Before, you had a couple of small-footprint parcels that we're going to be isolated that would never have a development opportunity because you would never have the parking available. They wouldn't have had the financial return from their properties to get a meaningful redevelopment on that site. This subsumes them, puts them in the mix, and makes a better overall project, even though we are taking this temporary step back to do the redesigns."

The new parcels that will be incorporated into the Merchants Row project include the building that houses Brennan's on Hancock Street and the Granite Rail, Tully's and Quincy Jade on Cottage Avenue. Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall asked for an update on Street-Works' purchase of those buildings. Hines said the developer has reached agreements to purchase those parcels but has yet to close on them.

"They've got signed purchase and sale agreements, so binding contracts, but they're not yet closed on," Hines said.

Heapes added that he did not know when those parcels, which have a combined value of nearly $10 million, would be closed on.

Councillor Joe Finn noted that development plans for Quincy Center sat on the shelves for 35 years before Street-Works began planning the development about 10 years ago, and said the current pause in construction is part of the normal process for a project such as the downtown one.

"For 35 years before that time, there were plans that sat on shelves and drawers and simply collected dust. I think what we're going through now is really the angst that occurs when you're actually moving forward with development," Finn said. "There are white knuckle moments for all of us, obviously, in relation to this but I think it's very critical we keep this in perspective."

"We're really in a renaissance downtown," Council President Michael McFarland added. "There are thousands of moving pieces and based on market conditions and political conditions, things change every single day. It's very important that we get together as a City Council because we do hear a lot of facts, we do hear a lot fiction, and it's very important for us to sit down with the actual people involved."

In addition to the update on Merchants Row, Heapes also provided the council with a presentation on developments regarding the remainder of the first step of the downtown project, which will take place in the area near Parkingway, Ross Way, and the Ross Garage.

Part of that first step, Heapes explained, will be a hotel near the intersection of Ross Way and Granite Street. The developer solicited bids for a hotel earlier this year, receiving a dozen offers. They are now working with three hotel operators, each of whom wants to build a 130-150-room hotel on the site. Heapes anticipates that a letter of intent with a hotel operator will be signed early next year.

"We expect to have a signed letter of intent with an operator of a hotel shortly after the beginning of the year," Heapes said. "Quite honestly, if the Ross Garage wasn't there, we could start it right now."

Elsewhere in the first step will be a new facility for Quincy College, in the area of Ross Way and Cliveden Street. The college and the developer are nearing an agreement for a building that would include nearly 60,000 square feet of office space and 6,000 square feet for the college's bookstore.

"That is a deal that is essentially ready to go," Heapes said.

Step one also includes the development of Block 8, the block bounded by Hannon Parkway, Ross Way, and Cliveden Street. That site will include two anchor tenants, which Heapes described as a high-end grocery store and a 12-screen cinema. The National Realty & Development Corp., a partner in the downtown deal, is overseeing the leasing for that site, and Heapes anticipates announcing those tenants sometime after Jan. 1, 2014.

Another part of the first step is Block 7, located between Hancock Street, Cliveden Street, Ross Way, and Hannon Parkway. Heapes said that site would largely resemble Merchants Row, with 250-300 residential units and 50,000 square feet of street-level retail. The site also includes room for Market Square, the new home of the Quincy Farmers Market.

In addition to the new construction that will occur during step one, Street-Works is also looking to renovate two buildings on Hancock Street sooner during the downtown project. Those buildings are the Adams Arcade at 1469-1479 Hancock St., and an office building at 1515 Hancock St.

Shea Re-Appointed City Clerk

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council unanimously re-appointed Joseph Shea to his eighth three-year term as city clerk Monday night.

Shea has served as city clerk since November 1992, when he replaced John Gillis who retired and later was elected a Norfolk County commissioner. Shea previously worked as the assistant city clerk under Gillis for 18 months.

City Council Michael McFarland nominated Shea for his eighth term Monday night, calling Shea a constant presence in Quincy since before McFarland came into public service over 20 years ago.

JOSEPH SHEA

"The one thing that has always been a steady force around City Hall has been Joe Shea," McFarland said. "No matter how high you are on the food chain or how low you are on the food chain, Joe is always there to help you – whether it's a buck to a guy for a cup of coffee or assisting somebody to find out where they vote or to assist a councillor with the rules and regulations of the city."

"My day job takes me around the Commonwealth," added Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes, who seconded the nomination. "I have to say it's always a good thing because Joe is not only well respected here in Quincy but among his colleagues throughout the Commonwealth. I always comment everywhere I go that we have a great city clerk. We're very fortunate and I know I'm very fortunate to have the benefit of Joe's knowledge."

It Still Bothers Me – And Always Will

Sunbeams

By Henry Bosworth

Editor's note: This column was written by the late Henry W. Bosworth, longtime publisher and founder of The Quincy Sun. It is one of Mr. Bosworth's most popular columns and frequently ran on the anniversary of President John F. Kennedy's assassination in Dallas, Texas on Nov. 22, 1963.

On the occasion of the 50th anniversary of JFK's death tomorrow (Friday), we are publishing the column again for our readers.

The last time Mr. Bosworth wrote the column was in 2008 - 48 years after Mr. Kennedy was elected the 35th President of the U.S.

It still bothers me and I guess it always will.

It's been 48 years now and I can't stop wondering about President John F. Kennedy and the Secret Service.

Was the Secret Service really doing its job the night of Nov. 10, 1960 in Hyannisport? And, in Dallas, Nov. 22, 1963?

The 45th anniversary of Kennedy's assassination Saturday brought me back to that night three years before in Hyannisport-and still wondering if the Secret service was lax in its duty to protect him.

I was standing in the living room of former Ambassador Joseph Kennedy's home in the Kennedy compound waiting for the President-elect to appear.

Where was the Secret Service, I wondered? I wasn't even supposed to be there but no one questioned that.

Word was that 18 Secret Service agents had moved in swiftly to protect the next President of the United States after Richard Nixon conceded after a night of see-saw election results.

But if they were around the house-inside or outside-they were invisible. They weren't checking on me or anyone else. I could have had a gun in my pocket.

I've written this story before. And I think it's worth another look on this 45th anniversary of JFK's assassination.

Let's go back to Nov. 10, 1960.

I was a Boston Traveler reporter covering the election at press headquarters in the National Guard armory in Hyannis. With me were Dave Farrell of the Boston Herald and photographer Frank Kelly of Quincy, taking photos for both papers.

We were at the armory all election night checking the returns until Nixon finally conceded in the early morning.

We were informed that Kennedy would hold a press conference later in the morning at the armory, his first as President-elect.

Out of that conference came such headlines as:

"Hoover, Dulles To Stay," "Kennedy Says Election Repudiates No One"... "Ike Asks JFK Meet Him Soon On Takeover."

The whole Kennedy clan seemed to be there: Jacqueline, 31, radiant and expecting John John in a few weeks; parents Joseph and Rose Kennedy; brothers Bobby with wife, Ethel, Ted, sisters Eunice Shriver, Jean Smith, Pat Lawford and in the background brother in-law Peter Lawford.

PRESIDENT-ELECT John F. Kennedy and Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth chat at Barnstable Airport in Hyannis, Nov. 11, 1960. Kennedy was leaving for Palm Springs, FL after his election. Behind them are aides Kenneth O'Donnell and Pierre Salinger. Frank Kelly photo

Kennedy made a brief victory statement that was a hint of the theme of his coming Inaugural Address:

"The election may have been a close one. But I think there is general agreement by all of our citizens that the supreme national effort will be needed in the years ahead to move this country safely through the 1960's."

(Inaugural version: "Ask not what your country can do for you. Ask what you can do for your country.")

Word was passed that Kennedy would host an informal, off-the record party for the press in his father's home that night. It was for the press that had traveled with him through the campaign.

But three party-crashers-Farrell, Kelly and myself-got there, too. It was too good to miss and we weren't going to miss it.

The bus to take the press into the Kennedy compound was parked outside near the armory. We stepped aboard. No one asked to see our press credentials. We rode inside the compound and walked into Joseph Kennedy's house. No one checked on us.

Maybe, as I look back, anyone could have gotten on that bus that night. Maybe even someone like Lee Harvey Oswald.

None of the Kennedy's were in sight when we arrived so the invited members of the press and the three party crashers started browsing around.

On the living room wall were framed letters written by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt to Ambassador Kennedy.

On the fireplace mantle was a model of the USS Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., the destroyer named after the oldest son who was lost on a dangerous World War II mission. He had plans for a political career.

The living room connected with the dining room. On the dining room table was a punch bowl and cups. Someone said to help ourselves. So we did and wandered back into the living room.

I was returning my cup and was the only one in the dining room when a screen door swung open and in stepped John F. Kennedy.

He walked over to me and we shook hands. "Congratulations Mr. President," I said. It wasn't correct protocol. He was still a Senator and President-elect. But he seemed to like being called "Mr. President" and smiled.

We were alone for a few moments. The other reporters then spotted him and we were soon surrounded.

Kennedy looked tired from the strain of the campaign and those final agonizing hours when the election seemed like it could go either way.

One reporter asked him what he thought made the final difference.

"He (Nixon) stayed around too long in the South," Kennedy replied. (Stayed wasn't the exact word he used.)

Soon, other members of the family joined us: Jacqueline, Rose, Bobby, Ted, sisters Eunice, Jean and Pat and brother in-law Sargent Shriver.

Kennedy said he was flying to Palm Springs, FL the next day to relax and "maybe play a little golf."

"But don't mention golf," he laughed.

He didn't want the country to think it was getting another golfer like Dwight Eisenhower for President.

I got to chatting with Rose Kennedy who wanted to know about Quincy born Presidents John and John Quincy Adams. I told her as much as I knew and said I would ask Quincy Historian Bill Edwards to send her more information. (And he did.)

Someone produced gift-wrapped bottles of liquor from a cabinet in the kitchen.

And then a sight you couldn't forget: the next President of the United States pouring drinks for members of the press.

It was a night to fondly remember – and cherish.

The next day, the Kennedy family flew out of Barnstable Airport aboard the family plane "Caroline," named for daughter, Caroline, who looked like a young, Shirley Temple back then.

I got one more chance to talk with Kennedy before the plane took off.

"Good luck, Mr. President," I said to him.

"Thank you," he replied, breaking into a grin at being called "Mr. President" for the second time.

I later told Farrell and Kelly that someday I would write the story about how we crashed the Kennedy compound and the party. But not until Kennedy was out of office. Which I figured would be eight years because he surely would be re-elected to a second term.

I remember also telling them:

"I'm going to write how we got by the Secret service that night."

And, kiddingly added:

"And I'm going to write about how I could have shot the President of the United States over the punch bowl in the dining room of his father's house."

But who could have imagined then the tragedy that waited in Dallas?

I just can't help wondering about the Secret Service that night in Hyannisport. And that day in Dallas.

It has bothered me all these years.

And, I guess, it always will.

Hannon Family Drove To D.C. For JFK Funeral

Recalling That Tragic Day: Nov. 22, 1963

By SCOTT JACKSON

Walter Hannon was working in his North Quincy tire shop on the afternoon of Nov. 22, 1963, when U.S. President John F. Kennedy was assassinated while in a motorcade travelling through Dealey Plaza in Dallas, Texas.

Hannon, who had been elected Ward 5 councillor less than three weeks prior and would go on to serve as Quincy's mayor, still remembers that afternoon 50 years later.

"I'm in the tire shop, it's Friday afternoon, and all of a sudden there's a newsflash – Kennedy has been shot, and I'm saying 'oh Jesus – he was a guy from Massachusetts.' Then they came on and said he [had died]," Hannon recalled in a recent interview. "We closed the business down, it was like three o'clock in the afternoon – we we're going to close at six anyway and I said just close it. I went home and it was all over the TV."

Hannon, who met Kennedy in 1952 at a chamber of commerce event at the Neighborhood Club in Quincy, went to work the next day. But he closed up shop early and decided he and his family needed to be in the nation's capital.

"The next day I got up – we went to work on Saturdays for half a day," Hannon said. "There wasn't anybody on the street. Nobody. It was as quiet as a mouse. I said we're going to close up, but in my mind I'm saying I've got to go to Washington – I'm going to go there."

By the time he arrived home, his wife Pat had already packed and made arrangements for the family – including their children Walter III, Betty, and Susan – to stay in a hotel just outside Washington, D.C.

"I drove the truck home, put it in the driveway and I walked in the house. I said 'Pat' and she goes 'we're all set to go.' She said 'Tommy (the couple's youngest child at the time) is at my mother's, we're all packed, just take a shower,'" Hannon recalled. We drove right straight down to Washington. We stayed in Alexandria, Virginia."

The Hannons arrived in Washington in time to see Kennedy's flag-draped coffin transported down Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House to the U.S. Capitol on Nov. 24.

"We got there and the next day they took the body from the White House to the Capitol and we're right there – the horse with the saddle on it and so forth. Then the next day was going to be at

JFK National Historical Site Open Saturday, Sunday

John Fitzgerald Kennedy National Historic Site (NHS) in Brookline will open to the public on Saturday, Nov. 23 and Sunday, Nov. 24 in recognition of President John F. Kennedy and the 50th anniversary of the 1963 National Day of Mourning following his assassination in Dallas, TX.

The site will open both days from 9:30 a.m. until 4 p.m., with free admission for all. Ranger-guided house tours will be offered on Saturday and self-guided tours will be available throughout the day on Sunday.

At 2 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 24, the site will hold a brief memorial ceremony with a wreath-laying, a reading of President Johnson's 1963 National Day of Mourning Proclamation, reflections by local religious leaders, and a rendition of America the Beautiful performed by students from Brookline's Edward Devotion School. The ceremony will be held in front of the birthplace on Beals Street.

For further information, call 617-566-7937 or visit www.nps.gov/jofi.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy NHS preserves the birthplace and early boyhood home of the 35th President of the United States. The modest house was the first home shared by the president's parents, Joseph P. and Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy. John F. Kennedy, the second of nine children, spent his formative years in Brookline as his family began its rise to national prominence. In 1967, Mrs. Kennedy returned to 83 Beals Street to commemorate her son's life, recreating his birthplace to her recollection of its 1917 appearance.

St. Matthew's Church, so I said to the kids 'we've got to be there early' and they all sat on the curbstone. I fortunately went back – the houses we're right on the [street] – and a guy boosted me up and sat me on a windowsill," Hannon said. "That was the first time I started to cry and that's when I said 'they just killed my president.'

"But I was standing there when they were bringing him on and they said that Lee Harvey Oswald was killed. And I said, 'good I'm glad,' and the guy said beside me said 'no, that's the worst thing that could happen.' And I was saying 'why?' He said 'they'll never really know what happened now.' That's exactly what the man said."

The next day, after the state funeral at St. Matthew's, Hannon drove his family to Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia to see Kennedy's interment. The cemetery, however, was too full of people mourning the late president's death so the Hannons left and headed back to Quincy.

"It was like Fenway Park ten times over," Hannon said of the crowd inside the cemetery.

Hannon was able to document the event that weekend in Washington, recording everything on his 16 mm Bell & Howell color camera. Several years ago, he had Bette Campbell of QATV convert the recordings from that camera into DVDs for his children.

Like Hannon, former mayor Frank McCauley also remembers the day the 35th president was assassinated.

"It's one of those days where everyone remembers where they were," McCauley said.

McCauley had been elected Ward 1 councillor earlier that November, and at the time he was the treasurer for Shipbuilders Cooperative Bank. On Nov. 22, 1963, he and his associates went to appraise a house in Hanover that morning. They couldn't find the house, so they came back to Quincy Center for lunch. While they were eating, they heard radio reports that Kennedy had been shot.

"I was appalled by the thing," McCauley said. "We were going out to appraise a house, I was with the bank at the time, and we couldn't find the house and it was a disaster.

"We came back and I was in the deli. There was a little deli on Chestnut Street right up from where the bank was and that came up over the radio and I said 'oh Jesus.' They didn't say he had been killed, they said he'd been shot. It was a terrible thing to have happen."

After that, McCauley returned to the bank building at 1400 Hancock St. He tried to talk to his wife Sandra on the phone, but the lines were so jammed that afternoon that no one could get a dial tone for over an hour.

"I remember going back to the bank trying to get my wife," McCauley said. "I couldn't get a dial tone – everyone was using the phone."

Former Norfolk County Dist. Atty. George Burke recalled his friendship with JFK.

"In 1958, I was his campaign manager here in Quincy. There was a holiday and a parade and I met John F. Kennedy at the Neponset Bridge. I was driving a Ford Fairlane convertible.

"There was only John F. Kennedy and I in the car as we drove through the parade and he was waving to everyone. The Army vs. Navy football game was on the radio and he kept asking me every couple of minutes how Navy was doing and what yard line they were on.

"John F. Kennedy was a good friend and it was a great pleasure for me to be his campaign manager here in Quincy," Burke said. "It is with great sadness that I recall the 50th anniversary of the his death. John F. Kennedy was a great president and is missed by the people especially of Massachusetts."

THE INITIAL grave site of President John F. Kennedy as it appeared in this 1966 photo at Arlington National Cemetery in Washington, D.C. was surrounded by a white picket fence. In the center is the eternal flame lit by widow and former First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy the day the President was buried on Nov. 25, 1963. Also visible are memorials for two of the Kennedy's children. A son, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy – who had predeceased JFK by 15 weeks – and an unnamed stillborn daughter were reinterred Dec. 4, 1963. Because of the large crowds that visited the site – some 16 million in three years – the graves were moved to a more suitable site at the cemetery. The new grave site – paved with irregular stones of Cape Cod granite – was consecrated by Cardinal Richard Cushing and opened to the public in March of 1967.

L. Cpl. David O. Sullivan Memorial Rededicated

'The Saga Of The Traveling Plaque'

By PATRICIA SULLIVAN

It's been 44 years since last I saw the memorial honoring my brother in Bishop Field.

This Recreation Area is Dedicated to the Glory of God and in Grateful Memory of L.Cpl. David Owen Sullivan USMC March 15 1948 – February 14, 1969. Died While Fighting for His Country in Vietnam. It is in dying that we are born to eternal life.

Then, on April 25, 2013, at the dedication of the L.Cpl. David Owen Sullivan Memorial Square on Safford Street, Linda Perchard, of the Quincy Vietnam Combat Veterans, mentioned she'd heard about a memorial plaque at Bishop Field, but she couldn't find it. I confirmed that the plaque did exist and I had seen it at the playground. I told her it was a bronze plaque mounted on a rose-colored granite boulder. After our conversation, Linda made it her mission to find the plaque and discovered that the City moved it in the 1990's in order to refurbish the play area where the plaque had been installed. After the renovations were completed, the plaque, for some reason, did no find its way back to the park. Undeterred, Linda continued her crusade and ultimately found the plaque, but the granite boulder was gone.

The City of Quincy pledged to restore the plaque and return it to its place of honor at Bishop Field, where it will remain undisturbed. For this I am grateful.

Interestingly enough, Bishop Field was not the original destination for the memorial. For the backstory I must go back to that awful day in 1969.

Late February 1969. The snow piles up; temperature plummets downward. I rush home to Stafford Street from my Jamaica Plain apartment, wondering why my dad had called. He'd said, in a monotone voice, "Come home, your mother needs you." Hmm. "He never uses the phone, so it must be something big." My mind races then... "I've got it!! David's home!!! Must be it. He's due home any day. They want to surprise me. Just like him to sneak home and not tell anybody; just show up at the door."

I drive a little faster... Park anywhere. Rush up the stairs. The house is full of people. I don't see their faces. I look behind the doors and in the closet. I know he's going to jump out and scare me like he did when we were kids. "David! I know you're here!" I'm in the kitchen now. "Where is he??" My mother's face... OH MY GOD.

RESTORED AND RETURNED bronze plaque that dedicates the children's play area at Bishop Field in memory of L. Cpl. David Owen Sullivan who was killed during the Vietnam War.

A few days later the Marines return to the house to talk with me, as they had to my parents a few days before. They told me he died bravely, saving many brother Marines. I don't remember much else about that day except my pain and the look on their faces as they spoke to me of this unspeakable horror. I didn't want them there; I wanted David. They knew that. It took me a long time to wrap my heart around the pain they must have felt, the courage it took for them to come back, just to speak with me. Today, for that I'm grateful.

It would be another 10 long, cold days before David would arrive home. It was winter after all. There were storms. Flights were delayed. It was bitter cold, the snow falling hard the day he was buried.

Cards and letters arrived by the hundreds, many containing money from folks who just wanted to help out in our time of need. The thoughtfulness was appreciated, but we decided to use the money for David and create a basketball/tennis court at his childhood summer camp in Foxboro. He loved it there. The plan now set, the memorial plaque was commissioned. It was beautiful; a hand-carved bronze plaque set in a gorgeous pink granite boulder. Good Quincy granite created by a Quincy artisan who would accept no fee; his creation a gift honoring a much-loved Quincy son lost to his family, in a war thousands of miles away.

But, as things have a way of doing, the recreation area fell through and we were left with a question of what to do with a 200-pound memorial stone with so specific a dedication? The options were slim; it couldn't go just anywhere.

The City stepped in and offered to place it at a newly created children's play area at Bishop Field. Our house on Safford Street borders Bishop Field at the exact spot where the play area was built.

It couldn't be a more perfect fit!

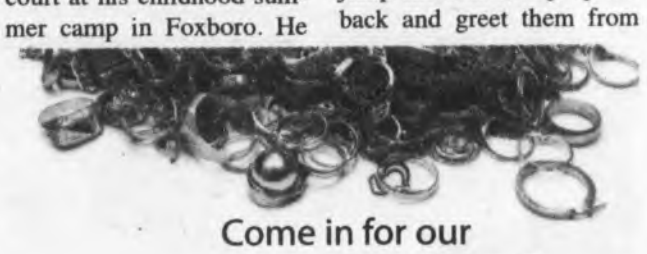

That's precisely the spot where David and his buddies hung out playing cards. From that vantage point he could keep an eye out for when mom or dad pulled into the driveway, then he'd jump the fence, slip up the back and greet them from the top of the stairs as they came in the front door!

The journey of the plaque finally ends at the place where it belonged all along; holding David's spot in the playground right behind his boyhood home. He'd like that.

On some future day, if you're walking through Bishop Field and see David's plaque, or you're waiting for the bus and see a sign dedicating the spot you're standing on to another military casualty, please take a moment and reflect. Know that this person, and the thousands of others whose names appear on similar memorials across the country, were just like you and me. They lived, laughed and loved. They had heartbroken family and friends (unbowed, but never quite the same) at the loss of them in their lives. And, because of these men and women, you and I get to walk through the park or ride the bus and hurry on with our lives.

FAMILY OF L.Cpl. David Owen Sullivan, a U.S. Marine who died Feb. 14, 1969, while fighting for his country in Vietnam, gather around a memorial bronze plaque at Bishop Field that was restored and returned to the children's area at the field located at the corner of Safford Street and Hamniton Avenue. Among the family members who attended the rededication ceremony were sisters of L. Cpl. Sullivan - Diane Sullivan Leach (left) of Arlington and Patricia Sullivan (right) of North Carolina. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Noble

Holiday Drunk Driving Prevention Campaign Launched

D.A. Morrissey's Initiatives Aimed At Those Serving Drinks, And Those Out For The Night

Police and Fire Chiefs and substance abuse prevention coalition leaders from across Norfolk County recently joined Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey at Gillette Stadium to launch two campaigns aimed at preventing drunk driving as the holiday season approaches.

One initiative targets those serving drinks, the other targets groups out for the night.

The Ensign John. R. Elliott HERO Campaign for Designated Drivers enlists the participation of bars and taverns to ask groups of patrons "Who will be the HERO tonight," and then to supply that designated driver with a free soft drink or coffee.

The HERO Campaign was founded by Muriel and Bill Elliott, the parents of the Naval Academy graduate, killed by a drunk driver in 2000, for whom the campaign is named.

"Society has reversed course on destructive behaviors before. Smoking rates have plummeted since the country looked squarely at the real consequences. We can do the same with drunk driving," District Attorney Morrissey said.

"It has to start with everyone, but particularly young people, appreciating the dangers but also understanding that part of the cure is having one person in a group of friends step up and say 'I'll be the HERO tonight, I'll be the designated driver.'"

The launch event took place just a few yards from where District Attorney Morrissey was sponsoring a TIPS alcohol server training for local bar and restaurant workers, so that they are better equipped to keep their patrons from getting behind the wheel when they should not.

"That training dovetails with our Observe, Don't Overserve initiative," Morrissey said.

"For the last two years, we have reached out to local establishments to partner with us and display "Observe, Don't Overserve" signs on the bar or at serving stations in their places," he continued. "When a server feels they need to shut someone off, they can point to the signs and explain that their manager, their owner, is in partnership with the local Police Chief and the District Attorney and they just can't serve them another drink. If it keeps one drunk driver off the road, by all means blame me."

Morrissey said that, on average, Norfolk County sees one person "killed or permanently injured," in a drunk driving crash each week.

"Those numbers would be far higher if we were not surrounded by some of the best hospitals in the world."

School Committee Releases Old Central To City

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The school committee recently voted unanimously to release all control of the old Central Middle School site to the city.

The city now has control of the nearly 115-year-old building and site at 1012 Hancock Street, which was replaced by a brand-new $32 million Central Middle School located at 875 Hancock Street on Oct. 21.

School Committee Vice Chairwoman Barbara Isola read a resolve into the record during the Nov. 13 meeting stating that Quincy Public Schools reviewed all options for the property and found that the building and site do not allow for any financially feasible reuse options.

"The school committee has reviewed options for the use of the old middle school building and the costs for same, and thereupon concluded that the building does not allow for financially-feasible reuse options," read Isola. "Now therefore be it resolved by the school committee of the City of Quincy that, in accordance with the provisions of Section 33 of the Charter of the City of Quincy and G.L. c. 43, § 33, the school committee discontinue the use of the building that formerly served as Central Middle School, and return the building and the land on which the building now sits, together with the grounds connected therewith, to the control of the municipal corporation, City of Quincy, hereby forever releasing all right of control over said premises."

According to Mayoral spokesman Chris Walker the next step in the process will be to bring the building and property in front of the City Council.

"The next step in the process is to bring it before the city council asking that they declare it surplus," said Walker. "That will trigger the sale process."

According to Walker, Mayor Thomas Koch will ask the City Council to declare it surplus within the next month or so. The goal is to sell the property and return the money to the tax rolls of the city. If the new owner decides to redevelop the property it can only be used for low-density multi-family developments.

Seven New Firefighter Recruits Begin Training

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The city swore in seven new firefighter recruits last Friday during a ceremony at City Hall.

City Clerk Joe Shea swore in new recruits Jonathan O'Driscoll, Stephen Spring, Timothy Lynch, Justin Pothier, George Zirhgiebell, John Holler, and Darryl Zoia in front of family and friends.

"You've earned where you are, you've taken the exam, some of you have served your nation and you're about to join, what I think is the most professional fire department around," said Mayor Tom Koch.

"You join the ranks of some incredible people, you join the ranks of a department that has a tremendous reputation, not only responding, obviously, but how you deal with the public when you're out there. When you wear that badge you represent the City of Quincy, and people really count on you in this city, so we're going to be counting on you to serve and join the ranks of some terrific guys. I'm excited for you; I'm excited for your families. This is obviously a great day for the City of Quincy, for the fire service as well as you and your families. I'm very, very happy for you, I congratulate each of you and look forward to your many years of service with the City of Quincy and I wish you good luck with the academy."

The new recruits began the 10-week training academy Monday located at the former Quincy Shipyard, where they joined other new recruits from Braintree and Hull.

"Quincy Fire Department is the finest Fire Department in the State, in the Country, and we're very proud of it," said Fire Chief Joe Barron. "These seven fine young men have served their county and will continue to serve their community, so it's an awful lot to be proud of, and a good reason to be proud. They have a lot of training ahead of them, it will be a little difficult time, and there will be some things that they are perhaps not used to but we have a fine team that will train them. You'll have a lot to celebrate tonight but bright and early Monday morning these guys are going to work."

Quincy Downs Durfee, 35-21 Improves Season Record To 6-4

By BILL GRIFFIN

You figure out a way to stop him.

Junior James Lam had a rushing game which would make any tailback proud and a passing game about which quarterbacks dream as Quincy rolled past Durfee, 35-21 at Veterans Stadium in a non-league meeting Friday night.

Lam rushed for 135 yards in 12 carries and was 5-5 through the air for 120 yards. He threw a 54-yard touchdown pass and had a 30-yard touchdown run. That's 255 yards total offense on 17 plays. Other than that, he didn't do much at all. He is an all-league caliber tailback and an all-league caliber quarterback wrapped up in one player.

"James has the talent, but what I see most in his progress is experience," said coach Bill Reardon "We had a couple of tough one-point losses earlier this year and James learned lessons from them. Every week, I see more from him."

The victory moved Quincy to 6-4 and clinched back-to-back winning seasons for the Presidents for the first time since the 2002-2003 seasons entering their annual battle with North Quincy Thanksgiving morning.

"I'm pleased with the progress we've made since I took over in 2008," said Reardon. "There were some lean years, but right now, the program is where we want it to be."

Lam has rushed for 333 yards in his last three games. At 6'3" and 190 pounds, he runs with power, speed, and instinct. He does not run like a quarterback. He runs. He runs between the tackles for first downs and breaks scrambles which turn losses into gains. He runs swiftly off the option, a play which showcases his clever ball-handling and decision-making.

He runs power sweeps that are called for him. They are power sweeps by plan not accident. The guard Steve Scolaro pulls, fullback Jalen Chase throws a clear-out block on the corner and Lam breaks through the clear alley. It is a designed play. When he breaks scrimmage, he cuts back to open space with the reaction of a running back. Quarterbacks do not run power sweeps. It is not done. James Lam runs them.

"His balance is good and he knows how to set up defenders," said Reardon. "He gets them leveraged one way, and he cuts it back the other."

As a passer, he grows more disciplined and accurate each week. He has a power arm. On his 54-yard touchdown pass to J.T. Bain he threw the ball 60 yards in the air with a tight, perfect spiral, and very little loft on the ball. It caught Bain in perfect stride. He has improved picking receivers out of coverage. He found Matt Hines open in the soft spot of a zone for 11 yards and a first down early in the game. In the second half, he rolled left and had the arm strength to throw the ball back across his body to Hines for 21 yards and another first down which set up a touchdown.

"He's accurate, he has the arm strength and you can see him growing as a passer," said Reardon.

The Presidents had a balanced running game which pounded out 271 yards and 18 first downs. Senior Alex Alexandre, who returned after missing three games with a shoulder injury, gained 60 yards in 16 carries and scored a touchdown. Sophomore Jahvae Handsome-Fields backed up 200-yard running games against Taunton and Braintree with an efficient 73 yards in seven carries. He scored on runs of 32 and seven yards.

"It was good to see Alex come back back. He was a little rusty early, but you could see things start to click for him in the second half," said Reardon. "When we have Alex, Jahvae and James, we're more balanced."

Quincy's offensive and defensive lines had an excellent game. Along with 406 yards total offense from scrimmage, the Presidents limited Durfee to 32 yards running. Chase, Hines, Scolaro, Mike Munroe and Abraham Hoti had strong games on the offensive side. On defense, Hines, William Young, James Askins, Matt Kozlowski, Dan Guarente, and Jake Bergonzi plugged all holes. Armani Cardoso chipped in with a key interception.

"Our line play was good. We were able to rotate in different players which kept us fresh," said Reardon.

Durfee did have success throwing. Quarterback Jaran Viera was 14-23 for 279 yards and three touchdowns while Michael Correia, who is being scouted by Division 1 colleges, had 11 catches for 239 yards and three TDs. Reardon would like to see the coverage improve, but Viera and Correia are exceptional. Correia throws a beautiful, soft ball which is rare in high school and Correia has college-level hands and speed.

"Our coverages have to get better for Thanksgiving," said Reardon. "We also have to do a better job containing receivers after the catch."

Handsome-Fields bolted 32 yards for a score to finish a 68-yard scoring drive on Quincy's first six offensive plays of the game. Thomaz Silva kicked the first of his five extra points for a 7-0 lead less than three minutes into the game.

After Viera and Correia connected on a 25-yard TD pass to tie the score, Alexandre went in from the two for a 14-7 early in the second. Midway through the period, Handsome-Fields scored off a seven-yard trap for a 21-7 lead.

Just before halftime, Lam and Bain combined for the play of the night. With the ball on the Quincy 46, Lam settled in the pocket, made a slight fake, and fired a laser 60 yards which Bain grabbed 10 yards in the clear along the right sideline for the touchdown and a 28-7 halftime lead.

Lam accelerated through a perfectly-blocked sweep and tight-roped down the sideline for a 30-yard score in the third. Viera and Correia connected for two TDs to make the final, 35-21.

Red Raiders Defeat Norwood

By BILL GRIFFIN

Most stories tell the tale of the running backs and quarterbacks. The glory goes to the players who run and throw the football. The defense and linemen are mentioned much later, if it all.

Let's change all that.

Two-way lineman Vinny Tran made three huge plays in the second half and linebacker Pat Janeiro picked off an interception near his own end zone on the final play of the game to preserve a well-earned 14-6 victory for North Quincy over Norwood in a non-league game Saturday afternoon.

"That was a good football game. Norwood is tough. That was four quarters of excellent football," said North coach Mark Nutley after his club won its second straight to up its record to 3-7 on the season. "The defense stayed low and made the tackles. We blocked well, and we played hard. It's a good win."

There are few better two-way linemen than Tran. In the third period against Norwood, he recovered a fumble at at the Norwood 40. In the final four minutes of the game, he blocked a punt which gave North the ball on the Norwood 19. He made a hard hit off a sack to force a fumble which Eddie Guinto recovered at the Norwood 30.

"Late in a close game, I'm just trying to make something happen," said Tran. "My coach told me to concentrate on rushing the passer. I thought if I did, I could force a mistake."

Tran is a terrific story. He is a senior who has started on the line since his freshman year. He has gone both ways for the last three years. This year, he has played every snap of every play in every game. Defense, offense, special teams. He has not sat for one play. He works at offensive guard and defensive end. He is hit on every play. He has not missed a single one.

"This might be the last year I play football," he said. "I might play in college, I'm not sure. I just want to leave everything I have on the field and play my best on every play for my teammates."

Janeiro, who came back from a shoulder injury suffered against Milford, finished off the victory. With seven seconds left, Norwood quarterback Jake Vail lofted a desperation pass to the corner of the end zone. North covered it well. Janeiro went high for the interception to end all doubt.

"I was just rushing the passer," said Tran. "I saw it leave his hands. I turned and all I saw was white shirts. That made me feel good. Then I saw my friend Pat Janeiro catch the ball, and I knew it was over."

There were several big plays from North's defense which played well enough to earn a shutout. Norwood's scoring drive only covered 20 yards. Junior Nick Manning made an interception off an Alex Chen deflection to stop a Norwood drive late in the first half. Antoine Allen, another golden day running in the sun with 188 yards on 32 carries, made two key open-field tackles at cornerback. One saved a touchdown. One kept a Norwood receiver inbounds and took precious seconds off the clock in the final minutes. Chen recovered Tran's punt block inside the Mustangs' 20.

"Antoine's last tackle was huge. We needed to take time off the clock," said Nutley.

North could have scored six touchdowns. Four times the Red Raiders moved inside the Norwood 20 and did not score. The two best chances came from Eric Cohane-Jones and Allen. Cohane-Jones just missed an acrobatic catch of an Andrew Kiley pass in the back corner of the end zone late in the first half. With less than 3:00 in the game, Allen had a 21-yard run for a first down at the eight called back for a penalty. Two other drives, one in the final minutes, stalled because North played a bit conservative, confident its defense could protect the lead.

"We talked about that after the game. We have to do a better job punching the ball in when we get close," said Nutley.

The Red Raiders showed balance on offense which might be something they feature a bit on Thanksgiving against Quincy. Allen added a 24-yard punt return to his rush total, and scored all 14 points. In his last two games, he has seven touchdowns and 495 yards rushing. He rolled past the 1500-yard mark for the year. But there was more. Dayvon Jones had 41 yards in seven carries, mostly on an inside counter play, and caught three passes for 45 yards. Kiley was 4-5 passing for 49 yards.

"If we can throw and feature Dayvon enough, maybe we can get Antoine some room," said Nutley.

North was boosted for the second straight game by the return of senior captain Eddie Guinto who tore a ligament in his knee in the first game of the year. He had strong four-yard run to the Norwood one to set up North's final touchdown. He also threw a good block on Allen's second scoring running.

"He means so much to the team," said Nutley. "You can feel them get a lift just because he is back."

The Mustangs went up 7-0 after recovering a fumble on the North 20 in the first quarter. The Red Raiders tied it when Allen went in from the two on a 14-play, 67-yard behind excellent blocking on the left side from Fred Barsamian, Don Sharp, Zach Dangora, and Tran. Kiley and Jones had a passing connection of 17 yards on the march. Allen rushed for the points and an 8-6 lead the Red Raiders would not relinquish.

The Red Raiders opened the lead to 14-6 in the third following Allen's 24-yard punt return. They scored on a 49-yard, six play drive. Allen had a 38-yard shot up the middle and went in from the one for a 14-6 lead with 5:25 left in the third which stayed that way until the end.

North enters Thanksgiving with two straight wins. The Red Raiders are starting to get healthy. They've added balance to the attack. The defensive front of Tran, Manning, Sharp, Chen, and Dangora are tough to move. It should be an interesting morning with Quincy.

"We're going in with a two-game winning streak. That's a good feeling," said Nutley.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

Over the years, numerous surveys have revealed that many patients have grown increasingly disenchanted with the quality of the health care they sometimes receive. Patients generally cite as the most irritating aspects of their medical care the short time allotted to each office visit, lack of attentiveness on the part of the examining physician, and an overall impersonal approach by doctors. Conversely, chiropractic patients are more likely to point out that these deficiencies are chiropractors' strengths. In fact, chiropractic appointments are geared toward listening to patients' precise concerns, questions, and explanations, followed by a detailed, hands-on examination that is undertaken to pinpoint cause(s). Finally, the chiropractor manually guides patients' bodies through movements designed to correct underlying problems.

North Quincy - Quincy Football Alumni Game Saturday

By BILL GRIFFIN

The Quincy vs. North Quincy Thanksgiving rivalry is more than a game. It is an event.

It is a week to shake down the memories from the sky. It is a time when friends and rivals come from near and far to talk about lives well lived, to take comfort and joy re-retelling tales from the rare, old times, and to honor that permanent Thanksgiving morning which was played out in their past, but will always remain a part of their present and future.

There will be a new piece added to the history of the two schools this year. Alumni from Quincy and North Quincy will play in a flag football game Saturday at Veterans Stadium. It strikes the right chord, it has the right feel and touch as something which could become an annual part of the Thanksgiving landscape because it captures well what is unique about this storied rivalry.

"The reason the response has been so great is the number of people involved," said Scott Campbell a former Quincy High player and coach who is one of the organizers of the event. "So many people have put time and effort into this event. Sean Glennon (Class of 1989 and former player and coach) is organizing the North Quincy side, and the response has been equally amazing."

The event has two main goals: To raise money for the sports programs from the two schools and to grow the spirit and pride among the alumni.

"There have been so many cuts in the sports budgets that we want to raise money to help out the athletic programs at both schools," said Campbell. "We also want to build up the spirit among the alumni. The game is perfect place to catch up and talk to old friends."

The alumni game will be played after the freshman and JV games. The freshman game begins at 9 a.m. After the alumni game, there will be an event at The Cunningham which has donated food and the use of its facilities.

The winning ticket in a 50-50 raffle will also be drawn. One hundred tickets were sold at $100 each. The raffle is sold out.

"The raffle has drawn a lot of interest because a lot of people want to give back to the schools," said Campbell.

There will also be an opportunity to aid the Kevin Cellucci Foundation. Cellucci was a former football player at Quincy High. He is a master carpenter who was critically injured in a car accident on the Arborway in September. The foundation was set up to help with his medical bills. Anyone who buys a ticket can donate it to the raffle for the benefit of the foundation.

"If someone donates a ticket anonymously and that ticket wins, the winnings from the 50-50 raffle will go to the Kevin Cellucci Foundation," said Campbell.

The game should be a treat. The rosters have grown hour by hour. Players from as far away as Maine and Connecticut will compete. Classes from 1974 to 2004 will be represented. That means there will be players on the threshold of their 60's competing with players in their 20's. Use your imagination. It should a remarkable day.

"I think a lot of guys want

North Quincy junior Courtney Campo scored in the second half and senior backer Haley McKay played an excellent match on defense to help the Fisher Division to a 3-1 win over the Keenan Division in the Patriot League Girls Soccer All Star game at Hanover Sunday afternoon.

Sophomore Marissa McGue was also selected to the Fisher team from North. Junior forward Emma Papile represented Quincy High on the Keenan team.

Campo scored a beautiful goal hitting the far corner from the left side with a hard, accurate shot for Fisher's third goal of the match.

North's Ciara Forde and Quincy's Olivia Wallace were honored as a winners of the Garth Nelson Scholar-Athlete Award.

North's Sydney Chang and Quincy's Emily Hatfield earned sportsmanship awards for their schools.

"I think a lot of guys want to right past wrongs from Thanksgivings in the past," said Campbell who played for Quincy in the Class of 1989 and was freshman coach from 1993-94.

There have been changes in the athletes who will be trying take back a bit of past glory Saturday.

"A lot of the uniforms that used to be medium or large are now double-X and triple-X in size. Some of the quarterbacks and wide receivers now look like linemen," smiled Campbell.

There will be a band. There will be cheerleaders. There will be a voice from Thanksgivings past which will call up great echoes.

"Rob Buttomer is organizing the band for both schools," said Campbell. "Deb (Meenan) Picarski is organizing the Quincy cheerleaders and Nancy (Peduzzi) McNulty is organizing the North Quincy cheerleaders.

"One more exciting thing is that Charlie Ross, the voice of so many Thanksgiving games, will be in the booth doing play-by-play. That will bring back memories for a lot of the guys."

They are two schools from the same city. That is most rare and the closeness adds to the richness of the rivalry. The players know each other. They are not from different towns. They are Quincy people. They played on the same youth teams. Many were teammates before they were opponents. They were close friends before they met on Thanksgiving, and the bond has grown more firm as their lives have crisscrossed through the years.

"For four quarters, they'll knock each down and do anything to win. When it's over, you see hugs and handshakes. It's forgotten. They're friends again,"said Campbell. "When I was at Quincy, I would do anything to beat North Quincy High. Now some of my closest and dearest friends I've made in my life graduated from North."

The battle for city pride involves marriages and families.

"My sister is a 1985 graduate of Quincy High and my brother-in-law is a 1981 graduate of North Quincy," said Campbell. "They have a deal. If Quincy wins, the kids wear blue to Thanksgiving dinner. If North wins, the kids wear black and red."

For one Saturday in November, the draw of the rivalry is so strong that players will reach back four decades to experience it one more time. Quincy vs. North Quincy. It is timeless and that is a good thing.

Food, Coat Drive Benefits DOVE

The law firm of Baker, Braverman & Barbadoro P.C. has partnered with DOVE, a domestic violence assistance organization, on a canned food and coat drive for the month of November.

During November, Baker, Braverman & Barbadoro, P.C. is collecting non-perishable food items in containers located at their offices at 300 Crown Colony Dr. in Quincy.

The public and fellow tenants of 300 Crown Colony Drive are encouraged to contribute.

"Because of Thanksgiving, November is typically thought of as a month of gratitude. What better way to show your gratitude than by helping out those who can really use your support," said Paul Barbadoro, a partner at the firm. "The work DOVE does with victims of domestic violence is exemplary and we're hoping that our fellow tenants at 300 Crown Colony will agree and assist this very worthy cause."

DOVE, Inc. provides a broad range of preventive and responsive services to victims of domestic violence and their families. Over the past year, DOVE has provided emergency shelter to 38 adults, 34 children, answered more than 2,500 hotline calls, provided community-based services to more than 900 clients and educated more than 2,000 teens and community members on the many complex issues surrounding domestic violence.

"Companies pitching in to assist the families we help at DOVE is always appreciated, but even more so as we approach the holidays," said Claudia Cuscianna, DOVE senior manager of development and communications. "We commend our Quincy neighbors at the firm of Baker, Braverman & Barbadoro, P.C. for stepping up to collect food and raise awareness for the families DOVE supports."

Dec. 31 Last Day To Submit Nominations

Henry Bosworth Memorial Award Nominations Open

Nominations are open for Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award presented by The Quincy Sun.

The award – formerly known as the Sun Citizen of the Year – was renamed in 2010 in memory of Mr. Bosworth, The Quincy Sun's founder and longtime publisher.

Last year, Paul F. Moody, Sr., commander of the Sons of the American Legion, Morrisette Legion Post 294 and coordinator of Flags for Veterans Island, was honored for longtime volunteer service and support of veterans, youth and others in need.

Moody, a lifelong Quincy resident, was selected for the award by a judging panel from among 19 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

He is the third recipient of the Bosworth Award and the 30th individual overall to be recognized by The Quincy Sun for outstanding community service.

The others are Ruth Elizabeth (Betty) DeCristofaro, a lifelong Quincy Point resident and community volunteer; and former Quincy City Clerk and current Norfolk County Commissioner John M. Gillis whose public service has spanned more than 50 years.

The other 27 individuals were honored when the award was known as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's Quincy Sun.

Nominations will close Tuesday, Dec. 31. After nominations close, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2013 Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Bosworth Award
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the their nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January or February.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Monday, November 11, 2013, at approximately 5:45 p.m., members of the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit (DCU), dressed in plain clothes and operating non-traditional police vehicles were conducting surveillance in the area of the Quincy Center MBTA station. At this time, Detectives observed suspect #1, who they knew from past incidents, standing outside the MBTA station. Back in August 2011, DCU Detectives executed a Search Warrant at his Quincy residence and found drugs (crack cocaine) there. Suspect #1 remained in the general vicinity of the smoking area / pay phone. Detectives observed that suspect #1 was on and off his cellular phone numerous times. At approximately 7:00 p.m., Detectives observed suspect #1 walk towards Hancock Street through McIntyre Mall talking on his cellular phone. He took a right onto Hancock Street and continued southbound into the heart of Quincy Square.

Detective O'Brien then observed suspect #1 get into a vehicle that pulled over briefly, then drove off. Detectives were able to see a female driver with a male front seat passenger, with suspect #1 sitting in the back. The vehicle pulled over in the bus-way section of the Quincy Center MBTA station on Burgin Parkway, where suspect #1 exited the vehicle and began to walk towards the entrance to the station. The vehicle then pulled back onto Burgin Parkway and travelled northbound. At this time, Detectives believed that a drug transaction just occurred, so Detectives Powers, O'Brien, and Barkas followed the vehicle as it travelled on Burgin Parkway and took a right onto Dimmock Street. The vehicle stopped for the red light on Dimmock Street at Hancock Street, so the Detectives decided to approach the occupants of the vehicle. Detective O'Brien looked inside the vehicle and saw the passenger begin to drink from a bottle of water. Detective O'Brien approached the driver's side and as Detectives Powers and Barkas approached the passenger's side. All Detectives had their badges displayed on their outer garments. Detective O'Brien yelled out, "He just swallowed it." Detectives Powers and Barkas had the passenger, suspect #2, step from the vehicle while Detective O'Brien gave the driver, suspect #3, her Miranda Rights to which she stated she understood. The driver/suspect #3 said that the male (whom she could not identify), entered her vehicle and spoke to suspect #2. She stated that she believed that suspect #2 purchased one Suboxone tablet from the male/suspect #1 in her vehicle. A search of suspect #3 and her vehicle was negative for contraband. Detective Powers provided suspect #2 with his Miranda Rights to which he stated he understood. He told Detective Powers and O'Brien that as soon as he saw them coming, he knew it was the Police so ate the bag of heroin he had just purchased.

Detective O'Brien then recovered a baggie of a brown powder substance he believed to be heroin based on its appearance, packaging, and texture. Detective O'Brien informed Detective Duran, who was following suspect #1, via radio that heroin had been recovered. Suspect #2 stated he paid $40 for the heroin, using two $20 bills. A further search of suspect #2, a 27 year old Quincy resident, was negative, so he was advised that he would be summonsed to court for "Conspiracy and Possession of Class A Drug. Suspects #2 and #3, a 28 year old Abington resident, were then sent on their way.

Meanwhile, Detectives Coen and Duran encountered suspect #1 on the Burgin Parkway side of the MBTA station as he was pacing back and forth while using his telephone. As soon as the Detectives identified themselves, suspect #1 blurted out, "F@#$, ohh F@#$" and placed his head in his hands. Detective Coen asked suspect #1 if he remembered him (from the search warrant mentioned above) and he stated, "Yes – F@#$." Detective Duran provided suspect #1 with his Miranda Rights to which he stated he understood and wished to speak with Detectives. The suspect stated that he had met his friend down the street and that his friend had dropped him off at the t-station. Detective Duran informed suspect #1 that he was under arrest. Found on suspect #1 was $70.00 U.S. currency [three $20 bills and two $5 bills] in his left front pocket and one cellular phone.

Suspect #1 was transported to the station where he was booked in the usual manner by Sergeant Kelly. During a search, Detective O'Brien located 7 small bags of a brownish substance hidden in suspect #1's hair, believed to be heroin. These 7 baggies were the same size and shape as the one recovered from suspect #2. Suspect #1, a 29 year old Quincy resident, was charged with "Distribution of Class A Drug, subsequent offense; Possession of Class A Drug, subsequent offense; and Conspiracy to Violate the Controlled Substance Laws" Suspect #1 was previously found guilty of "Distribution of Class B Drug" in Brockton District Court. Nice Work!

SCAM: a neighbor recently received two telephone calls from "William Washington" who claimed to work for the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia. The first call was left as a message, stating that he (the neighbor) just won a lottery and needed to pay fees first prior to getting his winnings of $280,000. A follow up call by Washington resulted in a conversation where the caller said that a representative would be at his (the neighbor's) house in 45 minutes to pick up the check or money. When the neighbor asked to speak to a supervisor, Washington grew angry but gave the phone to a female, who was unable to answer correctly a series of questions offered by the neighbor. Although clearly a scam, since the Federal Reserve Bank does not deal with lotteries, does not make home visits and can't answer simple questions, the concern was that "someone would be at your house in 45 minutes." Usually, these scams involve wiring money from a local store to an address commonly out of state. The neighbor provided me with a telephone number that was from the Philadelphia area. According to Google, there have not been any complaints regarding this telephone number.

THIS IS A HAMMER

Painting In Winter Can be Tricky

Q: Can I paint rooms during the wintertime? My friend says it's impossible to do because the weather is too cold. What do you say? -- Jeanine H., via email

A: It's not impossible, but in colder climates it certainly can be more difficult. The main reason is that rooms need to be well-ventilated when painting; otherwise the room is hazardous to be in. It'll need to continue to be ventilated while it's drying, in order to keep humidity down, which means the windows will be wide open in the middle of winter.

In more-temperate regions, painting in winter really isn't a problem. Not only can you ventilate a room without getting frozen out of the house, but the paint cures more evenly. In below-freezing temperatures, a latex-based paint may not dry as evenly or cure as well.

But painters do interior work in cold weather all the time. How do they do it without sealing off the room from the rest of the house? You could take a few hints from them.

Professional painters often use a reverse-air system. Rigged into one of the windows, it pulls air from the room to the outside of the house at a constant rate, so that fumes don't seep into the rest of the house -- and the room being painted stays at a comfortable temperature.

Even without such a system, you can paint a room by setting up a fan in the window pointing outward, and keeping your heating system registers open in the the room. Wear a respirator mask when painting to avoid breathing in fumes, and keep children out.

If you need to add more than one coat or the paint seems to be taking longer than usual to dry, consider bringing in a dehumidifier to remove more moisture from the air and speed drying.

HOME TIP: To keep paintbrushes from drying out while you take a long break, place a sandwich baggie over the bristles.

Send your questions or home tips to ask@thisisahammer.com.

Sheriff Urges Drivers Sign-Up For Safety Program

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti continues to urge all area residents to register with his Yellow Dot program aimed at protecting motorists in the event of a medical emergency.

Sheriff Bellotti's free-of-charge safety program provides participants with a Yellow Dot decal to affix to his or her rear windshield. The decal immediately notifies public safety first responders of pertinent medical information contained in the vehicle's glove compartment.

Yellow Dot registration is quick and simple. Participants must have their photograph taken by a Norfolk County Sheriff's Office employee at a registration site and will be required to fill out a medical information card. Enrollees will then be asked to return at a designated date to pick up their completed medical information packet and yellow dot decal.

"We urge drivers of all ages to sign up for this safe and effective program," Sheriff Bellotti said. "With winter underway, unsafe road conditions pose a serious threat to motorists, and this program can ensure protection for anyone involved in an automobile accident."

Since its inception in Norfolk County in 2011, Sheriff Bellotti's Yellow Dot program has helped protect nearly 1,200 participants on the road in the 25 communities in which it operates.

Anyone wishing to sign up or learn more about the Norfolk County Sheriff's Yellow Dot program may call (781)751-3516.

Fall Automotive Care

Preventive Maintenance Key To Keep Cars Running

A car can't last forever, but if you take good care of it, you can make it go the distance into the decades and maintain its value.

AAA Car Doctor John Paul stresses the importance of preventive maintenance. Repairs are expensive, but many can be avoided if you follow this advice.

1. Read your owner's manual. The handy book, which should be kept in your glove compartment, contains recommendations of which services should be performed and when, such as oil and filter changes and transmission fluid flushes. Instead of stashing it away until you really need it, read it thoroughly, so you can get an idea of what your car needs in advance.

This book should be your guide to all the maintenance with your car. If your repair shop has other recommendations refer to the vehicle owner's manual. In too many cases some repair shops will add unnecessary service such as fluid changes or flushes which are not required by the vehicle manufacturer. Now of course if fluids are contaminated they need to be changed, but not just at the whim of the repair shop.

2. Keep a logbook. Store a notebook with your owner's manual. This will help you keep track of all maintenance tasks performed. When your car gets an oil change, mark the date and mileage. Write down every time you add or change fluids. Keep track of your gas mileage and record repairs. "It's a good way to see if you have a problem," Paul said. "Your log will reveal any unusual car behavior." Keeping a log book will help verify maintenance was performed if there are any warranty issues.

3. Be aware of your battery. A battery lasts about five years, but after three, you should have it tested annually. With AAA's mobile battery service, you can schedule an appointment to have a truck come to you to test your battery. Is your car frequently sitting in the driveway for a month or longer? "Consider using a Battery Tender, as this will help maintain the battery and maximize its life," Paul added.

4. Check your tire pressure and tire tread. When the tires are cool, check pressure with a tire gauge. Under-inflation can reduce tire life and give you poor gas mileage. Look at the sticker on the driver's side door to find out the proper pressure. Equally important to tire pressure is the tread depth, which helps your vehicle maintain traction in rain or snow.

Take a quarter and insert it headfirst between the grooves of the tread. If the tread doesn't reach George Washington's head, it is worn out and potentially unsafe. As we see more rear wheel drive cars coming to market, snow tires may be mandatory if you need to be out in wintery weather. Rotate the tires help extend tire life and is a good excuse to check the brake condition, which are easily visible when the wheels are removed.

6. Check your lights. At least once a month, check the lights to make sure they are in working order. Turn on your headlights and step outside to inspect their brightness. To test brake lights, get a friend to stand behind the vehicle as you sit in the driver's seat and put your foot on the brake. "If one of your headlights or brake lights are burnt out at night, drivers might mistake you for a motorcycle," Paul said.

7. Replace wipers. Blades should be replaced every six months to a year. Though they are easy to check and change, we tend to only think about them when it's raining; by the time they need to be replaced, they are not able to do their job anymore. Be on the lookout for streaking, squeaking or chattering, as that means your wipers are wiped out. Consider dedicated winter wiper blades to prevent ice build up during poor weather.

8. Stay on top of recalls. In most cases, manufacturers will notify you if any recalls involve your vehicle. But if you have moved around, check www.safercar.gov to be aware of issues. Recalls don't cost you anything, so get repairs done as soon as possible. Many drivers ignore recalls. These repairs should be performed since in many cases they may involve safety or emissions related issues. Failure to have this work performed could not just be dangerous but could also be costing you more for gas because your car is not running as efficiently as possible.

9. Clean the interior. Thoroughly clean and vacuum the inside of your car monthly. "The more often you do it, the easier it gets," Paul said. This will help remove dirt from upholstery and carpeting before it becomes embedded. If it's necessary to scrub the upholstery, make sure you buy specific upholstery cleaner, and avoid using too much water as it can lead to mold and mildew. Use a shop vacuum to soak up excess water. Don't forget to clean under the seats where food and other debris can hide. With cooler weather coming, some critters are looking for a home. Leaving food in a car is like sending mice and other rodents an invitation.

10. Wash the exterior frequently. Try to wash your car once a week. Remove bird droppings immediately, as the acid can eat the paint. Use only car wash soap and a clean sponge or mitt. "Never use dish detergent because it will strip the wax right off your car," Paul said. Touch up any scratches with matching "touch-up" paint.

Speaking of wax, it can help restore and maintain the paint. Follow the instructions on the package, applying only a thin layer onto an applicator. Squirting it on directly can discolor the paint. And be sure to fully remove it. Waxing and polishing your car four times per year can help keep it in showroom condition. Remember: wax on, wax off.

Study Finds 1 In 4 Drivers Struggle To Stay Awake Behind The Wheel

More than one in four motorists (28 percent) reported being so tired they had a hard time keeping their eyes open while driving in the past month, according to new research by the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety. Motorists ages 19-24 were the most likely to report driving dangerously drowsy at 33 percent, while the oldest drivers (ages 75+) and the youngest (ages 16-18) were the least likely to report having done so in the previous month at 22 percent each.

"Drowsy driving remains a significant threat to the motoring public, with many drivers underestimating the problem of driving while extremely tired, and overestimating their ability to deal with it," said Lloyd P. Albert, AAA Southern New England Senior Vice President of Public and Government Affairs. "Driving while fatigued is dangerous because it slows reaction time, impairs vision and causes lapses in judgment, similar to driving drunk. We know that people can't reliably predict when they are going to fall asleep, and a very fatigued driver may fall asleep for several seconds without even realizing it."

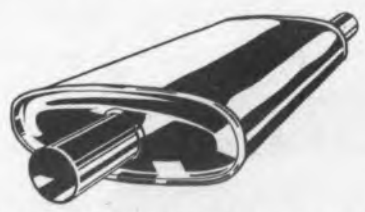

The study found that 95 percent of drivers believe it is somewhat or completely unacceptable to drive when they are so tired it is difficult to keep their eyes open. More than eight in ten (83 percent) believe that drowsy drivers pose a somewhat or very serious threat to their personal safety.

"Many of us are so worn out from our work and family obligations, yet we downplay our fatigue and stay behind the wheel even when we should stop for a rest," said Albert. "We should consider the dangers whenever we attempt to push our driving to the limits. We can protect ourselves and every-

Escape Redesign, Certified Used Vehicles, Roof Liners

Ask John Paul, AAA's Car Doctor

Q. I was wondering what your thoughts are on the complete redesign of the Ford Escape? I am looking at a used 2013 model as well as a used 2012 model, both have about the same mileage.

A. The previous design used up until 2012 was one of the best selling small SUVs sold. The new design for 2103 certainly gives the previous boxy Escape a more contemporary look and feel. The new design Ford Escape handles well and has improved fuel economy. The overall performance and fuel economy only get better when equipped with the smaller yet more powerful EcoBoost engine. I also found the interior to be of higher quality and generally more upscale than older models. Both are good vehicles and really it comes down to price and which vehicle you like best.

Q. I have a 2006 Ford F150 4-wheel drive pick-up truck. I just had the dealership replace the front rotors and pads. Now I have a shaking in my steering wheel that is increasingly getting worse. I took or back in this morning. The guy told me it sounded like a tie rod. I don't want to get stiffed for something that they did incorrectly. What are your thoughts?

A. I would start with tire balance first and then look at the various brake parts that were installed. If one of the brake rotors is out of balance the truck would certainly have a vibration. Although badly worn steering parts could cause a vibration, I would have thought any worn parts would have been caught when the brake work was performed. If the shop is guessing about a faulty tie-rod end I would look for another repair shop.

Q. I have a 1995 Olds Aurora and recently replaced battery with a new one. Everything functions, lights, radio etc. except it does not turn over. I turn the key once more, it sounds like it wants to start but it loses power like the battery is dying but all bells and whistles are functional. What gives?

A. I would start with a complete test of the electrical system including the new battery (it could be defective). This test should include the starter as well as the battery cables. A poor engine ground could be causing the no-start problem.

Q. What do you think of dealership 'certified used' vehicles? I would like to buy a one year old, low mileage Volvo XC70 but don't want to pay full price for a new one. The only thing I am nervous about is getting it used and then finding out it's a lemon. What is your opinion on the certified used vehicles, are they worth the extra money?

A. If it is a factory certified used car, they are typically have lower miles and zero history of any problems. In addition depending on the manufacturer these cars may have extended warranties and wear items such as brakes and tires may have been replaced. Before purchasing a CPO (certified pre-owned) car ask if it is manufacturer certified or dealer certified. Although they could both could be good cars, the manufacturer CPO the factory is standing the car. In addition typically the manufacturer has inspected the car to ensure that it top quality.

Q. I own an older Saab and the roof liner has begun to sag – big time. I tried to spray some adhesive between the roof and the liner, but it fail to hold because the insulation has become a crumbled mess. Any suggestions?

A. Short of bringing the car to an upholstery shop, you could try to fix it yourself. You can remove the complete headliner and scrape all of the material and fabric away leaving just the fiber board. Then you can attach some heavy fabric material to finish of you repair. Once everything is dry reinstall the headliner. I remember doing this same operation adding a "stylish" corduroy headliner to an old Chevy Nova, a unique look.

Q. I am considering purchasing a 2014 Subaru Legacy or Impreza. I would appreciate your advice on reliability, any past repair issues, etc. I have heard Subaru is known to have head gasket issues which can be very costly to repair.

A. Certainly past Subaru models have had their share of head-gasket issues, but it my understanding that that problem has been corrected. The latest Subaru models are in my opinion the best Subaru models. They ride better handle better are more fuel efficient and have much nicer interiors.

Gas Prices Unchanged From Last Week

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are unchanged from last week, according to AAA Southern New England.

AAA's Nov. 18th survey of prices in Massachusetts found self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $3.28 per gallon, remaining the same as last week. Prices locally are 10 cents lower than a month ago. The current price is seven cents higher than the national average for self serve unleaded of $3.21. A year ago at this time the Massachusetts average price was 30 cents higher at $3.58.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 36 cents, from a low of $3.13 to a high of $3.49. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every trip-every time.

AAA Fuel Saving Tip of the Week

Don't idle a cold engine for an extended time. Cars today can be safely driven almost immediately after starting. Doing so speeds the warm-up process and produces fewer exhaust emissions.

one else on the road by recognizing the simple signs of fatigue."

An estimated 17 percent of fatal crashes, 13 percent of crashes resulting in hospitalization, and seven percent of all crashes requiring a tow involve a drowsy driver, according to a 2010 study by the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety.

Some warnings signs that may signify drowsiness while driving are:

- The inability to recall the last few miles traveled;
- Having disconnected or wandering thoughts;
- Having difficulty focusing or keeping your eyes open;
- Feeling as though your head is very heavy;
- Drifting out of your driving lane, perhaps driving on the rumble strips;
- Yawning repeatedly;
- Accidentally tailgating other vehicles;
- Missing traffic signs.

AAA urges all motorists to stop driving and find a safe place to pull over if experiencing any of the drowsy driving symptoms. To remain alert and be safer behind the wheel, AAA suggests:

- Get plenty of sleep (at least seven hours), especially the night before a long drive;
- Drive at times when you are normally awake;
- Schedule a break every two hours or every 100 miles;
- Avoid heavy foods;
- Travel with an alert passenger and take turns driving;
- Avoid medications that cause drowsiness or other impairment; and
- Consult with a sleep specialist or other medical professional if you have trouble getting enough rest or are chronically fatigued.

The AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety collected the data as part of the 2013 Traffic Safety Culture Index. The data reported here are from the sample of 2,325 licensed drivers, ages 16 and older, who reported driving in the past 30 days. Participants were surveyed using a web-enabled probability-based panel representative of the U.S. population.

For more information about drowsy driving, visit the National Sleep Foundation's drowsy driving website at www.DrowsyDriving.org.

AAA Southern New England is a not-for-profit auto club with 49 offices in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Jersey providing more than 3.5 million local AAA members with travel, insurance, finance, and auto-related services.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Decisions involving your finances might seem to be foolproof. But they could have underlying risks you should know about. Don't act on anything until all the facts are in.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're attracted to a situation that appeals to your Bovine intellect. And that's good. But don't neglect your passionate side when romance comes calling later in the week.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A recent development enhances that special relationship. Spending more time together also helps make the bonding process stronger. Expect news about a possible career change.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A suspicious situation should be dealt with before it leads to serious problems. Get all the facts needed to resolve it. Then refocus your energies on those tasks that need your attention.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) Try to be more open-minded in working toward a resolution of that standoff between yourself and a colleague or family member. A little flexibility now could work to your advantage later.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might feel a bit threatened by a proposed workplace change. The best way to deal with it is to ask questions. You'll find that those involved will be happy to provide you with the facts.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Feeling alone in a crowd during the early part of the week is an unsettling emotion. But your spirits soon perk up, putting you into the right mood to start making holiday plans.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A pesky problem should be dealt with immediately so you can put your time and effort into something more important. Someone from your past could have significant news for you.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) High-energy aspects dominate, both on the job and at home. Use this time to put some long-range plans into operation. Things level off later in the week.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Even the usually gregarious Goat might feel overwhelmed by a flurry of activities. Be patient. Things soon return to your normal social routine.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Career choices that seem too confusing to deal with at this point probably are. More information would help uncomplicate them. On the personal side, a friend might need your advice.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your Piscean imagination is stimulated by possibilities you see in a new opportunity. But keep those ideas to yourself until you feel ready to translate them into a workable format.
BORN THIS WEEK: You have an ingratiating way of helping people deal with their fears. Have you considered a career in social work or with the clergy?

Hanging of the Greens Ceremony Dec. 1

On Sunday, Dec. 1st, at 10:30 a.m. Quincy Community United Methodist Church will hold its annual Hanging of the Greens.

The origin of the Hanging of the Greens ceremony is unknown.

"Evergreens have a very long symbolic history," explained Rev. Dr. Susan Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church. "Since ancient times they have represented life and rebirth. This was especially true in those areas of the world where the winter months were long, dark, and cold.

"The church adapted this ancient symbol and gave it new meaning, teaching that evergreens represent eternal life. At some point in time, someone literally brought evergreens into a church building, but precisely how and when that happened we just don't know; such developments are much more complex than they might seem. Over time, decorating churches became a tradition, and evolved into the Hanging of the Greens."

Many different versions of the Hanging of the Greens service exist. The one used at Quincy Community United Methodist Church combines readings from scripture and songs, and was written by Jarek-Glidden. The real focus of the service is participation. Before the service begins, everyone is invited to help decorate the sanctuary with greenery. Then, at a certain point in the ceremony, these volunteers are asked to carry out their part of the decorating.

"The decorating is informal and lots of fun," said Jarek-Glidden. "That makes the Hanging of the Greens a great service for families and kids."

Towards the end of the service, the church Christmas tree is lit for the first time.

Everyone is invited to begin the holiday season by participating in the church's Hanging of the Greens.

The church is located at 40 Beale St. and is handicapped accessible.

For more information call (617) 793-3319.

Perfect Recipe For Retirement

By KRISTEN ALBERINO
Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Succulent turkey. Savory stuffing. Green bean casserole. Sweet potato and pumpkin pie. Every family has its Thanksgiving dinner traditions. With a carefully followed recipe, everyone around the table can enjoy their favorite dishes.

Social Security Online Services
www.socialsecurity.gov

If you plan poorly and wait to throw the bird in the oven at the last minute, you will end up with a turkey of a dish. The same can be said for financial planning and preparing for retirement. Follow the perfect recipe and you'll be rewarded with a juicy retirement.

Ingredients: one part Social Security earnings, one part savings, a pinch of planning.

First, start your retirement casserole with a visit to the Retirement Estimator. As useful as a food processor, the Estimator gives you an instant projection of what you can expect to receive in retirement benefits. Just plug in some simple information and the Estimator uses your past earnings and estimated future earnings to project about how much you'll get when you retire. Like an experienced cook, you can experiment with the recipe and plug in different future earnings and retirement dates until it's just the way you want it.

Next, fold in the savings. The earlier you begin, the better off you will be. Social Security replaces about 40 percent of the average worker's pre-retirement earnings. Most financial advisors say you will need 70 percent or more of pre-retirement earnings to live comfortably. To supplement Social Security you also will need savings, investments, pensions, or retirement accounts to make sure you have enough money to enjoy retirement. Visit the Ballpark Estimator for tips to help you save. www.choosetosave.org/ballpark.

If you have a pension from your employer or a 401k, IRA or similar retirement fund, be sure to add that into the mix.

Like to taste as you cook? Then you'll want to set up a my Social Security account so you can log in anytime to check your reported earnings and projected benefit estimates. If something doesn't taste just right — if your earnings are reported incorrectly or you find you need to save more to meet your retirement goals — there's still time to make corrections before your retirement casserole is done.

Once you've added the ingredients of Social Security earnings, personal savings, and any pensions you may have, it's time to let the retirement casserole bake.

If you pull the retirement casserole out to find it a little underdone, just put it back in for a bit longer. Delaying retirement can increase your benefits and give you more time to build up your savings. To learn more, read our publication entitled When To Start Receiving Retirement Benefits. It provides helpful information regarding the things you should consider when making a decision on when to collect retirement benefits. You will find it, along with our other useful publications, at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs.

When the retirement casserole is ready, enjoy it! You deserve a comfortable retirement. Following a traditional Thanksgiving recipe carefully can ensure a satisfying meal. In the same way, following our financial planning recipe will help you achieve a more fulfilling retirement. Learn more at www.socialsecurity.gov.

Funds Released To Complete Riverwalk

The City of Quincy has authorized the Neponset River Watershed Association to proceed on constructing the final portion of the two-mile long northern section of the Quincy Neponset Riverwalk.

Once the project is complete, the Riverwalk will run along the Neponset Estuary from the pile-supported gazebo at Adams Inn to Squantum Point in DCR's Squantum Point Park. The Watershed Association hopes to have the work completed by next spring, with an official opening in the summer of 2014. The Association this week authorized it's consultant for the project, Park Planning Associates, to start work.

The City of Quincy is providing $98,000 in Community Preservation Act funds for the project, with the Watershed Association putting in $32,000 of its own. The Association also plans to fund the addition of benches, signage and other amenities along other portions of the Riverwalk before it opens.

There is currently a public waterfront walkway all the way around the Boston Scientific building on Commander Shea Blvd, and this project will connect it to walkways in Squantum Point Park. It will be built along an overgrown, largely buried and impassable road built to service the Naval Air Station which occupied Squantum Point from 1923 to 1953. The area is owned by Boston Scientific and the MA Department of Conservation and Recreation.

The currently open portions of the Riverwalk run from the waterfront of Adams Inn, under the 3A highway bridge to Dorchester, across the Neponset Landing property, under the MBTA Red line bridge and out to Commander Shea Boulevard. Commander Shea, which is owned by the Boston Scientific Corporation, has public sidewalks and Boston Sci has authorized the Watershed Association to add Riverwalk signage and benches. As noted above, a walkway around Boston Scientific was constructed many years ago and includes a natural beach area for launching canoes and kayaks.

The "Conceptual Plan for the Neponset Riverwalk" was published in 2002 by the Neponset River Watershed Association and the Friends of the Neponset Estuary, with assistance from the Quincy Environmental Network. Since that time the Watershed Association has negotiated public easement agreements with private waterfront property owners and the City of Quincy has produced a number of important studies, including the "Preliminary Design Report – Northern Section" in 2007. Quincy City Councillors Kevin Coughlin, Margaret Laforest and Douglas Gutro also helped resolve a number of disputes amongst Quincy residents about some amenities along the Riverwalk.

Quincy's New England Aquarium Caring For 29 Sea Turtles

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The New England Aquarium's Animal Care Center in Quincy is caring for 29 sea turtles that were recently rescued on the north side of the Cape Cod Bay peninsula, bringing the facility's total to over 400 turtles since opening in 2010.

The sea turtles, 26 of which are juvenile Kemp's Ridley sea turtles – the most endangered sea turtle in the world—suffer from a host of life-threatening medical problems related to prolonged severe hypothermia and will be re-warmed and treated by the aquarium staff. The other three turtles that have arrived at the facility are green turtles.

"These juvenile sea turtles, which are around two to four years old, were born in South Mexico or Texas and come here in the summer to feed on crabs," said Tony LaCasse the aquariums media relations director. "Most of them successfully migrate out but some end up on the north side of Cape Cod Bay and don't figure out they have to go around the peninsula. By the time November 1st rolls around they are just inert in the water, they are just staying afloat and getting hypothermia."

LaCasse said that volunteers with the Massachusetts Audubon Sanctuary at Wellfleet Bay walk the frigid beaches looking for the near motionless sea turtles at the high tide line throughout the night and early mornings of November and December.

"Once they arrive here we slowly begin to re-warm them about five degrees a day for about three or four days. If their temperature gets below 45 degrees the prognosis isn't very good," said LaCasse. "These guys are lucky. The earlier they are brought in the fewer medical problems they will have. They will stay here for around eight weeks or so and then be released back into the wild in either Georgia or Florida."

The turtles that the aquarium received last Wednesday, Nov. 13, were averaging a temperature of around 46 degrees and weighing between two to 15 pounds. Each turtle was treated individually receiving a physical consisting of having their blood and temperature taken, being weighed, checking their eyes and bodies for any damage, among other tests, before being put into a pool to start the re-warming process.

RESCUE BIOLOGIST KATIE PUGLIARES checks the eyes of one of the 14 sea turtles that were brought into the New England Aquarium in Quincy Wednesday afternoon. The turtles will be slowly re-warmed over several days after suffering hypothermia in the cold Cape Cod water. On average the aquarium treats around 70 sea turtles a year but last year they received 242 cold-stunned sea turtles and are expecting another big cold season this year. Quincy Sun Photo/Emily Armstrong

LaCasse said that the aquarium expects to receive turtles up until the week of Christmas, although the breed of turtle will change to larger sea turtles such as the Loggerhead.

"We are getting little turtles right now, ranging in weight from three to 15 pounds. Ninety percent of the turtles we take in are the smaller sized turtles, like the green turtles and Kemp's," said LaCasse.

"Within the next two weeks we expect adolescent Loggerhead sea turtles to begin coming in. We usually take in four or five loggerheads, which can weigh anywhere from 25 to 100 pounds. Our facility isn't really made for those large turtles so once we have them stabilized we fly them out to Florida. Last year we took in 100 loggerhead turtles and many who are walking the shoreline this year, believe it will be another big year because the number of loggerheads that were observed was high. It is usually around three weeks into the season before we get a loggerhead into the facility because although they are very hypothermic right now they are still strong enough to resist the tide."

Last year, the state-of-the-art sea turtle hospital took in a record high of over 240 sea turtles during the stranding season. Before that the average intake was around 70 live sea turtles.

Centofani Family Donates City Christmas Tree

Dona Centofani has many memories of her father, the late Domenico Marinilli, decorating the family's blue spruce tree every year for Christmas.

Marinilli planted the spruce in his Elm Street yard in the early 1940s soon after he arrived in Quincy from Italy. He would decorate the tree every year, though it eventually got too tall for him, his daughter recalled.

"He used to decorate it every year until it got too

There's never been a better time to buy a first home

Three reasons why:

1) Rates are still near all-time lows – a huge advantage for first-time homebuyers. Your money goes further. And you get to lock in historically-low monthly mortgage payments.

2) The eastern Massachusetts real estate market tends to be resilient. Prices here have stabilized... or are moving up. Waiting now could cost you later.

3) With Colonial Federal's First-Time Homebuyer Program, you get: > A reduced downpayment with no PMI required > A mortgage with a competitive rate > You work one-to-one with our responsive lenders, professionals who want to help you get into your first home > All from a local neighborhood bank specializing in helping people buy homes since 1889.

This is an outstanding opportunity – most likely once-in-a-lifetime – for first-time homebuyers. Is that you...or someone you know? Come see us. Or call VP/Retail Lending Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750.

• On Dec. 13, 1642, Dutch navigator Abel Tasman becomes the first European explorer to sight the South Pacific island group now known as New Zealand. In his sole attempt to land, several of Tasman's crew were killed by warriors from a South Island tribe, who interpreted the Europeans' exchange of trumpet signals as a prelude to battle.

• On Dec. 9, 1775, the Virginia and North Carolina militias defeat 800 slaves and 200 redcoats serving John Murray, earl of Dunmore and governor of Virginia, at Great Bridge outside Norfolk, ending British royal control of Virginia.

Gridiron Glory Day

Players took to the field in their respective red and black and blue and white tee shirts like kids in a candy store - wide eyed and grinning.

Cheerleaders shook pom poms and posed in pyramids on the sidelines.

The alumni band belted out music to the crowd's delight.

And a longtime voice of schoolboy football was heard again like it was a Friday night in radio land.

The first annual North Quincy – Quincy Alumni Flag Football Game Saturday offered a glimpse of past gridiron glory days at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. Nearly 60 players from the respective schools saw action on a sun-splashed fall day perfect for football.

The final score was North Quincy 32, Quincy 6.

But football – certainly Red Raider vs. Presidents football – is more than scores, great players and moments frozen in time.

Football – the Red and Black and Blue and White variety in the City of Presidents – is also about friendships that form after the final whistle blows on the last game of the high school season every Thanksgiving.

One day, the kid wearing the opposing uniform is your biggest rival. The next, that same kid is your best friend.

That's what makes the NQ-Q intracity football rivalry special.

Friendships.

Many of those friends came together on Saturday to see faces they haven't seen in some cases for decades.

When the game expired, the players walked toward midfield and shook hands with happy expressions etched on their faces.

"It was a lot of fun. I can't wait until next year," said Charlie Plaskasovitas, a 1997 North Quincy High School graduate who had an interception in Saturday's game.

"Hopefully we can do this annually. It was a great turnout for the first year. I'm sure it will get bigger and better."

While the Red Raiders had the upper hand on Saturday, the biggest winner Saturday was the gridiron programs at North Quincy and Quincy High Schools.

The event – organized by Quincy's Scott Campbell and North Quincy's Sean Glennon – raised at least $3,000 each for the Presidents and Red Raiders' football teams. Proceeds will be directed towards equipment and other necessities.

Campbell said the enthusiasm and turnout for the event exceeded his expectations.

"Hopefully this is the start of something big," Campbell said after the game. "It definitely surpassed my expectations. It started off that a lot of the players wanted to bring back some of the alumni and get them more involved. As it started to morph and get bigger the cheerleaders and the band got involved.

"It was great to see. Our goal now is to make this an annual event," he continued. "I don't think we can stop it. There's so much enthusiasm for it. It's a good thing.

"The cheerleaders and the alumni band really made an impact on the success of the reunion game," he added.

Campbell noted some players traveled quite a distance to join their respective sidelines. One – former Quincy quarterback Chris Noble – flew from Chicago a day earlier than usual for his Thanksgiving break to see family so that his daughter could watch him play football on Saturday.

Another player – Steve Aluisy – grew up two streets away from Campbell when they were kids. They hadn't seen each other for 25 years.

"Steve reached out and we ended up getting together and he and three of his friends showed up and they were so happy to be here. They loved every second of it."

The day wasn't just about reunions.

There was also some flag football to play.

And bragging rights to win.

For North Quincy, the Red Raiders were sparked by the Bregoli brothers – Chris (1999 graduate) and Pat (2002 graduate). They factored into three of North's five touchdowns, including a Chris-to-Pat touchdown reception to put the game out of reach late in the fourth quarter.

They too shared the sentiment that the game – the reunion – was all about seeing former teammates that they hadn't seen in years.

"It's great to get everybody together and it's for a great cause. It's fun to have the guys back on the field," Chris said with the game winding down.

Asked how long did it take to put friendships on the back-burner and the competitive juices to start simmering, Chris replied, "The minute we stepped on the field. Actually, before we even got here."

John "Duke" Whitney, Quincy High Class of 1973, was the most senior player at Saturday's game. He attested to the game's competitiveness.

"We were competitive. We kind of backed off a little and let the younger guys get in because it was getting a little heated," he said with a laugh.

"I thought I'd play two series but they encouraged me to play more and now I'm sore. But it was a lot of fun," added Whitney who was coached by the legendary Hank Conroy, the man who led the Presidents to an undefeated season in 1970.

"When you put a bunch of guys on the field between the white lines it's almost impossible for it not to be competitive," Plaskasovitas said. "Every person played. We wanted to make the game long enough so that everyone had a chance to play.

"It was great, a lot of competition. Quincy had a great effort. They had a lot of good talent," he added.

The Bregolis joined the other players in praising the work of Campbell and Glennon for organizing the reunion game.

"We want to thank Sean Glennon and Scott Campbell for organizing the game," Pat said. "Without them, this wouldn't have happened. It's a great cause and hopefully we can keep this up."

The game also stirred up memories for Charlie Ross, the football voice for WJDA radio for 33 years. Charlie announced the game from the press box.

"Being back in that booth was wonderful," Ross said. "I have missed it. People think I retired and that's not the case. I've missed it and when Scott called I was thrilled to come back.

"It was great to help a good cause and to have some of these players back in action brought back a lot of memories," he added.

So, Game 1 in the North Quincy-Quincy Flag Football Alumni Series is in the books.

Red Raiders and their fans can boast victory for the next year.

But Campbell and his Presidents' squad vow they will be ready in 2014.

"Next year we're going to have tryouts and practices. We're also going to see who's been eating an extra pancake," Campbell mused while processing how to improve this year's efforts.

He hints at Quincy taping North Quincy practices and being a part of "Spygate Two."

"North players were at the soccer field before the game practicing and we were at Quincy High School. We thought we were ready to go, we had a set of plays and then . . ."

The Red Raiders prevailed.

Start printing the tickets for Reunion Game #2.

Should be a doozy.

And – most of all – for a great cause.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1947 postcard showing the Quincy Auto Exchange that was on the corner of Hancock and Elm Streets in Quincy Center. This view is from the roof of the old Quincy Oyster House across the street that in more recent years was home to Finian's Restaurant. The Quincy Auto Exchange opened in the early 1930's at first selling used cars and then within a few years it also became an authorized dealer of Pontiac Motor Cars. It was owned and operated by Louis R. DiMattio, also known as Louis Ross, and then his son Russell for 25 years. Note the American Indian headdress logo that depicted Chief Pontiac himself over the word Auto on the sign. The logo was used by General Motors for hood ornaments on many Pontiac models until the 1950's. The building on the left was the Quincy Lodge #413 of the Royal Order of Moose and the two buildings in the back were old barns from prior users of the property. For many years this lot was home to Bob Colman's Sporting Goods business and is now used by the Good Health Natural Foods Store. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

30-Day Mourning For President Kennedy

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa officially issued a municipal proclamation, proclaiming a 30-day period of mourning for President John F. Kennedy.

A memorial service sponsored by the mayor and city council was held at the United First Parish Church before the tombs of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

NO EXTENSION IN TRANSIT RE-ORGANIZATION

A new state agency was proposed to operate and finance the Metropolitan Transit Authority, but no plan for a long-awaited South Shore extension was included.

Quincy legislators Joseph Brett and James McIntyre, however, filed bills to include the new service. Brett's plan called for express bus service to operate on the Old Colony right of way. McIntyre's would mandate Budd cars.

McIntyre insisted the Budd cars were the only alternative to MTA extension, noting "the people of the South Shore voted in favor of Budd cars and the majority of legislators from the area have favored them as an alternative to the MTA extension."

George Yarrington of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association said a third proposal for an extension of the MTA was still under study by the Citizens' Transit Study Committee, headed by Dr. Charles Djerf.

SENIOR HOUSING IN QUINCY POINT

The Quincy Housing Authority awarded a contract to Campanelli Construction of Braintree for 74 units of elderly housing in the area of Scammell, Keating and Mary Streets.

The $1.04 million project would bring the number of elderly housing units citywide to 120, including the 45 units already built at Snug Harbor.

It was proposed that the new project be named after President Kennedy.

Impact Quincy Launches 'Sticker Shock' Campaign

During this upcoming Thanksgiving weekend, Impact Quincy's High School Peer Advocates and Program Coordinators will be launching their third "Sticker Shock Campaign."

The goal of the campaign is to raise awareness of underage access to alcohol. The campaign targets young adults, ages 21-27, because data shows that this age group is the most likely to provide alcohol to minors.

The Big Brother/Big Sister Campaign collaborates with most Quincy liquor and convenience stores that sell beer and wine. The merchants use customer bags and/or refrigerator case cling stickers with the message, "Being a Big Brother Doesn't Mean Buying Them Booze." The message asks adults to think twice before purchasing alcohol for minors.

According to Lt. Peter Turowski, Quincy Police Liquor Inspector and member of our coalition, the majority of Quincy licensees sell alcohol responsibly. We hope this campaign will continue to raise awareness around the issue of underage drinking.

In addition, the campaign also includes several Quincy pizza shops. The participating pizza shop owners place the same message stickers on their take-out boxes along with the same customer bags given to licensees.

We would like to thank the following Quincy Licensees and pizza shop owners for their participation in the 2013 Impact Quincy Sticker Shock Campaign: 7-Eleven (Franklin St.), Adams Shore Super Market, Angelina's Pizza, Atlas Liquors, Balducci's House of Pizza, Brewer's Corner Liquors, Brother's Roast Beef & Pizza, Buccini's Mr. Sub, Chabs Daily Market, Copeland Package Store, Corner Food Market, Dave's General Store & Spirits, Five Star Pizza, Franklin Beer & Wine, Hancock Liquor, Hancock Tobacco, Hannaford Supermarket (Hancock St.), Houghs Neck Package Store, Joe's Market Place, Mario's Pizzeria, Mullaney's, Napoli Pizzeria, National Wine & Liquors, Papa Gino's (Beale St.), Point Liquors, Presidential Liquors, Quick 6 Liquor of Quincy, Regal Beagle Liquors, Rite Aid (Granite St.), Schoolhouse Pizza, Shop N Save Liquors, Sofia Pizza House, Stop & Shop (Newport Ave.), Tedeschi (Washington St.), Tedeschi Food Shop (East Squantum St.), Unchained Pizza, West Elm Variety, Wollaston Supreme Liquors, and Wollaston Wine & Liquors.

Socialism Vs. Capitalism In QC Development

What is the role of socialism versus capitalism in the development of Quincy Center?

The administration has done wonderful work in addressing the infrastructure needs of the city, that which government does best. Such as the building of the new Quincy High School, middle school, the rehabbing of North Quincy High School and the surrounding streets, Old City Hall, the Public Works salt shed, cleaning of drainage systems and watercourses and so on. What is not so certain is the role of government in developing retail space in downtown Quincy.

I recently viewed a video of an interview with a president of a small solar panel company. He discussed the failure of Solyndra, a government backed solar panel company. It failed because of a well-intended effort to develop renewable energy. Success should have depended on the capitalist system. The marketplace, backed by private money, would have determined the merits of the company. While Street Works may be monetarily responsible, it is city government that is the facilitator in the development of Quincy Center.

Even now, capital requirements have caused scaling back and delay in the project. The idea of building retail space in Quincy Center, and they will come, is problematic. Customers with vehicles will go to malls or customers will shop online. The development of Quincy Center requires a rethink based on capitalism, not socialism.

Quincy Cousins To Perform In Boston Ballet's 'Nutcracker'

Eileen Durgin And Grace Hickey

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Quincy cousins Eileen Durgin and Grace Hickey will continue to keep their family's tradition alive by performing in the Boston Ballet's production of The Nutcracker.

In 2011 Durgin became the seventh member of her family to perform in the ballet, joining the likes of her mother, sister, brother and two aunts. Hickey became the eighth member of the family when she was chosen to play a baby mouse in last year's production.

This is the third year for Durgin, who is a fifth grader at Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, and the second year for Hickey, who is a fourth grader at Beechwood Knoll.

The cousins will be performing in Act 1 of the ballet. Hickey will play an Urchin in the prologue and Durgin will play a reindeer in the snow scene. Hickey and Durgin will be performing in 14 shows starting Dec. 1. The ballet runs from Nov. 29th to Dec. 29th at the Boston Opera House.

"It's pretty cool that we will be in the same act this year. We even have the same dressing room which is really cool," said nine-year-old Hickey. "I saw my cousin doing the ballet and decided last year I wanted to try out."

QUINCY COUSINS Eileen Durgin (left) and Grace Hickey (right) will be performing together in the Boston Ballet's production of "The Nutcracker." This is the second year the cousins have been in the ballet together. Performing in The Nutcracker is somewhat of a family tradition. Durgin is the seventh member of the family to be a part of the show and Hickey is the eighth. Quincy Sun Photo/Emily Armstrong

"It feels awesome to have my cousin with me," 10-year-old Durgin said.

Hickey said that even last year, her first year in the ballet, she wasn't nervous about performing in front of hundreds of people.

"I wasn't really nervous last year during my first year," said Hickey.

"When I first went to my costume fitting this year I was really, really excited. Now I am just really excited to go to every rehearsal. The closer the show gets the more excited I am. I was excited to come back for a second time. I like everything about this ballet. I like to act while I dance and I like that this year I get to do a lot more movement. I get to do a lot more than I did as a baby mouse."

THIS IS THE third year that Quincy's Eileen Durgin will perform in the Boston Ballet's production of "The Nutcracker." Durgin is cast as a reindeer in Act 1.

QUINCY'S GRACE HICKEY will play the role of an urchin in the Boston Ballet's production of "The Nutcracker." This is the second year Hickey will be a part of the ballet.

For Durgin, with age and experience came the appreciation for the music and scenery in the over 20-year-old ballet.

"I like how it's a very beautiful show. When I was younger it was more fun for me to be in the loud and crazy scenes, but as I get older I appreciate the scenery more," said Durgin.

"The first year it was all so loud and there was a lot of commotion in the scene I was in, the battle scene. This year I'm in a very beautiful scene. Snow is falling down, it has the scene of a white forest, and it has the Snow Queen, and Clara and the Prince. It's just a very calm scene, with beautiful music. Everybody cries at that moment usually, it is just very beautiful. I think it's beautiful that I am part of something so beautiful."

Both girls not only take ballet lessons and participate in The Nutcracker but they also compete as Irish Step Dancers. For Durgin her three years as a dancer in the show might be coming to an end as her Irish Step Dancing schedule starts to get busier she will have to choose between the two.

"I'll always love ballet, I just guess I've lost interest in it a little more than I have in Irish Step. I'm more into Irish Step now," said Durgin.

"I'm sad that this may very well be my last year in The Nutcracker but I'm probably going to try and be a World Champion Irish Step Dancer. I have a little advice for whoever reads this newspaper. Follow your dreams and never give up. Get your kids into the nutcracker, people have to do this, it's just so great."

Even though her cousin may not try out next year Hickey says she will definitely be back to try out and hopes to be apart of it every year.

"I definitely will try out again next year. I really wish I could get in every year," said Hickey. "My ultimate goal is being chosen one day to play the role of Clara."

TANTALIZING TANZANITE

Tanzanite, December's birthstone, is notable for a number of reasons. To begin with, this beautiful gemstone exhibits a rich violet-blue color that rivals blue sapphire. This is a very desirable trait since it certainly doesn't hurt to be compared to America's favorite colored gemstone. In fact, Tanzanite has long served as a more affordable alternative to blue sapphire; most observers casually assume that it is sapphire, which works to the wearer's benefit. However, Tanzanite has increasingly been recognized as a gorgeous blue gemstone in its own right. Its deep blue color with a slightly purple tint is one of the most extravagant colors known. Wearing this beautiful blue stone gives the wearer a sense of confidence.

The tanzanite is named after the East African state of Tanzania, the only place in the world where it is found. The popularity of the tanzanite is due in part to its color and the exclusivity of its origin. The idea of possessing something that not everyone has, especially for someone's December birthday, has always been one of the main criteria in the way we esteem special gems. Make Ahead Turkey Stuffing

Is it possible that the holidays are upon us? And we all want to relax as much as possible to enjoy the day. And that can be done with preparing some food as much ahead as possible.

First, for Thanksgiving Day, the stuffing can be made ahead and either placed in the turkey the day after, or served casserole style. Some vegetables can also be done the day before.

Today's recipe is for the stuffing, which varies from person to person.

I try all kinds of variations, but today's is one of my favorites.

TURKEY GIBLET STUFFING

or 2 sausages skinned
2 stalks celery (diced)
1 small onion (chopped)
Giblet or just the livers (optional)
2 cups stuffing mix (I use Bell's)
½ cups seasoned breadcrumbs
2 tablespoons Bell's seasoning
2 tablespoons oil for sautéing
¼ cup white wine
1 cup stock or water (I use chicken stock)

In the hot oil, sauté the celery and onion. Add the ground meat, the giblets and the white wine. Cook until well mixed.

Before you add the soaked stuffing mix, add the water or stock and stir until blended. Add the seasoned breadcrumbs, the Bell's seasoning. If too dry, add a bit of stock or water.

Place in a casserole dish and refrigerate. If not placed in the turkey the next day, cook the stuffing in a 350- degree oven until done. (about 25-30 minutes)

Happy Thanksgiving to all!

Turkey & Rice Cakes

I think most of us have used leftover turkey in many ways. Most of us are happy with a turkey sandwich with the stuffing of course.

Today's recipe is for a turkey, rice cake that I made the last time and everyone thought it was a pleasant change.

This can be made ahead by cooking the rice the day before.

TURKEY RICE CAKE

1- cup rice
1- ½ cups left or turkey cut in small pieces
1 egg
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
Vegetables oil for sautéing
Corn flake crumbs for coating

Boil the rice until done. Let cool. Mix the rice, the beaten egg, the flour and cheese. Add the turkey and mix well. The mixture will be thick.

Take a quarter of a cup of the mixture, and roll it into ball and coat it in the corn flake crumbs. Sauté until brown and crispy. Drain on paper towel, and serve with sour cream if preferred.

If not eaten right away, keep in a warming oven.

Leftover Turkey Burritos

We've all used left over turkey in many ways from turkey pot pie to a sandwich.

With burritos so popular these days, today's recipe is a welcome change from the norm. If prepared ahead of time, they can be pretty easy to make.

Turkey Burritos

Preheat oven to 350-degrees
2 cups leftover turkey (cut in small pieces)
¼ cup sliced black olives
Sour cream for topping
1 - medium red pepper
1 -medium green pepper
1 small onion
1 tablespoon seasoned breadcrumbs
1- tablespoon hot sauce (or less if preferred)
6- floured tortillas
Vegetable oil for sautéing
½ cup shredded cheddar cheese

Cut peppers and onion in small pieces and sauté in hot oil. Cook until tender and add the turkey, the hot sauce and breadcrumbs as a thickening agent.

Place the mixture in the center of the tortilla fold over . With the folds down, place each one on the bottom of a slightly greased baking dish. Sprinkle the top with the black olives and the shredded cheese. Bake until the cheese is melted. Serve with sour cream.

Panel: Boost Mayor's Salary $38K To $160,000

Commission Also Recommends Pay Hikes For Councillors, 57 Department Heads

All Salary Recommendations Posted Online: www.TheQuincySun.com

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new report drafted by a commission tasked with reviewing salaries for city officials recommends that Mayor Thomas Koch receive a $38,000 pay raise that would bring his total salary to $160,000 from $122,474.

The commission – which was formed by Koch in August to review salaries – includes David Colton, Easton's town manager and a former Quincy DPW commissioner; Edward Flavin of Flavin & Flavin; QCAP Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo; Dolly Di Pesa of the Di Pesa Company; and Kate Yaeger, former Quincy human resources director. The commission looked at the salaries for the mayor, City Council, and 57 other department heads and non-union appointees, recommending raises for all but one position.

The commission released their report on Monday. Colton, who was chosen by his colleagues to chair the commission, said they reviewed salaries for other mayors and chief executives in eastern Massachusetts, and based their recommendation on the community's size, budget, per capita income, average single-family tax bill, as well as the workload for the mayor. Based on their findings, the committee feels Quincy's mayor is underpaid.

"We came to the conclusion that the mayor – at $122,000 a year – is undervalued for that position," Colton said. "If you look across the state for chief executive officers for cities and towns you're going to see that that's at the low end of the scale."

Colton cited Somerville as one of the communities the commission closely examined while drafting the report. Somerville's board of alderman voted in 2012 to give the city's mayor a $20,000 pay raise and an annual salary of $145,000. Somerville has about 18,000 fewer residents than Quincy.

In addition to recommending a pay raise for the mayor, the report says the mayor should be afforded either an official vehicle or a travel allowance.

"Although not a formal recommendation it is our observation that the mayors of many cities are provided either an official city vehicle or allowance as part of the compensation package," the report states. "This is clearly a benefit that should be provided in Quincy. The job of a mayor is constant and providing for transportation is as essential as providing a desk, a telephone, and an office."

The commission also recommended raises for members of the City Council. Under the commission's proposal, each member of the council would receive a raise of $5,000, bringing their salary to $22,500. Each councillor currently earns $17,500, plus a travel allowance of about $5,000 each. Colton said the committee recommended a raise for the councillors because they haven't received a salary increase in six years.

"The City Council increase is based more on the lapse of time," Colton said. "I think it would be very difficult for us to say the City Council is underpaid or overpaid."

In addition to the raises for the mayor and City Council, the committee recommended salary increases for each of the city's department heads and other non-union officials.

The committee's report recommends that the police chief be paid under a contract, similar to how the fire chief is paid. The report doesn't recommend a specific salary for the position; only saying the chief should earn at least $180,000. In calendar year 2012, Police Chief Paul Keenan earned $178,792, which includes money paid for incentives such as education bonuses.

The report also recommends a pay raise for Fire Chief Joseph Barron, who is making $155,530 in FY14. The report would give the fire chief a new salary of $160,000.

The report recommends breaking salaries for other department heads and officials into new tiers.

The top tier would include the commissioner of public works, city solicitor, city clerk, and municipal finance director. The report recommends that each one of those employees make $115,000. Currently, Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi makes $113,736, City Solicitor Jim Timmins makes $103,599, City Clerk Joseph Shea makes $99,669, and Finance Director Mark Cavanagh makes $104,593.

In the second tier – a recommended salary of $108,000 – would be the IT director, planning director, DPW superintendent, the inspectional services director, and the mayor's executive secretary. IT Director Charles Phelan, Planning Director Dennis Harrington, and DPW Superintendent Lawrence Prendeville all currently make $103,599, and Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca and Executive Secretary Jim Fatseas each make $99,669.

The third tier, with a recommended salary of $101,000, would include the treasurer/collector, the parks, cemetery, and forestry director, the city engineer, and the city's public buildings, human resources, and library directors. Treasurer/Collector Deb Coughlin, Parks Director Chris Cassani, and Public Buildings Director Gary Cunniff all currently earn $99,669, while HR Director Helen Murphy, Library Director Megan Allen, and engineer Frank Tramontozzi each earn $92,792.

The fourth tier includes the city assessor, the traffic engineer, the health commissioner, and the recreation director, and would pay each position $95,000. Assessor Peter Moran, Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, and Recreation Director Barry Welch each currently earn $92,792. The position of traffic engineer, which is currently vacant, has a budgeted salary of $103,599 and is the only position the report recommends giving a pay cut.

The next tier – a $87,500 recommended salary – would include the mayor's director of operations and director of information policy and information, the council on aging director, and the city's purchasing agent. Operations Director Al Grazioso, Policy and Information Director Chris Walker, and Purchasing Agent Kathryn Hobin all currently earn $82,966, while COA Director Tom Clasby earns $71,831.

The commission did not review the salary for any School Department employees, including School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, or for members of the School Committee. The commission also only made recommendations on salaries, and did not review possible changes to any job descriptions.

Walker, who is the spokesman for Koch, said the mayor will review the report before making any recommendations to the City Council.

"The mayor needs to review them before any determination is made as to what sort of package is presented to the City Council. I believe he wants to present something in January to the council," Walker said. "They are recommendations – the mayor will need to formalize them in ordinance form. Whether the numbers are all exactly the same – the mayor has to review those numbers."

Other positions recommended for salary increases include:

Recommended salary of $80,500 – assistant library director, currently salary $77,375; auditor, current salary $74,964; and first assistant solicitor, current salary $71,831.

Recommended salary of $77,500 – chief plumbing inspector, current salary of $75,325; chief wiring inspector, current salary of $75,325; DPW business manager, current salary of $73,325; veterans' services director, current salary of $71,831; plan examiner/assistant building commissioner, current salary $71,831, DPW program manager, current salary of $65,173; DPW contract manager, current salary of $65,173; Parks Department program manager, current salary $64,923; Parking/Traffic operations, current salary $60,587, and constituent services (two positions), current salary $64,923.

Recommended salary of $67,500 – police financial manager, current salary of $65,173; weights & measures inspector, current salary of $65,173; plumbing inspector, current salary of $65,173; and second assistant solicitor (two positions), current salary of $56,030.

Make Ahead Turkey Stuffing

Is it possible that the holidays are upon us? And we all want to relax as much as possible to enjoy the day. And that can be done with preparing some food as much ahead as possible.

First, for Thanksgiving Day, the stuffing can be made ahead and either placed in the turkey the day after, or served casserole style. Some vegetables can also be done the day before.

Today's recipe is for the stuffing, which varies from person to person.

I try all kinds of variations, but today's is one of my favorites.

TURKEY GIBLET STUFFING

or 2 sausages skinned
2 stalks celery (diced)
1 small onion (chopped)
Giblet or just the livers (optional)
2 cups stuffing mix (I use Bell's)
½ cups seasoned breadcrumbs
2 tablespoons Bell's seasoning
2 tablespoons oil for sautéing
¼ cup white wine
1 cup stock or water (I use chicken stock)

In the hot oil, sauté the celery and onion. Add the ground meat, the giblets and the white wine. Cook until well mixed.

Before you add the soaked stuffing mix, add the water or stock and stir until blended. Add the seasoned breadcrumbs, the Bell's seasoning. If too dry, add a bit of stock or water.

Place in a casserole dish and refrigerate. If not placed in the turkey the next day, cook the stuffing in a 350- degree oven until done. (about 25-30 minutes)

Happy Thanksgiving to all!

Turkey & Rice Cakes

I think most of us have used leftover turkey in many ways. Most of us are happy with a turkey sandwich with the stuffing of course.

Today's recipe is for a turkey, rice cake that I made the last time and everyone thought it was a pleasant change.

This can be made ahead by cooking the rice the day before.

TURKEY RICE CAKE

1- cup rice
1- ½ cups left or turkey cut in small pieces
1 egg
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
Vegetables oil for sautéing
Corn flake crumbs for coating

Boil the rice until done. Let cool. Mix the rice, the beaten egg, the flour and cheese. Add the turkey and mix well. The mixture will be thick.

Take a quarter of a cup of the mixture, and roll it into ball and coat it in the corn flake crumbs. Sauté until brown and crispy. Drain on paper towel, and serve with sour cream if preferred.

If not eaten right away, keep in a warming oven.

Leftover Turkey Burritos

We've all used left over turkey in many ways from turkey pot pie to a sandwich.

With burritos so popular these days, today's recipe is a welcome change from the norm. If prepared ahead of time, they can be pretty easy to make.

Turkey Burritos

Preheat oven to 350-degrees
2 cups leftover turkey (cut in small pieces)
¼ cup sliced black olives
Sour cream for topping
1 - medium red pepper
1 -medium green pepper
1 small onion
1 tablespoon seasoned breadcrumbs
1- tablespoon hot sauce (or less if preferred)
6- floured tortillas
Vegetable oil for sautéing
½ cup shredded cheddar cheese

Cut peppers and onion in small pieces and sauté in hot oil. Cook until tender and add the turkey, the hot sauce and breadcrumbs as a thickening agent.

Place the mixture in the center of the tortilla fold over . With the folds down, place each one on the bottom of a slightly greased baking dish. Sprinkle the top with the black olives and the shredded cheese. Bake until the cheese is melted. Serve with sour cream.

Panel: Boost Mayor's Salary $38K To $160,000

Commission Also Recommends Pay Hikes For Councillors, 57 Department Heads

All Salary Recommendations Posted Online: www.TheQuincySun.com

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new report drafted by a commission tasked with reviewing salaries for city officials recommends that Mayor Thomas Koch receive a $38,000 pay raise that would bring his total salary to $160,000 from $122,474.

The commission – which was formed by Koch in August to review salaries – includes David Colton, Easton's town manager and a former Quincy DPW commissioner; Edward Flavin of Flavin & Flavin; QCAP Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo; Dolly Di Pesa of the Di Pesa Company; and Kate Yaeger, former Quincy human resources director. The commission looked at the salaries for the mayor, City Council, and 57 other department heads and non-union appointees, recommending raises for all but one position.

The commission released their report on Monday. Colton, who was chosen by his colleagues to chair the commission, said they reviewed salaries for other mayors and chief executives in eastern Massachusetts, and based their recommendation on the community's size, budget, per capita income, average single-family tax bill, as well as the workload for the mayor. Based on their findings, the committee feels Quincy's mayor is underpaid.

"We came to the conclusion that the mayor – at $122,000 a year – is undervalued for that position," Colton said. "If you look across the state for chief executive officers for cities and towns you're going to see that that's at the low end of the scale."

Colton cited Somerville as one of the communities the commission closely examined while drafting the report. Somerville's board of alderman voted in 2012 to give the city's mayor a $20,000 pay raise and an annual salary of $145,000. Somerville has about 18,000 fewer residents than Quincy.

In addition to recommending a pay raise for the mayor, the report says the mayor should be afforded either an official vehicle or a travel allowance.

"Although not a formal recommendation it is our observation that the mayors of many cities are provided either an official city vehicle or allowance as part of the compensation package," the report states. "This is clearly a benefit that should be provided in Quincy. The job of a mayor is constant and providing for transportation is as essential as providing a desk, a telephone, and an office."

The commission also recommended raises for members of the City Council. Under the commission's proposal, each member of the council would receive a raise of $5,000, bringing their salary to $22,500. Each councillor currently earns $17,500, plus a travel allowance of about $5,000 each. Colton said the committee recommended a raise for the councillors because they haven't received a salary increase in six years.

"The City Council increase is based more on the lapse of time," Colton said. "I think it would be very difficult for us to say the City Council is underpaid or overpaid."

In addition to the raises for the mayor and City Council, the committee recommended salary increases for each of the city's department heads and other non-union officials.

The committee's report recommends that the police chief be paid under a contract, similar to how the fire chief is paid. The report doesn't recommend a specific salary for the position; only saying the chief should earn at least $180,000. In calendar year 2012, Police Chief Paul Keenan earned $178,792, which includes money paid for incentives such as education bonuses.

The report also recommends a pay raise for Fire Chief Joseph Barron, who is making $155,530 in FY14. The report would give the fire chief a new salary of $160,000.

The report recommends breaking salaries for other department heads and officials into new tiers.

The top tier would include the commissioner of public works, city solicitor, city clerk, and municipal finance director. The report recommends that each one of those employees make $115,000. Currently, Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi makes $113,736, City Solicitor Jim Timmins makes $103,599, City Clerk Joseph Shea makes $99,669, and Finance Director Mark Cavanagh makes $104,593.

In the second tier – a recommended salary of $108,000 – would be the IT director, planning director, DPW superintendent, the inspectional services director, and the mayor's executive secretary. IT Director Charles Phelan, Planning Director Dennis Harrington, and DPW Superintendent Lawrence Prendeville all currently make $103,599, and Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca and Executive Secretary Jim Fatseas each make $99,669.

The third tier, with a recommended salary of $101,000, would include the treasurer/collector, the parks, cemetery, and forestry director, the city engineer, and the city's public buildings, human resources, and library directors. Treasurer/Collector Deb Coughlin, Parks Director Chris Cassani, and Public Buildings Director Gary Cunniff all currently earn $99,669, while HR Director Helen Murphy, Library Director Megan Allen, and engineer Frank Tramontozzi each earn $92,792.

The fourth tier includes the city assessor, the traffic engineer, the health commissioner, and the recreation director, and would pay each position $95,000. Assessor Peter Moran, Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, and Recreation Director Barry Welch each currently earn $92,792. The position of traffic engineer, which is currently vacant, has a budgeted salary of $103,599 and is the only position the report recommends giving a pay cut.

The next tier – a $87,500 recommended salary – would include the mayor's director of operations and director of information policy and information, the council on aging director, and the city's purchasing agent. Operations Director Al Grazioso, Policy and Information Director Chris Walker, and Purchasing Agent Kathryn Hobin all currently earn $82,966, while COA Director Tom Clasby earns $71,831.

The commission did not review the salary for any School Department employees, including School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, or for members of the School Committee. The commission also only made recommendations on salaries, and did not review possible changes to any job descriptions.

Walker, who is the spokesman for Koch, said the mayor will review the report before making any recommendations to the City Council.

"The mayor needs to review them before any determination is made as to what sort of package is presented to the City Council. I believe he wants to present something in January to the council," Walker said. "They are recommendations – the mayor will need to formalize them in ordinance form. Whether the numbers are all exactly the same – the mayor has to review those numbers."

Council Commends Retired Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon

By SCOTT JACKSON

Jack Gillon, who served as Quincy's traffic engineer under Mayors James Sheets and Thomas Koch, was cited by the City Council for his service to the city following his recent retirement.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, who presented the citation to Gillon, said each member of the council had benefited from Gillon's expertise.

"Usually when we have you up here one of us is grilling you about something or other. I wanted to take this opportunity on behalf of the council – not just me but all of the members – to present you with this citation for your distinguished work you've done on behalf of the City of Quincy and the residents," Palmucci said. "We've certainly all at one time or another been the recipients of your learned expertise in the field of traffic engineering."

"Jack you were probably my favorite," added Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee. "You were in a very hot corner – it's a very demanding job being the traffic engineer for the city. I enjoyed working with you. I enjoyed your responsiveness. I personally enjoyed interacting with you. You're a great guy and I hope you really enjoy your retirement because you really deserve it."

Councillor Doug Gutro and Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin each thanked Gillon for his professional demeanor during community meetings.

"It's a hard job and you've always done it, at the neighborhood meetings I've hosted, with a smile. With professionalism. With integrity," Gutro said. "You tried in every case to be responsive to people and explain things. There's nothing more we can ask.

"We've been very fortunate to have you here," added Coughlin, who presented Gillon with a City of Quincy lapel pin. "You're going to be difficult, perhaps impossible, to replace."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall noted that the city had recently painted more than 160 miles worth of white and yellow lines and 515 crosswalks.

"Those are David Ortiz numbers my friend," Croall said. "I know you guys are always out there, but more importantly you're always available. It's been a wonderful experience working with you."

Council President Michael McFarland recalled his first public meeting with Gillon some 17 or 18 years ago when the idea of cross-town connector was being discussed, and Gillon presented information for six different concepts. That was the first of many meetings the two attended together.

"We've had a lot of fun over the years in public meetings," McFarland said. "Jack I wish you well. You've been a professional."

As he accepted the citation, Gillon thanked the many Traffic Department employees he's worked with over the years. He also said he thoroughly enjoyed working with Quincy's department heads and the council.

"Working with the mayor's chief of staff (Jim Fatseas) and the other department heads really has been a pleasure and I enjoyed working with the City Council, although I worked with some of you a lot closer than others depending on the situation," Gillon said. "I do want to take this moment to say thank you to you and thank you to the City of Quincy for giving me this wonderful experience."

Brush Fire Off Quarry Street Contained By Firefighters

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Firefighters were able to control a brush fire off Quarry Street on Sunday keeping the fire contained to less than five acres of land.

Firefighters responded to the fire around noontime Sunday near the HighPoint Apartments.

Fire Department officials said that because the wind was blowing towards houses on Packards Lane they had four engines and a ladder truck battling the blaze.

Firefighters were able to get the major part of the fire under control in about a half-hour. The brush fire burned elephant grass, shrubs, and dry brush.

Once contained firefighters spent several hours hosing the area down to ensure the fire didn't start up again.

Department officials said that because the season is about six inches below average on rain the ground is really dry. When conditions are that dry all it takes is an ember from an illegal burning of leaves to start a brush fire.

The cause of the brush fire has not been determined.

tall," Centofani said. "It holds a lot of memories."

The tree was decorated one last time this year, as Centofani decided to donate the spruce to the city in honor of her father and her late mother, Palma.

On Saturday morning, the 70-foot tall tree was cut down and placed in front of City Hall. It was decorated and will be lit up on Nov. 29 as part of the city's tree-lighting ceremony.

The two oak trees that flank the United First Parish Church (the Church of the Presidents) were also decorated for the holiday season, and will be lit during the ceremony as well.

Centofani, who lives in Florida, will be unable to attend the tree-lighting ceremony, but other members of her family are expected to be in attendance. That includes Centofani's sister, Lina Stracco, who lives around the corner from the house, and Centofani's daughter, Jeneen Giannandrea, who now lives in the Elm Street house, and her children.

Koch Unveils $12M In Renovations To NQHS Campus

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Mayor Thomas Koch, who has unveiled $12 million in renovations to the North Quincy High School campus including a new two-acre outdoor athletic facility, says he hopes the upgrades would be completed by the spring of 2015.

The mayor announced the campus upgrades at a public meeting Nov. 20 held in the high school's auditorium.

"The building is not that old although it's getting old," he said.

The project would be financed by proceeds from the sale of the old Central Middle School; hotel/motel guest room tax; sewer rehab fund paid for by developers; and general obligation city financing.

"We have plenty of room in our debt to deal with this project very easily but it's my goal to minimize the impact on the general revenue of our city," the mayor said.

The plan also involves additional neighborhood and infrastructure improvements focused on mitigating traffic and alleviating congestion during the morning and evening commutes.

"[The East and West Squantum Street and Hancock Street] intersection is a very challenging one as you all probably know traveling through here," Koch said. "Not only do we have North Quincy High situated here, there's three other schools within walking distance. You have the MBTA station and a lot of pedestrian activity as well as folks commuting, heading into Boston...so we have a lot of congestion in this area."

The addition of extra lanes and the widening of West Squantum Street is designed to ease the flow of traffic and provide for easier student pick-up and drop-off.

"Opening the intersection up will allow for a lot more queuing and a lot more safe travel; pedestrian as well as vehicle," said Koch.

The $4 million road improvements will be paid for in large part by the Commonwealth.

Replacing the Sunoco gas station currently located on the corner of West Squantum and Hancock Street will be a branch of TD Bank. The bank will donate $20,000 to the high school for the purchase of an electronic outdoor sign to be used for displaying announcements to the public. The sign will be controlled via a computer located in the school.

To accommodate the bank, Keohane Funeral Home's North Quincy location and a four-family home will be acquired and removed.

Improvements to North Quincy High have already taken place. The atrium glass has been replaced and rugs and tile flooring are slowly being upgraded.

A window and door replacement program is slated to begin this year.

"The state is paying for the vast majority of the project," said Koch. "Every dollar we spend we get 70 cents back."

An upgraded Teel Field will be outfitted with synthetic turf and include seating for 600 people, concession stands, rest rooms, and a 157-space parking lot which will help with the current parking shortage.

"As a major high school, we barely have enough parking out front to deal with the staff, never mind visitors, outside programs, election day, night time events at the gym become problematic," he said. "Hunt Street is a very narrow street and we don't have much room around us."

The Teel Field project will require the acquisition of nine homes in the immediate area - eight on Hunt Street and one on Newbury Avenue.

According to the mayor's office, the property owners were contacted directly prior to the public announcement last Wednesday and purchase discussions are in the beginning stages.

"We hope not to have to use eminent domain but we are looking to negotiate to take some nine properties, eight on Hunt Street and one on Newbury Avenue.

"I know that's not an easy thing," the mayor addressing the land-taking. "It's certainly not an easy thing for me. I know it's definitely not an easy thing for some of those homeowners that spent a lot of years in those houses," said Koch.

"However, to really accommodate what we need to do for a first-class high school, in my opinion, we need some additional land. We need some additional property to really make this place perform."

Hunt Street resident Michelle, who didn't wish to provide her last name and attended the meeting with her parents who own the home, approached the microphone after Koch concluded his presentation and invited audience members to ask questions and comment on the proposed renovations.

In a shaky voice she inquired about the fate of her home. "A lot of us don't know what's going on or what to expect," she said. "Is there going to be a time table provided for the residents of Hunt Street as to when the process is going to begin?"

The mayor responded:

"Let me reiterate that these decisions are not easy ones," said Koch. "A letter has gone to each homeowner and I know the city solicitor has met with a number of homeowners individually. I know that I've met with a couple of homeowners. The next step is going to be a separate meeting for the homeowners probably up here at the high school with the legal department to walk through that process," the mayor added.

"I'm trying to find out as much information so that all of our decisions are educated decisions," said Michelle. "It's just scary. The improvements look like a good plan but there's going to be nine households of people who will no longer have homes."

Koch also announced at the meeting a major initiative to replace all the windows at North Quincy High School and an overhaul of the building's HVAC system.

The city is currently negotiating with property owners affected by the expansion plan.

The project would need the approval of the City Council and the Park and Recreation Board.

The mayor will also make a presentation about the renovations to the School Committee.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

RINGING ENDORSEMENT

Tinnitus is the medical term for noise or ringing in the ears that affects about one in five people. While there is currently no cure for the distracting buzzing sound that seems to emanate from within, tinnitus sufferers often turn to hearing professionals for help. New research suggests that the dentist may also help treat tinnitus. Tooth-grinding (bruxism) and chewing gum may be potential tinnitus triggers due to a connection between the centers of the brain that control the muscles for chewing and those connected to the auditory system. Moreover, other research shows a link in the severity of jaw pain from temporomandibular disorder and that of tinnitus. In light of these findings, a custom-fit night guard may help stop the ringing.

Are you a candidate for a custom-fit night guard? Along with other patients experiencing tinnitus, you should learn about the prevalence of the condition, how the hearing mechanism works, possible causes of tinnitus, common reactions to tinnitus, and management options. We provide the best oral care possible by evaluating your needs individually. We'll explain our findings and recommendations. Together we'll choose your best treatment plan. We invite you to call us at 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Mouth guards worn at night not only help prevent teeth from grinding together, they also help maintain the jaws in their proper alignment, which can avert temporomandibular disorder.

The Quincy High School freshmen and jayvee football teams were victorious over intracity rival North Quincy in Saturday's "Little Turkey" games at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

In the jayvee matchup, the Presidents shut out the Red Raiders, 12-0. In the freshmen game, it was Quincy 19, North Quincy 6.

Quincy 12 - NQ 0

The first half ended 0-0 in what was a defensive struggle, both offenses having trouble establishing the run game. Quincy came out in the second half looking to throw the ball more. On the first drive of the second half, three pass plays straight away got Quincy inside the 5 and a 3 yard QB sneak by Cody Desmond followed to put the Presidents up 6-0. Meanwhile North Quincy continued to have trouble sustaining drives. Closing the scoring was a 16 yard TD strike from Desmond to Michael McNelley midway through the final period. Cody Desmond in the second half was 7-12 for 88 yds and a TD. The Quincy defense was able to keep NQ in check all morning, allowing only 81 yards total offense and 3 first downs.

Standouts for Quincy included Desmond, McNelley, Garrett Cronin (RB/LB), John Crump (RB/LB), Alex Leo (RB/DE/K), Nick Fahey (OL/LB), Brendan Collins (WR/DB), and Andrew Cook (WR/DB). Playing well for North were Marcello Toscanini (RB/LB), Joe Fallon (QB), Cornelius Koch (TE/DL), Joel Lawless (RB/LB/P), Jacob Grady (LB), Mac Deegan (LB), Fred Flynn (OL/DL), and Seamus Broughton (OL/DL).

Get Outdoor Plants Ready For Winter

By SAMANTHA MAZZOTTA

Q: What outdoor plants should I protect during the winter? Which can be left alone? -- Seth in New Jersey

A: For exact information on which plants to protect and how, you'll want to ask at your local garden center. Each plant is different, but most are classified in the U.S. based on the growing zone in which they do best. If a plant is classed as "hardy" for your zone, it should do all right in the cold weather, with a few precautions.

If not, or if it is a potted plant, consider bringing it inside, or wrap the plant or shrub in burlap tied with string to protect it from frosts and freezes.

Many perennials need just a fresh layer of mulch, applied before the first hard frost. Again, check with your garden center or research your type of plant on the Internet to determine which mulch is best to use -- bark, hay, straw or leaves -- and how deep to mulch.

Other ways to prepare your yard for winter include clearing away any loose debris, such as leaves and fallen branches, to prevent them from blowing around in the winter. If your garden has been harvested, now's the time to turn the soil and remove any stalks and dead vines before the ground freezes. It's also a good time to start a compost heap, if you haven't got one already. By spring, you should have some good compost to start the next garden.

HOME TIP: Trouble with squirrels invading a bird feeder? Set the feeder at least 6 feet from tree branches or roof eaves and mount it on a metal pole, which is harder to climb.

Matthew Enos Awarded Scouting's Highest Honor

New Eagle Scout Restored Garden, Grounds Of Wollaston Elementary School

By SCOTT JACKSON

Matthew Enos was recently awarded the rank of Eagle Scout after helping restore the garden and grounds of the Wollaston Elementary School.

Matthew, now a sophomore at North Quincy High, attended the Wollaston Elementary School from grades 2 through 5 and his sister, Caitlyn, is currently a fifth grader at the school. A member of Boy Scout Troop 20 out of St. Ann's Church, he began planning the garden restoration project in late March and early April. Over Memorial Day Weekend, Enos and more than 40 other volunteers – including friends and family, high school students, and other Scouts – completed the project.

"We went over and it was all dilapidated. The small, footbridge-style garden was broken down and overgrown. There were a lot of dead plants and missing things. It just looked bad," Matthew said.

"We went and weeded everything out. We planted a few plants. We re-mulched. We re-seeded the lawn outside the garden. We edged the garden. We fixed the bridge and re-stoned. And then we went around and we were able to weed around the trees and mulch there. It ended up being bigger than we anticipated but overall it was good."

In addition to restoring the garden, the group also re-painted a map of the United States in the school's rear parking lot.

"It was faded so we went over it," Matthew said.

Matthew was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout in July and received the award at a ceremony held Nov. 3. He was named an Eagle Scout just five years after he joined Troop 20 as a fourth grader.

"It was incredible. I never thought that it would be that quick – five years from when I joined the troop," Matthew said. " There are a lot of people who it takes a long time to do it. I was fortunate I was able to finish earlier and I have time to actually be an Eagle Scout in the troop. So that's great."

Enos' father, Bryan, encouraged his son to join the organization because he had been a Boy Scout growing up – reaching the rank of First Class Scout, the fourth highest rank a Scout can achieve – and thought his son would enjoy the experience.

"I'm extremely proud. It's a wonderful feeling to be the father of an Eagle Scout. My wife (Eileen) is just as ecstatic," Bryan Enos said. "It's nice to see that he continued where I didn't and got there a lot sooner than all the other ones we've had in the troop so far."

At his Eagle Scout ceremony held at the Best Western Adams Inn, Matthew received a proclamation from Mayor Thomas Koch.

He also received a commendation from the City Council Nov. 18. Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, who was a Scout growing up, said the lessons Enos learned from scouting would remain with him throughout his life.

"By achieving this rank of Eagle Scout you have demonstrated exemplary discipline, talent, and ingenuity. The lessons you have learned from scouting certainly will serve you well throughout your life," Coughlin said. "All of us here join your family, your friend, and your peers in expressing pride in your achievement. We also congratulate your parents and all Scout leaders in the city for their dedication."

Matthew thanked the council for the award, and said being a Scout has already taught him the importance of giving back.

"It is a privilege to come before you tonight to accept this honor," he said. "Scouting has been a very important part of my life. It has been instrumental and has helped me become who I am. Scouting has given me confidence and independence. It has helped me to learn to give back to the community that has given me so much by doing things such as volunteering at the Southwest Community Center and centering my Eagle Scout project around my alma mater, the Wollaston School on Beale Street. I have even been a snowman in the annual Christmas parade.

"As an Eagle Scout it is my duty and responsibility to continue to serve my community. I look forward to continuing being an active member of our community."

Students Visit Wollaston Fire Station

QUINCY FIREFIGHTERS from Engine 4 and Ladder 2 recently hosted three kindergarten classes from the Wollaston School in observance of Fire Prevention Month. Students sat in the fire trucks and watched firefighters slide down the pole at the station. There was also a demonstration of a SCBA - self contained breathing apparatus - to show students that they should not be afraid if a firefighter is ever in their house during an incident and not to hide so they can be taken to safety. They were then tested on how and when to dial 911 along with receiving a Fire Prevention Activity book and certificate. Photo Courtesy Quincy Fire Department

Hanging Of The Greens Ceremony Sunday

On Sunday, Dec. 1st, at 10:30 a.m. Quincy Community United Methodist Church will hold its annual Hanging of the Greens.

Many different versions of the Hanging of the Greens service exist. The one used at Quincy Community United Methodist Church combines readings from scripture and songs, and was written by Rev. Dr. Susan Jarek-Glidden, pastor.

The real focus of the service is participation. Before the service begins, everyone is invited to help decorate the sanctuary with greenery. Then, at a certain point in the ceremony, these volunteers are asked to carry out their part of the decorating.

"The decorating is informal and lots of fun," said Jarek-Glidden. "That makes the Hanging of the Greens a great service for families and kids."

Towards the end of the service, the church Christmas tree is lit for the first time.

Everyone is invited to begin the holiday season by participating in the church's Hanging of the Greens.

The church is located at 40 Beale St. and is handicapped accessible.

For more information call (617) 793-3319.

OBITUARIES

Thomas R. Donelin, Jr., 60

THOMAS R. DONELIN, JR.

A Mass of Christian Burial for Thomas R. Donelin, Jr., 60 of Westwood and formerly Quincy was celebrated Nov. 23 at St. Denis Church, Westwood.

Mr. Donelin died Nov. 16 surrounded by his loving family and friends at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center in Boston after a brief, courageous battle with cancer.

He was raised in Quincy and spent the past 24 years in Westwood. He was a 1971 graduate of Boston College High School and 1975 graduate of Saint Anselm College, Manchester, NH with a bachelor of science degree in biology. He went on to earn a degree in pharmacy from Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

Mr. Donelin worked as a pharmacist at Brigham and Women's Hospital, Faulkner Hospital, and Whidden Memorial Hospital. He was passionate about retail pharmacy and the opportunity it offered to interact with customers. He worked at various retail pharmacies including Osco, Brooks, and Rite Aid Pharmacies. As owner of Holbrook and Quincy's Naborhood Pharmacies he enjoyed a personal relationship with his customers. Mr. Donelin's gift was in counseling patients – he was "your neighborhood pharmacist." Mr. Donelin was a counselor, adyisor, friend and mentor to all.

He was an avid Patriots and Red Sox fan and participated in several dart leagues on the South Shore. An accomplished cook, he took pleasure in experimenting with new recipes. Mr. Donelin appreciated the arts and music and took great pride in his Irish heritage. His true love was his family.

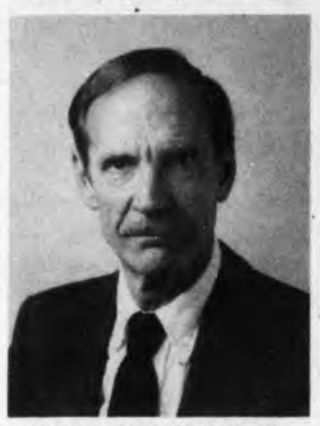

Beloved son of the late Thomas R. and Mary C. (Mulvehill) Donelin. Loving brother of Patricia A. Donelin of Norwood, Kathryn Donelin of Westwood and Clare Mazza and her husband Kevin of Quincy. Devoted uncle of Bridget, Emily and Grace Mazza. Cherished nephew of Margaret M. Sullivan of Brewster and Reverend John R. Mulvehill, pastor of Saint Anthony Parish, Cohasset. Also survived by many loving cousins and friends.

William H. Hahn, Jr., 89

WILLIAM H. HAHN, JR.

William H. Hahn, Jr., 89, of Quincy and Plymouth died Nov. 15 surrounded by members of his family.

Born in Rockford, Illinois, he first moved to the Boston area in 1941 to attend Harvard College, graduating cum laude as a member of the class of 1945.

Harvard presented Mr. Hahn his first opportunity in broadcasting, where he worked at the Harvard radio station, the Crimson Network, the first step in a journey of over 50 years in Boston broadcasting. While still a student at Harvard Mr. Hahn started working for the Yankee Network (ultimately WNAC). Amongst the notable radio shows he hosted over his career were: "Breakfast with Bill," "The Answer Man," "Tello Test Quiz," and the long running interfaith religious panel show called "Talking Religion" on WRKO.

When television came along in 1948, Mr. Hahn had a brand new medium to broadcast to New England audiences. A pioneer of the small screen, he hosted hour-long television programs originating from such varied locations as the Boston Public Library, the Museum of Fine Arts, the Isabella Stuart Gardner Museum, the Peabody Museum at Harvard, and the architecture department at MIT as part of the series "Yankee Goes Calling." Of the many interviews Mr. Hahn had with celebrities, his 1952 televised interview of then-Cong. John F. Kennedy was notable in that he was the one who introduced JFK to television on his show "Bill Hahn's Profiles". This was back when JFK was gearing up for a run for the U.S. Senate against Henry Cabot Lodge.

Later in his career, Mr. Hahn moved behind the camera, where in addition to mentoring many of the new generation of broadcasters, he set the standard for public affairs programming in RKO's broadcast properties throughout the country.

A recipient of many broadcasting awards over the years, including the 2003 Gold Circle Award of the New England Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, he was ultimately inducted into the Massachusetts Broadcaster's Hall of Fame in 2009. Mr. Hahn was active in many philanthropic and charitable organizations, highlighted by his involvement in Ford Hall Forum and the American Heart Association, where he lobbied heavily against the adverse effects of tobacco. He was a keen amateur entomologist, a passionate gardener, and lover of the outdoors. An avid beekeeper and former Eagle Scout, he took great pleasure assisting local Boy Scouts in earning their bee husbandry merit badges.

Beloved husband of the late Elizabeth "Bette" Hahn. Dear brother of Barbara Conklin of IN. Loving father of Pamela Hahn of NJ, William H Hahn III and his wife Jennifer Park of Roslindale, Alan Hahn and his wife Karin Martin of OR, and Amy Hahn and her husband Alan Gowell of Edgartown. Also survived by many close friends, especially the Knight family.

On Friday, November 15, 2013, at approximately 7:30 P.M., Officers' Annemarie Reilly and Paul Murphy were dispatched to a West Quincy address for a warrant arrest. As the Officers were en route, they were updated that there was a total of ten confirmed warrants for the male resident.

Upon arrival, Officers met with the caller/mother down the street from the residence. She told the Officers that her 33 year old son was thrown out of a sober house three days ago and showed up at her house. Since he had no place to stay, she allowed him in. She stated that she walked in on her son shooting heroin in the basement, so she called the Police. The caller/mother said that she was sure her son didn't know she saw him, so she left the house, telling him she was taking the dog for a walk. After concluding the interview, the caller/mother led the Officers through a back gate and into the kitchen of her home, then pointed and said, "There he is - that's my son there." The Officers told the son/suspect that there were outstanding warrants for him and he was under arrest. He then requested a minute to smoke a cigarette." Knowing that suspects under arrest use this ploy to buy time before being handcuffed to escape, the Officers denied this request. He then asked his mother to get him a pair of sneakers and sweatshirt.

When the suspect was told that he was already wearing shoes and there was no need to change, the suspect grew angry and hostile at the Officers verbally lashing out at them. The suspect then ran towards Officer Reilly as he attempted to flee out the rear door. The Officers grabbed hold of the fleeing suspect, ordering him to cease resisting, but he continued pulling away as the Officers attempted to handcuff him. This scuffle led to both Officers and the suspect falling to the kitchen floor. With the suspect on the floor, the Officers were able to secure the handcuffs on the suspect. The suspect then blurted out, "I'm sorry but how can I spend the whole weekend in jail, I'll be so sick." The suspect was transported to the station for booking, where it was learned that the suspect had an active abuse prevention order in effect.

LT. DAN MINTON

After reviewing the order, it was determined that the son/suspect was in violation of the order by being in the mother's home. Officer Reilly called the mother, who confirmed that her son was at the house for three days with her knowledge and consent. She said she only called because he was "doing drugs" in the basement. She was advised that technically she was in violation of the order because she allowed him into her house, against the order of the court.

In addition to the ten warrants, the suspect was charged with, "Violation of the Abuse Prevention Order, and Resisting Arrest. Nice Work!

WE NEED YOUR HELP! There has been a rash of sewer covers being stolen throughout the city during the overnight. This presents a hazardous condition to both motorists and pedestrians. The sewer covers most likely are sold as scrap metal. At this time, the Police Department does not have much information to go on. We ask you to keep an eye out for either a van or a pick up truck, possibly with more than one male occupant. The sewer covers are heavy and may take two people to move them. The vehicle that is being used may also look weighted down in the rear axle area.

MORTGAGE SCAM: A smooth-talking salesperson tells you he can renegotiate your mortgage with your lender and help you keep your house. He'll require a fee (as much as $1,000 or more) before he can start. The scam part is that the "deal" he gets is one that you could have gotten on your own, and it probably won't be enough to keep you in your home. Since he was "successful" in getting the loan renegotiated, he has technically earned his fee and there's little that you can do about it. You don't have to pay someone else to negotiate with your mortgage company. If you're having problems making your payments, contact your lender yourself.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your Arian penchant for impatience shows, as you consider passing a problem-prone project on to someone else. Best advice: Stay with it and work out those snarls yourself.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Even patient Bovines can be frustrated when carefully made plans go awry. But crank up that "stick-to-it-ivity" you do so well, and you'll soon find that your schedule is back in sync.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your aspect favors using more resourceful means in dealing with a workplace situation. Some discreet checking around could help shed light on the root cause of the problem.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You show an unusually strong streak of stubbornness in rejecting suggestions from friends and/or family members early in the week. But you become more receptive by the week's end.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Big Cat might find a gentler approach more effective when dealing with those who resist needed changes. Remember, the word "persuasion" starts with the sound "purr."
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A disappointing experience with someone you felt you could trust can be painful. But there just might be more to this situation than you're aware of. Press for an explanation.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Changing your views about something you believe in isn't easy. But you might reconsider as the facts come in. Keep your mind open, even if you're uneasy about what you might learn.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to do some serious shifting of gears to get your project back on track. But cheer up. Your hard work starts to produce some positive results by the week's end.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unsettling mood at the start of the week soon lifts and gives way to a more positive attitude as you find fun and friendship beginning to dominate your aspect.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A delay in firming up holiday plans could work to your advantage. Use this time to scout out possibilities that might be more in line with what those close to you would prefer.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Some people might question some of the new friends you've welcomed into your life. But your ability to see beyond the obvious helps you recognize how special they are.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Financial matters can be especially tricky this week. It's best to follow a conservative investment path for now, and wait for a more fortuitous time to take a bolder approach.
BORN THIS WEEK: Your warmth, your humor and your genuine concern for others make you someone people love to keep close to their lives.

Reardon: 'We Want To Run The Ball And Stop Allen'

Quincy Seeking Second Straight Thanksgiving Win Over North

By BILL GRIFFIN

They have clinched the first back-to-back winning seasons at Quincy in 10 years. They are 6-4 and are three one-point losses away from being 9-1. They have a legitimate marquee, double-threat player in quarterback James Lam. They have two excellent running backs who complement each other well, depth and strength along the line, and two all-league caliber linebackers in Jake Bergonzi and Dan Guarente.

Quincy is a solid, well-coached football team which does two things very well. The Presidents run the ball and they stop the run. Both of these strengths will be well tested by North Quincy (3-7) when the two meet in the 81st renewal of their grand rivalry at Veterans Stadium Thanksgiving morning at 10 a.m.

"We want to run the ball and we have to contain their running, especially Antoine Allen," said coach Bill Reardon.

Quincy won last year's game, 30-14 to break a three-game North winning streak on Thanksgiving. Before North's run, Quincy had won 10 straight against the Red Raiders.

Allen will be the best test Quincy's defensive front has faced this season. He has 1,506 yards in 10 games, 16 touchdowns, and eight two-point conversions. He can score on any play on which the ball is snapped or kicked. In his 307-yard, five-touchdown game against Milford, four of his scoring runs were over 31 yards. In the 16-3 win over Dedham, he scored touchdowns on a run from scrimmage and an interception return which each covered more than 60 yards.

In the 14-6 win over Norwood, he scored all of his team's 14 points and made two game-saving, open-field tackles at cornerback. He has scored running and receiving from scrimmage, on kickoffs, on punts, and on interception returns. He is a great back. If there are any doubts about what a great back can do to a game, remember well last Thanksgiving and remember Quincy's Jalen Green. Allen is that good.

"He scares me. He is the best back we've faced all season. No doubt about it," said Reardon. "He runs inside well, but that's where we have to contain him. He makes you miss and runs with power. He has such great acceleration and vision that if we let him get outside, we're in trouble with his speed."

The Presidents will counter with one of their strengths which is the defensive front of Matt Hines, Matt Kozlowski, James Askins and William Young. Bergonzi and Guarante support the run defense and the secondary, especially Armani Cardoso, are solid tacklers. Nobody has run well on Quincy. Allen may well be the best back the Presidents have seen. Quincy may also well be the best defensive front Allen has seen. It is a wonderful matchup.

"It's the big plays, the explosive plays that we have to contain. Allen will get his yards, we have to stop the long runs," said Reardon. "We can't let him break outside and we have to get good support and tackling from the secondary as well. We can't miss tackles"

There is more than Allen. If Quincy has had a defensive issue, it has been against the pass. North quarterback Andrew Kiley threw well against Norwood. Wingback Dayvon Jones has emerged a dependable runner and receiver. The Red Raiders threw the long ball well early in the season. They are getting healthy at wide receiver. They have balanced their offense as the season has progressed, and although Quincy has to concentrate on Allen, the Presidents cannot forget about everyone else.

"They can do other things as well. We can't fall asleep on the pass. We have to improve our coverages. Jones is also a good back, so they give a defense a lot to think about," said Reardon.

Quincy counters with a powerful offense which has scored 241 points in 10 games. The Presidents have been held under 20 points just twice this season (Braintree and Duxbury). Most of the damage has been done on the ground. Quincy has rushed for 2,276 yards in 10 games.

"That's more than we rushed for all last season," said Reardon.

Quincy features a three-headed monster in the backfield. Sophomore tailback Jahvae Handsome-Fields has rushed for 872 yards, nine touchdowns and has run back two kickoffs for touchdowns. He has surprising power but his calling card is his speed and breakaway ability. He will not lose many footraces.

Senior tailback Alex Alexandre, who returned for the Durfee game after missing three games with a shoulder injury, has 599 yards and six touchdowns. He has good speed, but what he does best is run hard between the tackles. The two are an ideal inside-outside combination.

81ST CITY FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Quincy Presidents vs. North Quincy Red Raiders

SENIOR LINEMAN and captain Vinny Tran has been sensational all season and leads a talented group of defensive players into Thursday's game against the Quincy Presidents.

NORTH QUINCY has an explosive running back in Antoine Allen who has left many defenders in his wake rushing for 1,506 yards, 16 touchdowns and eight two-point conversions in 10 games this season.

Nutley: 'We Want To Control The Ball, Pick Up Blitz'

North Quincy Aiming For Fourth Win Over Quincy In Five Years

By BILL GRIFFIN

The question about North Quincy from the beginning has been about quantity not quality. The Red Raiders have a great back in Antoine Allen, a great lineman in Vinny Tran, and blue-chip, front-line players who start and can play with anyone. The issue has been depth. The issue has been numbers.

Multiple players have worked on offense and defense. This can exact a hard price over the course of a long season. However, for one game, the Quincy game, the crowd will be roaring, the energy will be flowing, and the adrenaline will be pumping.

For one game, when North meets the Presidents for the 81st time at 10 a.m. on Thanksgiving morning, there will be no problem with numbers. If players have to go both ways, they will go both ways. Stamina and fatigue will not be issues. This is Quincy.

"For a lot of kids, this is the last time they will put on a helmet," said first-year coach Mark Nutley. "I think we have more players moving in and out and fewer kids playing both ways, but against Quincy, they'll be so excited going both ways won't be a problem."

Nutley has seen improvement both in balance and depth late in the season. North (3-7) has won two straight over Milford and Norwood entering the Quincy game. Tran, Allen and Dayvon Jones (wingback, cornerback) are the only three players who never leave the field. There is some two-way duty for players like Zach Dangora (linebacker-tight end), Don Sharp (lineman) and Derek Hounh (linemen), but the development of Fred Barsamian at center and the return of Eddie Guinto at linebacker have provided both depth and quality.

"Eddie played the entire second half against Norwood at linebacker," said Nutley. "We lost him in the second game with a knee injury. We used a him a little against Milford, but he looked good for a long stretch against Norwood."

North and Quincy are mirror images. They both run the ball and play good defense against the run. Allen, who is likely the best back in the Patriot League, has 1,506 yards rushing, 16 touchdowns and eight two-point conversions. Jones has rushed for over 500 yards and has nearly 200 yards in pass receptions. He caught three for 42 yards against Norwood. Jones and Allen

"GAMEBOY BACK"

Digital gaming devices are not only changing the way we play, they are also actually changing our bodies (and not in a good way). The condition known as "Gameboy Back" provides a perfect illustration. This modern phenomenon was first identified by Dutch surgeons who reported that increasing numbers of children between ages 8 and 18 years were complaining of a mysterious back condition. Physicians noted that the last time such a widespread problem was noted among children had occurred 100 years ago when child labor was common in Europe. Today, an outward curvature of the spine, often accompanied by protruding ("slipped") discs, has been found to be caused by the poor posture exhibited by children playing hand-held gaming devices.

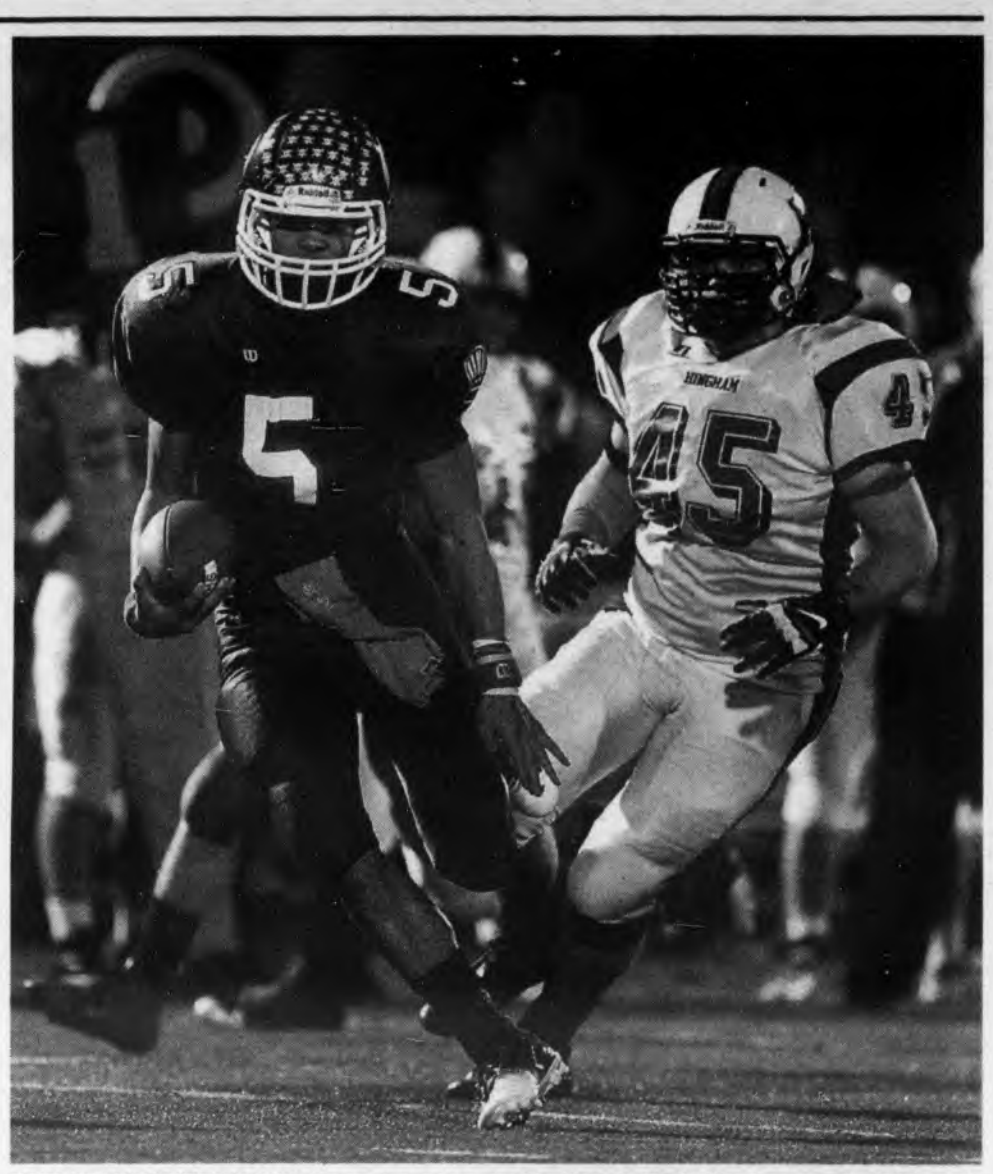

Most studies say the answer is not to ban gaming consoles but to work on posture. The simplest test for "Game boy back" is to have children bend over and touch their toes, making an "n" shape. Those with curvature of the spine won't be able to flex in the middle enough to touch their toes. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we want you to feel good. Ask questions. Get involved. SENIOR CAPTAIN Alex Alexandre, who returned to Quincy's lineup against Durfee after missing three games with a shoulder injury, has 599 yards and six touchdowns for the Presidents.

QUINCY QUARTERBACK James Lam is a double-threat: the junior has run for 774 yards and 10 touchdowns and thrown for 559 yards and five touchdowns for the Presidents

"Jahvae gives us speed and Alex gives us some pop inside. They complement each other well," said Reardon.

Which brings us to Lam. Lam concerns North as much as Allen concerns Quincy. He has run for 774 yards and 10 touchdowns. Go to 10 Thanksgiving Day football games. Watch 20 tailbacks. Lam will be better than 18 of them. And he is a quarterback. He runs through tackles, he makes people miss, and he cuts back to open space with an instinct that cannot be taught.

Mike Munroe, Steve Scolaro, Abraham Hoti, and Hines lead an offensive line which, along with fullback Jalen Chase has torn open holes all season.

"There always can be surprises in a game like this, but we want to do what we've done well all year which is run the ball and sprinkle in some passes," said Reardon. "In the games we've lost, we had penalties and turnovers. We have to avoid those."

Quincy's run will be challenged by North's defensive front led by all-league senior Vinny Tran. Tran, Nick Manning, Don Sharp, Alex Chen, and Zach Dangora have been hard to move since the loss to Bishop Feehan.

"Tran is a great player," said Reardon. "You have to account for him from the first snap. He could be at noseguard, tackle, defensive end or linebacker. You have to find him and plan accordingly. Manning is a monster in there and Sharp has a lot of experience in these games."

When Quincy passes, it showcases Lam's second weapon. He is not a running quarterback who can throw a little. He is a quarterback who runs like a tailback and has a gun. He has thrown for 559 yards and five touchdowns. He is best throwing from the pocket. His 65-yard scoring strike to J.T. Bain against Durfee traveled 60 yards in the air on a line. It was a bullet. Bain, Hines, and Robbie Munroe are all capable receivers.

"If they stack eight or nine men in the box against us, we'll throw. I'm confident about our passing game," said Reardon

Quincy went 6-4 in its first season. By any reasonable standard, the first season was just fine. The Presidents were three plays away from making the playoffs, three plays away from being 9-1. A young team built on what is hopefully the foundation of a winning tradition. The second season is played on Thanksgiving. Quincy and North are currently both 0-0. It is the game, more than any or all of the first ten, that they will always remember.

"You hope the seniors play up to the moment and the underclassmen step up as well," said Reardon. "I like to look at it as our bowl game, the bowl game we will always have. We want to make the playoffs like anyone else, but we will always have this game and this excitement. It's always our bowl game for the players, coaches and fans."

Surprise player to watch --- Placekicker Thomaz Silva. He has kicked 18 extra points. His leg strength has improved over the season. His five extra points against Durfee were boomers. They would have been good from 30 yards.

If the game is close and Quincy needs a late-game kick, the Presidents will look to Silva.

JUNIOR RUNNING BACK Dayvon Jones is also a Red Raider offensive threat, rushing for more than 500 yards and nearly 200 yards in pass receptions this season.

Nutley: 'We Want To Control The Ball, Pick Up Blitz'

have combined for nearly 2100 yards rushing. The Red Raiders want to run the ball.

"That's our game. We want to control the ball," said Nutley. "Antoine is averaging nearly 24 carries per game. It's no secret. That's where we like to go. Quincy likes to blitz its linebackers and we have to block and pick them up."

Running against Quincy's big and mobile front will not be easy. Barsamian, Sharp, Tran, and Dangora opened holes against Milford and Norwood, but Quincy will be North's biggest challenge up front. The Red Raiders will almost certainly have to add balance to their attack. Allen can do a lot. He can't do everything.

"Dayvon has become a dependable back and is a good 1-2 combination with Antoine," said Nutley. "I think we've also shown in the last two games that we can throw if we have to."

Jones and junior quarterback Andrew Kiley will be important players. When teams focus on Allen breaking to the outside, Jones runs the inside counter beautifully. He also has the ability to get open in the flat and catch a swing pass from Kiley. Kiley went 4-5 in the first half against Norwood and showed he can find the open receiver.

"The Bishop Feehan game (a 28-0 loss) showed we need balance," said Nutley. "We couldn't get anything going on offense, and it let them focus on just Antoine. We can't do that against Quincy."

The Red Raiders will be aided by the return of wide receivers Eric Cohane-Jones and Matt Donovan. Cohane-Jones, who missed most of the season with injury, narrowly missed an acrobatic catch for a TD against Norwood. Donovan, who was the Red Raiders' best receiver early in the year, has been out with a shoulder injury. Donovan had a memorable catch for a touchdown against Middleboro.

"We think Matt will be cleared and we should have them both for Quincy," said Nutley.

Defensively, North's biggest challenge will be Quincy's junior quarterback James Lam who has combined for 1,333 yards total offense (774 rushing, 559 passing) and 15 touchdowns (10 rushing, five passing). He throws a hard, accurate ball, but it is his running which has shredded defenses in Quincy's wins over Braintree and Durfee. His speed and power are good, but what separates him is he has the elusiveness of a tailback.

"Whenever I see him, all I see are guys grabbing at him and tackling air," said Nutley. "He's especially tough on the sweep. He shakes and fakes and he's gone. We have to put a lot of players around the ball. We need to be disciplined and stay in our lanes. When he runs, we need 11 players going to the ball."

Alex Alexandre and Jahvae Handsome-Fields give Quincy a good balance of power and explosiveness. The test will be for North's front of Tran, Sharp, Manning, Alex Chen, Dangora and Guinto to control scrimmage and not allow any space, especially for Handsome-Fields who is a breakaway threat on hand-offs, sweeps, punt and kickoff return. When Lam, Handsome-Fields, and Alexandre are clicking together, Quincy is tough.

"They have two very good backs along with Lam," said Nutley. "We have to plug the gaps and not give any open space."

North will also need to be aware of Lam's throwing. J.T. Bain, Robbie Munroe and Matt Hines are proven receivers. Quincy loves to run the ball, but the Presidents certainly have the talent to throw it if the need should arise.

"Lam throws a good deep ball and Bain in excellent," said Nutley. "We need to play our coverages and not give anything deep. We want to keep everything in front of us."

It is Nutley's first year as head coach on Thanksgiving. However, he knows the game and the morning well. He played in three of them for Quincy. He was an assistant both at Quincy and North for the great tradition. He knows his players will experience a morning they will not forget.

"The stadium will be packed. Alumni come from all over the country for the game," said Nutley. "When they put on those helmets at 9:55, step out onto that field and see that crowd, it will be a special feeling. They will be playing against kids they know and grew up with. It will always be a special day."

Surprise player to watch: Eddie Guinto. Most thought his season was over when he hurt his knee. He battled his way back to play against Milford and Norwood. Against Norwood, he was excellent at linebacker, had a run down to the Mustangs' one and threw a big block on Allen's scoring run. Wouldn't it be the perfect end to the story if he had a memorable Thanksgiving against Quincy?

Friends First, Coaches Second For North Quincy's Mark Nutley And Quincy's Bill Reardon

Former Teammates Now On Opposite Sidelines

By BILL GRIFFIN

North Quincy coach Mark Nutley was walking off the field after his team played Scituate this season. Quincy was playing Duxbury the same night in a showdown for a playoff berth and the Patriot League Keenan Division title.

Nutley asked a reporter how Quincy was doing in the Duxbury game. When the reporter told him the Presidents were trailing, 14-0, Nutley reacted with a shake of his head and genuine disappointment.

Nutley was unhappy because Quincy is coached by his friend Bill Reardon. The two have known each other for more than 20 years. Their relationship shows well that this is a rivalry of friends. When the game is on, the competition could not be more fierce. When the game is over, the old bonds grow more firm.

It begins in youth sports when many play for the same team. It continues through the high-school rivalry and it is interwoven into their lives. They are not strangers from separate towns who happened to play one game against each other on a forgotten November morning. They are from the same city, the same place, and what they share enriches friendships which last a lifetime.

BILL REARDON

Head Coach

Nutley and Reardon played on the same Quincy team in the early 1990s. They coached together for four years from 2000-2004 as assistants under Bob Noble. They know each other. They have a history. They are friends with shared memories.

"I was a senior when Mark was a sophomore," said Reardon who played varsity for Quincy in 1990 and 1991 under Jack Raymer as a wingback and cornerback. "I remember him most from practice. You could tell right away that he was tough and he had great feet. It was easy to see he was going to be a great lineman."

"I'll always remember a play Billy made," said Nutley. "We were in the old Old Colony League and we were playing Taunton. Taunton had a great back, A.J. Viera, and he was tearing up the league. They ran a sweep to Billy's side. He came up from cornerback and hit the kid, a hard, clean hit. I think the kid's helmet came off. I think we were 8-1-1 that year, and that was the play the whole team remembered."

Each has a Thanksgiving moment as a player to remember.

"It was my senior year and North had its Super Bowl team. I think they beat us, 20-0," said Nutley. "All I remember was it was pouring. I think I still have mud coming off me from the game. When we warmed up, there were maybe 200 people in the stands. When we came back out of the locker room for the game, the stadium was packed. You couldn't find an open space. It was pouring, but it didn't matter. Even though we lost, to be part of that environment was something I'll never forget."

"It was my senior year and it was a typical North vs. Quincy game. Throw the records out," said Reardon. "We're heavily favored, and they're ahead 14-0, and driving for another score. I came up from corner and stopped a third-down play. They had to settle for a field goal. I hoped my play helped my team stop the momentum. We rallied and won, 23-17, and had three more touchdowns called back on penalties."

The Quincy connection served Nutley well in his early years as a coach. He was living in California, but he stayed in contact with his friends on the Quincy staff. He has known Kevin Carey since the fifth grade. He talked to Dan Morrell. Morrell urged him to come home and join the Quincy staff.

"I was looking for a reason to come back to Massachusetts and be with my family. Dan gave it to me," said Nutley.

Nutley worked with offensive and defensive lines. Reardon was defensive coordinator and coached the defensive backs. From the beginning, there was mutual respect and friendship. They had a history. They were Quincy guys.

"You could tell right from the start that Mark was smart, knew football and worked hard," said Reardon. "When Jim Connor hired him at North, I said: We're in trouble now."

"Billy and I always talked about me being on his staff if he got the head job," said Nutley. "But when he was hired, all the assistants stayed on. There wasn't an opening."

Reardon has been head coach for six Thanksgivings and has a record of 3-3. This is Nutley's first year as head man.

"I remember my first year. I was a nervous wreck. I don't think I slept for a week," said Reardon. "We had a streak when we beat North ten straight years. When I was hired, the streak stood at straight over North. I figured if I lost, they'd say: Get rid of him and bring back Bob Noble."

"I'm trying to stay on an even keel, treat it like preparing for any other game," said Nutley. "I am the head coach and I have to set an example. If the kids see me going crazy over the game, we're in trouble."

Each coach has seen during his preparation that the connection which drew them together nearly 25 years in the past remains strong and firm with the players of 2013.

"We were showing them Quincy film and I left my roster upstairs," said Nutley. "One of the kids said: Don't worry, coach. We already know all the Quincy kids."

"I get more player input for the North game than any other game," said Reardon. "I'll be putting a play on the board and a player will raise his hand and say: Coach, this North player likes to do a certain thing. And you know what, my player is almost always right."

Bill Reardon and Mark Nutley played together, they coached together and now they will coach against each other on Thanksgiving. They are rivals. They are friends. Perfect.

Season Success For America FC United Soccer Club

During the fall season, America FC United Soccer Club (AFC) fielded more teams than ever before, and had one of its players make the Olympic Development Program (ODP) Region 1 Team.

FC was able to grow from 7 teams last year to 10 teams this fall. AFC also had more teams playing in the Massachusetts Premier League (MAPLE) than during any other point in the clubs 6 year history, with 4 out of 8 eligible teams playing in this very competitive league. AFC Director of Coaching and former Antigua and Barbuda National Team player, Conrad Whyte, along with other AFC Coaches, believe the clubs player development philosophy and focus is what has driven the success. AFC teams still have a couple open spots and will be holding open tryouts during its winter season. Visit www.americafcunited.com for more information.

AFC U18 Boys team player, James O'Shea, was selected to play for the ODP Region 1 team. O'Shea, a striker/midfielder for AFC, is one of three Massachusetts players on the team. Region 1 is made up of 13 states and there are 30 players selected to represent the region. O'Shea has also recently been named as one of the 20 members of the Region 1 ODP team who will represent Region 1 in the Florida Regional Tournament. This is a tremendous accomplishment and AFC is extremely excited for O'Shea.

North Quincy Perfect Seasons In 1966, 1992

North Quincy has twice entered the Thanksgiving Day game with a perfect season on the line: 1966 and 1992.

Ken McPhee, present assistant coach for the Red Raiders, has a role in both. On the 1966 squad, he was a starting guard. He was the head coach of the 1992 team.

The 1966 team, coached by Carl Leone, had a 9-0 record, won the Greater Boston League title, shared the Class A crown with Arlington and shut out Quincy, 8-0.

The 1992 team had an 11-0 record, won the Old Colony League title, beat Arlington in the Div. 1B Super Bowl and shut out Quincy, 20-0.

1970 Quincy Team Undefeated

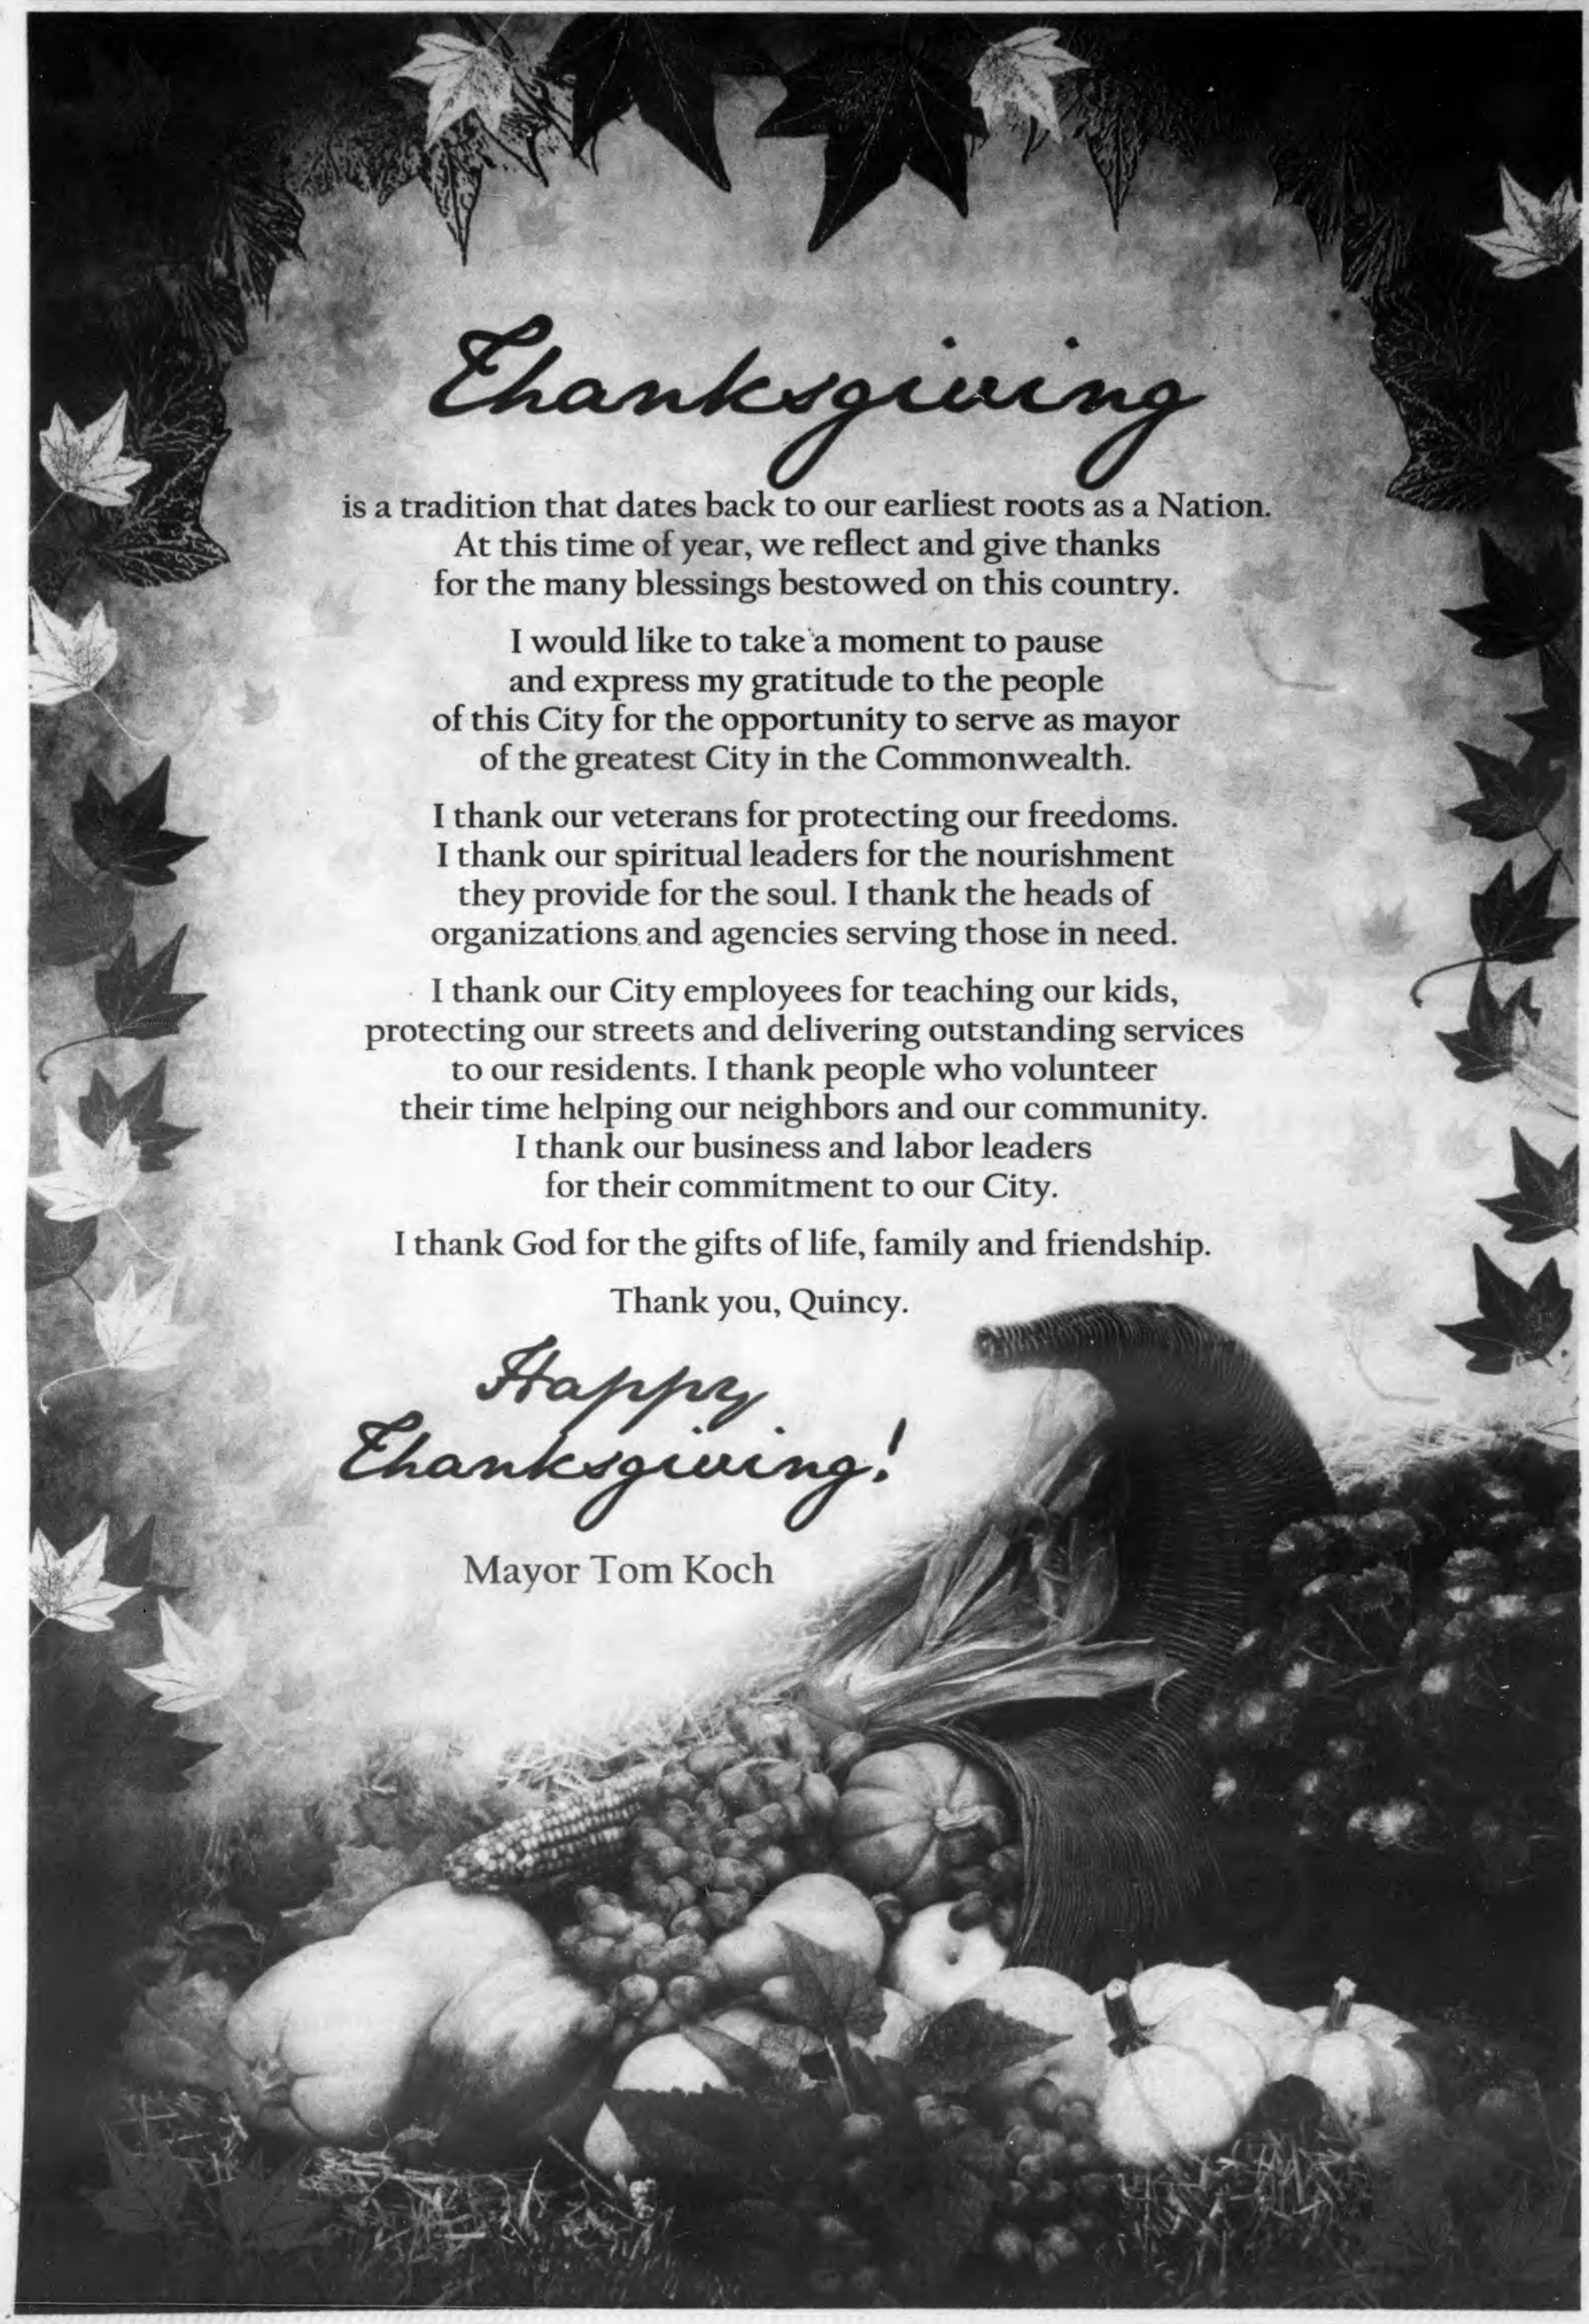

Quincy's 1970 team, coached by Hank Conroy, had a spotless 9-0 record.

The Presidents defeated North Quincy that year, 16-6, and won the Greater Boston League title.

George Burke To Attend 70th Consecutive Q-NQ Game

Attorney George G. Burke will be attending his 70th straight North Quincy - Quincy football game on Thanksgiving Thursday - a new record for consecutive games.

Ron Ivil, president of the Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame Committee, presented Burke with a Quihncy High School #70 jersey at Tuesday's Hall of Fame Induction Banquet held at the Quincy Sons of Italy.

Local Charities Appeal For Food, Toys, Clothing, Other Services

Helping Hands Stepping Up For Holiday Assistance

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

For many, the holiday season is a time to celebrate and spend time with family and friends, but it's also a time to give back to those in need, and many local charities are asking residents to do just that.

Due to less supplies being donated from the Boston Food Bank and changes to the Food Stamp program, which is forcing families who may not have needed assistance before asking for help, many local charities are asking for help with food donations.

Each charity assists individuals and families in countless ways, providing food, shelter, toys, clothes, and other services all year long, but more so during the holiday season.

Rain Can't Dampen Holiday Spirit At Christmas Parade

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

A little rain didn't stop tens of thousands of spectators from attending the 61st annual Christmas parade this past Sunday.

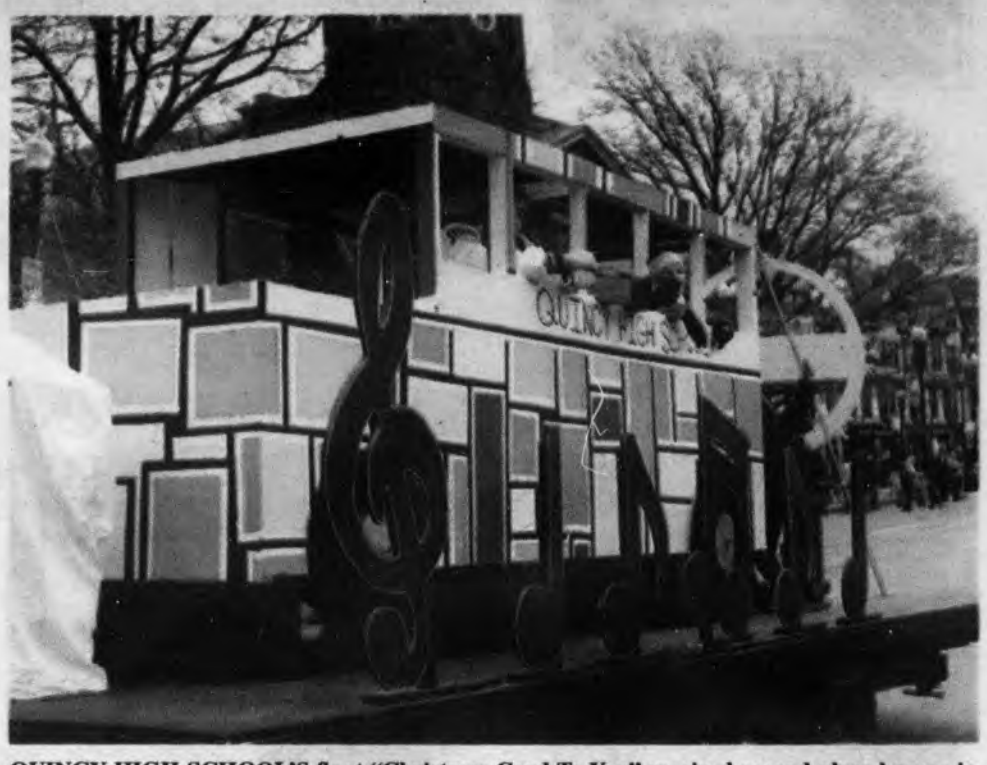

"We are very happy with the turn out this year considering the rainy weather we had," said Chris Cassani, executive director of the Park and Forestry Department. "We estimate around 30,000 people attended this year."

The weekend of events kicked off on Friday, Nov. 29 with the ceremonial lighting of the Christmas lights in Quincy Center and on Nov. 30 Santa and his elves arrived via parachute at Pageant Field before the parade on Sunday, Dec. 1.

Fifteen floats, based on this year's theme, "The Music of Christmas," made their way down the three-mile parade route, which began at the intersection of Hancock Street and Hannon Parkway and concluded at North Quincy High School.

RELAY FOR LIFE float won first place in the non-commercial category for its entry "All I Want For Christmas Is A Cure!" in Sunday's 61st annual Quincy Christmas Parade.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL'S float "Christmas Card To You" received second place honors in the non-commercial float category at Sunday's Quincy Christmas Parade. Other photos Pages 17 and 18.

Quincy Sun photos/Larry Carchedi

The parade not only featured the Christmas-themed floats, but also 16 marching bands from around the state, Wally the Green Monster, the Allepo Shriners Clowns, McGruff the Crime Dog, antique cars, the Clydesdale horses, and of course Santa Claus.

In the float competition, the Best Overall Float and the winner of the Father Thomas Tierney Trophy went to Skills for Living for its entry "Muppet Christmas Song."

The Mayor's Trophy for Best Quincy Float was presented to the Quincy Chamber of Commerce for "Alvin and the Chipmunks." Jack Conway Realty won the title of the Best Commercial Float for their living nativity scene, and Quincy Partnership won the title of Best Specialty Float.

In the non-commercial float competition, first place went to a Relay for Life for "All I want for Christmas is you" (All I want for Christmas is a Cure) float.

Second place went to Quincy High School for "Christmas Card To You" and third place went to Quincy After School Child Care for "Mele Kalikimaka."

Also recognized were St. Agatha School's float - "Mele Kalikimaka" and the Woodward School's "Gingerbread Christmas." They received fourth and fifth place respectively in the non-commercial float category.

In the band competition, Acton Boxboro High School received the George White Trophy as the best overall unit. Second place went to Somerset Berkeley High School and third place went to Joseph Case High School in Swansea. North Quincy-Quincy marching band received third place in the Division III category.

"All in all it was a wonderful, incident free, family-themed couple of days," said Cassani. "It brought everybody in the community together and put a smile on my face."

QUINCY AFTER SCHOOL Child Care's "Mele Kalikimaka" float received third place in the non-commercial float category at Sunday's Quincy Christmas Parade.

Catch Basin Cleaning Removes 650 Tons Of Debris

The first phase of an expanded program to clear the City's storm drains removed more than 650 tons of sediment and debris from more than 1,600 catch basins and drains in several neighborhoods in what officials expect will have a substantial benefit for street draining.

The program specifically targeting all of 9,300 the City's storm drains for cleaning rolled out this fall in Squantum, parts of North Quincy and areas of Merrymount and Adams Shore and will continue to move citywide in 2014.

"Every action we can take to help improve drainage and alleviate flooding makes a difference, and the removal of this much material is certainly going to have a positive effect in those neighborhoods. I look forward to seeing it continue," said Mayor Thomas Koch.

The program expands on past DPW efforts to clean drains prior to major storm events. The sediment and debris that build ups in roadside drains can play a serious role in pooling water and even flooding in some areas of the City.

The initiative comes as an aggressive flood relief program in a number of City neighborhoods is continuing citywide as part of Mayor Koch's Capital Improvement Plan.

As part of the program, included as part of the Fiscal Year 2014 City budget, used both heavy machinery and vacuum jet trucks to clear basins.

'Remember Pearl Harbor' Wreath Ceremony Dec. 7

The Quincy Veterans Council will conducdct a Wreath Laying Ceremony to "Remember Pearl Harbor" Saturday, Dec. 7 at 10 a.m.

The ceremony will take place at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, veterans' section at the World War II Memorial at the corner of Sea Street and the Southern Artery. In the event of inclement weather, the ceremony will be held at the Morrisette American Legion Post 294, 81-83 Liberty St., Quincy.

Saturday marks the 72nd anniversary of the Empire of Japan's sneak attack on the U.S. Pacific Fleet at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii and brought the U.S. into World War II.

It's Beginning To Look A Lot Like . . . Winter

READY FOR WINTER - Loads of salt are dumped into the City's new salt shed at the Department of Public Works facility, which is capable of storing more than 4,000 tons of the material used on roads during snow and ice storms. The new facility allows the City to store more than four times as much salt than it could previously. City officials said the storage facility will save tens of thousands of dollars in costs for material stored outdoors and lost to the elements every year. It also means the City will not have to replenish its supply in the middle of major storm events, which will save money and improve operations, officials said. The new shed is part of a broader effort over the last several years by Mayor Thomas Koch and the DPW to improve snow and ice removal efforts citywide.

SIGN DEDICATING the press box at Veterans' Memorial Stadium to Charles W. Djerf, longtime public address announcer, is admired by members of his family after it was unveiled during halftime at last Thursday's Quincy-North Quincy football game on Thanksgiving Day. Mr. Djerf, a beloved Quincy school teacher, served as the P.A. announcer for Quincy and North Quincy football games for 47 years. He passed away in September from complications associated with long-term juvenile diabetes.

Charles W. Djerf: A Quincy Institution

Thanksgiving Day is about traditions.

Family, turkey and of course, football.

In Quincy, there's another tradition that really became an institution.

His name was Charles W. Djerf and for 47 years he served as the public address announcer for both the Presidents and Red Raiders gridiron games.

Charlie called his final Quincy-North Quincy football game nine years ago - on Thanksgiving Day in 2004. For his longtime contributions to Quincy youth athletics, the press box was dedicated to Charlie. On that November day nine years ago, he stood on the field and shared that special moment with his grandson David Djerf, a member of the Red Raiders' football team.

Charlie - a retired and much beloved Quincy public school teacher – passed away Sept. 28 at the age of 79 after a long battle with juvenile diabetes.

Last Thursday, 25 immediate members of the Djerf family returned to Veterans' Memorial Stadium to rededicate the press box. As the sun shined on a crsip clear morning the family unveiled a new sign on the front of the press box. The handsome black sign with white lettering reads "Charles W. Djerf Press Box."

Before the sign was unveiled, Charlie's recorded voice welcoming fans to Veterans' Memorial Stadium - as he did for so many times – was heard from the public address speaker.

One of Charlie's sons, Russ, spoke on behalf of the family from inside his father's newly named press box.

"This is a tremendous honor for our father and entire Djerf family. Having only recently lost his battle with diabetes, we are so grateful for this special dedication.

"Had he been here, I am absolutely certain that he too would cherish this moment. In fact, only a short time ago, earlier this summer, during a family gathering, one of his grandchildren had informed him of this impending dedication.

"And his response, a long quiet smile exuding thoughts that you could almost read, as if there were a banner above him, spoke volumes. It as a magic and moving moment, priceless for all of us to have witnessed," Russ told spectators many standing from the grandstands to get a closer look at the new sign.

"To be honored as such, by the city he loved, is truly the crowning achievement of a lifetime. And to have done so for the work that he loved. I can think of no greater reward.

CHARLES W. DJERF - who was a familiar voice at Veterans' Memorial Stadium for 47 years as the public address announcer – in his familiar spot inside the press box in this 2003 photo taken by Bert Lane. The press box was dedicated to Mr. Djerf with a new sign affixed to the front of the press box at last Thursday's Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game.

"On behalf of the Djerf family, we would like to thank the City of Quincy, Mayor Koch and his staff, Dr. (Richard) DeCristofaro and the Quincy School Committee."

Members of the Djerf family then huddled under the sign on the press box to take photos of the momentous occasion.

Charlie was so much more than a P.A. announcer. He was a special man who will long be remembered throughout the city as a great family man and a true gentleman.

"Charlie was a wonderful gentleman," said Charlie Ross, longtime football announcer for WJDA radio. They shared the booth for 31 years from 1973 to 2004.

"Gentleman is a word that people throw out there rather casually but he was a true gentle man. He had a lot of challenges in life. When he passed away it was revealed he had juvenile diabetes."

Because of the disease, Charlie Djerf had endured partial and full amputations to his lower extremities.

"Some people may have said, 'He can't do anything anymore,' but he was still up there in the booth," Ross continued. "It didn't limit him. He didn't complain. It didn't bother him and he always had a joke and he always had a smile on his face.

Montclair/Wollaston Meeting Tonight

The Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Lutheran church of the Good Shepherd, Harvard and West Squantum Streets, Quincy.

Cynthia Sierra, senior director at Manet Community Health Center, and Marsha Meade, Manet's director of Public Policy, Public Affairs and Program Development, will update the group on the expansion and renovations at the Center.

Also present will be architects DiGiorgio & Associates, Inc., and construction manager/contractor, Columbia Construction, who will answer more detailed questions about the project.

There will be a brief business meeting following the speakers. Jim Salenius will provide some relaxing background music and light Christmas refreshments will be served.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1909 postcard showing Dorchester Street in Squantum as it runs northeast towards Squantum Park and Moon Island. This view is from near the end of Pratt Road. The poles on the right carried the overhead power lines for the electric trolleys that first ran out here in the 1890's from the Atlantic railroad depot to Squantum Park in the left distance. The second building from the right was the Squantum Inn, a popular dining destination that was near today's Shoreham Street. This roadway has been widened and today a Quincy granite retaining wall runs along the right hand side. The utility poles on the left were pretty much at the high water line where a pier once extended out in Dorchester Bay for ferryboats crossing back and forth from City Point in Boston to the park and the local seaside restaurants. The pier is long gone and today there is a seawall along here. This hand colored postcard was printed in Germany. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Doubts City Needs Another Football Field

I almost could not believe that the football players had to walk two miles from North Quincy to a practice field. I was always under the impression that walking was the best exercise you could do. I hope they were allowed to take a nap before they had to practice.

I can only guess our mayor never played football. Now he wants to take nine homes down and widen the crosswalk at Hancock and Squantum Streets.

Nine homes valued at around $350,000 each looks like $3.15 million. Add around another $90,000 to tear them downs equals around $3.24 million. Plus around $31,500 in lost tax revenue and you're talking around $3.27 million.

Do we really need a football field just two miles away from the school? To cost from $7 million to $10 million is a lot of money to stop the football team from getting some of the best exercise around to every doctor in the world.

You can buy three buses for around $150,000 and save the people of Quincy over $9 million. You can fix a lot of roads with that money.

Panel Should Recommend Cuts To 6-Figure Jobs

In the panel's salary comparison they failed to point out that the city's superintendent of schools makes close to a quarter of a million dollars.

By increasing the mayor's pay, the city will have another employee that makes more than the governor. Consideration should be given to many taxpayers, unemployed and under-employed.

The panel's more prudent approach should be to review all employees making six figures or more and recommend cuts there.

Pearl Harbor Attack Sends City Into Action

Quincy responded with feverish activity to word that the Japanese had attacked Pearl Harbor.

"The time for play at civil defense is past," said Edwin J. MacEwan, controller of the Fifth Civilian Defense District, which included Quincy and 10 South Shore towns.

"If the Japanese can bomb Hawaii, which is 3,000 miles away, then the Germans can bomb Quincy, which is only 2,700 miles away."

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin cut short a Cape Cod holiday and returned to confer behind closed doors with Police Chief John J. Avery, Solicitor John D. Smith, and Fore River Police Chief Howard H. Dacey.

I Co., commanded by Capt. John Brewer, one of Quincy's two state guard companies, was mobilized and ordered to report to the Armory by 7 p.m. Sunday night.

Z. Cranston Smith, chief air raid warden, sent out a call for 1,000 additional volunteers to augment the force of 30 air raid wardens that were to be graduated on Monday.

Chief Avery directed members of the Quincy Police Department not to leave the city without permission and he cancelled orders to put the police boat "Guardian" in winter storage.

Police, alerted by the New Haven Railroad that a Japanese man was onboard a southbound train, stopped the train at Wollaston and took him off only to find it was a prominent Chinese laundryman from Weymouth returning from a weekend date in Boston.

'Battle For Ground Zero' Author At Library Dec. 11

Library, Quincy College 'Meet The Author Night'

Quincy College, in partnership with the Thomas Crane Public Library, presents 'Meet the Author Night' featuring Elizabeth Greenspan, author of *Battle for Ground Zero: Inside the Political Struggle to Rebuild the World Trade Cente*r, on Wednesday, Dec. 11th from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library Conference Room, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Just after 9/11, Americans came together in a way not seen for generations. As people gave blood, enlisted in the army, and stickered their cars with the flag, they looked to Ground Zero as a rallying symbol, confident that its restoration would prove New York City — and the nation – was stronger than ever.

But before rescue workers had even finished clearing the rubble, the site was embroiled in controversy that would plague it for the next ten years – and rob the country of the closure it so desperately sought.

Greenspan, a writer and anthropologist, is a resident of Jamaica Plain and currently teaches at Harvard University. She writes regularly about Ground Zero and has lectured about 9/11 at numerous colleges and universities including Harvard, Brandeis College, the New School, Endicott College, Haverford College, Temple University, and Syracuse University. Greenspan received a PhD in anthropology and urban studies from the University of Pennsylvania, and before that worked at the Associated Press Rome Bureau and National Journal magazine.

Greenspan will lead a discussion about her book and what happened to Ground Zero after the smoke cleared. A question and answer session will follow. The book was published in 2013 by Palgrave MacMillian.

The event is free and is open to the public.

GETTING THE ROYAL TREATMENT

Call it the "William and Kate effect" if you like, but there is no denying the influence that the marriage of Prince William and the Duchess of Cambridge has exerted over the diamond-buying public. While the design of diamond jewelry has always been inspired by the Victorian, Edwardian, and Art Deco eras, today's diamond pieces show especially strong designs. Diamond pieces featuring intricate scrollwork and architectural designs of Art Deco jewelry or the floral romance of Victorian-style necklaces, bracelets, and rings abound. At the same time, the royal marriage has sparked a revival in royal forms of jewelry design such as multi-layered rings in intricate patterns and rings with one large stone surrounded by many smaller ones.

While many people seek out Victorian, Edwardian and other vintage designed jewelry at estate sales and auction, the demand for these styles has inspired jewelry designers to incorporate it into present-day pieces. Choose a perfect pair of the finest quality, vintage designed diamond earrings, ring, or pendants at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center or contact us at 617-773-3636.

'Drinking Boston' Topic At Historical Society

Author Stephanie Schorow will explore the long and often surprising history of Boston's taverns, saloons, nightclubs, and pubs in "Drinking Boston," a program at Quincy Historical Society, Thursday, Dec. 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy in Quincy Center.

Based on her recent book, Schorow's presentation will tell the stories of the Colonial taverns that were meeting places for the Revolutionary patriots, the legendary saloons of the late 1800s, the nightspots and restaurants of the great era of Boston nightlife from the 1930s to the '50s, and today's mix of pubs, trendy clubs, and stylish bistros. Her talk also looks at the rise of the temperance movement that resulted in Prohibition and its roots in Boston's reformist tradition.

The result is a story that includes controversy and entertainment, involves Boston politics and culture, and features a cast of colorful characters, some sinister, some endearing. The presentation combines nostalgia and a look at how tradition has shaped the city's current social scene.

Schorow is the author of numerous books on aspects of Boston history, including books on the Cocoanut Grove fire, the Brinks robbery, firefighting in Boston, and Boston's mobsters. A book signing for Drinking Boston will follow her talk.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Butternut/Cauliflower Mac 'n Cheese

If you ask people what their favorite thing to eat, chances are that a lot of them would say Mac N Cheese. There are so many ways to make this entrée, but today's recipe is a low -carb alternative original recipe made by my daughter Rita.

When she comes in for a morning coffee she often brings me a taste of something she has cooked which is always delicious and different.

BUTTERNUT SQUASH/ CAULIFLOWER 'MAC N CHEESE'

Heat oven to 375 and butter an 8 or 9 x 13 baking pan.

1 medium butternut squash, cut in 2 inch pieces and oven roasted with olive oil, salt and pepper until tender.

1 head cauliflower florets, par boiled for five minutes until just tender (still firm) Set aside.

CREAM SAUCE

1 ½ cups milk (slightly warmed)
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1/8- teaspoon nutmeg
1- teaspoon salt
1 cup shredded cheddar, Gouda or fontina cheese
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ cup plain breadcrumbs

Once the squash and cauliflower are cooked, set aside. Heat the butter until just melted, and add the flour, whisking constantly for 2 minutes over low heat.

Whisk in the warm milk, nutmeg and salt until bubbly and slightly thickened

Remove from the heat, and add the squash to the cream sauce, and mash well. Place cauliflower florets in prepared baking pan, cover with the squash and cream sauce. Top with shredded cheese and breadcrumbs and dot with remaining 2 tablespoons butter.

Bake for 40 minutes, or until bubbly and golden brown.

Lemon, Ricotta, Cherry Pie

Somehow pumpkin pie has always been the tradition for Thanksgiving Day, and everyone looks forward to it. But last year in addition to making a pumpkin pie, I made a different kind and it really got raves. And other than the crust itself, it isn't even baked.

In today's recipe, you can either use a graham cracker crust or a regular pie -crust both baked. And you would never know that there are such few ingredients to make this delicious pie.

LEMON, RICOTTA, CHERRY PIE

1 package lemon pudding filling
8 ounces of Ricotta Cheese (cream cheese can also be used)
1 can cherry pie filling

Cook the lemon pudding according to directions. While still hot, add the ricotta or cream cheese and mix well. Pour into either the graham cracker or regular pie -crust (both have been baked) and chill in the refrigerator for 30 minutes.

After it has been chilled, spread the cherry filling over the top, and chill for at least two hours. Cuts easily and can be topped with cream if desired.

A GROUP OF children from an elementary school in Saitama, Japan - all 11 and 12 year olds – recently visited Atria Marina Place in North Quincy. The children were in this country for a week and asked if they could visit the senior living facility to sing and play games with the residents. It was a great experience for the residents and students.

Council OKs Tax Break For Granite Telecommunications

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council Monday night approved a property tax break for Granite Telecommunications, providing the company an incentive to stay in Quincy as it expands.

In a series of votes, the council authorized tax increment financing (TIF) agreements between the city and the two subsidiary limited liability companies that own Granite's two buildings on the Newport Avenue Extension.

The TIF agreements with Atlantic-Newport Realty LLC, the owner of Granite's facility at 100 Newport Ave. Ext., and Fox Rock Granite LLC, the owner of their new facility at 150 Newport Ave. Ext., provides the company with an exemption of 50 percent of the increase valuation of the real estate value of the property for five years beginning in FY15, decreasing to a 40 percent exemption for five years beginning in FY20, and to a 30 percent exemption for five years beginning in FY25.

The exemption means that if the assessed value of the properties increased by $1 million in any of the agreements' first five years, for example, the company would save just over $15,000 in taxes for that year. The building at 150 Newport Ave. Ext. currently has an assessed value of $14.93 million, and the building at 100 Newport Ave. Ext. has an assessed value of $13.88 million. The buildings will be renovated at a total cost of $7 million over the next 15 years. The exemption will not apply to personal property, which includes items such as the company's computers, servers, and other office equipment. Those items will be taxed at the full amount going forward.

Rand Currier, Granite's chief operating officer, told the council his firm sought the agreements because they needed to expand their facilities and other communities and states were offering incentives to relocate from Quincy, but the company wanted to stay put.

"When we decided we needed to expand we needed more real estate. We were courted by Braintree. We were courted by North Carolina, South Carolina, and believe it or not Ireland was offering all kinds of tax incentives," Currier said. "We said we like Quincy. We were founded in Quincy in 2002. We'd really like to expand here."

In exchange for the break on property taxes, Granite agreed to create 70 new full-time employees per year, according to Scott Bosworth, the president of Fort Hill Advisors and a consultant for Granite.

"Granite Telecommunications has been growing so quickly," Bosworth said. "It is estimated that at least 100 new jobs per year will be added, however, in discussions with the city the number of 70 per year was decided upon for the agreement."

The company currently employs nearly 1,200 workers, and about one quarter of all employees are Quincy residents. The TIF says Granite will give preference to Quincy residents going forward, as well as giving preference to Quincy contractors and vendors.

Granite also agreed to pay $10,000 each year of the agreement to the Quincy Parks Conservancy, $5,000 a year to the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association, and $1,500 per year plus a one-time fee of $2,000 to the Economic Target Area (ETA) Consortium. The consortium money, according to Quincy Chamber of Commerce President Dean Rizzo, will be used by Quincy 2000 to market Quincy and several surrounding communities.

The council approved the TIF agreements in a pair of 8-0 votes, with Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest not voting. Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, whose district includes Granite's offices, said he supported the measure because he wanted Granite to continue its expansion in North Quincy.

"I can't speak highly enough about what this company has meant for this community. I've watched their struggle as they've tried to maintain their existence there as they have grown exponentially. I am acutely aware of the options that this company had to leave this city and to take with them 1,200 jobs. I am grateful as the person who represents this area that their growth has occurred in my backyard and continues to occur there," Coughlin said.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee, who said the city needs to be judicious about which companies it offers TIF agreements too, also supported the agreement citing job creation.

"The selling point here is the job creation. That's why I'm going to vote for it," McNamee said.

Average Residential Property Tax Bill To Increase $107

total $4,686 for FY14. That represents a 2.33 percent increase over the property tax bill for FY13 – when the average single-family home was valued at $315,800 – of $4,579.

The average increase of $107 from FY13 to FY14 is slightly less than the $110 increase homeowners faced between FY12 and FY13. When Koch presented his FY14 budget to the council earlier this year, he said he hoped to keep the property tax increase to less than $100. But the total residential valuation in the city increased – from $8.65 billion in FY13 to $8.73 billion in FY14 – while the total commercial valuation decreased – from $1.97 billion in FY to $1.98 billion in FY14.

"The estimate in June was $98. All things being equal we would have hit that number but values for the residential took up more of the share," mayoral spokesman Chris Walker said Tuesday.

In addition to setting an increased residential rate, the council also approved a new rate of $31.23 per $1,000 valuation on commercial, industrial, and personal property, up from $30.61 in FY13. The city uses a 175 percent classification, which is designed to shift the property tax burden away from homeowners. Without that classification, the residential rate would be at $17.84 and the total tax levy for residential property tax owners would be $155.83 million. With the 175 percent classification, the total residential tax levy is $129.77 million, a reduction of $26.06 million.

The total property tax levy in the city for FY14 will be $190.57 million, up from $185.78 million in FY13. Under the Proposition 2 ½, the city could have raised the total FY14 levy to $211.38 million, which would cost property owners hundreds of dollars in additional taxes.

"If we were to go to the maximum tax rate that we could apply up to these limits, I believe it would be an increase of $625 on the average single-family home," Peter Moran, chairman of Quincy's Board of Assessors, told the council. "We don't want to go there."

According to Walker, Quincy's FY14 excess levy capacity of $20.8 million is the third largest in the state behind only Cambridge and Middleborough.

Moran, who presented the tax plan to the council, also noted that the total valuation of property in Quincy has continued to increase after several years of decline. The total valuation had declined each year from $11.95 billion in FY07 to $10.61 billion in FY12, before increasing to $10.62 billion in FY13 and $10.68 billion for FY14.

"I'm happy to report the city has increased in value – it's always a good thing to hear," Moran said. "We turned the corner from 2012 and '13 and '14 are looking better. Hopefully this trend will continue within the city."

The council held a public hearing before voting on the tax rates, but no residents chose to speak.

Before taking a vote on the tax rate, the council also approved a number of appropriations from the city's state-certified FY14 free cash total of $6.38 million. Some $1.23 million was allocated from free cash to clear out deficits in the snow and ice removal account, the city's stabilization fund and other post-employment benefits (OPEB) funds each received $1.02 million from free cash, and the city's inclement weather fund received $509,000.

The council also approved reductions in various line items in the FY14 budget totaling $273,000. The mayor requested the appropriation to help keep the increase in property taxes down.

Like the vote on the tax rates, the council approved all those items unanimously.

Here's a list of some local organizations, what they need, and how the public can get involved and help out neighbors in need.

Quincy Crisis Center
282 Billings Rd.
(617) 847-6967

Each year the Quincy Crisis Center, a part of the Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion, provides holiday meals for Quincy residents in need, and this year is no different with the need for food assistance and help continuing to grow.

"The overall numbers for help this Christmas year has gone up," said Executive Director Rev. David Wooster.

"We've seen an increase in need primarily in food assistance because of the change in SNAP (Food Stamps) we have people calling saying they can't afford buying food. Even the number of turkeys we received from The Boston Food Bank was down this year. Turkey has been in short supply and we've been struggling to get enough. We provide the same food assistance we do for Thanksgiving for Christmas and we try to take requests up to the last minute."

This year for Thanksgiving QCC provided over 250 families dinner and Wooster said they expect to serve that many, if not more, for Christmas as well. QCC also provides gifts to children 16 and under.

"It's not unusual for us to serve around 150 to 200 family households with gifts," said Wooster. "We've fallen in that range the last few years. We have received more requests this time of year than we have in past years, but I think that has to do with the late Thanksgiving this year. The short time frame between Thanksgiving and Christmas is affecting everybody and us. We are trying to do five weeks of work in four weeks which makes for an extra challenge because it impacts people's ability to give time and volunteer."

QCC is in need of volunteers this month, which they rely on to deliver meals, cook food, assist with the pantry, among other tasks.

The center is also in need of monetary donations, food, and holiday gifts.

Donations of food and household items can be dropped off during business hours at 282 Billing Rd. For more information, and a link to make monetary contributions, visit www.sangercenter.org. They can also be reached at (617) 847-6967.

Salvation Army
6 Baxter St.
(617) 472-2345

This year Quincy's Salvation Army is adding food baskets to their long list of holiday assistance programs.

"We will be giving out around 150 food baskets this year," said Lt. Tim Ross. "We've found that people prefer to have the entire meal itself and this allows for a better use of resources."

Last year the organization gave out 435 food vouchers and Ross said they expect to exceed that this year.

"Our food pantry is up 16 percent this year over last years numbers," said Ross. "We can always use food donations especially with Food Stamps changing this year."

Applications for assistance began coming in early in November and Ross said that even if someone comes in on Christmas Eve asking for assistance they would not be turned away.

"As long as we are getting applications we will help, we won't turn anyone away," said Ross. "If the need is there we will provide what we can. We will put people on the list if they need the help."

Last year, the Quincy Salvation Army's Christmas assistance program served 1,229 people and they visited 949 individuals in nursing homes during the Christmas season.

"Those numbers are in addition to everyday emergency assistance that goes throughout the year such as the food pantry, utility assistance and rental assistance. We expect we will meet those numbers if not exceed them this year," said Ross. "We are still accepting applications and I foresee the need being the same as last year, if not more."

The Salvation Army's largest fundraiser, the Red Kettle fundraiser, is off to a slow start due to the late Thanksgiving this year. Ross said he is hopeful they will meet their fundraising goal of $150,000 but the late holiday has made for some challenges.

"I am optimistic we will meet our goal," Ross said. "Whatever people can do to help us we would appreciate."

Funds from the Red Kettle fundraiser help to provide assistance not only during the holidays but year round.

The Salvation Army is also in need of new toys, hats, gloves, scarves, volunteers and food, along with monetary donations.

Those looking to donate or volunteer can visit the Salvation Army website or Quincy Headquarters at 6 Baxter St. from 9 a.m to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday or call for more information (617) 472-2345.

Quincy Community Action Program (QCAP)
(617) 479-8181

Like many other Quincy charities Quincy Community Action Program (QCAP) is finding that the number of families in need of food assistance has grown since last years holiday season.

"As of Nov. 1st we have seen a reduction in food stamp assistance from the federal government. For a family of four there has been around a $40 reduction in the food stamps," said QCAP Director of Development and Marketing Susan Harrington. "Having a reduction in food stamp assistance has put a lot of pressure on food banks to fill that gap."

Harrington said QCAP has also seen a record number of homeless families this year, which the organization helps place in hotels.

"We have seen a record number of homeless families. It's a big increase," said Harrington. "Last year, we helped 84 households into hotels in Braintree and Weymouth, this year we are already up to 114 households in Weymouth, Braintree and Norwell. Seventy percent of our clients are working and earning wages but bringing home an average family income of $18,971 with little or no benefits, the cost of living is very high."

QCAP also offers food assistance to households in need during the holiday season. This year they anticipate serving 1,200 households during Thanksgiving and Christmas. They served 600 unduplicated households this Thanksgiving and anticipate to serve that many for Christmas.

Another area of need for QCAP is their Fuel Assistance Program and with federal fuel assistance benefits 15 percent lower this year, as a result of federal budget pressure, they are finding an increased need for help.

"It's always a challenge to fill that gap each year," said Harrington. "We live in New England the winters are always cold but the assistance from the federal government is just not enough."

QCAP also offers an Adopt a Family program each holiday season where they expect to serve around 350 children each year.

"We are always looking for folks to adopt kids," said Harrington. "The program is for children ages birth to 14 years old. Each year some children don't get adopted so we are always looking for toy donations. Businesses and individuals can adopt."

QCAP is the leading private non-profit organization in the Greater Quincy area dedicated to reducing poverty and helping low-income people achieve self-sufficiency.

To volunteer at the food center, donate toys, adopt a family, or donate food contact the Emergency Food Center at (617) 471-0796.

QCAP has three locations in Quincy; 1509 Hancock St., (617) 479-8181; 1 Copeland St., (617) 471-0796 and 9 Bicknell St., (617) 773-1222.

"We'd worked together and we'd be on the field talking to the coaches and usually he'd get the other team's lineups and he'd get the lineup for them. He'd get the names of the officials and he'd give those to me. Sometimes during the game maybe I got something that he didn't have or vice versa and so we traded information.

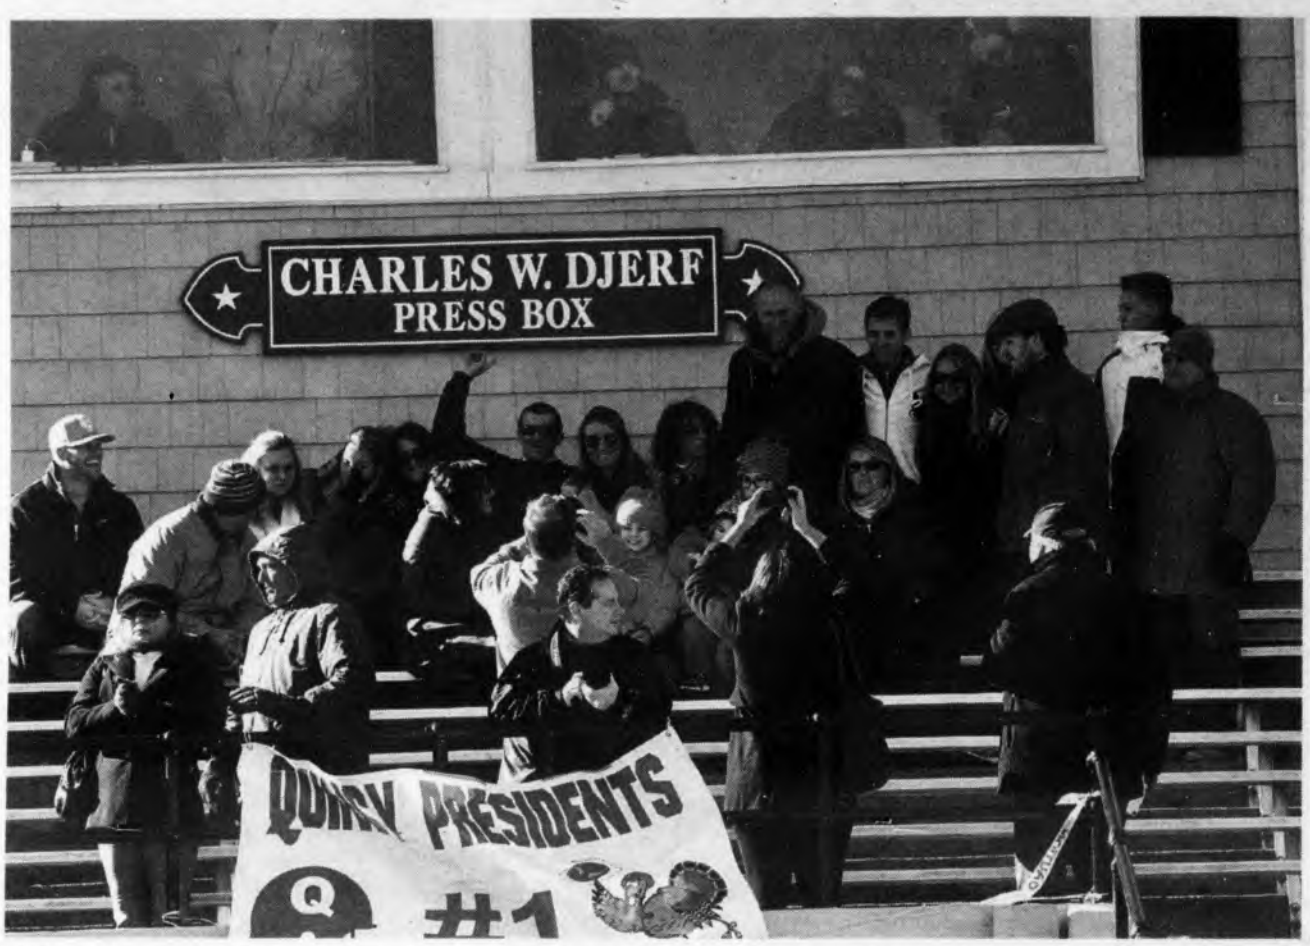

"Charlie was a wonderful man and I am so glad they are naming the press box for him." Ross added.

John Fagerlund also recalled special memories of Charlie and his family. Charlie was the son of Dr. Charles Djerf, the prominent Quincy pediatrician and longtime member of the Quincy School Committee, and Margaret (Richards) Djerf.

The Fagerlunds and Djerfs were longtime neighbors in West Quincy.

John's father, the late Elmer "Mike" Fagerlund, and Charlie were good friends and best golf partners, hitting the links at least once a month.

The Fagerlunds and Djerfs also got together on Wednesday nights for a spaghetti dinner at the Djerfs. Hosting a pasta dinner was a tradition for the Djerf family.

IMMEDIATE FAMILY MEMBERS of the late Charles W. Djerf gather under the sign dedicating the press box at Veterans' Memorial Stadium to Mr. Djerf who was the public address announcer at the stadium for 47 years. Mr. Djerf, who was also a beloved Quincy school teacher, passed away in September at the age of 79. The unveiling of the Djerf Press Box sign took place at halftime of the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

"My mother sometimes couldn't figure out where my father had gone but he had walked down the street to have pasta with 30 of the Djerf clan," John said, smiling and gazing up at the press box at Veterans' Memorial Stadium before kickoff last Thursday.

"Sitting in the backyard you could hear Charlie's voice calling the game from the press box and you would know exactly who was up in the booth broadcasting the games because of his distinctive voice.

"Charlie was a great friend, a great family man. Just a great person to have been able to know."

Charlie Djerf was also known for having a dry wit and a smile always on his face.

"He had the most dry sense of humor of anybody I have ever met," John said. "Charlie, despite of his illness, was always able to smile and make you laugh in a very, very dry way. No matter when you were with him, something humorous always came out of his mouth."

Charlie Djerf was also a loving husband, father, uncle and grandfather.

At his funeral Mass at Saint John the Baptist Church, his oldest granddaughter - Erin Djerf – spoke eloquently as she eulogized her grandpa.

"Grandpa taught us how to live. He was a man of action. His deeds taught us to be fair, kind, good, dedicated, disciplined, compassionate, and with his outlandish humor, never to take ourselves too seriously," Erin said.

"He taught us how to live with courage and strength. Not to dwell on what could have been or what should have been. Or what small injustice had happened to you that week.

"Because everything else paled in comparison to the hand he was dealt. Grandpa never complained, and he never bemoaned his lot. He always put his best foot forward, and taught us to do the same."

Charlie Djerf's legacy will forever live at Veterans' Memorial Stadium and the Press Box that bears his name.

He became an institution throughout this city for so much more than his announcing during football games.

Charles W. Djerf personified a life of love and good deeds. His courage and determination in the face of adversity spoke volumes about who he was and what we should all strive to be.

He's sorely missed but he'll never be forgotten.

YMCA Opening Pushed Back To Dec. 23

The new Quincy YMCA facility, which had been scheduled to open on Monday, is now expected to open on Dec. 23, according to South Shore YMCA President Paul Gorman.

Gorman made the announcement in an email to YMCA members on Nov. 27. In the email, he cited delays in getting power to the new facility as the reason the open has been pushed back again.

"Although permanent power has been officially connected in the new facility, the delay in establishing power has disrupted the project's previously projected timeline. As a result, we have been notified by our construction management team that we will not meet the projected December 2nd open date. We have been advised the facility will be open and ready for use on Dec. 23rd," Gorman said.

Aquarium Caring For Stranded Loggerhead Turtle

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

A nearly 200-pound loggerhead sea turtle is being cared for at the New England Aquarium Animal Care Center in Quincy after being rescued from Crosby Beach in Brewster two weekends ago.

The 170-pound near adult female sea turtle was just recently moved to a larger tank in the facility after being rewarmed slowly by aquarium staff. Aquarium veterinarians and volunteers worked to re-warm the sea turtle, conduct tests, and remove barnacles that she was caked in after hunkering down low in the water column trying to avoid the frigid temperature. The female loggerhead also received her first meal of herring last Wednesday. She is expected to grow to be around 250 pounds when she is healthy.

She is the second largest sea turtle ever rescued during the annual November/December cold stunning season on Cape Cod. Only a 225-pound turtle named Tiny rescued about a decade ago was bigger.

Although she is large she is still very underweight and veterinarians believe that she probably has been debilitated since the summer with an underlying medical condition that has yet to be diagnosed and kept her from migrating south.

The stranding season this year on Cape Cod has gotten off to a fast start for the aquarium which has brought in nearly 70 hypothermic sea turtles so far, with 18 of those turtles already rewarmed and shipped out to other rehab facilities making room for more. The recent cold weather resulted in a higher percentage of small, stranded sea turtles and with last Wednesday's storm and the strong southeast winds some sea turtles might begin to wash up on the South Shore versus the Outer Cape.

A VOLUNTEER AT THE New England Aquarium Animal Care Center in Quincy works to remove barnacles off of the nearly 200 pound loggerhead sea turtle that was recently brought into the facility. The female loggerhead was caked in barnacles and mud after hunkering down low in the water column trying to avoid the frigid temperature.

The loggerhead turtle has yet to be named and will most likely be in rehab for four months.

The aquarium asks any beach walkers to keep their eyes peeled for unusual objects in debris at the high tide lines and if a turtle is found call Mass Audubon at Wellfleet Bay at (508) 349-2615.

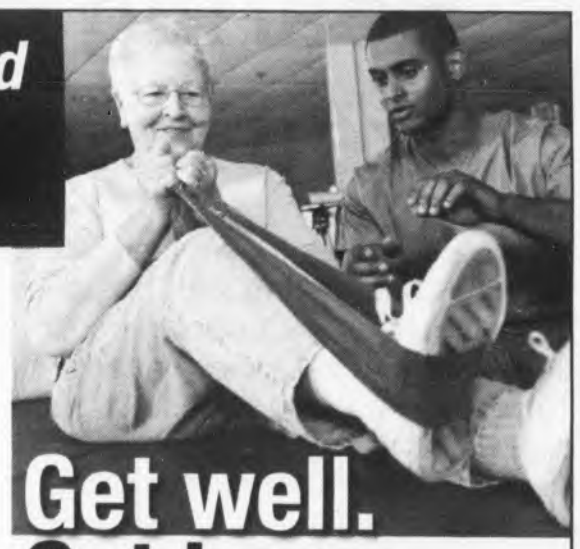

AQUARIUM STAFF AND VOLUNTEERS, at right, lift the 170-pound loggerhead sea turtle and allow her to enter a larger tank after they re-warmed her and performed tests for the first few days she was at the facility.

VOLUNTEERS AND VETERINARIANS from Quincy's New England Aquarium Animal Care Center on South St. lift a 170-pound loggerhead sea turtle to transport it into a large tank in the facility. The turtle, a near adult female, arrived at the facility a few days ago and was in a smaller tank to re-warm her. She could grow to be over 250 pounds once healthy.

City Council Commends Quincy Youth Football

Eight Individuals Recognized For League's Contributions To Community Since 1950

By SCOTT JACKSON

A standing room only crowd was on hand when the City Council recently presented commendations to eight individuals associated with the Quincy Youth Football League in recognition of the league's contributions to the community since it was founded in 1950.

Receiving the commendations were:

Michael Killilea, the current coach of the Storm. Killilea began as a volunteer for the team in 2003 when the team was known as the Squantum Sailors. He worked as a freshman coach in 2004 and 2005, then as JV coach and varsity defensive coordinator/assistant head coach from 2006 until 2011, when he became the team's head coach.

Robert Noble, Jr. Noble coached the West Quincy Elks from 1974 to 1986, spending the last ten seasons as head coach. He went on to coach Quincy High's football team for 21 seasons, including nine years as head coach from 1999 until 2007. During those nine seasons the Presidents were 9-0 on Thanksgiving against North Quincy High.

Tom Carter. Carter coached the North Quincy Apaches for 15 seasons, and was the team's head coach from 1973 to 1986 after working as the team's offensive line coach in 1971 and 1972. He currently serves on the staff for North Quincy High.

Frank Brillo. Brillo played for the Quincy Point Panthers in 1958 and 1959, then served as an assistant with the team from 1961 until 1965, when he enlisted in the U.S. Army. Brillo returned to the sidelines in 1969, serving as an assistant with the Panthers until 1974. He then served as the team's head coach from 1975 to 1997. During his time with the Panthers, the team won 19 league titles. He also served several years as the league's president.

Dan Morrell. Morrell played with the Houghs Neck Manets for two seasons, then went on to coach them for 12 years during the 1980s and early 1990s. Morrell also served as QYFL president for four years.

Tom Ford. Ford played on the Panthers in 1969 and 1970. He returned to the league as the commissioner, a position he held from 1988 to 1990. Ford then coached the Panthers from 1991 to 1996, and was the team's franchise holder from 1997 until 2007. From 2005 until 2007 he served as co-chairman of the QYFL's board of directors in the absence of a league president. Ford's wife Jane also volunteered for the league as secretary and then treasurer, and his brother John also coached the Panthers.

Steve Koski, the current franchise holder for the Apaches. He began his affiliation with the team in 1988 as the JV coach and defensive coordinator. In 1990 he became head coach, a position he held until 2004. He has been the franchise holder since 2000. He co-chaired the league's board of directors from 2005 until 2007, was league president from 2007 to 2010, and has served as league secretary since then.

Paul "Doc" Doherty, the president of the Quincy Youth Football League.

Councillor Doug Gutro presented the eight commendations. Gutro, whose two sons play for the Apaches, said the Quincy's many youth sports leagues provide an invaluable service to the community.

"I've had a real treat to get to know both the terrific work of Barry Welch and Michelle Hanly and the Quincy Recreation Department and all they offer the kids of Quincy, and also the youth sports programs, which are amazing in terms of the people and the people and the volunteer hours they put in to make the lives of our kids and the skills of our youth all the better," Gutro said.

"The experience, frankly as a Quincy resident is something that I cherish and I know that many folks cherish as well. It's extraordinary."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, who played in the league growing up, said QYFL helps its players mature and develop into leaders.

"I tend to go to the Point Panthers' games for no other reason than I like sports and it's a local team. I think with the perspective, and this is going to sound like I'm getting old, but the new found perspective I'm seeing here is it's more than just football," Croall said.

"Having spent a season watching these kids last year, I see them grow and mature. Watching them come back this year – it's sort of a bit different, they come back in leadership roles. They're motivating their peers. They're go to people. And ultimately they're executing on the field to do what we do when we play sports, which is win."

Dec. 31 Last Day To Submit Nominations

Nominations Coming In For Henry Bosworth Award

Nominations are coming in for the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award presented by The Quincy Sun.

The award – formerly known as the Sun Citizen of the Year – was renamed in 2010 in memory of Mr. Bosworth, The Quincy Sun's founder and longtime publisher.

Last year, Paul F. Moody, Sr., commander of the Sons of the American Legion, Morrisette Legion Post 294 and coordinator of Flags for Veterans Island, was honored for longtime volunteer service and support of veterans, youth and others in need.

Moody, a lifelong Quincy resident, was selected for the award by a judging panel from among 19 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

He is the third recipient of the Bosworth Award and the 30th individual overall to be recognized by The Quincy Sun for outstanding community service.

The others are Ruth Elizabeth (Betty) DeCristofaro, a lifelong Quincy Point resident and community volunteer; and former Quincy City Clerk and current Norfolk County Commissioner John M. Gillis whose public service has spanned more than 50 years.

The other 27 individuals were honored when the award was known as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's Quincy Sun.

Nominations will close Tuesday, Dec. 31. After nominations close, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2013 Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Bosworth Award
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the their nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January or February.

QCAP's Best Chefs Challenge Raises $110,000

Chef David Todisco Takes Home Dual Titles

The heat was on at Quincy Community Action Programs' Best Chef Challenge, held recently at Granite Links Golf Club in Quincy.

The contenders: some of the South Shore's most talented chefs including Chef Robert Caparella of La Scala Restaurant in Randolph; Chef Joel Hathaway of the Neighborhood Club of Quincy; Chef David Todisco of the Tavern at Quarry Hills/Granite Links in Quincy; Chef Paul Wahlberg of Alma Nove and Wahlburgers in Hingham; and Quincy School Committee member Barbara Isola, host of QATV's "Into the Frying Pan."

Emceed by television personality Jenny Johnson, the event raised $110,000 in funds to benefit the organization, which serves low-income residents.

"The event surpassed our expectations," said Beth Ann Strollo, QCAP's Executive Director. "The chefs and their restaurants not only put on an amazing show but they also generously donated their time and culinary creations for our guests. We could not be more grateful to them, our judges' panel, our emcee Jenny Johnson, and all of our sponsors and donors who helped us reach our goal."

In front of an audience of 350 guests, the chefs squared off in a battle that tested their creativity and speed. The challenge was to use typical ingredients distributed at QCAP's Emergency Food Center, the organization's food pantry. This year's menu included pork, broccoli, canned corn, yogurt, and rice. The ingredients were kept secret until they were unveiled at the event in front of the chefs, who had 40 minutes, and the use of a Mobile Pantry, to complete their dishes.

With time expired, and hands raised away from their portable cooking stations, Chef David Todisco was named QCAP's 2013 Best Chef by the panel of judges: Maria Ferri Allen, editor, South Shore Living; Chazy Dowaliby, editor, Patriot Ledger; and Katherine A. Hesse of Murphy, Hesse, Toomey & Lehane.

The chefs were paired with a celebrity chef, who helped to rush ingredients for their chefs from the Mobile Pantry.

Donning the celebrity chef aprons were Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch and Emily A. Lebo for Ms. Isola; Paul F. Connors, Jr., Norfolk County Retirement Board for Chef Caparella; Patrick McDermott, Norfolk County Register of Probate/Clerk Magistrate for Chef Hathaway; Quincy City Council President Michael E. McFarland for Chef Todisco; and longtime Quincy community activist Archie Wahlberg for his nephew Chef Wahlberg.

The chefs were also allowed the use of a sous chef of their choosing at their cooking stations. Chef Martin McGovern, General Manager of Neighborhood Club, took on a supporting role as sous chef to his Executive Chef Joel Hathaway; Chef David Todisco was joined by Joe Jean; Matthew Burrows was the sous chef for Chef Paul Wahlberg; and Ms. Isola chose Xristos Vardakostas, a senior at Quincy High School, a member of the Future Chefs Program, the school's Culinary Arts Program.

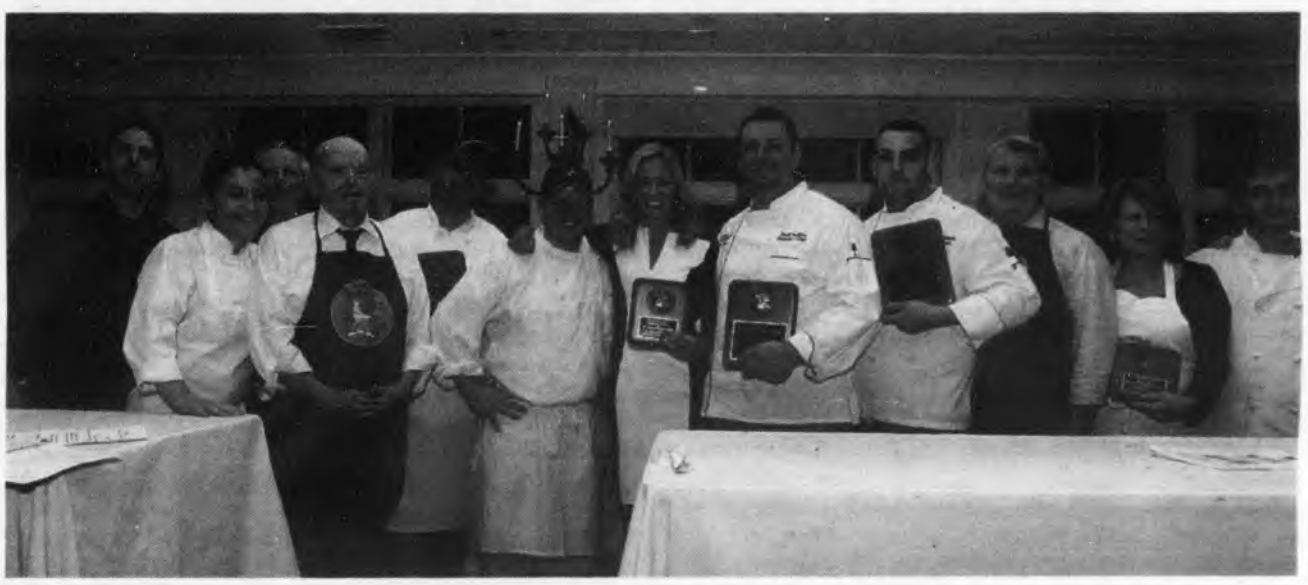

The guests weighed in on their own favorite chefs as part of the "People's Choice" competition, which featured serving stations around the Granite Links ballroom with dishes that reflected the flavors and styles of the chefs' respective restaurants. With his braised beef dish, Chef Todisco came away victorious as the night's People's Choice winner. Chef Hathaway prepared savory lamb chops; Chef Caparella stuffed eggplant; and Chef Wahlberg lobster bisque shooters.

The night also featured raffles and live and silent auctions, including accommodations in Aruba, backstage passes to KISS 108 with a meet-and-greet with Billy Costa, a Foxwoods/MGM destination package, New England Patriots Putnam Club tickets, a suite to a Boston Celtics game with food and beverages included, and a tour of the U.S. Capitol hosted by US Congressman Stephen F. Lynch.

Event proceeds will benefit QCAP programs, which serves 18,000 unduplicated people annually in Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, Milton, Hull, and surrounding Norfolk County, South Shore, and Metro Boston communities. In addition to the Emergency Food Center, services include adult education and workforce development, financial literacy education, Head Start, early education and care, family engagement activities, affordable housing, homelessness prevention, mortgage foreclosure counseling, and housing services.

Major sponsors included Bank of Canton, State Street, Stop & Shop, the Law Office of George Burke, Eastern Bank, EnTrust Capital, Fallon Community Health Plan, The Moseley Family, Murphy, Hesse, Toomey & Lehane, Mutual of America, Woodard & Curran, Loomis, Sayles & Company, Quincy Mutual, and Rockland Trust, among others.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Wednesday, November 20, 2013, at approximately 2:00 p.m., Officer Steve DesRoche of the Anti-Crime Unit was in plain clothes working in the Quincy Square area when he observed a male lying down on the steps next to the library lawn. The Officer monitored this male and saw him rise up to a sitting position and then take a sip of a beverage from what appeared to be a clear water bottle. The male then threw the water bottle into a bush rather than get up and discard it in to one of several trash containers just feet away.

At this time Officer DesRoche, not wanting to reveal his identity, contacted Officer Greg Hartnett, who was on a Police bicycle and riding by at the time. He asked Officer Hartnett to speak to the male and advise him of the proper disposal of trash, which is a quality of life issue. Officer Hartnett approached the male and asked for his identification, explaining his reason for the interaction. The Officer noted that the male appeared to be a intoxicated as his speech was slurred and an odor of alcoholic beverage emanated from the suspect's breath.

While Officer Hartnett spoke to the male, Officer DesRoche stayed in the area and noticed that the male kept going into a small black bag trying to retrieve something. Officer Hartnett motioned for Officer DesRoche to come over.

Upon questioning, the male confirmed that he was drinking Vodka from the bottle. Officer DesRoche looked inside the male's back pack, which was wide open on the ground. There were several items still packaged which appeared to be taken from a store recently. These items were in their plastic containers and were identified by the sales sticker as belonging to Stop & Shop, but they were not in the store's bags. Officer DesRoche advised the male of his Miranda rights (right to remain silent . . .) which he stated that he understood. The Officer asked him if he was inside the Stop & Shop on Southern Artery any time today. The male responded, "Yes, around 11:00 a.m. this morning." When asked for a sales receipt, the male said he didn't have one and then confessed, "I took the stuff." The Officers then informed the male that he was under arrest. The male, a 57 year old Braintree resident, was charged with, "Shoplifting: subsequent offense (MGL Ch.266 sec.30) and Possession of Open Container of Alcohol."

LT. DAN MINTON

A check of the male's criminal record showed that the male had been convicted on five previous shoplifting charges. It was determined that the suspect shoplifted a total of $86.17 in merchandise from the store. Nice Work!

RECENT EMAIL SCAM: This is an email going around across the country, which attempts to scare the recipient into making a payment. It is so outrageously unbelievable, but scammers create these scams because they are profitable. Here is the text of the email exactly as it reads:

"I am a Murder Agent am from Texas I've no other job than to kill to survive. You have been betrayed by some one very very close to you. He payed me to kill you. I don't know what you did to him and i don't care to know .But the person wants you dead and right now your life is in my hands. you have just few days left to live after that me and my men shall come for your life..my men are surrounding your house right now watching you and if you do anything stupid you shall receive a gun shot from us. but I can help you if you will pay me double of what he payed me..and i can also tell you who ordered us to kill you.but that will be after you have payed to save your life. Your life is in your hands now. BE WARNED: DO NOT TELL ANYBODY THIS.....Murderer

Even if it was real, think about it. If you "payed" double to save your life, once you paid, the "murder agent" would kill you to collect from the person who hired him initially. Again, this is a scam. It's an attempt to scare you. If you ever worry about your life being in danger, call the Police!

Safer Holiday Lighting

Q: Please remind your readers that when hanging up holiday lights outside, to be careful when setting up and working on ladders. They need to be aware of potential overhead hazards like power lines and make sure not to make contact with them. -- An Electrician in San Jose, Calif.

A: That's an important point to remember, and thank you for sending it. Setting up outdoor lights and displays can be hard work, and it's easy to forget a few basic safety steps while hurrying to get strings connected and secured in place. Here are some things to remember:

• Always check overhead before setting up ladders, using poles or other equipment, and make sure power lines, tree branches and other hazards are not in your path.

• When planning outdoor displays, include the layout of extension cords and other electrical equipment in your design, so they are placed away from frequently traveled paths.

• Use covered GFI (ground fault interrupter) outlets to reduce the risk of fire and shock, and be sure to not overload circuits.

• Check all the light strings you plan to use, and make sure they're rated for outdoor use, are not frayed and have no burnt bulbs.

• Don't work alone: Have a helper to brace the ladder, help unravel light strings and so on.

• If you plan to place decorations on the rooftop, make sure you secure yourself with a safety harness and rope.

HOME TIP: Consider replacing traditional Christmas lights with LED lights. They cost more, but last longer and save a lot of energy.

Quincy Planners Recognized At Regional Conference

Nancy Callanan Presented Lifetime Achievement Award

Quincy's Housing Principal Planner, Nancy Callanan, was presented with the Paul Poulos Lifetime Achievement Award at the National Community Development Association's (NCDA's) New England Regional Fall Conference, recently held in Bridgeport, CT.

The award was established by NCDA Region I - New England, in honor of Paul Poulos, the late Executive Director of the Fall River Community Development Agency and former national President of NCDA.

The award is given annually to an individual in recognition of their long-term achievements and contributions in housing and community development.

The nominating committee, which is comprised of former Poulos Award recipients, selected Callanan unanimously in just one round of voting.

Callanan has been a practitioner in the field of housing and community development for over twenty-six years, spending most of that time working as a landlord counselor and housing program director at Quincy Community Action Programs, and as HOME Program Manager and Community Development Director for the City of Quincy.

During her six-year tenure as Community Development Director, over 61,000 persons were assisted through community development programs; dozens of private sector jobs were created or retained; and well over 100 units of new affordable housing were created; over 70 households received assistance in purchasing their first home; 129 rental units were constructed or rehabilitated; and over 400 income-eligible homeowners received rehabilitation assistance.

During this same period, Quincy received over $40 Million in funding for the programs she managed.

Quincy's current Community Development Director, Sean Glennon, was also recognized at the conference for his service as Chair of NCDA Region I over the past year.

Glennon, who organized the conference and served as master of ceremonies, will now serve an additional one year term on the organization's executive committee as Immediate Past Chair. He also serves as Chair of the organization's national Technology Committee, and sits on both the regional and national boards of directors of NCDA.

The mission of NCDA is to assist local governments to achieve high-quality, locally responsive programs for making communities better places to live and work, particularly for low and moderate income people.

Interfaith Social Services
105 Adams St.
(617) 773-6203

Each year Interfaith Social Services helps to bring gifts to over 400 children during the holiday season and this years numbers are no different with nearly 500 children expected to need Help for the Holidays sponsors.

"This time of year what we see happen is that because we are coming into the cold months people have to pay for heat which takes a lot out of their paychecks leaving them needing help when it comes to providing presents for their children," said Executive Director Rick Doane.

"We've reduced the Help for the Holiday age from 0-14 to 0-12 because we found in previous years that we had nothing to really give those older kids. We receive a lot of board game donations but those aren't usually on a child's wish list. We are asking that people donate toys that kids really want, toys that are popular and fun right now."

The charity is always in need of volunteers, but Doane said they are really looking for long-term volunteers this year to help fill weekly assignments. Volunteers perform many important tasks for the organization, from serving at the front desk, answering phones, helping clients, and running the thrift shop.

Interfaith Social Services also offers a counseling center for those looking for help during the holiday season.

"The holiday's are a very emotional time for people," said Doane. "For people looking for help, or people who have a difficult time during the holiday season our counseling center offers a sliding fee scale based on income."

Father Bill's and MainSpring
38 Broad St.

(1-855-435-7326)

With the winter weather beginning to roll in Father Bill's and MainSpring in Quincy is seeing over 130 people per night seeking shelter.

"We're already in overflow," said President and CEO John Yazwinski. "We have 95 permanent beds but even in overflow no one is turned away. We have men and women sleeping on the floor but everybody gets indoors."

Yazwinski said that this past year and especially the last couple of months the shelter has seen an influx of women coming in.

"We have talked with other local shelters and they have also seen an increase in women in need," said Yazwinski. "It has us concerned. It seems to be a trend in our shelter and in other communities this year."

Yazwinski added that they have also seen an increase in veterans and young adults along with those who have recently lost their jobs and are in need of temporary help.

With the need and number of guests at the shelter continuing to grow the shelter is asking for donations of toiletry items such as toothbrushes, soap, shampoo, razors, towels and other items. For the holiday season the shelter is in need of gift cards that would allow guests to purchase basic necessities for themselves.

"We like to give our guests gift cards to Walmart, CVS, Stop and Shop and other local stores to allow them to go out on their own and buy necessities," said Yazwinski. "We also need, especially with the cold season coming, new hats, gloves, scarf's, sweatshirts, sweatpants, and gloves."

Father Bill's is also looking for donations of board games, dolls, truck, and other in-kind toys for the over 90 families the shelter is housing.

For more information on Father Bill's and MainSpring, including a full wish list and donation information is available online at helpfbms.org. They can also be contacted toll free at 1-855-HELPFBM (1-855-435-7326) or in person at their 38 Broad St. office.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Careful, Lamb. Don't let your generous nature lead to some serious overspending as you contemplate your holiday gift-giving. Your social life kicks off into high gear by week's end.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A positive attitude helps you weather annoying but unavoidable changes in holiday plans. Aspects favor new friendships and reinforcement of existing relationships.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Demands on your energy level could be much higher than usual as you prepare for the upcoming holidays. Be sure to pace yourself. Friends and family will be happy to help.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't allow a suddenly icy reaction from a friend or family member to continue without learning what caused it -- and what can be done to restore that once warm and caring relationship.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) A relationship seems to be unraveling, mostly from a lack of attention. It might be a good idea to ease up on whatever else you're doing so you can spend more time working to mend it.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) New facts emerge that not only help explain the recent rift with a trusted colleague, but also might provide a chance to wipe the slate clean and make a fresh start in your friendship.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family member's personal situation is, fortunately, resolved in time for you to get back into your hectic round of holiday preparations. An old friend might bring a new friend into your life.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Pace yourself in meeting holiday pressures and workplace demands to avoid winding up with a frayed temper and a Scorpian stinger that lashes out at puzzled kith, kin and colleagues.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A financial matter requires close attention. Also, news from a trusted source provides the means to help sort out a long-standing state of confusion and put it into perspective.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a good time to reinforce family ties. Make it a priority to assess and resolve all outstanding problems. Start the upcoming holiday season with a full measure of love.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't be pressured into a so-called solid-gold investment. Wait until the holiday distractions are over. Then take a harder look at it. You might find that the "gold" is starting to flake off.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A former friend might be trying to heal the breach between you by using a mutual friend as an intermediary. Best advice: Keep an open mind despite any lingering bad feelings.
BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of saying the right thing at the right time. Your friendships are deep and lasting.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Quincy Blanks North Quincy 14-0 In 81st Meeting

By BILL GRIFFIN

For the second straight season, for the 12th Thanksgiving out of the last 15, the sights and sounds of victory in the far end zone of Veterans Stadium belonged to the team in the blue jerseys. There was the trophy, there were songs of celebration and there were pictures taken with happy family, teammates and friends.

This year, Quincy won the big game because the Presidents made the big plays.

Quincy's offensive line opened up wide lanes for two long scoring drives and the defense gave nothing when it mattered as the Presidents stopped North Quincy, 14-0 in the 81st renewal of their city rivalry before an estimated crowd of over 4,000 on a cold, wind-swept Thanksgiving morning.

Sophomore Jahvae Handsome-Fields (75 yards, 10 carries) and senior Alex Alexandre (65 yards, 14 carries) scored for the Presidents. Antoine Allen capped a brilliant varsity career with 75 yards on 20 carries for the Red Raiders. Quincy finishes at 7-4 for the second consecutive year, the Presidents' first back-to-back winning seasons in 10 years, and leads the overall series, 45-31-5. North finishes at 3-8.

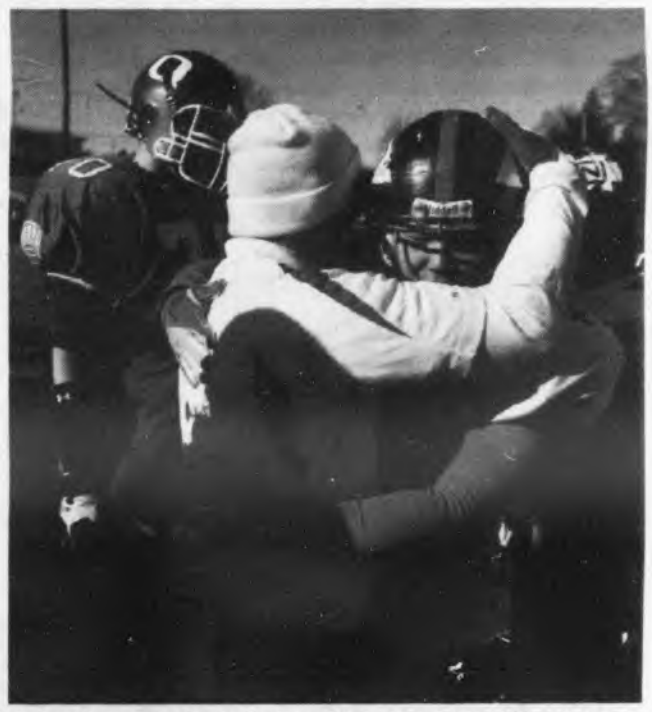

"I thought we did step up and make the big plays," said Quincy coach Bill Reardon. "We made them on defense when we needed them, especially on North's first drive of the game. That set the tone for the game."

The Quincy Sun's 'Bright Stars' Of THE GAME

Selections By The Quincy Sun's Bill Griffin - Quincy Sun Photos By Robert Bosworth

Quincy Offensive Player Of The Game

JAHVAE HANDSOME-FIELDS (#7) – This one could have gone to the entire offensive line or Alex Alexandre, but Handsome-Fields is a difference-maker. He has that burst, that acceleration that can't be taught. He used it on five straight carries for 37 yards which changed the flow of the entire game after North had ruled the first period. It started Quincy on a 68-yard scoring drive and a lead the Presidents would not relinquish. The city has been blessed with two great backs in Jalen Green and Antoine Allen the past two years. Handsome-Fields, only a sophomore, could be as good as both of them.

North Quincy Offensive Player Of The Game

ANTOINE ALLEN (#5) – He pounded out 75 yards against one of the best run defenses in the Patriot League. It was a defense designed almost entirely to stop him, yet his running produced three scoring threats for his team inside the Quincy 20. He took snaps and ran out of the wildcat. He handled the ball like a seasoned quarterback. His yards were tough yards, earned well between the tackles, but three times he was a shoestring tackle away from breaking a long run. He had 1,581 yards for the season. When he was on the field, the threat to score was always there. He worried Quincy from start to finish. He was a special back.

Quincy Defensive Player Of The Game

ARAMANI CARDOSO (#23) – It was not a game to measure a player by total tackles, it was a game of big plays. Cardoso made the biggest when he tripped up Antoine Allen in the open field inside the Quincy 15 on North's first drive. If he misses the tackle, Allen scores. If North scores first, North might win. Cardoso's tackle made Matt Kozlowski's two plays which ended the North drive possible. The junior corner also did a excellent job containing Allen and Dayvon Jones and keeping the two speedsters from getting to the outside where they can do great damage.

North Quincy Defensive Player Of The Game

ANTHONY CAPONE (#28) – In a game of big plays, the senior cornerback made two huge ones for North. On Quincy's first possession of the second half, he stayed disciplined, stayed at home on a trick play. It set up a 17-yard loss and pushed the Presidents back to their 20. In the fourth quarter, he had a quarterback sack which trapped Quincy at its 10. Throughout the game, he prevented James Lam from turning the corner and running his sweeps which tore up Braintree and Durfee.

"Twice, he put them in a hole. He gave us a chance," said North Quincy coach Mark Nutley.

The honor roll of big-play makers is a long one.

• Handsome-Fields. He took the game back from North with his speed and power early in the second period. He converted a third-and-15 draw play on Quincy's second scoring drive. He scored on third down from the four for Quincy's final touchdown. He knocked down two passes on two third downs to stop North Quincy's drives in the second half, and made an open-field tackle on Dayvon Jones (38 yards, six caries) which likely saved a touchdown. Big plays.

• Senior defensive end Matt Kozlowski. When North threatened to grab control in the first period with a long drive inside the Quincy 15, Kozlowski stopped Allen in the backfield for a two-yard loss on third down and sacked quarterback Andrew Kiley on fourth to give Quincy the ball and a chance for its offensive line to establish its power along the line of scrimmage. Late in the game with North inside the Quincy 35, Kozlowski broke in cleanly on Kiley and forced a third-down incompletions. Big plays.

"That first drive gave me flashbacks of upsets from Quincy-North games in the past," said Reardon. "All I heard for two weeks was we were the favorites, and they came out and ran the ball down our throats. Kozlowski's stops were huge."

• Junior linebacker Jake Bergonzi. He stopped Jones in the backfield on the Quincy 14 late in the half with the Presidents up, 7-0. He broke up a screen pass at the Quincy 38 which might have gone a long way in the fourth, and tripped up Allen in the open field in the final period which surely saved a touchdown. Big plays.

"I think Jake got Antoine by the shoelaces. That's how close it was," said Reardon.

• Junior cornerback Aramani Cardosa made two tackles inside the Quincy 21 on North's opening drive, the second on Allen which prevented a score. Defensive end Matt Hines had a clinching sack in the fourth with North inside the Quincy 30. Junior corner Ryan Turpin had an interception, the game's only turnover, at the Quincy 8 with 3:14 left which gave the Presidents the ball for the final time.

"If Armani doesn't make that play in the flat in the first period, they score," said Reardon

Quarterback James Lam flipped a pass under the teeth of the knee-buckling wind for a 12-yard gain to Jalen Chase, the game's only completed pass, which converted a third-and-four on Quincy's first scoring drive. Curtis Calley and James Askins broke into the backfield for stops on Allen and Jones with North inside the 25 in both situations. Senior Thomaz Silva converted two extra points on a simply brutal day to kick a cold football.

The theme which emerges from all the big plays is that North gained plenty of land and ground out several threats, but when it came to points, Quincy shut it down thanks to multiple players on multiple occasions. Big plays.

"All credit to Quincy. This game usually comes down to big plays and today, Quincy made them," said North's Mark Nutley after his first Thanksgiving as head coach.

With both coaches committed to the run and the wind making the forward pass a distant dream, the game was won along scrimmage. Quincy's offensive line of Hines, William Young, Abraham Hoti, Steve Scolaro, Kozlowski and Mike Munroe moved the Red Raiders just enough for 165 yards rushing and scoring drives of 68 and 63 yards. The defensive front of Hines, Kozlowski, James Askins; Young along with Bergonzi and Dan Guarente at linebacker by no means stopped Allen but they prevented the explosion that had Reardon worried for two weeks.

"I thought our offensive line gave us just enough to keep the chains moving," said Reardon.

"Vinny Tran and Don Sharp played excellent for us, but their offensive line was able to move us around a little," said Nutley. "Anthony Capone played a great game on defense. He was disciplined and contained their outside running game."

For the Red Raiders, the thoughts were of how close they came. Whoever scored first in the cold and wind had a great chance to win the game. North stopped Quincy on a three-and-out on the first series of the game. Starting from the North 44, Allen (1581 rushing yards for the season) and Kiley tore up gains behind Tran, Sharp and Zach Dangora. Kiley converted a fourth-and-two run. Cardosa's tackle of Allen stopped a certain touchdown. The Red Raiders moved to a third-and-three at the Quincy 14. They were rolling, 14 yards away from the lead when a holding penalty halted the drive.

"The penalty hurt. We've had problems with mistakes all season, and that was a big one," said Nutley.

In the second quarter, North went to the wildcat with Allen taking a direct snap from center. Eddie Guinto and Jones set up in the backfield with Allen for extra blockers and North pounded it to the Quincy 12 on a 14-yard gain off a great play-fake from Allen. On fourth down, Jones cut cleanly open over the middle, but just missed an acrobatic catch in the end zone which would have likely tied the game at halftime.

"That just missed," said Nutley with a shake of his head. "We went to the wildcat because everyone knows the ball is going to Antoine. Why not eliminate the middleman? It gave us an extra blocker in the backfield. We used it again in the second half, and it worked again.

After surviving North's early drive which consumed most of the first period, Quincy made it 7-0 on a 68-yard, 10-play march. Handsome-Fields ignited it with five runs for 37 yards. Lam kept it alive with his third-down pass to Chase. Alexandre, who blocked well the entire game, finished it with tough runs between the tackles of 13 and seven yards for a 7-0 lead.

After the defense gave them a three-and-out stop to start the second half, the Presidents went 63 yards in 13 plays. Quincy started in a hole when North threw a trick play for a 17-yard loss on first down. The Presidents recovered on runs by Lam and Handsome-Fields of 12 and 15 yards which gave Quincy a first down near midfield. Handsome-Fields finished the drive a run from the four for the 14-0 lead with 2:01 left in the third which held up until the end.

When it was over, Reardon (4-3 on Thanksgiving) gathered his equipment and prepared for the turkey which would surely taste just fine. He always preaches three things about a football game. Avoid turnovers, penalties and missed tackles, and you have a great chance to win. Quincy had no turnovers in the tough conditions, just three penalties for 15 yards, and few missed tackles especially against Allen who was always there, a threat waiting to explode.

"It's just as sweet as the first one. It has to be because the alternative is too painful," smiled Reardon.

Handsome-Fields: Quincy's Big Playmaker

By BILL GRIFFIN

Here is the question. North Quincy and Quincy play a football game which is decided by the team that makes the most big plays. What player makes them? A senior? Or a sophomore?

Senior? Wrong. On a day and in a game which is forever frozen in the minds of the seniors, sophomore Jahvae Handsome-Fields made the decisive plays on offense and defense in Quincy's 14-0 win over North on Thanksgiving. The motivation for his fine play is an interesting one.

"Everything I did today was for the seniors on my team," said Handsome-Fields who played tailback and cornerback for the Presidents. "They wanted this game so much. It's a day for seniors. It meant so much to them that I wanted to play my best."

A good description of a big play contains three parts. Who is the opposition? When was the play made? Where was the play made? The opposition was North Quincy. Enough said. Handsome-Fields made the plays exactly when and where his team needed them in his varsity debut against North before over 4,000 fans.

"The moment will never be too big for Jahvae," said Quincy coach Bill Reardon. "He has confidence and the ability to give something extra in the big moments."

Let's start with the offense.

North had driven to the Quincy 13 and killed the clock for the entire first period. The Presidents had gone three-and-out on their first possession and needed someone to jump-start their offense. Momentum is precious in an emotional game like North and Handsome-Fields gave it back for Quincy with five straight carries for 37 yards. Quincy went on to score and took a 7-0 lead.

"I didn't have a good feeling about the way the game was going," said Reardon. "We needed a burst from someone so we went to Jahvae. He gave it to us."

Early in the third period, Quincy was trapped in a third-and-15 at its 32. The Presidents were only up, 7-0 and did not want to give North the ball and decent field position. Quincy ran Handsome-Fields on a draw. He sliced through the middle for five yards, bounced it outside and sped down the left sideline, running directly to the final stake for a first down.

"I got a little up the middle," said Handsome-Fields. "I knew exactly where the stakes were and how far I had to go. I just ran for the stakes."

Nine plays later, Quincy was stalled again on third down from the North four. Enter Handsome-Fields. He accelerated instantly off the hand-off and scored easily behind excellent blocking. Once again, there was that burst exactly where and when Quincy needed it.

"When I run, I want to start as quickly and run as hard as a I can to put my team in the best position," said Handsome-Fields.

Let's move to the defense.

In the second half, he knocked down two passes on third down to force punts and give his team possession. On the first, he jumped a sideline route and nearly intercepted a pass intended for Dayvon Jones. On the second, he stayed with his man as North quarterback Andrew Kiley rolled to his right. When the ball was delivered, Handsome-Fields timed his move perfectly and swatted it to the ground.

"On the first play, I just stayed with the wingback and timed my move," said Handsome-Fields. "On the second, I didn't want to leave my man and come up when the quarterback rolled out. I covered my man and waited for the pass."

He also knocked down a pass inside the Quincy 20 in the final four minutes and made a touchdown-saving tackle on Jones after the North wingback ran for 22 yards late in the third period.

Remember our definition of a big play. The opposition? North Quincy. When? On third downs and when his team needed a burst. Where? In the scoring zone and near his own end zone.

There's no doubt. In a game of big plays, Jahvae Handsome-Fields from Quincy made the ones that turned and decided the game.

WHAT'S THE BUZZ ABOUT?

Up to 50 million people in the United States suffer from "tinnitus," buzzing or ringing in the ears when no outside sound is present. Because tinnitus is thought to be largely due to exposure to loud noise, tinnitus sufferers may elect to wear hearing aids that help mask the sound. As more and more of us spend time slumped over computer screens and gazing into mobile devices, it should be pointed out that muscle-nerve connections in the neck may also give rise to tinnitus. If so, a posture assessment by the chiropractor may help.

North's Eddie Guinto: Rehab, Hardwork Put Him Back On Gridiron

By BILL GRIFFIN

It was his senior year and it was the Quincy game. It is the game every kid in the city who puts on pads for the first time in youth football wants to play. The stadium is packed, traditions drip from every corner of the place, and for one morning two teams play a game that they will never forget.

There were those, including his doctors, who doubted whether Eddie Guinto would play for North Quincy on Thanksgiving. Guinto, North's captain and two-way standout at fullback and linebacker, tore the ACL in his knee in the second game of the season against Boston Latin. It is a significant injury. The outlook was not good. Many felt his season was lost and gone.

"If you want to play sports in the future, you have to have surgery," said Guinto who will have the surgery this week. "But the doctors said I could rehab it, strengthen the leg muscles and try to play again this season. They weren't sure. They figured it was a 50-50 chance."

Eddie Guinto went to rehab. He rode the bike and did exercises in the water. He worked the leg machines. This was the time when he was supposed to be out running and hitting with his friends. It was a new experience, at times difficult, but he stayed with it.

"It was hard at times. I think the reason is that I had never gone through something like that before. I hadn't done those kind of exercises. But I stayed with them and they helped," he said.

Meanwhile on Friday night and Saturday afternoons, he went to the games. Every week he seemed to walk a little more free and easy. The watching was not easy.

"It was frustrating, especially when we were losing," he said. "You want to be out there with your team helping them turn games around, but all I could do was watch."

The hard work and the rehab moved ahead of schedule. The Quincy game was always the target. The knee grew stronger and Guinto grew more confident in it far more quickly than he or the doctors had hoped

He came back for the Milford game, less than two months after the injury. He played seven or eight plays on offense and half the defensive snaps. North won. Against Norwood, he played the entire second half on defense, made a hard run between the tackles to move the ball to the one-yard line and delivered a big-time block on Antoine Allen's scoring run. North won again.

It was no accident. Guinto was back for two games, and North won them both.

"Eddie means so much to the team, you could feel them get a lift when he came back," said coach Mark Nutley.

"I did want to get a couple of wins under my belt before the Quincy game," smiled Guinto. "I could tell my teammates liked having me back. I'd be yelling things at them, and they'd smile back at me. They were probably thinking: He's back."

On Thanksgiving, he was a player, not a spectator. The hard work, the hours of rehab had been worth the effort. He stretched and ran through plays as the stadium slowly filled in and the crowd began to ring the fence which circles the field. He went back to the locker room. He walked through the tunnel in the first row as captain of his team, put on his helmet, and raced onto the field to play in the Quincy game.

"The best part was my teammates. The best part was getting to line up next to the guys on my team and play against Quincy," said Guinto. "I was proud of what I accomplished. This was my senior year, my last chance to play in this game. It was just awesome to be out there."

Guinto played and played well. He was solid and strong at linebacker. When North lined up in the wildcat, he stood next to Allen and delivered crushing blocks, blocks like he threw before the knee injury, which opened big holes for North's great back. In the end North lost, 14-0, but for Eddie Guinto the important thing was: This was the Quincy game, and he had played in it.

"I thought we played well, but Quincy is very good. We had excellent chances, but they made the big plays," said Guinto.

He would not be human if he didn't look back at the season and wonder what it would have been like without the injury. Guinto had an exceptional junior year. He and Allen gave North two all-league caliber backs. He is an excellent linebacker. When Nutley was asked before the season who would win a straight-on footrace between Allen and Guinto, Nutley picked Guinto. With the development of Dayvon Jones, the thoughts of Allen, Guinto and Jones operating at full speed out of the same backfield is a fascinating one.

"Sometimes I do wonder what it would have been like, but you have to be a man and deal with what life gives you," said Guinto. "That's why I worked hard at the rehab and why I'm having surgery, so I can play in college next year."

Guinto is looking at Fitchburg State where two teammates from last year, Andrew Minton and Sean Thomas, played this fall.

"It could be a North connection up there. I'd love to play football with them again," said Guinto. "It takes 4-6 months to come back from the surgery. I'll be ready for next season."

Quincy's Thomaz Silva: From Brazil To The High School Football Field

By BILL GRIFFIN

The wind swept across the field in relentless cold waves.

Senior Thomaz Silva stepped up in Veterans Stadium in Quincy, Massachusetts in the United States of America to kick an extra point directly into the full force of the hard gusts. It was a lot like trying to throw a strike with a wiffleball during a hurricane. A most difficult kick.

"I honestly didn't know if I could get it through," said Silva.

He knocked home not one, but two extra points in Quincy's 14-0 win over North Quincy on Thanksgiving. He also stepped in for the injured Jalen Chase at fullback and blocked hard and well for the inside runs of Alex Alexandre and Jahvae Handsome-Fields. He played a terrific football game.

"It is the greatest feeling in the world," said Silva.

Three years ago, the thought of Silva playing American football on Thanksgiving, speaking fluent English, and being educated for a bright future was merely the stuff of dreams.

He has traveled a long and winding road for a young man.

Thomaz Silva left Recife, Brazil when he was 14 years old with his parents and sister. Recife is a city, a city bigger than Quincy. When Silva arrived in Quincy, he spoke not a word of English. Stores, signs, books, television, the spoken and written word were all a mystery. All sound and sight were just noise and confusion.

He had moved to a new school in a new city in a new country with a new language. Think how difficult a move to a neighboring town can be for a child of that age. He would start at the very beginning.

"People would call my name when I was walking down the street," said Silva. "I would turn to them, but I didn't know what to say."

Two years later he is a well-spoken, fluent young man in a language which is difficult to learn. Fluent. He does not struggle. He speaks with ease and confidence. It is a tribute to the quality of his teachers, the education he has received at Quincy High and, most importantly, his own effort. The path to fluency can take a generation. It is a road paved with hard work and Silva traveled it in two years. He is here, comfortable with his new life and new language, because he has worked at them.

"I wanted to learn, to be educated. That's why my father came to America," said Silva. "Plus I'm very talkative. I like to talk to people. If I wanted to to talk, I had to make myself understood. That was a motivation."

At first football, was a bit of adventure, not unlike an Abbott and Costello routine, but the game would help Silva make new friends and learn his new language.

"He couldn't communicate at all," said Quincy coach Bill Reardon. "We had to use Delino Lopes who was a linebacker for us as an interpreter. When we wanted Thomas to do something we had to go through Delino."

"The coach would tell me to block the linebacker or the cornerback. I didn't know who the linebacker or cornerback was," said Silva.

The pooch kick was an interesting issue. The pooch kick is a kickoff which sails over the first line of blockers and lands in front of the deep receivers. Ideally, it should land around the 25 or 30-yard line. Silva could kick them long or short. Kicking them in the middle required explanation.

"That one took some time," smiled Reardon. "We told Delino to have Thomas pooch kick the ball. He tried an onside kick. We said kick it deeper. Thomas kicked it into the end zone. Even with Delino, we had to work on that one for awhile."

"I remember that. I didn't know how far they wanted me to kick it," said Silva with a smile and a laugh which lit up the whole stadium.

Gradually, steadily, and then rapidly, he improved. There was a support system. His teammates accepted and encouraged him. Lopes was always there in the early days. His friend, Vagnos Santos, taught him the game. School was most important, but football helped. Silva grew comfortable with the way English was spoken outside the classroom. He loves football and to know more about it, he had to know better his new language. There was teaching and learning on the practice field. He not only understood more about English each day, he learned how it was spoken and used in life situations by coaches, friends and teammates.

"Football helped me with learning English. There's no doubt," said Silva. "It helped me learn how to listen, understand and communicate in my new language."

Silva is more than a specialist, more than a kicker who tries to keep warm while others do the hitting. He plays defensive end and fullback. He blocks and tackles. He is a football player. When he stepped in for Chase on Thanksgiving, Quincy's run game kept clicking at full speed. He can play the game.

"It was good to play, but I would rather have Jalen out there. He is like a brother to me," said Silva

"I have complete confidence in him," said Reardon.

Quincy's Thomaz Silva: From Brazil To The Football Field

"He's one of us. He does the work in the weight room. He practices and plays hard. When we had the vote for captain this year, Thomaz got a lot of votes. He's respected by his teammates because he has worked hard."

Silva's choice of football was surprising. Brazil has the richest soccer tradition in the world. The two best players of the last 50 years, Pele and Renaldo, have come from Brazil. Brazil has won a record five World Cups. Soccer is a religion. Silva kicked a soccer ball as soon as he was able to stand.

"When I first saw him, I thought he was looking for the soccer coach," said Reardon.

"What I like about football is the connection between the players," said Silva. "In football, all 11 players have to do their jobs for the team to succeed. There's teamwork in soccer as well, but sometimes there's just one player who is better than anyone else and he scores the goal to win the game. In football, everyone has to do their job."

His sense of team and his willingness to work, two values that have served him well in his short time in America, have made him a better kicker. Show up early to a Quincy practice and there is always one scene being played out near one end zone. Mike Munroe snaps the ball. Robbie Munroe puts its down. Thomaz Silva kicks it through the uprights. The three have a connection. The three put in extra work. Team and work. It works out just right.

"All three of us have to do our job. Mike has to make a good snap, Robbie has to give me a good hold and I have to made a good kick. We are a team," said Silva. His kicks grew longer and straighter as the season went on. His five extra points against Durfee would have been good from 30 yards. He finished the season with 20 extra points and was 7-for-7 against Durfee and North.

Along with the win over North, along with the extra points which sailed long and true, along with the thrill of playing in a rivalry which captures a city, it was a day for Silva to give thanks.

"I give thanks for having an amazing family who came to America to find a better life," he said. "I am thankful for the friends I've made. I give thanks for being in America which is something I never thought could happen. I am thankful for my new language. I am thankful for playing in this game which has been going on for 81 years and brings together the whole city. It is a great thing."

And perhaps we should all give thanks for living in a country which gives an extraordinary young man like Thomaz Silva a chance.

Set Minimum Price, Can Attach Other Conditions At Meeting Monday Night

Old Central Sale Before Council

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council will begin to contemplate the sale of the former Central Middle School beginning at next Monday's meeting.

The school, which originally opened in 1894 as Quincy High, closed in October once the new, $50 million Central opened. Later that month, on Oct. 27, the School Committee voted to declare the building as no longer required or suitable to serve as a public school building, the first step in authorizing the city to sell the property.

The council will now be asked to allow the sale, and will be able to set a minimum price for the property and attach conditions on the sale as it sees fit. Mayor Thomas Koch submitted a request to the council requesting it make the land available for sale at the body's last meeting, and it was referred to the finance committee.

The finance committee will meet Monday night, prior to the council's last scheduled meeting of its current term. While it will begin to discuss possible conditions on the sale, a council vote authorizing the sale is unlikely to take place. Councillors Doug Gutro and

City Stepping Up Security At Nativity Scene

Four Figures Stolen, Three Found

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city has stepped up security around the nativity scene in Quincy Center after four statues were stolen from the manger last week.

Fiberglass statues of baby Jesus, Mary, Joseph, and a lamb were all taken from the nativity scene, also known as a crèche, during the early morning hours of Thursday, Dec. 5. The statues of Jesus, Mary and Joseph were found just over 24 hours later – the lamb has yet to be found – and were returned to the manger around noon on Friday, Dec. 6.

All the statues inside the nativity scene, which is located in the Hancock Cemetery just steps away from old City Hall on Hancock Street, had been bolted down when they were installed in late November.

Mayor Thomas Koch, who watched as the Holy Family statues were returned to the manger, said the city would double down on the bolting and add security cameras to keep watch over the crèche.

"They're doing additional bolting and screwing down," the mayor told The Sun. "The police are doing a little more security work on that end with some cameras. We'll get through the season and then revisit the piece

City, Veterans Remember 72 Years Later

Pearl Harbor Attack 'Awoke A Sleeping Giant'

By SCOTT JACKSON

Seventy-two years after Japan's surprise attack on the United States Navy base at Pearl Harbor, Quincy veterans remembered that day as a rallying cry that helped propel the U.S. to its victory over Japan, Germany and Italy in World War II.

The Dec. 7, 1941, attack by the Japanese on Pearl Harbor, located on the Hawaiian island of Oahu, killed 2,402 American service members and civilians, and wounded 1,282. The U.S. declared war on Japan one day later following President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "Infamy" speech. Days later the country declared war on Germany and Italy, after those countries declared war on the U.S.

The city commemorated the 72nd anniversary of the Attack on Pearl Harbor with a wreath laying ceremony held at the World War II Monument at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, which bears the names of the 255 Quincy residents killed in the war. At the ceremony, organized by the Quincy Veterans Council, council Commander George Nicholson said Japan made a fatal and foolish mistake in attacking the U.S.

"The Japanese made an extraordinarily foolish and fatal blunder in their decision to launch that attack. They awoke a sleeping giant," Nicholson said. "Out of the ashes, the blood and the bent metal of Pearl Harbor arose America's greatest next year and how it would best be, security wise."

The day the statues were taken, Koch had said the city would look into the possibility of enclosing the nativity scene in Plexiglas or wire to ensure the statues won't be taken again.

"Obviously we're going to have to look at some way to secure it in a better fashion," Koch said. "Whether we have to put Plexiglas or put some sort of wiring – discreet of course – but some sort of wiring so people can't access the figures themselves, which is a real shame because I see families all the time bringing their youngsters up and they pick them up over the fence and they go take a closer look at the scene."

The mayor also left open the possibility that the Jesus statue, which was stolen and subsequently recovered previously in both 2004 and 2012, would be left out of the manger until it got closer to Christmas.

"We'll have to look at that," Koch said. "That's something we'll talk to the park director (Chris Cassani) about."

The statues were reported missing shortly before 2:30 a.m. on Dec. 5, when a city worker found a shepherd statue on the sidewalk in front of the cemetery.

"He was there around 1 a.m. and everything was there," Police Capt. John Dougan said. "He was there around 2:30 a.m. and the shepherd was on the sidewalk. He looked in the manger and the statues were gone."

The Jesus, Mary and Joseph statues were found just before 7 a.m. on Dec. 6 after they had been dumped on Furnace Avenue in West Quincy. The Police Department reviewed surveillance footage from that area, but Dougan said that footage wasn't useful.

"The evidence was really lousy," he said Monday.

The department, Dougan added, has yet to identify any suspects in the disappearance. The mayor said he is hopeful that whoever took the statues did so as a prank without any more serious intentions.

"I'm hoping that's all it is – some goofy prank hopefully [by] some kids who don't know what they're doing," Koch said the day the statues were taken.

"This has a lot of meaning to people of the Christian faith. I get letters and emails all the time, 'we're so proud Quincy continues the tradition of not forgetting our roots.'"

Even though the statues may have been taken as a prank, those responsible could face serious charges. Dougan said the suspects would likely be charged with larceny over $250 and malicious destruction of property – the three recovered statues did sustain some damage after being taken. The larceny charge carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison, and malicious destruction of property carries a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison.

"They are very serious charges," Dougan said.

In addition to the larceny and destruction of property charges, Dougan said

Local Groups Manning Salvation Army Kettles

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Community Leader Kettle Thursday Outside Quincy City Hall - Story Page 11

With the Red Kettle Fundraiser being the Salvation Army's largest fundraiser each year many local clubs, groups, and businesses are signing up to ring bells and help in anyway they can.

"Our volunteers are doing a wonderful job," said Quincy Salvation Army Captain Tim Ross. "Without our volunteers we wouldn't be able to do half of the work we do. They are the key behind the whole drive."

Volunteer groups, such as the veterans at the American Legion, help the Salvation Army year after year to raise money during their Red Kettle Fundraiser along with other tasks they may need help with during the holiday season.

"A lot of our volunteer groups come back year after year to help," said Ross. "Most of them usually contact us before we get a chance to call them. The biggest thing a lot of them help with is the bell ringing, especially during Saturdays, which is our busiest day."

Groups that volunteer include the Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Lions Club, Flavin & Flavin Realty, Fort Square Presbyterian Church, Union Congregational Church, the Quincy Firefighters, Salvation Army Advisory Board, AARP out of Braintree, and the Interact Students from both high schools, among many others.

"We've had a pretty consistent group of volunteers. A lot of them have been doing it for a long time," said Ross. "We are always looking for more volunteers, and groups to volunteer. We work with their schedules the best we can. They can also help throughout the year, although there are a lot of opportunities during the holiday season, we can always use help stocking the food pantry among other tasks throughout the year."

Seventy community leaders are also helping the Red Kettle Fundraiser by ringing the bell outside City Hall near the John Adams Statue and McIntyre Mall. This is the 17th annual community leader kettle. The last group of community leaders will set up today, Thursday, Dec. 12 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Even with volunteers helping ring the bells Ross said kettle donations are down $15,000 from last year's numbers at this point in the season.

generation. Out of the carnage of World War II that followed that attack, arose an era of prosperity and progress around the world that continues to this very day and does so with no end in sight."

"America is all that it is, and we are all that we are, because of the men and women at Pearl Harbor," Nicholson continued. "We don't just remember them, they inspired us and we know they always will. What we owe them cannot be calculated. Everyone who draws a free breath on the planet today does so because of them. If we never forget that, then our remembrance of Pearl Harbor will always retain the significance, the respect and the honor so dearly paid and so well deserved."

Nicholson also remembered the late Francis M. Connolly. Mr. Connolly, who died in September at the age of 91, was a Navy veteran and one of Quincy's last Pearl Harbor survivors.

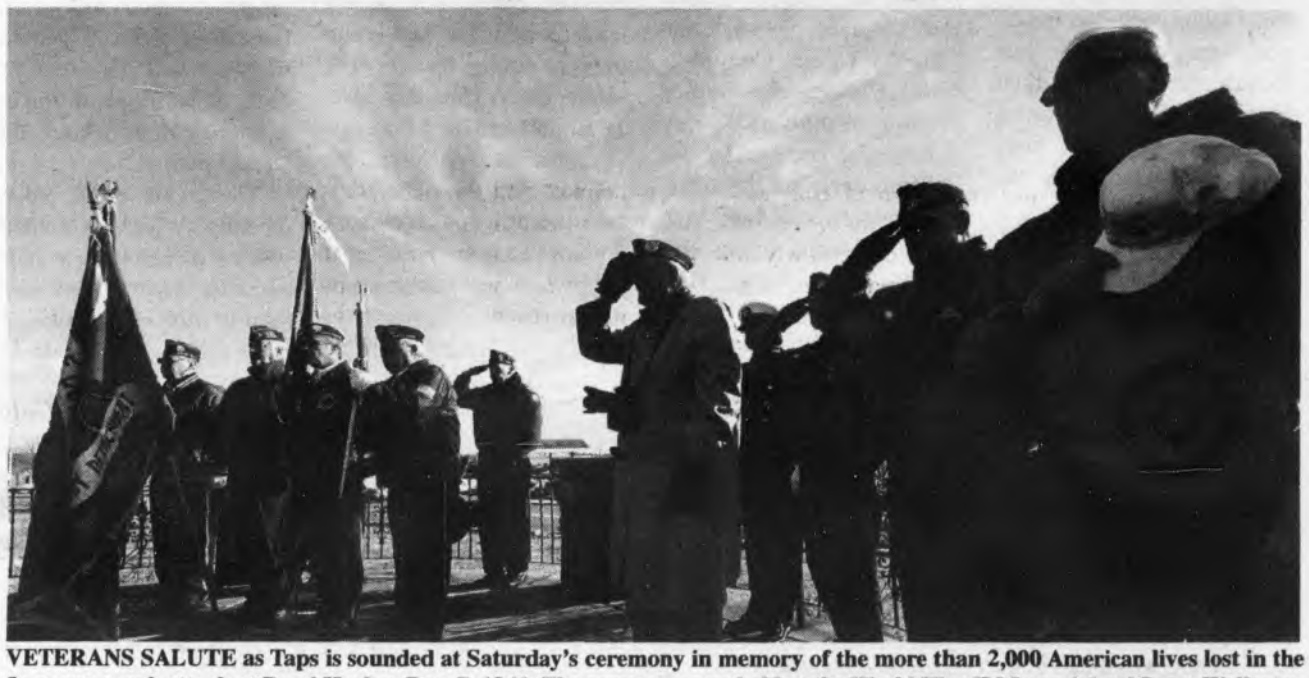

"I was thinking this morning about the recent passing of one of our Pearl Harbor survivors with us for so many years, Frank Connolly, who was always here," Nicholson said. "I know that Frank is now reunited with those friends he left at Pearl Harbor. I am supremely confident that he has assured them that they will not and never will be forgotten in the City of Quincy and their sacrifice will never be taken for granted."

Among those in attendance was William Keith, the last known Quincy resident who survived the attack. Keith, 92, was onboard the battleship USS West Virginia on the morning of Dec. 7, 1941.

"I was on the battleship West Virginia, five decks down below," Keith recalled after the ceremony. "Somebody opened up a hatch and everybody tried to come up one ladder. Some just fell back downward."

MEMORIAL WREATH was placed at the World War II Monument at Mount Wollaston Cemetery Saturday at a ceremony commemorating the 72nd anniversary of the Japanese sneak attack at Pearl Harbor in Hawaii on Dec. 7, 1941. The attack on the U.S. Pacific fleet killed 2,402 Americans and brought the U.S. into World War II. Two hundred and fifty-five Quincy residents were killed fighting in that war and their names are inscribed on the granite memorial. The wreath was donated by World War II Army veteran and ex-Prisoner of War Robert Noble of Quincy. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Dec. 26, 1908, Jack Johnson becomes the first black American to win the world heavyweight title when he knocks out Canadian Tommy Burns in the 14th round in a championship bout near Sydney, Australia. Johnson held the heavyweight title until 1915.

• On Dec. 25, 1914, just after midnight on Christmas morning, German troops fighting in World War I cease firing their guns and artillery, and commence to sing Christmas carols. At points along the eastern and western fronts, Russian, French and British soldiers even heard brass bands joining the Germans in their joyous singing.

• On Dec. 28, 1938, silent-film star Florence Lawrence commits suicide in Beverly Hills, Calif. Lawrence also was an inventor: She designed the first "auto signaling arm," a mechanical turn signal, along with the first mechanical brake signal. She did not patent these inventions, however, and as a result she received no credit for -- or profit from -- either one.

• On Dec. 23, 1946, President Harry Truman appoints an amnesty board to review cases of conscientious objectors who were imprisoned after refusing to serve during World War II. Of the 15,000 violators of the World War II Selective Service Act, only 1,500 were considered entitled to full amnesty.

• On Dec. 29, 1956, the New York Times leaks the news that the United States is preparing a major policy statement on the Middle East. The U.S. would oppose any Soviet military intervention in the region, and Middle Eastern powers could count on economic help and military help in opposing any Soviet aggression.

• On Dec. 27, 1968, Apollo 8, the first manned mission to orbit the moon, returns safely to Earth after an historic six-day journey. Astronauts Frank Borman, James Lovell, Jr., and William Anders were the first human beings to see the dark side of the moon.

• On Dec. 24, 1972, comedian Bob Hope gives what he says is his final Christmas show to U.S. forces in Saigon. The show marked Hope's ninth consecutive Christmas appearance in Vietnam.

(c) 2013 King Features Synd., Inc.

Keith, who resided in Marshfield for a longtime before recently moving to Quincy, still speaks to students about the attack to this day. He hopes people never forget the sacrifice made that day.

"I go to schools and talk to the students," Keith said. "You shouldn't forget."

One hundred and six sailors aboard the West Virginia were killed during the attack.

Like Nicholson, John P. "Jake" Comer, a past national commander of the American Legion and a Quincy resident, also remembered how Americans rallied after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

"Pearl Harbor, as was said, awoke a sleeping giant here in the United States. The young men and women just rallied. It didn't take them long [it was] the very next day when they headed to the recruiting stations to sign up," Comer said. "I was only a young boy of nine, but I remembered it well, sitting in the kitchen of my home in Dorchester and listening to the president mentioning the day of infamy."

Comer also recounted the attack, which the Japanese had planned for nearly a year.

"The plans in Japan were begun as early as January 1941 – the early part of January they were getting ready for this. Operation Pearl Harbor would later change to Operation Z, led by Japanese Admiral Yamamoto," Comer said. "They decided on Sunday. Why? Because they believed Americans would be more relaxed, less alert, many getting ready for church services. And so they came. And they flew over Oahu and called out "Tora! Tora! Tora!" – tiger, tiger, tiger – the message to the entire Japanese fleet telling them they had caught the Americans totally unaware."

He then went on to explain how the Japanese attackers targeted Battleship Row, a formation of eight battleships that included the USS West Virginia. In particular, Comer recalled the bombing of the USS Arizona – the battleship's forward ammunition room exploded, killing 1,177, many of whom are still entombed in the ship.

"The Arizona exploded when a bomb breached its forward ammunition room," Comer said. "Many of you have gone to Hawaii on your trips, and Waikiki Beach was not the important part of your trip. [The important part] is when you got on the Navy tender and you took the ride out to the Arizona Memorial. The oil is still seeping from the bottom to this day. Through a small glass enclosure, you look through that glass and you see the deck of the ship and you realize that [1,102] men are entombed there. And that's the reason we memorialize every year as we do here today."

A total of 21 ships, including all eight battleships, were damaged or sunk that day, but Comer noted the U.S. was undeterred by the attack.

"All eight battleships were either sunk or damaged during the attack. Amazingly all but two – the Arizona and the [Oklahoma] – were able to return to duty," Comer said. "A total of 21 ships sunk and damaged, and all Hawaiian airfields

REGENT THEATRE, NORFOLK DOWNS, MASS.

THIS IS A 1927 postcard view of Hancock Street in Norfolk Downs looking north from the end of Hayward Street at the Wheelhouse Diner. The newly built Regent Theater had 800 seats and remained open for over 50 years. For many years the owners of the Regent also owned the Wollaston Theater on Beale Street. The old theater building has since been replaced with another building now home to a branch of the Bank of America with offices upstairs. The next building to the left was owned by the Boston Gear Works for many years, but is now a parking lot for the bank. A few years before this picture was taken Charlie Rizzo opened his barbershop on the first floor of the triple-decker in the distance. He was in business there for 50 years. McCauley Announces 12 Appointees

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor-elect Francis X. McCauley announced the first 12 appointments to his administration, including three officials who served under former Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

The appointees named by McCauley included long-time Treasurer/Collector Robert E. Foy III. Foy had been appointed to the position in 1972 by then-Mayor Walter J. Hannon, and was subsequently re-appointed to the position by Mayors LaRaia and Arthur H. Tobin.

Elmer K. Fagerlund, who served as chairman of the Board of Assessors under LaRaia, was named to the same post by McCauley following a four-year absence from the board. Fagerlund was first appointed to the board in 1967 by then-Mayor James R. McIntyre and served as its chairman for seven years under McIntyre, Hannon, and LaRaia.

Paul N. Anderson, who served as acting public works commissioner under LaRaia in 1977, was named public works commissioner.

Other appointees named by McCauley were:

Peter M. Kenney, executive secretary. Kenney was a member of the Ward 1 Democratic Committee and the Merrymount Association, and chairman of the Our Lady of Good Counsel Bloodmobile for 1980 and 1981.

William B. Golden, city solicitor. Golden was graduate of Yale and the Boston University School of Law, and held a masters of public administration degree from Harvard. He was president of the Squantum Community Association, a member of Citizens Against Airport Noise, and an advisor for DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended).

Barry Welch, recreation director. Welch started in the department in 1963 and rose through the ranks of the department to the position of assistant director, a Civil Service position.

Robert F. Denvir, Jr., purchasing agent. Denvir had served as director of purchasing and property services for Action of Boston Community Development (ABCD) since 1963.

Dean P. Nicastro, assistant solicitor, and William E. Hickey, legal counsel. Nicastro had served as an assistant attorney general since 1978 in the division of eminent domain and utilities. Hickey was an attorney with a Quincy practice and past president of the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association.

Arthur W. Foley, administrative assistant to the mayor. . Foley had been a real estate broker since 1971 and was co-owner and manager of Century 21 Annex Realty.

Eleanor Ready, personal secretary to the mayor, and Nancy A. Donofrio, secretary to the mayor. Ready had been McCauley's secretary at Presidential Cooperative Bank for nine years. Donofrio was an administrative secretary for First National Bank of Boston.

The four appointments in the mayor's office would become effective immediately after McCauley was sworn-in as Quincy's 27th mayor on Jan. 4. The remainder would become effective Feb. 2, when the previous appointments lapsed.

CRACKDOWN ON PARKING SCOFFLAWS

A new computer at the U.S. Trust Branch in Quincy was being used to help the city crackdown on parking scofflaws.

Between $400,000 and $500,000 old parking tickets dating back to 1977 were being programed into the bank's computer. Those tickets had previously been kept at Quincy District Court, which used to collect the fines but hadn't gotten around to those tickets.

City Clerk John Gillis said violators could expect to see citations arrive in their mailboxes within 60 days. Each violator would face a $7 fine for each ticket – $2 for the original ticket and a $5 late fee. Gillis anticipated collecting $250,000 in back tickets.

QUINCY-ISMS

A License Board hearing to reconsider the 2 a.m. closing times of several Quincy establishments was canceled after Assistant City Solicitor Laurence W. Cowley ruled that the board needed to consider each establishment individually and not as a group...Buildings at the corner of Hancock and Granite Streets that housed the Presidential Coop. Bank, Connie's Snack Shop, Bookhaven, and the Claus Gelotte Camera company were torn down to make way for the new Quincy Center Plaza in front of the under construction Stop & Shop headquarters...Councillor-elect Richard J. Koch, Jr. said it was time to remove the parking meters in downtown Quincy...The License Board ordered Quincy Junior College to unplug two unlicensed video game machines... Bill Shaughnessy was named the Quincy Point Panther's MVP at the team's annual banquet.

Quincy Needs Revenue, Not Politics As Usual

Here we go again.

I gather Mayor Tom Koch doesn't read the local paper. If he did, he would have read my letter asking that he "retire" the wrecking ball.

OK, Koch won the election, so what does he do? Koch wants to tear down more revenue, in this city. Not businesses this time, he wants to tear down homes behind the North Quincy High School. Koch wants to spend our money to replace those homes with a parking lot for students.

My question is, what about all the rodents in North Quincy High (no, not the politicians.) I am talking about the four-legged ones, that have free reign all over the school. Koch plans to replace some worn out parts (windows, HVAC, roof and so on). The staff and students have had to deal with rodents for decades, and counting.

I have first hand knowledge of the rodents, at open house every year. My daughter is a graduate of North, and every time of the open house, we had a rodent run in the class room or the halls.

Stop with the removal of businesses and homes. Quincy needs revenue, not politics as usual.

Stay Positive On The Future Of Downtown Quincy

I was caught aback by a question asked in the letters column questioning what the role of socialism versus capitalism in the development of Downtown Quincy. I look around Greater Boston and see many positive private-public partnerships building up depressed areas. Look across the Neponset Bridge at the Ashmont Village district. There private developers along with various government entities have seen SmartGrowth create a destination site for residents and visitors to the area. These partnerships aren't guaranteed to work all the time. It takes courage and vision to see beyond today.

Best Quincy example of Smart growth before this term was coined more recently was Mayor James McIntyre who had the vision over 40 years ago to extend the Red Line across the Neponset Bridge into the City of Quincy. He then set out to create with the private sector something called State Street South. His idea was if you build it, people will come. He didn't worry about the risk, they might not do it. President Kennedy believed nothing got done by accident. If you want it built, you had to build it.

I commend Mayor Tom Koch for having the vision to move Quincy forward. We already know what Downtown Quincy is like today. If that is all you aspire the area to be, sit on your hands. If you think, the area could be much better, than get off your feet and do something. I await the day that Merchants Row is more than a banner.

A defeatist attitude like something positive won't come if we build it is a self-fulfilling defeat. Koch like McIntyre isn't just living for today. Quincy shouldn't be afraid of trailblazing with its Downtown Quincy aspirations.

Be positive. If they build it, people will come. They always do.

700 Attend 'Tis The Season' Concert, Event Raises $7,500

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Approximately $7,500 was raised and over 700 people attended the annual 'Tis the Season Symphony and Song concert at Quincy High School.

This year's concert was one of the best attended in the 12 years the event has been held.

"This is probably the best attended. We had a full house, the Lloyd Hill Performing Arts Center seats 750 people and we definitely had that," said Quincy School ~ Community Partnership Coordinator John Fagerlund. "It was the best one ever. The look and gleam in the children's eyes as they watched says it all. They were totally engrossed in the show and the sing along."

The concert, which is put on by Quincy School ~ Community Partnership and Granite City Electric Supply Company, featured performances from the Quincy Symphony Orchestra; the Quincy Public Schools combined high school choral group and the John Adams Orchestra.

"This was the first year that Granite City Electric was the true sponsor of the event," said Fagerlund. "The past several years we have offered a three course meal, a VIP package, where the meal is put on by the students of the Culinary Arts program, we had 82 people buy that package this year."

Fagerlund said that they also had 250 students in attendance from the 11 elementary schools in Quincy, all represented by Quincy School Community Partners.

The money raised will go towards Quincy Public Schools music programs.

QUINCY PUBLIC SCHOOLS combined high school choral group, under the direction of Tim Carew, was one of three performances at the 'Tis the Season Symphony and Song Concert on Dec. 5 which raised approximately $7,500 that will be put towards QPS music programs.

Allure Spa Offering Non-Invasive Cosmetic Procedure

Sandra Ishmael of Allure Spa and Medical Director Dr. Helen Moreira from Nielsen Eye Center, announce Ultherapy – the only FDA approved non-invasive procedure to lift skin on the neck, on the brow and under the chin – is now available at her medical spa, Allure Spa.

Ultherapy is a non-surgical procedure for the face and neck that stimulates the body's own natural healing process to lift the skin over time. The use of FDA-cleared ultrasound technology enables physicians, for the first time, to see and then treat the deepest support layers of the skin – typically addressed in cosmetic surgery – without cutting or disrupting the surface of the skin.

"Ultherapy represents a whole new category within aesthetic medicine," says Dr. Moreira. "It is an ideal cosmetic procedure for those looking for natural yet noticeable results."

The treatment typically takes around 90-minutes. Afterward, patients are able to return to normal activities right away, and there are no special measures they need to take.

With just one Ultherapy treatment, the lifting process is initiated, but the effect will build gradually over the course of two to three months, as new, stronger collagen and elastin are created. Further improvements can even appear up to six months following a procedure as this collagen-building process continues.

While the results do not duplicate those of surgery, Ultherapy's gradual improvements make it a compelling option for people who have mild to moderate skin laxity. As well as those who want to "stay ahead of the game", and those looking to prolong the effects of cosmetic surgery.

More than 100,000 Ultherapy treatments have been performed worldwide, and Ishmael is pleased to be at the forefront in the U.S. of this clinical advance.

Owner Sandra Ishmael and Dr. Helen Moreira announce and share the newest innovations of skincare including Ultherapy, ViPeel Medical Peels, Botox and Juvederm.

"We are very excited to open our new MedSpa to our clients, communities, friends and families by educating and sharing the newest trends and innovations in the industry," says Ishmael.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Salmon And Potato Casserole

When we were growing up, my mother made a favorite of ours-a salmon loaf served with creamed peas.

Today's recipe is for a salmon and potato casserole that can either be made with canned salmon or fresh salmon. I still like to serve it with creamed peas.

SALMON AND POTATO CASSEROLE
2 cups salmon (canned or fresh)
2 cups mashed potatoes
salt and pepper to taste
1 small onion (chopped)
¼ cup shredded cheddar cheese
1 -teaspoon fresh parsley

If using fresh salmon, blanch it for a couple of minutes. In a bowl, place the cut up salmon and the onion, and add the potatoes mixing well. Add the parsley the salt and pepper.

Place in a slightly greased casserole dish and sprinkle the cheese on top.

Bake in a 350 -degree oven for 30 minutes or until browned on top.

CREAMED PEAS
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk or cream
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup either frozen or canned peas

In a small pan, melt the butter and quickly add the flour making a roux. Add the milk gradually until mixture is thickened. Add the peas and heat through until hot. Serve over the salmon casserole.

Sausage & Pepper Calzone

Did you ever go to a cook-out and in addition to hot dogs and hamburgers, there is sometimes sausages served with peppers and onions on the side and what a delicious sandwich that makes.

Last week, I had some dough in the freezer and the ingredients to make sausages and peppers. So I decided what a nice calzone I could make out of this.

I found that if I cook everything separately, it's much easier for it all to blend together.

SAUSAGE AND PEPPER CALZONE
1 medium green pepper (cut)
1 medium red pepper (cut)
1 medium onion (sliced)
1 garlic clove (chopped)
3 tablespoons oil (for sautéing)
2 large sausages or 4 small ones
1 egg for egg wash

You can either bake the sausages by placing them in a baking pan with a little water on the bottom, or in a skillet on top of the stove. Cook until sausages are tender. Set aside.

In the meantime, in the hot oil, sauté the garlic, onion and peppers until done.

When the sausages are done, cut in small slices and add to the peppers and onion mixture.

Roll the dough out in either one big round size, or individual small calzones.

Place mixture in the center and roll tucking the sides in. With one beaten egg, brush the top of the calzone and bake in a 425-degree oven for about 20-25 minutes or until the dough is golden brown.

BANDING TOGETHER

Marrying couples often shop together for wedding bands that match. The standard ladies' simple gold or platinum band ranges from two to four millimeters in width, while the men's range from three-and-a-half to six millimeters. Stock sizes can range all the way up to ten millimeters in width, which are considered more masculine. With this in mind, it is important to try on sample bands of varying widths to see which is best suited to your finger and hand. The same style band can look quite different in differing widths. Also, bear in mind that, if a ring does not feel comfortable on the finger to begin with, it is very likely that time will not improve the comfort level.

As your fingers change with the seasons, you want to make sure that the band will fit as your fingers expand and contract. Different bands have a flat top with an inside curvature for comfort. Synthetic Marijuana Ban Takes Effect

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new ordinance that prohibits the possession, distribution, and use of synthetic marijuana in Quincy has taken effect.

The City Council approved the ordinance by an 8-0 vote on Nov. 12, with Council President Michael McFarland absent. Mayor Thomas Koch signed the ordinance into effect during the last week of November, according to mayoral spokesman Chris Walker, and the ordinance became effective immediately.

"I applaud the City Council's work on this troubling issue, and the city will benefit by having this ordinance as a tool as we continue our fight together against substance abuse," Koch said after the council passed the ordinance.

Synthetic marijuana, also known as "spice" or "K2," has been found in local convenience stores and is often marketed to children, with packaging that shows cartoon characters like Scooby Doo. Before the council's vote, Brian Murray, who worked as a drug counselor in the 1980s and whose own son is in treatment for synthetic marijuana, said the drug is more potent than others he's dealt with.

"The stupefaction of these children under the influence of synthetic marijuana far overshadows any of the people I've seen on heroin, opioids, crack cocaine – any number of drugs that were available back in the mid to late '80s," Murray said. "I see it first hand from a son of mine. I have never, ever in my entire life seen a walking human being as out of his mind as him."

Synthetic marijuana contains plants laced with synthetic cannabinoids, chemicals that are said to mimic the effects of THC, the active ingredient in marijuana. The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration currently bans several cannabinoids, though manufacturers have skirted those regulations by switching formulas.

Quincy's ordinance identifies several specific chemicals that will be prohibited, but also bans the sale of any other vegetable material treated with chemicals that, when consumed, "may induce an effect or effects of intoxication similar to a controlled substance or imitation controlled substance." The ordinance makes the sale, possession, or use of any such product in Quincy punishable by a fine of up to $150 for a first offense and up to $300 for any subsequent offense.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin sponsored the new ordinance, and Councillor Doug Gutro and Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes co-sponsored it. Speaking in favor of the new ordinance, Councillor Joe Finn called it one of Coughlin's biggest accomplishments on the council, and said it was important that they vote to ban the drug.

"This is a Trojan horse," Finn said. "The destruction that this brings into people's lives is absolutely incredible. This is a significant piece for two things. One, they aren't going to be able to do it here in Quincy, but it also just raises the level of consciousness for parents and people out there to just know that this danger exists and just how dangerous this is."

A TABLE FULL of thank you cards at the Quincy Police Department shows the overwhelming support officers have received after bringing a suspect to justice in the Puppy Doe case. The department has received hundreds upon hundreds of cards, letters, and gifts from supporters.

'Puppy Doe' Supporters Thank Police Department

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

About six weeks have passed since the alleged suspect in the Puppy Doe case, Radoslaw Czerkawski, was arrested on 11 counts of animal cruelty and still the Quincy Police Department is receiving thank you notes and presents from supporters showing their appreciation.

"We are still getting cards in from people thanking us. Hundreds upon hundreds of cards," said Quincy Police Cpt. John Dougan. "We haven't really ever received such an outpouring of gratitude like this. It is completely off the charts."

A resident on Carrolls Lane found the young female pitbull mix laying outside of the Whitwell Street Playground on Aug. 31. At that time veterinarians from the ARL (Animal Rescue League of Boston) determined the dogs injuries were a clear result of repeated abuse, estimated to have occurred two to three weeks before the puppy was found.

The puppy suffered a stab wound to her right eye, injuries to her nose, a split tongue, multiple skull fractures in various stages of healing, stress fractures to her spine, front and back leg injuries, and injuries to her shoulders and ribs. The puppy had to be humanly euthanized due to the extent of her injuries. Quincy Police along with the ARL worked tirelessly to bring a suspect to justice, even asking the public for help in finding the person responsible for.

The 32-year-old Czerkawski was arrested in Connecticut on Oct. 23 nearly two months after police reached out to the public for help. He was held on $500,000 cash bail after

QHS Students Tour Quincy College's Biotech Lab

Thirteen Quincy High students and their teacher recently visited Quincy College's new Biotechnology and Compliance Lab.

The students are all enrolled in a project lead the way biotechnical engineering course at Quincy High School where they have the opportunity to earn college credits for completing the yearlong course and then earning a passing score on a final assessment.

Bruce Van Dyke, chair of the college's biotechnology and compliance program, provided the students and their teacher, Matthew Howard, with an introduction to the program, outlining its objectives and how they are utilized in real world application. Van Dyke also gave an overview on the state's biotech industry – the college is partnered with several industries and has been able to place graduates in the workforce. The Quincy High students were impressed by the presentation.

"I found the amount of Biotechnology companies in the greater Boston area outstanding," senior Aidan McMorrow said. "It seems like jobs in this field are always in demand."

Van Dyke then led the students on a tour of the new lab, a 1,600 square foot facility the college unveiled in August. Students were shown the tissue culture facility and observed how to grow mammalian cell cultures under sterile conditions and how bench top wave rockers and single-use bioreactors function. Van Dyke then showed students a column chromatography experiment that Quincy College students were performing using an AKTA fast performance liquid chromatography system. Quincy High junior Carly Brilliant was impressed by the college's new lab.

"It's amazing that Quincy College has state of the art equipment for its students to use," Brilliant said. "They are able to receive grants (to purchase equipment) because of their forward thinking program. We are lucky to be right next door."

The tour is one of several scheduled initiatives arranged through a partnership between the two schools. Both were awarded grant funding for equipment, future development, and collaboration between the programs.

QMC Awarded 'A' Safety Grade By Independent Industry Watchdog

Quincy Medical Center was awarded an "A" grade in the Fall 2013 update to the Hospital Safety Score, which rates how well hospitals protect patients from accidents, errors, injuries and infections.

The Hospital Safety Score is compiled under the guidance of the nation's leading experts on patient safety and is administered by The Leapfrog Group (Leapfrog), an independent industry watchdog. The first and only hospital safety rating to be analyzed in the peer-reviewed Journal of Patient Safety, the Score is designed to give the public information they can use to protect themselves and their families.

All 10 acute care hospitals in the Steward Health Care System (Steward) received "A" grade from Leapfrog.

"Patient safety is of utmost importance to us here at Quincy Medical Center, and our clinical teams work extremely hard to ensure that our patients receive the highest quality care in the safest manner possible," said Quincy Medical Center President Donna Rubinate. "It is gratifying to know that these efforts are successful and that the results are readily available to help patients make informed decisions about where they receive their care."

Calculated under the guidance of Leapfrog's Blue Ribbon Expert Panel, the Hospital Safety Score uses 28 measures of publicly available hospital safety data to produce a single "A," "B," "C," "D," or "F" score representing a hospital's overall capacity to keep patients safe from preventable harm. More than 2,500 general U.S. hospitals were assigned scores this Fall.

"As patients begin to take a more active role in selecting where to receive health care, it has never been more important to focus on hospital safety and transparency. The 'A' hospitals, including Quncy Medical Center, are helping us to raise the standards of health care nationwide," said Leah Binder, president and CEO of Leapfrog. "We offer our congratulations and hope Quincy Medical Center will continue to strive for an ever-increasing level of excellence in patient safety."

"We are incredibly proud of this award because it recognizes our ongoing commitment to health care quality and patient safety at Quincy Medical Center and across the Steward system," said Justine Carr, MD, Chief Medical Officer of Steward. "In the past three years, Steward has invested hundreds of millions of dollars in new services, new physicians, significant infrastructure improvements and new clinical technology to improve the quality of care and patient experience in our hospitals."

Community Leaders Ring Salvation Army Bell Today

Kettle Outside City Hall Near John Adams Statue

Community leaders will again man the Community Leader kettle for the Salvation Army today (Thursday) in Quincy Center.

The leaders include local officials, businessmen and women, and directors of social service organizations. They will ring the bell for the Salvation Army from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The kettle is located outside City Hall near the John Adams Statue and McIntyre Mall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Thursday is the final day for the community leader kettle. It was also manned by volunteers on Thursday, Dec. 5 and Friday, Dec. 6.

This is the 17th annual community leader kettle that was established by the late Henry Bosworth, the founder of The Quincy Sun and longtime member of the Salvation Army Advisory Board.

Mr. Bosworth first initiated the community leader kettle in 1997 and coordinated the assistance program for 12 years.

Money collected by the red kettles helps fund holiday assistance initiatives including toys and clothing for children and food vouchers for families. The money is also used year-round to help those who need help with food, utilities, heat and other necessities.

The Quincy Salvation Army helps thousands of individuals and families in need annually.

Hereís the line up of community bell ringers for today (Thursday):

THURSDAY, DEC. 12

9 a.m. – School Committeewoman Kathy Hubley, Quincy Access TV Executive Director Bette Campbell; and Quincy Sun Publisher Robert Bosworth.

10 a.m. – Fire Chief Joseph Barron, Police Chief Paul Keenan and Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti.

"We are still about 31 percent behind last year's numbers," said Ross. "Some days we might be collecting more than last year on that same day, and other days we are collecting less. I think most of that has to do with the late start because of the late Thanksgiving this year, but also when the weather is colder our donations usually go down."

Red Kettles can be found outside all Stop & Shop and Shaw's/Star Markets locations in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, and Hingham as well as Roche Brothers and Walmart in Quincy. Other locations include the South Shore Plaza in Braintree and the Walmart in Weymouth.

The money collected during the Red Kettle Fundraiser helps with holiday assistance initiatives such as toys and clothing for children and food vouchers for families along with being used year-round to help those in need of assistance.

Ceremony Wednesday For Longtime Educator

Central Gym Dedicated To Mario 'Mike' Casali

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Mario "Mike" Casali spent 26 years of his 41 year career in the Quincy Public School System at Central Middle School teaching physical education, coaching and guiding students to be the best they could be, so, it's only fitting that the new Central gym be dedicated in his honor.

"There was absolutely no question, he loved that place. He was Central's physical education, he was Central's coach," said Paul Bregoli, School Committee member, friend and former student of Casali.

"He made you want to be something better. The way he conducted himself was the way you wanted to be. You didn't want to disappoint Mr. Casali because he meant that much to you.

"He made you feel special and did it through listening and giving you good advice and sometimes telling you not what you wanted to hear. You had a feeling he was always in your corner."

Casali, a Navy veteran, was honored during a ceremony set for Wednesday night during the school committee meeting at Central Middle School.

After graduating from Quincy High School in 1946 he went on to attend Boston University where he graduated with a degree in Physical Education and was an All-American hockey player. After graduating from Boston University he was a teacher in Newport, Rhode Island before accepting a job in Quincy. He began his career at Central in 1954 teaching physical education and coaching a number of sports including basketball, baseball and football.

"He coached everything at Central," said Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro. "He was a Jack of all trades. He was just about everything in regards to that school. Students knew they could always go to him and he connected with the students and their families. He had an incredible presence."

In the 1980's Casali moved on from Central to become a guidance teacher at Point Webster Middle School, Sterling Middle School, Broad Meadows Middle School, and Snug Harbor Elementary School before retiring in 1995.

"He was doing guidance back when he was a physical education teacher and coach. He has done so much for so many young people in this city without any type of fanfare," said Bregoli.

"You couldn't help but form a bond with him and look up to him. He is almost a God like creature. He has been there for me and for so many people. I love him, people love him, and no one has anything bad to say about him. He is like a second father to me, on a lot of different levels I had a connection with this guy."

DeCristofaro, who worked with Casali at Point Webster when DeCristofaro was the principal and Casali was a guidance councilor, said that the dedication is a fitting one for an educator like Casali.

"For an educator like Mike this dedication is fitting," said DeCristofaro. "He simply made a great difference in so many lives while working at Central. He is just a really good man, just a very special guy."

Quincy Animal Shelter Seeking Holiday Donations, Volunteers

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

All year round the Quincy Animal Shelter, like many other non-profits throughout the city, is in need of volunteers and donations and during the holiday season that need is no different as more animals arrive at the shelter each day.

"Traffic definitely picks up this time of year," said Shelter Director Kit Burke. "We might also see an influx in animals around this time as well."

QAS has had a large influx of cats and kittens coming into the shelter throughout the year and Burke said that the need for cat food, toys, beds and other cat and kitten items are high on their list of needs.

"We have been so inundated this year especially with cats and kittens," said Burke. "The need is there for kitten and cat supplies, and it doesn't have to be anything expensive, we use everything that is donated to us. A lot of cats are coming in because their owners have lost their homes or are moving and can't take the cat with them."

QUINCY ANIMAL SHELTER
56 Broad St. • 617-376-1349
www.quincyanimalshelter.org

The shelter has adopted out 400 cats and kittens and only 44 dogs so far this year. Burke said that they have also seen more dog surrenders than in the past and more of the smaller breeds coming in than usual.

Throughout the year the shelter holds a number of fundraisers where all proceeds go to the care of the animals being housed there, and each holiday season they hold their Santa Paws event, where pets can get their picture taken with Santa.

The remaining Santa Paws event will take place on Dec. 14 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Unleashed in the Hingham Shipyard. Pet owners can bring their furry friends to meet Santa and receive a 4x6 holiday photo card and a CD of photos for $20.

"People don't have to just bring their pets," said Burke. "They can bring their children to take pictures with Santa it doesn't matter to us."

Burke said that the shelter is always in need of volunteers to perform all different kinds of jobs in the shelter.

"We can always use volunteers," said Burke. "We need help with all kinds of things not just taking care of the animals but with marketing and other areas that don't involve contact with the animals. We have over 100 volunteers that split two shifts a day, 365 days a year. Without them we wouldn't be able to run or open the shelter."

Burke added that they could always use foster homes throughout the year, especially during the spring and summer months. The shelter provides the necessities to care for the animal, such as food, litter, medicine, and anything else the individual animal may need during their stay in a foster home.

QAS is also in need of paper towels, towels, new or used cat carriers, bleach, laundry detergent, dishwashing detergent, and any brand of dry cat food for their feral pantry (open bags are okay), gift cards to Stop & Shop, Petco, Pet Supplies Plus, or Walmart (any amount), among a number of other items listed on their websites wish list page.

For more information on how to adopt, volunteer, or donate visit http://www.quincyanimalshelter.org/ or call the shelter at (617) 376-1349. The shelter is located at 56 Broad St., Quincy.

Church and Reading Room to move

To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven: Ecclesiastes 3:1

We want to let you know that December 31, 2013, will be the final day of operations at the current locations for the Christian Science Reading Room, and First Church of Christ, Scientist, Quincy.

The Reading Room, a fixture in the community and at its current location for 50 years now, has seen many changes, and we're especially excited about the citywide renovations that are to come. We've made many friends. Along the way, we've been able to help people who are facing challenges find answers, by turning to an all-knowing and all-loving God for help and guidance in issues dealing with domestic abuse, unemployment, and homelessness, just to name a few.

We held an open house after major renovations were completed to the Reading Room back in 2007. A number of you stopped in to see us and we enjoyed meeting you!

Our church has been a presence in the Quincy community for nearly 100 years. For the past few years we've been in the Wollaston Theater building, right next door to the Reading Room.

While we're sorry to be leaving, we look forward to seeing what our Father-Mother God has in store for us, and know it can only be good.

If you've never joined us for a Sunday service or Wednesday evening testimony meeting, please do; we'd love to meet you.

While we continue our search for a new location for both our church and Reading Room, we want to wish you a wonderful holiday season, and a happy and peaceful new year!

Sincerely,
Members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Quincy

ORAL HEALTH LINKED WITH HPV INFECTION

Recent research suggests that people with human papilloma virus (HPV) infections have three-fold greater risk of developing esophageal cancer. More recently, researchers also found that people with poor oral health had a 56% increase in the risk of HPV infection of the mouth and throat. Therefore, while esophageal cancer is also linked to risk factors such as smoking, excessive drinking, poor diet, and chronic acid reflux, oral health is another modifiable risk factor. With this in mind, smokers may want to cut out smoking, cut back on drinking, and seek medical help for dealing with chronic acid reflux as well as step up their efforts to improve their oral health in order to cut their oral/esophageal cancer risk.

People with poor oral health are possibly more likely to have an oral HPV infection. Is it time for a professional dental check-up? We want you to receive the highest quality of complete, affordable dental care. Because looking good and feeling good are important to us all, it is wise to maintain a healthy and attractive smile throughout life. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where our aim is to provide individual attention and care to every patient so that we can learn about their special needs. 'Puppy Doe' Supporters Thank Police pleading innocent to the 11 counts of animal cruelty, among other charges, in Quincy District Court on Oct. 29th.

Czerkawski was indicted by a grand jury on Nov. 21 on 12 charges of animal cruelty and one charge of misleading police in the investigation. He will be arraigned in Norfolk County Superior Court next Thursday, Dec. 19

Since his arrest, detectives have received cards, pizza, emails, notes, fruit baskets, cookies, pastries, and much more from Puppy Doe supporters. Dougan said that in past cases, K-9 or otherwise, they have received thank you notes but nothing to the extent they have received for this case.

"In this terrible case of animal cruelty detectives were out there following leads and doing their jobs to solve this case," said Dougan. "We never expected the outpouring of thanks we have received. We want to thank everyone for the support and the cards. They didn't have to do all that for us, we were just doing our job."

Margaret Laforest, the last two councillors to represent the surrounding neighborhood, both said more time is needed so the community can weigh in on a potential sale.

"Many of the ward councillors have night meetings between now and then," said Gutro, who represented the area as Ward 5 councillor before being elected at-large. "I do not have an open night until our next council meeting, the 16th. It would seem that there needs to be some dialogue around this."

"While a public hearing may not be required by our ordinance, for me part of the diligence I do in representing Ward 1 is to have an opportunity for the public to come forward," added Laforest, who now represents the area as Ward 1 councillor after the surrounding neighborhood was re-districted. "I know there is a lot of interest...particularly with the opportunity to condition the project. The Dorothy Quincy Homestead and the Friends of Butler's Pond, I know they have been diligently working and whatever the project is, it's going to have some impact, particularly on the neighboring pond."

Councillor Joe Finn, chairman of the finance committee, was concerned councillors had yet to review an appraisal of the site being undertaken on the city's behalf. Finn also echoed his colleagues' sentiment that community input is needed.

"To go back to the point that Councillor Laforest is making and Councillor Gutro is making as well, any engagement in the community process that they want to do, between now and the 16th is not a lot of time," Finn said.

In response to concerns about the timing, Koch's Executive Secretary Jim Fatseas said the administration doesn't view the Dec. 16 meeting as a deadline for the council to act.

"We're not setting the 16th as a deadline," Fatseas said. "We're bringing this before you and we'll go back and discuss with the mayor what your thoughts are – an appetite for a community meeting and other issues you'd like to get yourselves involved in."

In addition to his concern about public input, Gutro also said the city should consider the possibility of retaining the site in case land for a new school or other facility is needed in the future.

The old Central site, located at 1012 Hancock Street, is currently in a Residential B zoning district. That would allow the site to be used for a single-family, two-family, or multiple-family dwelling; a church or other religious facility; a school or childcare center; farm stand; or public market without a zoning variance. The site could be rezoned as part of the sale process.

Fireplace Tips

By Samantha Mazzotta

QUESTION: This is our first year in a house that has a working fireplace, but we've never used one before. We'd like to have a crackling fire during holiday get-togethers and throughout the winter, but so far I can't get one to light. I just get a lot of smoke in the room and no flame. Any tips? -- Dale C., Madison, Wis.

ANSWER: It can be a little tricky to get a nice fire going in the fireplace if you've never done it before, and there are some safety tips you need to follow as well.

First, be certain the fireplace is safe to use. If it was inspected and cleaned when you moved in, you're good to go; but if it hasn't, or you don't know when it was last inspected, contact a chimney cleaning service.

Make sure the area around the fireplace is safe: move furniture, rugs, boxes, paper and other flammable items several feet away. If you don't have a fire extinguisher nearby, get one and place it in an accessible spot.

To light a fire, you'll need several pieces of wood in various sizes, along with old newspaper or a firestarter stick. The small bundles of firewood sold in grocery stores and home-improvement stores are expensive, but they'll do for a first-time fire, as they're medium-size and usually cut to fit most fireboxes. You should also go out for a walk and collect an armful of fallen, dry twigs and small branches.

With your fuel ready, it's time to get started. Open the fireplace damper fully -- this flap is located at the top of the firebox (the area in which the fire burns) and when opened allows air to flow up the chimney and outward. It's probably the reason your house was filling with smoke when you tried to light a fire before.

Twist a half-sheet of newspaper into a cylinder. Holding it inside the firebox, light one end. Hold the burning end a few inches underneath damper for about 30 seconds or until you see smoke from the burning paper flowing freely upward into the chimney flue.

Stack your firewood prior to lighting the fire. Opinions vary on how to build the stack, but it's important to make sure air flows freely between the logs. I prefer stacking four small- to medium-sized logs in a square or triangular pattern. Tuck an assortment of twigs, shredded newspaper and small branches between and underneath the logs. Don't go overboard -- the kindling can flare up too high when lit.

Carefully light the kindling, starting near the back of the log stack and working your way forward. Once the initial flame has died down somewhat -- but before it disappears -- carefully feed in more twigs and branches. Properly seasoned logs should catch within a few minutes, but don't be disappointed if you have to repeat the process.

Once a good fire is going, make sure the protective screen is in place. Remember to never leave a fire unattended. And once the fire is out, don't remove the cinders until they are completely cold, and dispose of them in a fire-resistant container, away from the house or garage.

HOME TIP: Avoid burning pine logs in your fireplace. They can cause creosote, a sticky substance, to build up in the chimney more quickly, creating a fire hazard.

HYPER Robotics Team Visits Underwater Robot Manufacturer

Over thirty students, teachers, and alumni from the Quincy Public Schools HYPER Robotics team recently visited underwater robot manufacturer, Bluefin Robotics; headquartered in the Fore River Shipyard, Quincy.

Team HYPER (Helping Youth Pursue Engineering and Robotics) consists of students from both Quincy and North Quincy High School and competes in the annual FIRST Robotics Competition. The 2013-2014 school year marks HYPER's 19th year with a team entered in competition.

Bluefin Robotics is the main sponsor of the robotics team and in addition to donating countless mentoring hours, contributes funds towards the team's expenses including registration fees, robot development, facility maintenance, and year round operations.

Bluefin is an Autonomous Underwater Vehicle (AUV) provider offering research and development, technology integration, full-scale manufacturing, platform training, and operations support. Their renovated 55,000-square-foot facility houses three floors of engineering, manufacturing, marine operations, and corporate administrative functions. In addition, the company uses a 58-foot catamaran for AUV testing and demonstration. The workboat is equipped with state-of-the-art navigation and tracking technology and houses multiple computer workstations.

"It was an amazing opportunity to have a tour of the facility and learning about the AUV's; we learned new information that was just fascinating," said Quincy High School ninth grader Minhthu Nguyen.

The facility tour was led by Mechanical Engineer, Thaddeus Stefanov-Wagner and several other engineers and machinists who donated their time to meet with students and describe professional responsibilities, engineering services, and personal stories along the way.

Elio Daci, a 12th grade student at Quincy High, said, "The trip to Bluefin reminds me of all the support we get from Bluefin and how lucky we are to have them. It opened my eyes to different fields of engineering which I am looking into. It was interesting to see the AUV's they build and learn about how they are developed. Being able to ask specific questions to the engineers was an invaluable experience."

"Robotics students are introduced to new ways of thinking and learning and careers choices in science, technology, and engineering. As you can imagine, sustaining a robotics team with top of the line equipment, software, and innovative technology the financial obligation can become hefty. Our continued partnership with Bluefin Robotics makes it all possible," said Edward Smith, facilitator of the team.

Dec. 31 Last Day To Submit Nominations

Nominations Coming In For Henry Bosworth Award

Nominations are coming in for the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award presented by The Quincy Sun.

The award – formerly known as the Sun Citizen of the Year – was renamed in 2010 in memory of Mr. Bosworth, The Quincy Sun's founder and longtime publisher.

Last year, Paul F. Moody, Sr., commander of the Sons of the American Legion, Morrisette Legion Post 294 and coordinator of Flags for Veterans Island, was honored for longtime volunteer service and support of veterans, youth and others in need.

Moody, a lifelong Quincy resident, was selected for the award by a judging panel from among 19 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

He is the third recipient of the Bosworth Award and the 30th individual overall to be recognized by The Quincy Sun for outstanding community service.

The others are Ruth Elizabeth (Betty) DeCristofaro, a lifelong Quincy Point resident and community volunteer; and former Quincy City Clerk and current Norfolk County Commissioner John M. Gillis whose public service has spanned more than 50 years.

The other 27 individuals were honored when the award was known as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's Quincy Sun.

Nominations will close Tuesday, Dec. 31. After nominations close, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2013 Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Bosworth Award
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the their nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January or February.

BOB LaFLEUR, a Vietnam era Navy veteran and commander of the Quincy DAV Post 79, sounds Taps at Saturday's wreath laying ceremony at Mount Wollaston Cemetery commemorating the 72nd anniversary of the Empire of Japan's sneak attack at Pearl Harbor. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth were attacked and destroyed and many, many planes were taken out of commission. But that didn't stop us. We went on. We went on in Germany. We went on in Japan. And we did the job."

He concluded by thanking Quincy for not forgetting Pearl Harbor.

"Remember Pearl Harbor was the rallying cry," Comer said, "and thank God the City of Quincy will never forget that rallying cry."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes both spoke at the ceremony, saying Pearl Harbor, and the lessons learned that day, should never be forgotten.

"I think we should never forget – we should always be mindful that there are those who lurk, whether they're here in our own country or somewhere around the world, lying in wait to strike terror against this country," Coughlin said. "This was no more symbolized than this December 7, 72 years ago."

"As the granddaughter of two World War II veterans, Dec. 7 has been ingrained in my own memory and in the generational memory of my peers and I hope that will be the case going forward," Hughes, the chairwoman of the council's veterans services committee, added. "It's very important to remember the sacrifice of those who gave so much in World War II so that we might be here today and enjoy our freedoms."

JAKE COMER (at podium), a past National Commander of the American Legion, speaks at Saturday's ceremony commemorating the 72nd anniversary of the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor.

Good, Better News For North Girls Basketball

Open Thursday At Home Vs. Plymouth North

By BILL GRIFFIN

There is good news and better news for the North Quincy girls basketball team.

The good news is the Red Raiders return four of five starters from last year's 13-8 team (10-3 in the Patriot League) which qualified for the tournament and finished a game behind Scituate in the race for the Fisher Division title.

The better news is North adds a crackerjack transfer player in senior guard Grace Geary who scored over 800 points in her career at Falmouth High. She will fit in nicely for the graduated Caitlin Bulger alongside Jane Minton and Haley McKay in the three-guard set which coach Jessica Worden loves to run.

"It's the kind of off-season surprise a coach loves to get," smiled Worden. "Grace is just an excellent all-around player. She almost scored 1000 points at Falmouth. She does everything well and should be a good fit for us."

North won five straight and eight of nine last season when the Red Raiders assumed the identity of a defensive team. No team worked harder. The Red Raiders regularly held teams in the 30s. It began with the insertion of McKay, an exceptional defender, into the starting lineup and fueled a finishing kick which brought North to the threshold of a division title.

Not only did they play hard, they were smart. North liberally mixed man-to-man and zones during a game. They switched in and out of the press seamlessly. The Red Raiders scouted each team and game-planned their defense accordingly. This is not something every high-school team can do efficiently.

"We'll stress defense again," said Worden. "We were able to play different kinds of defenses depending on the opponent, and that helps us. I think we can get more from our press this year. We have quick guards and we should get steals. I'd also like to see our fast break improve. We have the speed. I'd like to see us look up the floor more for easy baskets."

The strength is the senior class. As the soccer and volleyball teams proved well in the fall, this is a remarkable senior group. Minton, McKay and center Maya Umoren are returning Patriot League All Stars in basketball. Umoren was an all-state volleyball player. Minton was a key contributor on the volleyball team. McKay was a Patriot League All Star in soccer. There is talent and leadership here.

"Without question, the seniors are our strength," said Worden. "It's a special senior class. They have the experience. They played in big games against Quincy (North was 2-1 last year vs. the Presidents), Scituate and in the tourney. They have confidence in big situations."

Umoren is almost always a double-double rebounder and scorer at center in each game. She is a 5'9" center, but she has relentless moves to the basket. She also has great hands which receives entry passes well. She is quick on the drive, boxes out and rebounds everything within reach.

"She's not a tall center, but she can guard centers over six-feet because she is aggressive and smart," said Worden.

Minton is a tenacious defender at point guard, and she has a strong drive and running left-hand shot. McKay consistently shuts down the opponents' top scorer. She did a wonderful job on Kellie Martin, who is now playing for Stonehill, in a win over Scituate last year. Worden would also like to see a bit more offense from her this season.

"Jane takes care of the ball well," said Worden. "Haley has an excellent outside shot. We're trying to get her to shoot more."

Geary will complete the three-guard backcourt. She shoots and drives well, scores inside and out and handles the ball cleanly.

"Grace has an excellent knowledge of the game and is just a very good all-around player," said Worden.

Junior Camille Mullaney returns at forward. Mullaney, a volleyball veteran and a high-jumper for the track team, uses her leaping ability to rebound well and clear herself for good inside moves to the basket.

"Her post moves have improved. Camille should have a good year for us," said Worden.

Sophomore guard Marissa McGue is a terrific athlete who saw extended varsity minutes as a freshman. Junior Molly Minton is another quick guard who plays defense and can shoot. This is a team with a glut of fast guards who should be a treat to watch.

"Molly has really improved in the off-season and she should see a lot of minutes," said Worden. "Marissa always hustles and is one of the most coachable players I've had."

Tristine Thong, Toni Kelly, Hannah Donovan, Syndey Chang, Kiera Clifford, and Dana Grasselli will also supply depth for the Red Raiders.

North lost on the road in the tourney by nine to a strong Durfee team before a loud, hostile crowd last year. Worden feels her team learned a lesson from the experience.

"We learned how important the home court is in the tourney," said Worden. "Every win is important determining seeding and who gets the home court. We want to contend in the division and do well in the tourney. Every game is important. I think we understand that."

Worden sees Scituate and Hanover as contenders in the division. In the league, she feels Quincy and Duxbury will be strong. North opens at home tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. in a non-leaguer against Plymouth North.

HAVING YOUR CHILD'S BACK

While backpacks are nearly perfect for carrying books and other things that young students need at school, they can present problems if used improperly. To avoid back problems, parents should make sure that their children's backpacks do not exceed more than 15 or 20 percent of their bodyweight. Just as importantly, parents should make sure that their children sling both straps over their shoulders when they put their backpacks on. It also helps greatly to show children how wearing a waist strap helps transfer weight from their shoulders to their hips and distribute the load better. Finally, if a child does complain of shoulder or back pain, an overweight backpack is the first place to look for its source.

Presidents Pack Inside Presence, Talented Guards

Open Friday At Home Vs. Bridgewater-Raynham

By BILL GRIFFIN

How do you like your basketball? Do you like to watch a skilled big player work close to the basket, score points, block shots and pull down rebounds by the bushel-full. Or do you like your basketball fast and uptempo? Do you like to watch quick guards step out in transition and push the ball up the floor for easy buckets?

Quincy's girls basketball team will give you both. Sophomore Nicole Jorgensen (6'4") will supply the inside production and the Presidents have a platoon of fast, talented guards led by senior captains Alyssa Lydon and Kayla McArdle which will allow the team to flourish in the open floor.

"We have a team of guards and centers," said coach Jeff Bretsch. "Nicole was excellent as a freshman and she's improved her game. I think we also have depth and athletic players with speed who can pass and handle the ball in transition."

Quincy was 10-10 last year. The Presidents surged at the end, winning three of their last four games to make the tournament. Quincy won a preliminary round game in the tourney before losing to powerful Braintree. The Presidents were hit hard by injuries last year. They sat at 6-9 and surged into the tourney beating two teams they had lost to earlier in the year. They played hard and didn't give in. It is a spirit which Bretsch hopes carries over into the upcoming season.

"I'm excited. We came together at the end of last season," said Bretsch. "I think we have sophomores who saw playing time last year and found out what it was like to play meaningful games at the varsity level."

Jorgensen will anchor the team. There is a lot more here than size. She has great basketball instincts. She has a soft touch and an excellent fallaway jumper close to the basket. She set single-game school records for rebounds and blocks as a freshman. She learned well how to get open, how to present an open lane for an entry pass from the guards. Also, keep in mind one thing. She is only a sophomore. She is still learning. She will get better and better.

"I think the biggest improvement I see in Nicole is her composure," said Brestch. "She has a better presence on the court and more confidence in her ability to score. She's learned to be patient and how to get open for her shot."

The season could well turn on a pair of wounded knees. Lydon is coming back from surgery to repair a torn ACL. McArdle dislocated her knee in soccer. Both look good early, especially McArdle. Lydon's injury was more significant and Brestch will likely watch her closely in the early going.

"They are both moving well in practice," said Bretsch. "I think Kayla will be fine. We may may have to monitor Alyssa's minutes early in the season, but she's worked very hard to come back for her senior season."

Lydon is one of the best point guards in the league. As a sophomore, she quarterbacked Quincy's team which made the sectional finals. She's quick, handles the ball well and can shoot. Before Lydon was injured, she and Jorgensen had formed a connection which the two would like to renew this season.

"They had a special bond going," said Bretsch. "Alyssa knows the passing lanes and how to find Nicole. They could be a good inside-outside combination."

McArdle is a lockdown defender and an excellent rebounder. She is a competitor and her energy is contagious. She does the little things. She hits the floor and battles for possession. She sets picks, blocks out and makes the right switches on defense. Her true value does not show up in the box score.

"She's aggressive and she plays with intensity. She's one of our leaders," said Bretsch.

Sophomore Gabrielle Jerehian stepped in for Lydon as a freshman and quickly looked comfortable on the varsity level. She hit the three, directed the team and led Quincy in scoring four times in the stretch run when a tournament bid was at stake.

"Gabby is fast, an excellent athlete," said Bretsch. "She can get to the basket. I'm excited about her. She could have a big year for us."

Kaylen Chapple, a transfer student, gives Quincy another skilled, polished guard. The Presidents will also get backcourt help from Kerry Phelan, Jill Mulvaney, Alyssa Camara, and Colleen Andrews.

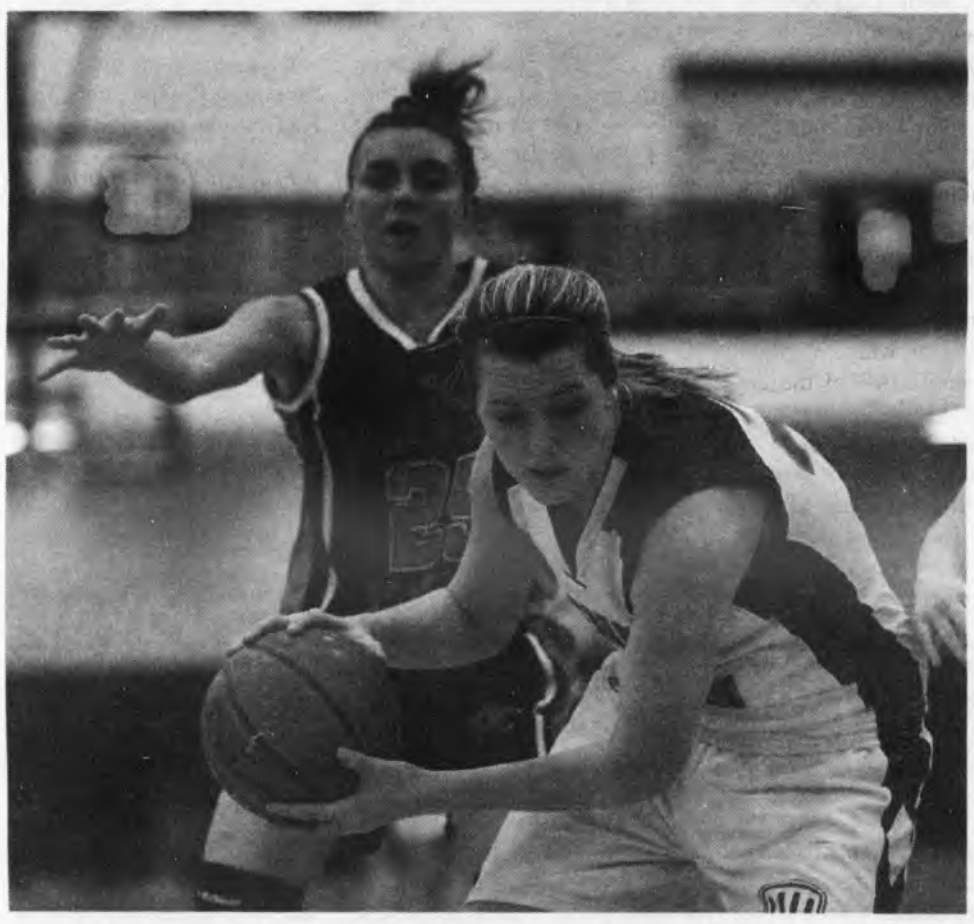

Quincy also has an excellent group of seniors who will supply leadership and depth. Taylor Parry, Leann McColgan, Caroline McBride, and Courtney Ryan will all play important roles for the Presidents. McBride supplied excellent inside play last season.

"Caroline is probably the only real forward we have on the team," said Bretsch.

The Patriot League is more balanced than it has been in years. The graduation of two elite players, Kelly Martin (Scituate) and Michela North (Duxbury), has opened up the race for first place and Bretsch thinks his team can compete for it.

"It depends on how quickly the young players develop," he said. "So far, I like what I see. We should be fast and aggressive. I like our mix of seniors and young players. We have a good chance to contend."

Quincy opens at home against Bridgewater-Raynham Friday at 6:30 p.m.

SIX-FOOT FOUR-INCH sophomore Nicole Jorgensen will anchor Quincy and give the Presidents production inside.

High Expectations For North Quincy Boys Hoop

By BILL GRIFFIN

Last season North Quincy took the city's basketball fans on a once-in-a-generation ride through the madness of March. The Red Raiders have a plan this season. They want to make it two rides to history in two years.

"A lot of our players were part of that special run," said coach Kevin Barrett who was honored as last year's Division 1 South Coach of the Year by the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association. "You could see how it motivated them in the off-season. They want to get back to where we were."

The Red Raiders were 15-5 last season and ran through Natick, Braintree and second-seeded Newton North to the sectionals finals where they fell to Mansfield. It was the first time in 40 years North made a sectional final. Over the past two years, North is 35-9, good for a first and second-place finish in the Fisher Division of the Patriot League.

There are teams which might shrink from the challenge of following such rich accomplishment. North embraces it. There are places where it might be difficult moving on from the comfort of the sweet memories of a team which captured the imagination of the city. North wants to build on it.

"This team wants to make history of its own," said Barrett. "We want to take the next step. I really think the sky's the limit. I feel if we play to our capability, we can compete with anyone."

There will something old and something new for North. The old part is they will be good again. The new part is they will have height, serious height. For the past three years, North was built around the outside game of Danny and Pat Gould and the slashing of Marquis McClendon. Height was an issue. Everyone had to go to the boards, or North would have rebounding issues.

Not this year. Seniors Anthony Green (6'8") and Efthim Butka (6'5") anchor a team which will likely have four starters over six-feet. Last year, five of North's first seven players were under six-feet.

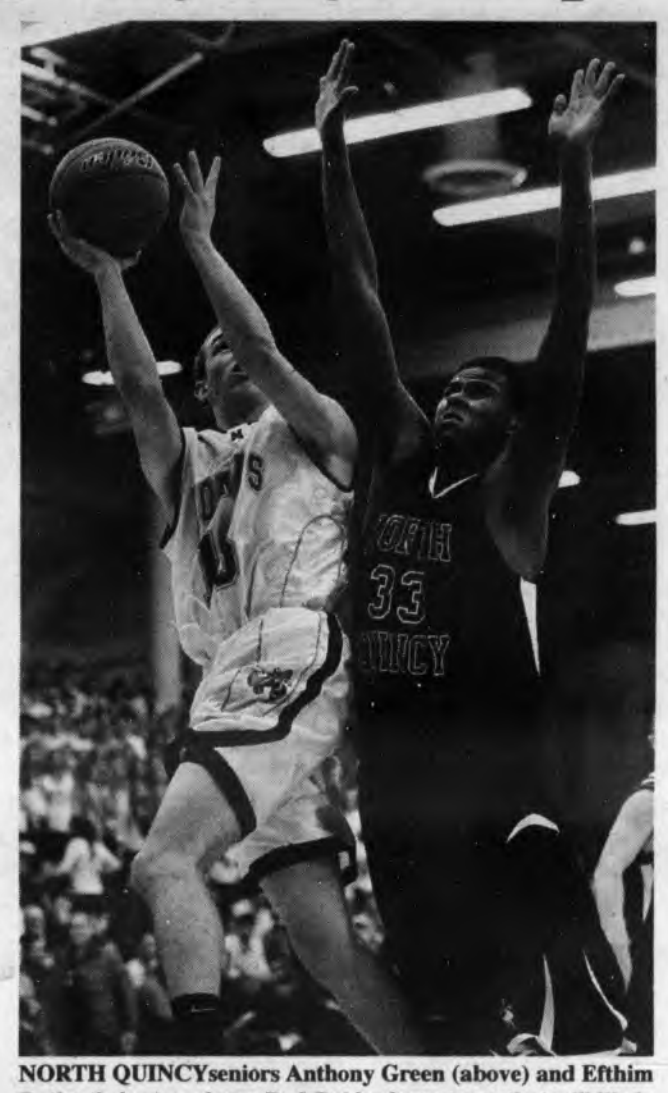

"This is the biggest team I've ever had. We've had some great practices so far, some wars under the boards for the ball," smiled Barrett.

Despite the height, the most important player on the team may well be the smallest player on the team. Senior point guard Kyle Richardson (5'6") will play the point. If he played on any team that didn't have Pat Gould, he would be a three-year starter. Nobody wants to play against him. He is a relentless defender, he can get to the basket, he handles well, and his outside shot has improved. Think of the word: Tough. How tough? Against Quincy at home last year, Richardson, all 5'6" of him, pulled down the offensive rebound which clinched North's comeback victory.

"He's gained a lot of experience the past two years," said Barrett. "A good point guard is invaluable for any high-school team and we've got a good one. I have all the confidence in the world in him."

Green and Butka are not only big and talented, they each have a year's experience playing with a great team under tournament pressure. Green broke into the starting lineup midway through last year. He is a rebounder, a shot-blocker and

Balance, Size Strengths For Quincy Boys Basketball

By BILL GRIFFIN

They are basketball players.

There no specialists for Quincy High's boys hoop team. There are no players who bring one skill to the court and let others worry about the rest of the game. The guards can rebound, defend and score inside. The big men can handle the ball and shoot threes. They are basketball players, complete, well-rounded basketball players.

"I honestly feel I have six interchangeable parts," said coach Dave Parry. "I'm comfortable with any of them bringing the ball up the court. They all shoot well and they rebound. I feel I can use them in any role depending on what the game dictates."

Last year, the Presidents finished 14-7. They took second behind Hingham in the Keenan Division of the Patriot League, won a tournament game against Randolph before falling to Sharon in the second round.

The Presidents also used four sophomores and a junior extensively last year. This year, they should gain the benefit of lessons only experience can teach. These kids played in packed, hostile gyms as sophomores. They played for first place at Hingham. They played three classics with North. They were at Sharon in the tourney. Not only can they play, not only can they play the whole game, they can play under pressure.

"They learned so much," said Parry. "You could see it in the fall league we played in Boston. Nothing phased them. All the games were close and they knew how to win at the end of games. They kept an even keel and they had short memories. Mistakes happen in close basketball games. You have to forget them and keep playing your game. I saw that in our kids by the end of last year."

Senior tri-captain Brendan Cunningham (6'2") should have a big year for Quincy. He was plagued by injuries last year, but played great in the off-season. He nailed eight three-pointers against a good team from Catholic Memorial in the fall league. He is an excellent defender, a strong rebounder, and can score inside and out.

"I think he's ready to take his game to the next level," said Parry.

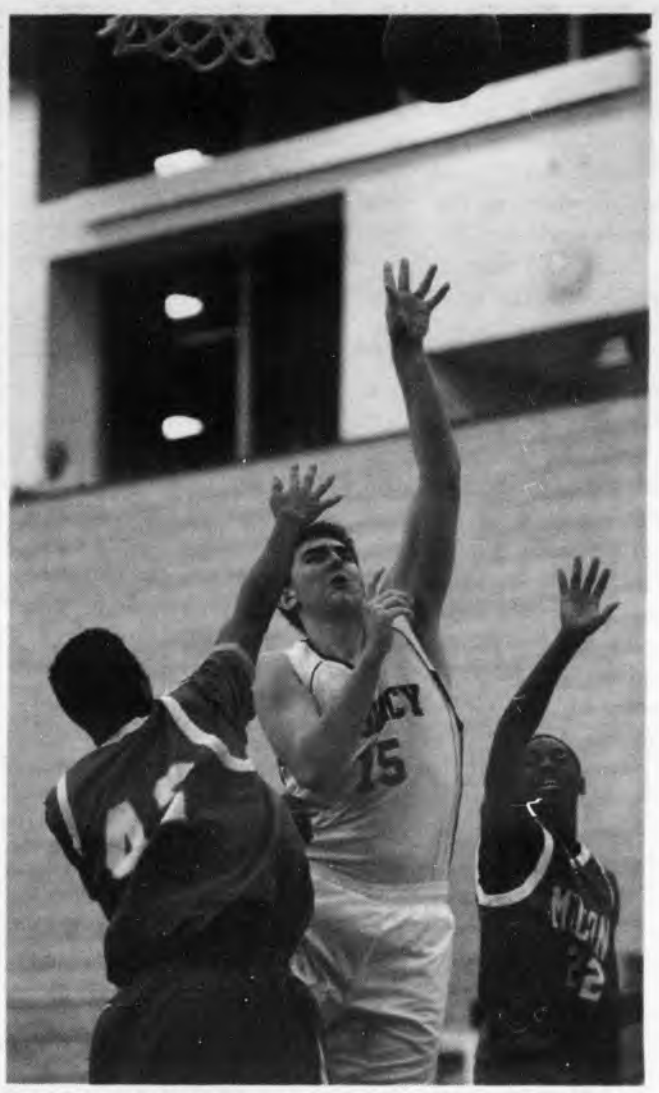

Juniors James Lam and J.T. Bain are also captains for the Presidents. Lam was the quarterback and Bain the split end for the 7-4 football team. However, there is one clear point to make. They are not football players who happen to play basketball. They are basketball players. Period.

Lam (6'3") is a dominating rebounder thanks to smart positioning and exceptional leaping ability. He is also quick to the basket. Bain (6'3") has an wide assortment of inside moves, twists and spins and a soft touch around the basket. He is also a solid rebounder. Bain, Lam and Cunnuingham should give Quincy a strong presence off the boards.

"J.T. has a great ball-fake. He gets opponents off their feet and out of position with it," said Parry. "James is just a great athlete. Both will need some time to get their basketball legs, but they're both winners coming from a winning football team. They have the mental toughness you get from starting football workouts in August. That's means a lot."

Junior Colin Evans (6'2")

Author Selects Quincy Girls All-Time Basketball Greats

BEFORE THE PASSAGE of Title IX, girls teams like the 1933 North Quincy squad (shown above playing the old 6-on-6 version of basketball) were relegated to intramural competiton against each other. Yearbook Photos Courtesy Thomas Crane Library

CATHY HACQUA was a key member of the 1973 Quincy team that won the Greater Boston League crown and earned the program's first postseason bid.

By ROB VANDENABEELE

All guts and no glory – that's what it meant to be a girls basketball player in the city of Quincy in 1971, the year they finally sanctioned varsity teams at the high schools.

The Girls Athletic Association (GAA), "which met every Tuesday and sponsored inter-class games that were timed, scored, coached and refereed by the girls," according to one yearbook writer, had become a relic of the past. Instead, girls began practicing and competing every bit as hard as the boys, but rarely earned any of the deserved recognition.

Here's a look back at some of the city's girls basketball greats, many of whom showed guts and all deserving of glory.

Denise Beresniewicz

Few fans paid attention to girls sports in the early days, but those who did remember North's Denise Beresniewicz. The city's first dominant female basketball player, she was a marvelous athlete who would've been great in any era. She regularly lit up opponents as leading point-getter for the Raiderettes during her junior and senior year. Her 1973 and 1974 teams came in 2nd place in the Greater Boston League and finished with winning records that would easily have qualified them for tournament play by today's standards.

Lois Malvesti

An accomplished three-sport athlete, she was the starting center for Quincy High's 1976 and 1977 teams, known in those days as the "First Ladies." Five-foot-eight and left-handed, she set a school record with a career-high 29 points during a sensational senior year in which she averaged 20 points, 14 rebounds, and 6 assists. Those gaudy numbers made her a back-to-back league all-star and helped her become the first girl from Quincy to earn All-Scholastic honors. Despite her lengthy list of accomplishments, it would be 30 years before she, Beresniewicz or any of the female athletes of that era received their varsity letters. In 2008, some three decades after the passage of Title IX, they finally received their coveted Qs.

Nancy MacDonald and Mary Kamb

Nancy MacDonald and Mary Kamb were two of the better players of the 1980s. MacDonald, who coach Peter Swanson called "the best total athlete in the Suburban League," ran the team from her point guard position. Kamb, the team's center, was a matchup nightmare for opponents. Together, the talented juniors helped the 1981 Quincy team secure the program's first state tournament birth.

The dynamic duo was even better during their senior year. MacDonald led the team in scoring while Kamb averaged double figures in points and rebounds. More importantly, both were formidable defenders, which turned out to be the team's forte and helped propel them to the first and only sectional finals appearance in school history. After the season, the pair collected All-Scholastic honors and headed off to college, MacDonald on a volleyball scholarship to URI and Kamb as a basketball recruit at Emmanuel.

Joanne Runge, Karen Bridges, and Christine Choukas

The early 1980s were also a productive period for crosstown rival North Quincy, where Joane Runge, Karen Bridges, and Christine Choukas formed one of the top trios on the South Shore. A clutch performer who specialized in buzzer-beaters, Runge led her 1982 squad into the postseason as a senior. She went on to a standout career at Bridgewater State, and was later inducted into the North and Bridgewater State halls of fame.

Bridges and Choukas became the focal point of the 1983 team that also made the tournament. Despite a wrist injury from taking a charge early in the year, Bridges averaged a double-double and even set the single-game school record with a 31-point outburst in the regular season finale. Choukas was among league leaders at an 18 points-per-game clip and made the All-Scholastic team. After graduating, she joined Runge on the Bridgewater State teams that qualified for three straight NCAA tournaments, while Bridges accepted a scholarship to Division 2 Merrimack.

Nancy Flukes

Referred to by one sports reporter as "Miss Everything," you'd have a tough time convincing North fans that Nancy Flukes didn't live up to that nickname. She was pivotal in leading the Raiders to three straight tournament appearances during the late 1980s, one of the program's most successful decades under the direction of coach Paul Bregoli. Along with record-breaking rebounder and shot blocker Eileen Warren, she made All-Scholastic as a sophomore, her first of three such distinctions.

By the end of her junior year, one in which she led the team in virtually every statistical category, her coach was touting her as one of the best players ever to dawn a North uniform. When her senior campaign came to a close, no one dared argue the point. Bolstered by the introduction of the 3-point shot, Flukes shot her way to 21 points per game, a league MVP award, and a mind-blowing 16 school records. The icing on the cake came late in the year when the Stonehill-bound senior became the first female in the city to amass 1,000 career points.

"The Twin Towers:" Gayle and Patti Morrell

Sisters Gayle and Patti Morrell were two other memorable players of the late 1980s. A pair of hustling 5'11" forwards who played for Quincy, they were known throughout the city as the "Twin Towers." Despite a lack of team success during their three-year varsity careers, Quincy's co-captains averaged double figures in points and rebounds each season and shared 1st-team Suburban League All-Star honors as seniors in 1988. That same year, Gayle made her second All-Scholastic team and Patti set the school's single-game scoring record with a scintillating 41-point performance. After graduation, both sisters went on to star at Plymouth State.

Kerri Connolly

Like the Morrell sisters, Quincy's Kerri Connolly didn't have the luxury of being surrounded with talented teammates. Named captain while only a sophomore, the team leaned on Connolly for both leadership and scoring over the next three years. And she delivered, leading the team in scoring, assists and floor burns each season. Her senior year of 1996 was one for the ages. She became Quincy High's first female to join the 1,000-point club, set or tied an amazing 11 individual offensive records, and capped her brilliant career with a spot on the All-Scholastic team.

Sara Stanton

Connolly wasn't the only record breaker in the city that year. Across town, North's Sara Stanton was not only shattering school records, but was making her way up the city's all-time scoring list. A blur of spins and fakes, she started her ascent up the scoring charts by averaging 15 points a game as a freshman. As a sophomore, she scored a school-record 39 points and made her first of three straight All-Scholastic teams.

By the time Stanton finished her junior season, the 6-foot forward with the patented step-through move had bested her own career high with a 41-point outburst, led the league in scoring at a clip of 24 points per game, and eclipsed the 1,000-point plateau. As a senior, the Raider scoring ace made history by first passing 1993 sharp shooter Sean Donovan, then school

And Selections For Quincy Boys All-Time Hoop Greats

By ROB VANDENABEELE

Any debate regarding the Bay State's best high school basketball traditions would no doubt include the city of Quincy. An Eastern Mass. power as early as the 1920s, more than a hundred players went on to excel at the college level, many of them earning scholarships.

A number of legendary coaches also contributed to Quincy's storied hoop history, with five of them making the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association Hall of Fame. Here's a look at some of those all-time hardwood greats:

Munroe MacLean

Perhaps the single most influential person in Quincy High's basketball history, he was a key member of the 1925 team that was invited to compete in the prestigious New England Tournament. In 1937, he began a two-decades long tenure as coach, guiding the program to nine appearances in the famed Tech Tournament. Three of those teams advanced all the way to the finals, with the 1951 outfit winning it. Shortly after his retirement in 1959, he became the first person to be inducted into the Mass. Basketball Coaches Hall of Fame.

The "Five Chips of Granite"

Earning one of the great monikers in school history, Quincy's unheralded 1938 team surprised everyone by winning all but one of its regular season games to earn a Tech Tournament bid. The team included captain Ralph Graham, backcourt mate Fred DiSantis, and a frontcourt consisting of George Page and Jack Pettinelli, a pair of 5-foot-5 forwards one newspaper reporter described as the "mighty midgets." Big Bill Joyce, the team's leading scorer, played center and was the only starter taller than 6 feet. The Blue and White eventually lost 16-14 to Chelsea in the finals, but DiSantis was lauded by opposing coaches for his fine play and earned a spot on the tournament All-Star team.

Larry "Sid" Cedrone

Described by one sports writer as "smooth-as-silk," North's "Slick" Sid Cedrone was everybody's All-American during his senior season of 1948. A South Shore legend by the time he graduated, the Raider guard was said to have few peers as a shooter and even fewer as a ball handler, making him one of the most sought-after college prospects in the state.

With an opposing team's scout in the stands during the last regular-season game he ever played, his coach instructed him not to shoot unless the team was in danger of losing. He never took a shot and North won the game anyway. Despite going scoreless, probably for the first time ever, he finished his career as the highest scoring player in school history.

The 1951 Tech Tournament Champs

Class A Tech champions and New England Tournament runners-up, the 1951 Quincy team posted the most successful season in school history. An all-senior starting five included frontcourt mates Pete Ramponi, Dick Drake and Larry Doyle, with George O'Rourke and Basil "Buzzy" Ciriello as guards, but the hero of the postseason turned out to be versatile sub Bob Page. The youngest sibling in a prominent basketball family, his inspired play during the late stages of the championship game sparked the team to its most memorable victory ever.

Doug Grutchfield

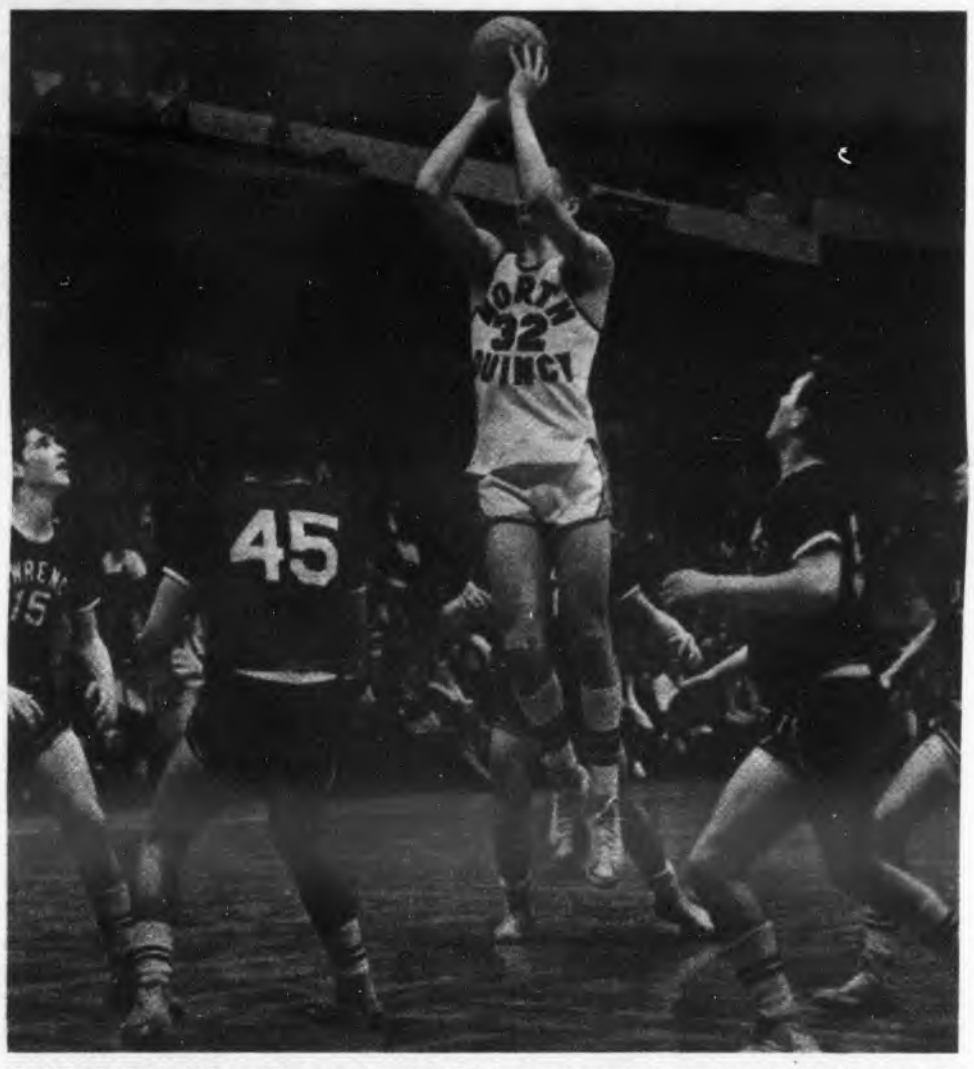

North Quincy's Doug Grutchfield burst on to the city basketball scene with a sensational sophomore season in 1955. Though his Raiders missed out on a Tech invite that year, he led them to a championship in the Bay State Tournament. The athletic 6'3" forward led his club into the Tech as a junior and became the darling of the North Quincy fans as a senior for leading the team to another Tech bid despite being the only returning veteran on his 1957 team.

Touted as the best player in the state by his coach, and labeled "the most prolific schoolboy basketball scorer in South Shore history" by one sports writer, Grutchfield averaged 25 points per game as a senior. More impressive, he became the city's first 1,000-point scorer, doing it in just three seasons.

The "Firehouse Five"

Having spent the better part of a decade as MacLean's loyal assistant, Marty Finnegan took the reigns at Quincy High in 1960 and two years later fielded one of the most exciting teams the city ever produced. Dubbed the "Firehouse Five" for their frenzied style of play, their equally fervent fans were rarely disappointed. They packed into the bandbox gym in the basement of Quincy High and watched with delight as Finnegan's go-go offense and intense pressure defense led the Presidents into the tournament.

Sensational ball handler Bobby Mina and ball hawk Bobby Chew made up the backcourt, forwards Frank Driscoll and Bill Donovan snared the rebounds, and captain Bill Nolan was the playmaker. Together, they treated 10,000 Boston Garden fans to an unforgettable come-from-behind overtime win over Malden in the quarterfinals. A record-breaking performance by Brockton's Steve Sarantopoulus ended their season a game later, but Finnegan summed up everyone's sentiment afterward when he told reporters: "They're quite a bunch of kids. The city can be proud of what they've done."

NORTH BIG MAN Dave Zink and his 1966 Raiders were ranked number 1 in New England for much of the season.

Dave Zink

The Raiders just missed a Tech invite during his sophomore season, and only lost two games the following year, but his 1966 squad was the one fans still look back at with both regard and regret. The memorable team nearly went unbeaten during the regular season and at one point was rated tops in all of New England. It featured magnificent athletes like Pete Varney of eventual Harvard football fame, Rich Wanless who went on to be a major league pitcher for the Pittsburg Pirates, and Rich Starsiak, who played college basketball at Division 1 UMass Amherst. The star of the team, however, was the 6'6" silky-smooth Zink. The state's premiere center that year, he was the team's leading scorer, top rebounder, and best shot blocker.

Prohibitive favorites, his Raiders earned the top seed in the tournament, but after a two-week wait were upset by Cardinal Spellman (who played 3 Catholic Tournament games during that same stretch).

The scheduling inequity touched off a controversy among area coaches that made the newspapers, but taking a cue from its fearless leader, the North Quincy team had immediately visited the Spellman locker room and been the first to congratulate the victors. Zink was eventually named Top Schoolboy Sportsman and soon returned to his boyhood home, accepting a scholarship to play for the University of Wisconsin.

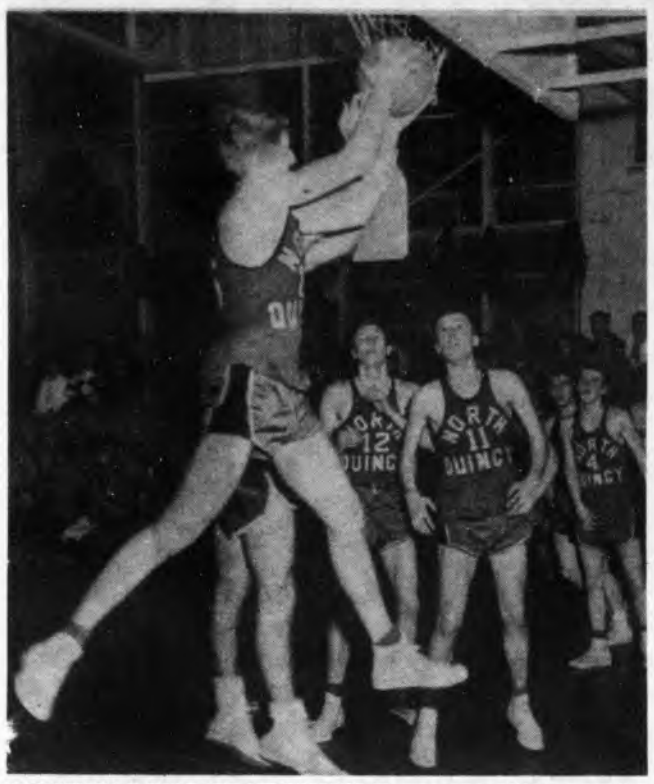

Mark Jellison

Another of North's many standouts of the 1960s was Mark Jellison. A 6'2" physical specimen who played guard for the legendary Knobby Nolan, he led the 1969 Raiders to the school's final Tech appearance. His 20 points-per-game helped his club capture the Greater Boston League crown and helped him cop the league MVP award.

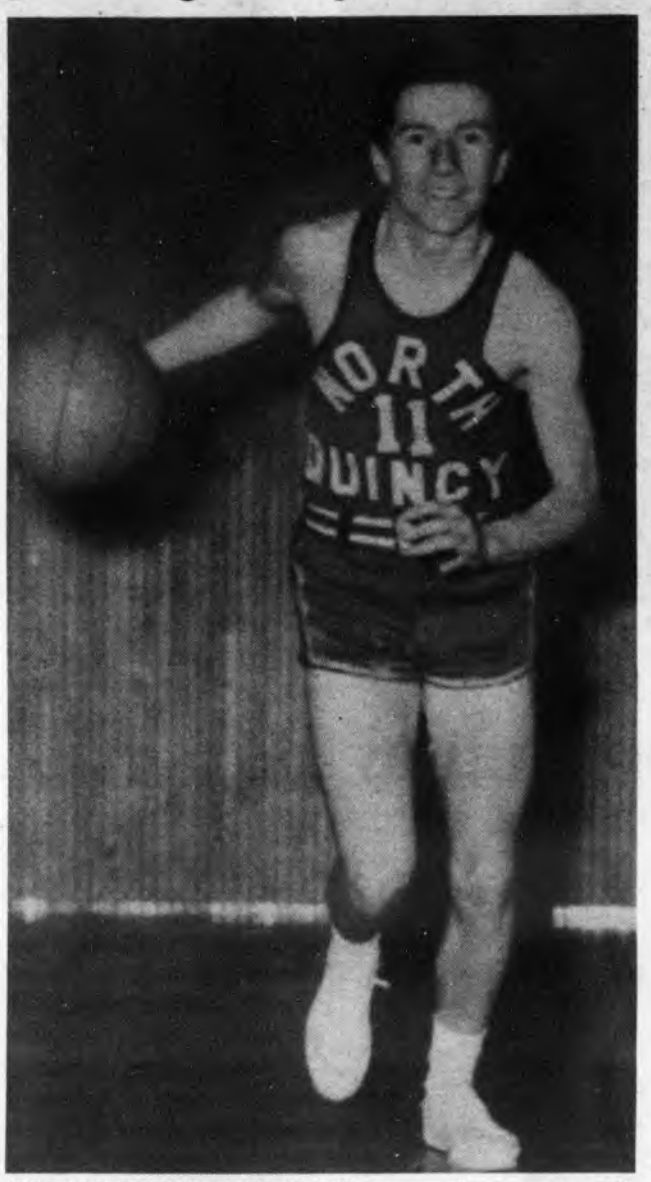

Considered the top college prospect in New England by many, Jellison chose to attend Northeastern where he carved out a brilliant three-year career. In his final year, he averaged a team-high 19 points per game and was chosen team MVP. After graduating, he was selected by the Washington Bullets in the 1973 NBA Draft, making him the only player from the city of Quincy to achieve the distinction.

1964 ALL-SCHOLASTIC Ted Stevenson also served as his alma matter's coach from 1987 to 2002.

North's 1972 "Mighty Mites"

Entering the 1971-72 season, North coach Knobby Nolan didn't have high expectations. With the team's biggest player standing 6-foot-3, and their diminutive center just 5-foot-10, who could blame him. One sports reporter even labeled the team "Mighty Mites." But a funny thing happened on their way to the basket: Nolan's underrated team, one he later described as "100 percent heart," went on to post the most successful season in school history.

The offense was under the direction of passer extraordinaire Bob MacKay, the pivot held down by the undersized John Stevens, and much of the scoring was provided by Ken Marsters and Jamie Doherty, but the team's X-factor was captain Dave Nelson. His last-second shot that put the finishing touch on the team's perfect regular season, the only one in school history. After the final buzzer sounded, the home crowd rushed the floor and hoisted Nelson onto its shoulders. A few minutes later, the net had been cut down and North's hero was wearing it around his neck. The team's winning ways continued through most of the postseason, with the Raiders advancing all the way to the sectional final before finally losing to Catholic Memorial and ending its magical run.

Jack Uhlar

By the mid 1970s Quincy had joined the all-powerful Suburban League and hired upstart coach Joe Amorosino to guide them. Though his tenure was relatively brief, it was also quite noteworthy. Most of his teams made the tournament (during an era when you still had to win 70 percent of your games to qualify) and many of them featured players who went on to play at the next level. Standout Bill Dacey headlined the 1975 team, All-Scholastic Steve Priscella led the early 1980s teams that waged epic battles with Cambridge, but the best of the bunch may have been big Jack Uhlar.

Uhlar stood a 6-foot-6 and could score a dozen different ways. During his senior season of 1977, he showcased his myriad of moves almost every night. As the season neared an end, the sensational center picked off one school record after another. By the time it was all said and done, his accomplishments included a 40-point outburst that set the single-game scoring standard, single-season marks for both points (473) and rebounds (253), and most rebounds in a career with 697. During his final game in a Presidents uniform, a record-setting 65th (in those days, 3-year varsity careers were the norm – no one played as a freshman), he became the first Quincy High player to reach the 1,000 point milestone.

Brian Ross

Brian Ross was one of those players who just kept getting better. After a solid sophomore season for North, followed by a summer of national competition on the AAU circuit, he tore it up for the Raiders during his junior year. Averaging double figures in both points and rebounds, he led the 1997 team to the semifinals of the state tournament, impressing college recruiters and becoming one of Al Skinner's first blue chip recruits at BC.

With the recruiting process behind him, Ross turned his attention to finishing his high school career. By then a 6'8" tower of power, he led the state in scoring with a gaudy 36 points-per-game average. In early February he set a city record with a 48-point eruption, then shattered the record a week later by hitting for 54. After collecting league MVP honors and being named to the Globe & Herald Super teams, he suited up for the 1998 Boston Shootout team before piecing together a fine career at BC.

Doug Scott

Quincy High shooting star Doug Scott made his first All-Scholastic team while only a sophomore, prompting legendary coach Bob Fisher to say: "He makes plays on the court you'd never think could happen." Scott's unthinkable playmaking continued during his junior year, helping him average 25 points and 8 assists a game while eclipsing the 1,000-point plateau. But it was his senior season that turned out to be truly unfathomable.

Scott's first milestone of the 2009 season was breaking Dan Kelly's Quincy High career scoring mark, a feat he accomplished in early January. Two nights later, he struck for a school record 53 points against rival North, in their own gym no less. The crowning accomplishment came later that month when he did the unthinkable by surpassing Brian Ross (1,520) and Sarah Stanton (1,533) to become the city's all-time scoring king.

Afterword

Having thoroughly researched Quincy's illustrious hundred-year hoop history, I realize many worthy players have been left out.

Here are a few: inspiring Quincy captain Eddie Dunn, the first of the city's players to make the All-Tournament team back in 1935. Ronnie Dearden and the 1955 Quincy team that lost the Tech finals in sudden-victory overtime, a squad the venerable Monroe MacLean called "his gamest ever." 1958 scoring sensation Eddie Dunham, one of the city's first jump shooters. Then there's Ed Miller, inducted into the North Quincy Athletic Hall of Fame as both a player and coach. And 1981 workhorse Mark Millane, a two-time Al-Scholastic that Miller called the most dedicated kid he ever had. Not to mention North standout Ron Bradley, a 1968 all-star who later led New England in scoring while at Eastern Nazarene and was selected by the New York Nets in the 1972 ABA draft. Don't forget 1985 Quincy scoring ace Bill Shaughnessy (28 ppg). Or 2002 North stalwart Phil McGillicuddy, a 1,000-point scorer who racked up 81 consecutive varsity starts. Dan Gould, North's latest greatest, led his squad to the sectional final and even made the Herald's Dream Team. And the list could go on and on.

record holder Doug Grutchfield, and finally pulling away from crosstown rival Connolly. By season's end, she'd run her career total to an astonishing 1,533 points, a city record that lasted more than a decade.

Bonnie Hirtle

When she entered Quincy High in 2000 as a wide-eyed freshman, expectations for the girls basketball program weren't too high. After all, the team hadn't qualified for the postseason during her lifetime. But when new coach Jeff Bretsch arrived a year later, Hirtle shot her way to an All-Scholastic honorable mention and the Presidents missed the tournament by just one win. Suddenly, expectations had changed.

With their 5'7" shooting guard averaging more than 20 points per game, Quincy's 2003 team rattled off 14 regular-season wins and earned a tournament bid for the first time in 20 years. A year later as a senior, Hirtle led the league in scoring, set a school record with 142 career 3-pointers, and became the program's all-time scoring leader by amassing 1,348 points. After graduation, the two-time All-Scholastic continued her successful career at nearby Curry College, twice earning Academic All-American honors.

Rebecca Goreham and Siobhan Carnell

North fans have never witnessed a better three-year stretch than when Rebecca Goreham and Siobhan Carnell headlined the hardwood between 2005 and 2009. A burly 5'10" forward and a slashing 5'7" guard, they gave opponents fits whenever they took the court together. The real fun started in 2007, when both made an appearance on the All-Scholastic team while leading the Raiders to the Atlantic Coast League crown. During the next two seasons, they etched their place in North basketball history.

NORTH'S REBECCA GOREHAM barrels to the basket in 2008, the year her Red Raiders made the school's only sectional semifinals appearance.

With Goreham taking aim at many of the school's records and Carnell not far behind, the 2008 team enjoyed one of the program's finest seasons ever, advancing all the way to the sectional semifinals. Along the way, Goreham became the school's all-time assist leader, top career rebounder, and first 1,000-point scorer in more than a decade. After graduating and departing for Fitchburg State, she left her talented teammate in charge. Carnell responded by leading her 2009 squad to another league title, breaking Sarah Stanton's single-season scoring record, and becoming just the fourth North girl to go over 1,000 career points. Shortly after the season ended, she accepted a scholarship to Division 2 Franklin Pierce.

I know, I know! How could I forget 2002 North standout Lauren Sleeth, a four-year starter and two-year captain who set a school record with 280 career steals . . . or her teammate, April Suprey, who Doug MacFarlane said was the best player he'd coached during his tenure . . . and what about shooting forward Jessica Page, who led her 2006 Quincy team to the school's first tournament victory in 25 years, then became the all-time leading scorer at Regis College four years later . . . or two-time All-Scholastic Meagan Tobin who finished her career as a President in 2008, less than 30 points shy of the 1,000-point mark . . . And Maya Umoren, who will be going for her third straight All-Scholastic honor this coming season. Regrettably, there are many deserving others, if only I had enough ink.

Like many in the story above, author Rob Vandenabeele grew up playing basketball at his neighborhood playground. He later became a coach and referee at the high school and college levels. has expanded his overall game in the off-season. He has the knack of being able to guard the basket and also avoid foul trouble which is rare for a high-school shot blocker.

"He has great length and that instinct you can't teach for blocking shots without making contact with the man. He has worked hard on his game in the off-season," said Barrett.

Butka has not only grown two inches, he has grown stronger. He had a solid all-around season last year featuring an elbow jumper, a good move to the bucket and solid rebounding. He had a coming-out party in the tourney against Natick in which he showed exactly how good he can be.

"We hope the Natick game becomes the norm for him this year," said Barrett. "He's expanded his range from last year. He can shoot the three now. We have to keep reminding him he's better with the elbow-jumper and driving to the basket."

The Goulds and McClendon won more games over their three years than any trio of North players in the school's history. They will not be easy to replace. The biggest issue will be outside shooting. Nobody shoots the ball like Danny Gould. Nobody.

"A coach gets a shooter like that once in his career. You can't replace that," said Barrett.

Junior Matt Gerakis (6'1") gained experience last year. He is a good shooter who can run the break and get to the basket. Junior Solomon Umoren (6'0") is a slasher who finishes well at the basket and may draw the same difficult defensive assignments which McClendon handled.

"Matt is a knowledgeable player. Both Matt and Solomon get out well in transition and will give us the chance to get easy baskets," said Barrett.

Senior Greg Clarke (6'2") is an experienced big man off the bench. Jacky Chen has shot the ball well in practice. Seniors Matt Donovan, Vinny Tran, Antoine Allen, Pat Janeiro and Andy Hee will supply depth. Sophomores Tyshawn Moore, Dahky Drake, and Conor Pound will also see action.

For all the talk of height, offense, and shooting, the Red Raiders will succeed if they play defense. They won in the tourney last year because they got stops against high-powered offenses. Barrett sets a goal of giving just 50 points per-game. With Richardson and Green leading the defense, North has a chance of hitting that mark on most nights. If the Red Raiders hold teams under 50, they will win.

"Our defense triggers everything," said Barrett. "In our division, Scituate should be good. They won it last year, they have a lot back and should be strong again."

is one of the best free-throw shooters in the league. He has a great touch on his threes and also drives well to the bucket. Junior Drew Myers (6'0") handles well and has the rare ability for a high-school player to shoot the three off the dribble, not off the catch. The two may shoot as well as any pair in the league.

"The last kid I had who could shoot a three off the dribble was Doug Scott and that's a big compliment," said Parry. "They are both calm, even-keeled kids as well."

Christian Callahan transferred to Quincy last year. He played varsity the second half off the year and has the complete inside-outside games that Parry loves.

"He was one of our best players in the fall league," said Parry.

The biggest question is point guard. Jaquan Harris and Tino Goncalves will be difficult to replace. Goncalves was a pure point guard which is the only skill Quincy lacks on its roster going into the season opener at Bridgewater-Raynham Friday.

"It's the question everyone is asking," smiled Parry. "Right now, Drew is our quasi-point guard, but he shoots the three too well. I don't want to lose that. We'll rotate and do it by committee. I'm comfortable with any of the six players bringing the ball up the floor. I'm confident they can handle any trouble or situation."

Kevin Williams, who transferred from Charlestown, played well in the fall and early-season workouts. Tyler Beach, Johnny Marsinelli and Ken Sorenson will supply valuable depth.

The strengths are balance and size. Quincy has 11 players on the roster six feet or better. They have players with a wide range of varied skills and priceless experience. Parry thinks the Presidents can contend for the Keenan Division title.

"Whitman-Hanson, Duxbury and Silver Lake will all be tough in the division," said Parry. "North Quincy is very good on the other side. I think we've finished second for the last four years. This year we would like to take the next step."

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Monday, December 2, 2013, at approximately 5:04 p.m., Officers' Paul Foley and Melanie Reeves were dispatched to a Common Street area home for a report of a violation of a harassment prevention order that had just occurred, namely that the suspect appeared on the property.

While en route, the dispatcher advised the responding Officers that Officer John O'Donnell had filed a domestic violence report earlier in the day which resulted in Quincy District Court issuing a Harassment Prevention order Docket.

Upon arrival, the Officers met with the victim who said that her former friend and roommate had knocked on her front door just minutes earlier in violation of the order and walked away in an unknown direction. The victim showed the Officers what she described as a disturbing e-mail sent by the suspect last night that triggered the protection order. The email, dated the day before, stated, "I know you worry about your kids, hopefully nothing is going to happen because of me. I am down here (referring to basement where she stayed) and can burn your whole family. I want everyone to suffer, I feel like one day or sooner gonna burn your house."

The victim lives in the home with her husband, her teenage daughter and her 3 year old baby. The caller stated she was in fear for her family's safety so she filed the report earlier in the day with Officer O'Donnell and was then granted the protection order from the court. The order was served in hand to the suspect at 1:50 p.m. by Officer Holland, who escorted her off the property and advised her no less than three separate times that if she returned she would be arrested. Due to the seriousness of the threat, Officer Foley requested additional units respond to the area in an attempt to locate the suspect.

LT. DAN MINTON

Several minutes later, Officer Dan Francis located the suspect standing at the bus stop near the intersection of Copeland and Miller Street. Officer Francis placed the suspect, a 42 year old Quincy resident, under arrest for violation of the protection order.

The suspect became uncooperative with Officers during the arrest but was quickly subdued and transported to the station for booking. A set of keys were taken from her, which fit the home of the victim. These keys were returned to the victim, who was also advised to change the locks in the event that the suspect has more keys.

Prior to the completion of her booking, the suspect made suicidal statements to an Officer in the cell block, so she was transported by ambulance to Quincy Medical Center under Police guard. A representative from the Mental Health Crisis Team said that the suspect was evaluated and she would seek psychiatric assistance for her. The victim expressed grave concern about the suspect being released from custody and requested to be notified if and when that occurred. The suspect was held without bail. Nice Work!

New Car Selling Telemarketing Scam: From the Federal Trade Commission. People attempting to sell their cars often place an ad on a community website hoping for a quick sale. Sellers may get a call from what someone claiming to be from a professional company promising to put you in touch with a buyer for a fee. The caller promises to refund your money if your car isn't sold. The seller pays the fee, figuring there is nothing to lose since you are "guaranteed" to be reimbursed if the company does not sell your car for you. The problem is that there is no buyer and there is no refund – it is a scam to bilk consumers. There may be legitimate companies available to help sell your car, so be sure to go online and use a search engine to find out about the company and its' track record.

ONLY THE THREE Magi were left in the crèche Thursday morning after thieves ran off with the statues of Jesus, Mary, Joseph and a lamb, and moved a shepherd out of the manger. The three statues of the Holy Family were found Friday and were returned to the nativity scene Friday. The lamb is still missing and the theft is still under investigation.

it's possible, though 'far-fetched,' that the suspects could be charged with a civil rights violation or a hate crime.

The nativity scene, which includes statues of the three Magi, a shepherd and several animals in addition to the four stolen last week, was donated to the city by Quincy's Roman Catholic parishes more than 15 years ago in honor of the late Rev. Cornelius Heery, the longtime pastor at Sacred Heart Parish in North Quincy. The set cost somewhere between $15,000 and $20,000 when it was donated by the parishes, according to Koch, who was head of the Park Department at the time.

"It's a beautiful setting – the crèche is gorgeous. It's gorgeous artwork, pieces that were donated by the Catholic parishes of Quincy in memory of the late Father Heery who was pastor at Sacred Heart for many, many years," Koch said.

"These figures are worth thousands of dollars apiece. This is a very expensive set. When the Catholic parishes made the decision, led by Sacred Heart [and] Father [John] O'Brien the pastor, in memory of the pastor Father Heery, they did it in a very, very nice way. This is a magnificent set. When you look at the detail of the artwork of these figures [it is] very impressive. This isn't something that's easily replaceable or cheap to replace."

The mayor also re-iterated the city's commitment to keeping the nativity scene, other Christmas decorations, and Quincy's Chanukah menorah, in the same area following the completion of the Adams Green project.

"Once we're done with the Adams Green I think all of what we do here for civic celebrations, particularly with the whole Christmas festival weekend, will continue to have a place in Adams Green as will the other figures – the Chanukah menorah – all those items we celebrate as a community of faith will have a place in the Adams Green," Koch said.

"There's no question about it. But as we do that we're certainly going to be mindful of the challenges of trying to protect the figures from being stolen."

Quincy Police are continuing to investigate the thefts, and anyone with information on the incident or the whereabouts of the missing lamb statue is asked to contact the department at 617-479-1212.

Chamber 'Shop Local' Holiday Campaign

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce has kicked off its 2013 Shop Local Campaign with the sound of bells!

Quincy Chamber members are displaying special "Shop Local" door bell hangers in an effort to remind consumers to shop locally this holiday season.

"The Small Business Saturday effort during Thanksgiving weekend has definitely heightened awareness about the importance of shopping locally, but we want to remind everyone that it's not just a one-day event," said Donna Mavromates, Vice President of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

"The Quincy Chamber's Shop Local campaign began last year and residents and consumers can visit TheQuincyChamber.com and sign up to receive coupons and specials from Quincy Chamber members all year long."

Stacy Myers and Erin Glennon of the Quincy Chamber came up with the idea of hanging bells on the doors of local merchants as a visual reminder to people that when they purchase from a small business they are also helping the local economy. "Our members love the idea and have been very receptive about displaying the bells," said Myers.

The bells will be on display throughout the holiday season.

Council Rejects Food Sales At Gas Stations

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday night rejected a proposed ordinance that would have given gas stations in Quincy the green light to sell food and beverages.

The ordinance, introduced by Council President Michael McFarland, would have allowed the License Board to permit gas stations to sell food and dairy products. Gas stations in Quincy can currently sell food and drinks through vending machines on their premises, but other sales are prohibited.

Under the ordinance, station owners applying for permission to sell food and dairy would have been required to complete a site plan and traffic study. Only stations on parcels between 15,000 and 20,000 square feet would have been eligible, and the size of any buildings premises could not exceed 5,000 square feet, with a maximum of 75 percent of the total floor area dedicated to retail space.

The ordinance was amended twice during Monday's meeting before it was rejected. The first amendment, suggested by McFarland and formally proposed by Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, would have prohibited a gas station with a license to either sell or repair vehicles from applying to sell food and beverages. According to City Clerk Joseph Shea, 13 of Quincy's 23 gas stations currently have licenses to either sell or repair vehicles.

The second amendment, introduced by Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee, was intended to prevent someone from opening a combination gas station and convenience store whose revenue was generated primarily from food and beverage sales and not from the sale of fuel.

After passing both amendments unanimously, the council rejected the ordinance 6-3 with only McFarland, Laforest, and McNamee in support of allowing food and beverage sales. Speaking in opposition to the ordinance, Councillor Doug Gutro noted many gas stations that would have been allowed to sell food and beverages under the ordinance are already located near convenience stores.

"It would be beneficial to [gas stations] but there's not a huge demand or absence of a convenience store in the service area of these locations," Gutro said. "It would be a benefit, perhaps, to the owners of the gas stations. But it's not as if it would be inconvenient to walk across the street from the gas station next to the Alumni (on Hancock Street) to go the 7-Eleven across the street."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, who opposed similar proposals in the past, said allowing food and beverage sales could worsen traffic issues at already problematic gas stations.

"This is really a site-specific issue. There are some locations where it is going to have more impact than others," Coughlin said. "I don't want to point out any names but I know one particular gas station in Ward 3 that I think would qualify and if it did there's already a disastrous impact by a business that is right next door to it. I don't want to exacerbate what is already a

Koch: Downtown Project Will Move Forward

'The Commitment Is There; People Aren't Walking Away,' Mayor Tells Business Leaders

'I AM CONFIDENT that we're going to move forward with our downtown project,' Mayor Thomas Koch told some 200 business leaders at a meeting Tuesday morning at the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Mayor Tom Koch said Tuesday during a special meeting about the Quincy Center redevelopment plan that he is confident the downtown project will continue to move forward.

"People have said to me the last several months, 'what's taking so long, what's happening, why is it taking so long and my first reaction is have you ever done a project at home? The reality is these things take time," said Koch.

"When you multiply that by the complexity of this job, little problems, little challenges, big challenges, big problems, you have to keep it all in perspective. Having said that let me first say, that I am confident that we're going to move forward with our downtown project."

Over 200 members of the business community gathered at the Quincy Chamber of Commerce to listen to Koch's update on the first phase of the downtown redevelopment: Merchants Row in the area of 1400 Hancock Street, Chestnut Street and Cottage Avenue also known as Block 4. Business leaders also had an opportunity to express any concerns with the project.

One of the major concerns voiced by those in attendance was Suffolk Construction's involvement with the project going forward after speculation arose that they had backed out of the project.

"Suffolk was chosen by Street-Works to be the construction manager on the project. They are not involved at the moment," said Koch.

"All the bills have been paid to date and Twining is doing the redesign of Block 4 as we speak. I don't know if Suffolk will be the builder at the end of the day. That's not a decision the city makes – that's a decision the developer will make.

"We'll certainly have some input in that but I can tell you if it's not Suffolk it's going to be a major contractor that has the ability to do it. If Suffolk is not involved in Block 4 my guess is they will be involved in step one as they continue to plan step one along with Street-Works."

"A lot (has) been said in the papers, a lot (has) been talked about in general, and I get questions all the time about different aspects of the project but the reality is Street-Works is in fully, Quincy Mutual is in fully, LaSalle's in fully.

"The commitment is there; people aren't walking away from this project no matter what you hear," Koch added.

Koch said that the contract fully protects the City and if the developer walked away today the work that they have already completed will be on their dime, but that in a couple of months he expects to go before the City Council with some suggestions on some changes to the contract to allow the project to move forward.

"When you look at the cost of land, the cost of construction, the negotiations that we had and performed with Street-Works, there are a lot of pieces in there that are expensive, and I'm proud of what we negotiated and put in there. But in order to get the job done we may have to change a little bit," said Koch. "I would expect that within the coming months I may be before the City Council with some suggested changes to make this project move forward."

Koch also talked about a number of changes with the design of the project such as the 15-story building that was planned to go up in Block 4 of the construction plan and has now been changed to a six-story building.

"If you look at the original master plan there was no 15-story on that spot," said Koch.

A good idea ... from Colonial Federal Savings Bank
You have a house with lots of equity. Good cash flow. Investments you don't want to touch right now. And you have something you want money for. What's the best way to get it? How about a 15-Year refinance from Colonial Federal? With fixed monthly payments, it's more predictable than an adjustable-rate home equity line. Way less expensive than credit cards. And you'll have it all paid off in 15 short years ... quicker if you make extra payments along the way. Would a 15-Year refinance be good for you? THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 2, 1811, Timothy Pickering, a Federalist from Massachusetts, becomes the first U.S. senator to be censured when the Senate approves a motion against him. Pickering was accused of violating congressional law by publicly revealing secret documents.

• On Dec. 30, 1862, the U.S.S. Monitor sinks in a storm off Cape Hatteras, N.C. Just nine months earlier, the ship had been part of a revolution in naval warfare when the ironclad dueled to a standstill with the C.S.S. Virginia (Merrimack) -- the first time two ironclads faced each other in a naval engagement.

• On Jan. 5, 1920, the New York Yankees major-league baseball club announces its purchase of the heavy-hitting outfielder George Herman "Babe" Ruth from the Boston Red Sox for the sum of $125,000. The deal paid off as Ruth went on to smash his own home run record in 1920, hitting 54 homers.

• On Jan. 1, 1946, on the island of Corregidor, in Manila Bay, 20 Japanese soldiers approach a lone soldier -- literally waving a white flag. The soldiers had been living in an underground tunnel and only discovered that the war was over by reading it in the newspaper.

• On Jan. 3, 1967, Jack Ruby, the Dallas nightclub owner who killed the alleged assassin of President John F. Kennedy, dies of cancer in a Dallas hospital. The Texas Court of Appeals recently had overturned his death sentence for the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald and was scheduled to grant him a new trial.

• On Jan. 4, 1974, President Richard Nixon refuses to hand over tape recordings and documents that had been subpoenaed by the Senate Watergate Committee. Nixon would resign from office in disgrace eight months later.

• On Dec. 31, 1984, Bernhard Goetz, the white man dubbed the "subway vigilante" after he shot four young black men on a New York City subway train, turns himself in at a police station in Concord, N.H. Goetz claimed that the men, all of whom had criminal records, were trying to rob him and that he had acted in self-defense.

A Wish List

Dear Santa:

Where did this year go?

Funny how the holidays can sneak up on you. And I know I promised last year to write to you sooner but it's been extremely busy here at the newspaper. But I do hope you will take a good look at this wish list before you load up your sleigh next week.

SANTA

These are some gift ideas for some of the nice boys and girls who live in the City of Presidents. Some of these suggestions are serious but others are intended to be on the humorous side.

So, here goes, Santa:

To Mayor THOMAS KOCH: a completed and fully leased Merchants Row, the first new project in the $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center. This is a gift that a lot of other people are looking forward to, including taxpayers and business leaders. . . . City Councillor JOE FINN and School Committeewoman KATHY HUBLEY – new gavels. Looks like they will be elected City Council President and School Committee Vice Chairperson respectively at inauguration ceremonies Monday, Jan. 6 . . . Cong. STEPHEN LYNCH – a fair share of federal aid for his district including of course the City of Quincy. . . City Clerk JOSEPH SHEA – well Santa, the last few years I've asked for 100 percent response to the city's annual census so I'm not going to beat that drum this year. I think the Clerk could really use a smooth transition to the City Hall annex when the rehabilitation of the James R. McIntyre Government Center (Old City Hall) is completed next year. The clerk and his staff will be moving into the glass annex building after being located in the Munroe Building the past few years. Oh, and Santa, how about a reminder to every voter to actually get out and vote for every election. . . . Former Norfolk County Dist. Atty. GEORGE BURKE – a trip to the Final Four at AT&T Stadium in Texas to see his beloved UMass Minutemen win the NCAA Div. 1 Basketball championship. He'd like a seat next to Dr. Julius Erving. George held the UMass basketball scoring records until Dr. J came along. . . Norfolk County Register of Deeds BILL O'DONNELL – he'd like the same trip to Texas but wants his alma mater, Georgetown, to win the title . . . A box of your finest cigars for former City Clerk and current Norfolk County Commissioner JOHN GILLIS . . . Local architect JAMES 'JINGLE' EDWARDS – a cameo appearance in a remake of "For Whom the Bell Tolls." You might want to throw in some extra batteries for his remote that rings the United First Parish Church bronze bell. . . MARALIN MANNING – no retirement rocking chair for her, Santa. She could use an iPad to help coordinate all the commitments and appointments she has even though she has stepped down from her post at the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. . . . Former Mayor FRANK McCAULEY and his wife Sandra - round trip airfare tickets to visit their daughter Jennifer and family who have relocated to sunny Florida. Santa, we could use some of that sunshine here in New England so that the winter isn't too long. . . School Committeewoman BARBARA ISOLA - brand new cookware for her Quincy Access TV show "Into the Frying Pan." And how about throwing in a guest appearance on "Giada at Home.". . . Outgoing School Committeewoman EMILY LEBO – 20 months of free storage for her political campaign signs. She may need them again if she decides to run again in 2015. . . Quincy Chamber of Commerce President DEAN RIZZO - plenty of ribbon cutting ceremonies for new businesses locating (and relocating) in Quincy. He could use a new pair of oversized scissors, too, Santa. . . Interfaith Social Services Director RICK DOANE, Quincy Salvation Army Captains TIM and NICOLE ROSS, Quincy Crisis Center Director REV. DAVID WOOSTER, DOVE Director SUE CHANDLER, Quincy Community Action Program Director BETH ANN STROLLO, Germantown Neighborhood Center Director KATHY QUIGLEY and other leaders of social service agencies: ample donations and other financial assistance to meet all their goals to serve the needy in our community. . . Father Bill's President and CEO JOHN YAZWINSKI – a ceremony marking the end of the homelessness. . . . To the staff at the QUINCY ANIMAL SHELTER - safe, stable homes for all the pets that need adoption . . . To all the members of the QUINCY SCHOOL COMMITTEE – shovels to break ground for a new Sterling Middle School. . . .MARGARET LaFOREST, new marketing and tourism director for the Quincy Chamber of Commerce: a banner year for visitors to The City of Presidents. . . Ward 2 Councillor BRAD CROALL and his fiancée, Lorelle Gay: perfect weather when they walk down the aisle on their wedding day. Or will the marathoners run down the aisle?. . . Ward 3 Councillor and muscle car enthusiast KEVIN COUGHLIN, a guest appearance on the Mecum Auto Auction. . . State Republican Party Chairwoman KIRSTEN HUGHES, robust registration of new Republican voters in Quincy. Ditto on the Democratic side for ALICIA GARDNER. . . Ward 6 Councillor BRIAN McNAMEE, a summer without Red Tide in the Hummock Cove area in North Quincy. . . To all the VETERANS ORGANIZATIONS in Quincy – new members to help increase the ranks. And how about more people attending the Memorial and Veterans' Day Parades. . . Mayoral spokesperson CHRIS WALKER, a gift certificate to Gunther Tootie's only if he goes the year without a cigarette. . . The incomparable JOE BRILL – a standing ovation at Fenway Park and red carpet treatment by the Boston Red Sox when he throws out a ceremonial first pitch at a game this season. Hey Santa, maybe you can arrange a perfect game by a Red Sox pitcher at the same game. . . State Rep. BRUCE AYERS – a large assortment of wheelchairs for his Quincy Helping Hand program. . . To CHRISTINE PRENDEVILLE – a new stash of never-before-seen historic photographs taken by her father, Timothy Prendeville. . . And more Quincy postcards for City Historian TOM GALVIN'S popular "Quincy's Yesterdays" postcard feature in The Quincy Sun . . Police Chief PAUL KEENAN, Fire Chief JOSEPH BARRON and all our public safety personnel – safe shifts while serving and protecting the public. . .

Santa, we also hope you'll take a look at the list of gifts that Quincy's fifth graders would like to give this year (special section begins on Page 28). We have some very creative, thoughtful and inspiring young minds in Quincy and we think you and our readers will enjoy this year's 'If I Could Give One Gift It Would Be . . ." holiday wishes.

We also wish to extend the happiest of holidays to all of our loyal advertisers, faithful readers, dedicated newscarriers and other good friends for continuing to support The Quincy Sun as their weekly community newspaper.

Merry Christmas, Happy Chanukah and a very Happy and Healthy New Year from all of us at The Quincy Sun.

Scenes From Yesterday

MERRY CHRISTMAS
from QUINCY, MASS.

Largest Christmas Tree in United States.
85 feet high contributed by Retail Merchants.

CONTINUING WITH A Christmas tradition here at The Quincy Sun, this is the 19th year that we have featured this postcard that was published 79 years ago in 1934. This 85-foot fabricated Christmas tree was decorated with 600 lights and two stars on top that blinked alternatively. The Merchants Division of the old Quincy Chamber of Commerce erected the tree in front of what was then the Granite Trust Company's main bank building in Quincy Square. Now owned by Street-Works, the first floor banking hall is a branch of the Bank of America. Also on the street level, alongside the bank since 1948, is Rogers Jewelry Store. Merry Christmas. Official JFK Mourning Period Over, Christmas Mail Down

The official mourning period following President Kennedy's assassination ended this week, but postal officials speculated that the president's death had reduced holiday mail. Nationally, mail was down 2.5 percent.

Quincy post office Supt. Frank Anselmo said that the national trend was reflected in Quincy and the Boston area. During peak days last year the Quincy post office was handling more than one million pieces of mail a day. With just a few days left before Christmas, the mail had yet to reach the one million piece level.

NASH TO HEAD DISTRICT COURTS

Judge Kenneth Nash, presiding justice at Quincy District Court, was nominated by Gov. Endicott Peabody to the new post of Chief Justice for the district courts.

Nash, age 75, was first appointed a special justice by Gov. Samuel McCall to the part-time Quincy court. When the Quincy court was made full-time, Gov. Joseph Ely named Nash presiding justice.

Prior to his judicial appointment, Nash served as Weymouth's state representative, state senator, and town counsel for 20 years.

He played major league baseball for the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Cardinals and was baseball coach at Tufts College for 20 years.

FIRST BASKETBALL CLINIC AT QHS

Quincy High School basketball coach Marty Finnegan announced that in conjunction with the annual alumni game, the school would sponsor its first basketball clinic.

The purpose of the clinic was to show parents and fans how the team operated offense and defense in a game. The receipts from the evening's events would help fund the "Q" Club's scholarships.

Among those expected to play on the alumni team were Tom DiTullio, Ken DiBona, Frank Driscoll, and George Burke.

Historic Postcard Collection Donated To Crane Library

A unique collection of historic Fore River Shipyard postcards and photographs has been donated to the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy by author and collector Wayne G. Miller. The collection includes 47 photographs circa 1904 to 1910, and 270 postcards.

Miller grew up in Quincy and graduated from Quincy High School. His memories of family excursions over the Fore River Bridge, hoping to see a ship going out to sea, inspired him to begin collecting Fore River Shipyard ephemera and eventually publish "Fore River Shipyard", a postcard history, in February of this year.

"As a boy, I spent many hours studying at the Thomas Crane Public Library," said Miller. "Over 40 years later, I came back to the library to do research on my book and began thinking of ways to repay the kindness extended to me by the staff. The library has an impressive Shipbuilding Heritage collection and I am excited to add my Fore River Shipyard postcards to the library's collection."

The library plans to preserve and catalog the postcards and then scan them so they will be easily accessible online.

In addition to donating his shipyard collection, Miller also made a financial donation to the Thomas Crane Public Library Foundation. Foundation president Tina Cahill thanked Miller for his generous support, saying that "his interest in preserving the tradition and history of the library and of Quincy is evident in his book, postcard collection and philanthropy."

Now a resident of Maryland, Miller owned a collectibles business for 25 years, specializing in postcards and books. He is a member of the Quincy and Braintree Historical Societies and the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum.

THE COMBINED QUINCY High Horizons & North Quincy High Select Choirs, directed by Timothy Crew, will perform in concert Friday, Dec. 20 at 3:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy. STRINGING ALONG

If you own a pearl necklace, be sure to have it restrung yearly (if it is worn often) or whenever the cord stretches or there is play between the knots. The danger in extending the intervals between restringing is not so much that the string might break (this would endanger the life of only one pearl because all pearls should be strung with knots in between), but that dirt and perspiration on the string will work their way into the pearl. Whether a pearl is natural or cultured, it is most vulnerable at the holes' openings. Once dirt does get inside a beaded pearl, it can corrode and darken the color of the pearl. Frequent restringing helps prevent this problem.

To preserve your pearl's radiance, avoid letting them come into contact with cosmetics, hair spray, or perfume. Always put on your jewelry as a final touch, after applying make-up and styling hair. Although you treasure your pearls and want them to be safe by storing them in a security box, doing this for long periods may cause pearls to dehydrate. Remember "pearls want to be worn." Marie's Kitchen

Arlene's Eclair Ring

Every now and then when I hear from my readers, they will send me one of their favorite recipes.

And so it was recently when I went to work and found a recipe from Arlene Mazzarella from North Quincy,

She writes that she has made today's recipe for an eclair ring for many family dinners and that it's one of her favorites.

ARLENE'S ECLAIR RING

1 cup water
½ cup butter
1 cup flour
4 eggs
1/8 teaspoon salt

Heat water until it comes to a boil. Add the butter and salt and stir until melted. Add the flour and stir until mixture separates from the side of the pan.

Remove from heat. Add the eggs one at a time beating vigorously after each one.

Shape into a circle on a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a 400-degree oven for 40 minutes. Turn off the heat and leave in the oven for another 15 minutes.

When cooled, cut in the middle and fill it with either a cream or Chantilly filling.

CREAM FILLING

1 pints heavy cream
2 packages instant vanilla pudding
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix milk with pudding and beat until thickened. Beat the heavy cream until stiff. Add the vanilla and then fold in the pudding. (she added one envelope of Knox gelatin to the cream to make it firm.

CHANTILLY FILLING

2 pints heavy cream
4 teaspoons instant coffee
1 cup powdered sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla

Add the instant coffee, vanilla and the sugar to the heavy cream and whip until done.

'Welcome Winter' Walk In Houghs Neck Dec. 29

Participants should meet at 2 p.m. at the intersection of Pawsey Street and Rhoda Street in Houghs Neck.

Because the tour will be canceled for icy, windy or inclement weather conditions, call 617-472-0799 for update or more information.

Acts Of Kindness At In Sync Center Of The Arts

The holiday season is full of excitement at In Sync Center of the Arts.

Each year, In Sync finds a special way to involve their students in the season of giving.

From making blankets for children in need, to collecting stuffed stockings for seniors who are alone for the holidays, past holiday seasons have been buzzing with the giving spirit inside the In Sync walls. This year proves no different!

Students and families at In Sync collected hundreds of toys for Toys for Tots this year and is in the process of creating a "kindness chain" that will hopefully span the length of the Adams Street parking lot on Dec. 23rd

For weeks now, children who enter the studio can write an act of kindness they have made on a paper chain link and add it to the Kindness Chain. The chain is growing and growing every hour and it is turning into a beautiful sight!

IN SYNC CENTER of the Arts students with a "Kindness Chain" and gifts for Toys for Tots.

"The holiday season is the perfect time to open our children's minds about the simple act of giving and thinking of others," said In Sync owner Teri Mangiaratti. "There are so many opportunities for adults to give but with children it gets a little tricky. We try to find small ways that kids can actually be involved and see the process of giving come full circle.

"For this year, writing their act of kindness on their paper chain link gives them that one moment to think about something they did that day that was selfless and kind. If that can sneak into their subconscious during every other day of the week, then it is working"

Some of the paper links express adorable acts of kindness – "I helped my sister read," "I donated a toy for Toys for Tots," "I picked up some coupons that a lady dropped at Shaws," "I found a wallet at a restaurant and returned it," "I helped my friend at school" – all of these things count in so many ways.

For more information about the classes at In Sync Center of the Arts 550 Adams St., visit the website www.insyncarts.com.

Injured in an accident?
Should you talk to a lawyer?
Absolutely yes!
After an accident, you may be in shock. You've been hurt. Chances are you've never had anything like this happen before. You aren't sure what to do next, or who you can trust. Koch: Downtown Project Will Move Forward

"In fact the reality was when the 15-story plan was put forward Mass Historic and others were very concerned about the height in that location, that 1400 Hancock St., the Bank of America Building. It has historic value that they felt the 15-story would dwarf that and create some major shadows. As the project went forward we were looking at parking under, so when you look at a 15-story building in addition to two levels of parking under, the cost became challenging."

"The city project is going to have several buildings that will exceed six stories and be up to 20 stories. I believe we will be seeing several 15, 18, 20-story buildings in the downtown. This project in Block 4 will end up with three 6-story buildings on that same parcel."

Koch said that things are going to change in the plan due to the market conditions always changing.

"I want to make it perfectly clear today that we are moving forward. Things change, this deal was signed three years ago, market conditions change," said Koch.

"We had all hoped there would be a major office building as the first part of the phase, that's not going to happen, the market isn't there, we recognize that, it will happen during the course of the planning and construction of our downtown but it's not going to be the first piece of it. So we are moving forward recognizing that we have to change the plan accordingly to get it done. There's a lot of square footage in the area we're talking about and there's a lot of room to deal with those market changes as that continues to happen."

Koch also talked about the Adams Green project, which he says is expected to begin in the spring. When asked why there was such a large increase in cost, from $15 million to $25 million, for the project Koch said those numbers are just estimates and when the project starts to truly be laid out is when the real numbers will come to be.

"First of all those are estimates early on in the project, as we get into design and we start to lay out the project real numbers come to be. The reality is there is a lot of infrastructure work that has to be done to create the place for the Adams Green, as it's being called today," said Koch.

"The Adams Green is going to have some incredible park elements. There is no national monument to John Adams and the Adam's family. I view when we're through, the Adams Green project is going to be of national significance, will be a national monument to the two Presidents and their wives who are buried in the First Parish Church. Today it's a rotary, it's embarrassing when visitors come here, and we're better than that.

"The Adams Green is going to show what we feel about our national monument but also create some incredible public space that we'll be able to use for civic celebrations, as well as for the public to just enjoy on

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Arlene's Eclair Ring

Every now and then when I hear from my readers, they will send me one of their favorite recipes.

And so it was recently when I went to work and found a recipe from Arlene Mazzarella from North Quincy,

She writes that she has made today's recipe for an eclair ring for many family dinners and that it's one of her favorites.

ARLENE'S ECLAIR RING

1 cup water
½ cup butter
1 cup flour
4 eggs
1/8 teaspoon salt

Heat water until it comes to a boil. Add the butter and salt and stir until melted. Add the flour and stir until mixture separates from the side of the pan.

Remove from heat. Add the eggs one at a time beating vigorously after each one.

Shape into a circle on a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a 400-degree oven for 40 minutes. Turn off the heat and leave in the oven for another 15 minutes.

When cooled, cut in the middle and fill it with either a cream or Chantilly filling.

CREAM FILLING

1 pints heavy cream
2 packages instant vanilla pudding
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix milk with pudding and beat until thickened. Beat the heavy cream until stiff. Add the vanilla and then fold in the pudding. (she added one envelope of Knox gelatin to the cream to make it firm.

CHANTILLY FILLING

2 pints heavy cream
4 teaspoons instant coffee
1 cup powdered sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla

Add the instant coffee, vanilla and the sugar to the heavy cream and whip until done.

'Welcome Winter' Walk In Houghs Neck Dec. 29

The Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program will sponsor a "welcome winter" walk Sunday, Dec. 29 around one of the least known open spaces in Quincy, the Crusher.

The tour will offer beautiful views of Rock Island Cove and explore how wildlife adapts to winter and how the Crusher got its name.

Participants should meet at 2 p.m. at the intersection of Pawsey Street and Rhoda Street in Houghs Neck.

Because the tour will be canceled for icy, windy or inclement weather conditions, call 617-472-0799 for update or more information.

Acts Of Kindness At In Sync Center Of The Arts

The holiday season is full of excitement at In Sync Center of the Arts.

Each year, In Sync finds a special way to involve their students in the season of giving.

From making blankets for children in need, to collecting stuffed stockings for seniors who are alone for the holidays, past holiday seasons have been buzzing with the giving spirit inside the In Sync walls. This year proves no different!

Students and families at In Sync collected hundreds of toys for Toys for Tots this year and is in the process of creating a "kindness chain" that will hopefully span the length of the Adams Street parking lot on Dec. 23rd

For weeks now, children who enter the studio can write an act of kindness they have made on a paper chain link and add it to the Kindness Chain. The chain is growing and growing every hour and it is turning into a beautiful sight!

"The holiday season is the perfect time to open our children's minds about the simple act of giving and thinking of others," said In Sync owner Teri Mangiaratti. "There are so many opportunities for adults to give but with children it gets a little tricky. We try to find small ways that kids can actually be involved and see the process of giving come full circle.

IN SYNC CENTER of the Arts students with a "Kindness Chain" and gifts for Toys for Tots.

"For this year, writing their act of kindness on their paper chain link gives them that one moment to think about something they did that day that was selfless and kind. If that can sneak into their subconscious during every other day of the week, then it is working"

Some of the paper links express adorable acts of kindness – "I helped my sister read," "I donated a toy for Toys for Tots," "I picked up some coupons that a lady dropped at Shaws," "I found a wallet at a restaurant and returned it," "I helped my friend at school" – all of these things count in so many ways.

Police Seek Information On Manhole Thefts

More Than Three Dozen Covers Stolen Since July

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy Police are warning drivers and pedestrians to be wary of missing manhole covers following a string of thefts over the past several months.

Since July, more than three-dozen manhole covers have been stolen throughout the city, according to Police Capt. John Dougan. Dougan believes the thieves are taking the metal covers and selling them as scrap metal. Anyone who spots a missing manhole cover is asked the contact the Police Department immediately because of the danger an open manhole poses to drivers and pedestrians.

"They're dangerous," Dougan said. "Call the police right away. We don't want anyone to drive into them or to fall into them."

Quincy isn't the only community dealing a rash of manhole cover thefts. Dougan said police in Boston, Brookline, Everett, Braintree, and Weymouth have all reported similar problems.

"It's happening all over the greater Boston area," Dougan said.

Quincy Police are investigating the thefts, and anyone with information is asked to contact the department at 617-479-1212. Dougan said the department is following up on reports from the Braintree Police Department that a white pick-up truck may be linked to several of the thefts.

Christmas Pageant At Quincy Point Church

Christmas customs from the American Southwest were included in the original pageant offered by members of the Sunday School and Youth Group at the Quincy Point Congregational Church last Sunday.

The play included a portrayal of "Las Posadas." During December, residents join evening processions as Mary and Joseph search for shelter in Bethlehem before the birth of the Santo Nino (Christ Child). "Posada" means "lodging" or "inn."

A wreath depicting a Native American Holy Family adorned the pulpit and the Spanish lullaby "A La Nanita Nana" was sung during the pageant. Afterwards the children also joined in the Las Posadas tradition of enjoying breaking open a Pinata in the shape of a star.

Council Rejects Food Sales At Gas Stations

problematic situation in that neighborhood from March until October every year."

Speaking in favor of his ordinance, McFarland explained that many neighboring communities including Braintree and Weymouth allow gas stations to sell food and beverages. Quincy residents, he said, should be able to buy milk when they refuel their vehicles during their commute home.

"This is the new way that Americans shop. One stop shopping – they don't stop at 100 different little stores now," McFarland said. "This makes people's lives easier. They stop on the way home from work. They fill their tank up with gas and they pick up a half-gallon of milk for supper. What I am trying to do here is give the people of the City of Quincy the opportunity to make their lives easier."

McNamee said the customers interested in purchasing either food or beverages from gas stations would be motorists already at the station to refill their tanks.

"I don't think that giving these CV (common victualler) licenses to some of these operations are going to make them now new destination-driven businesses," he said. "These are incidental, convenience purchases. And I think it will increase the sales tax for the city, which is good."

a daily basis. When you step off that MBTA station the look and the change is going to be just incredible, it's going to be a far more welcoming environment for visitors but also for the citizens of our City to enjoy. It's a great, great project."

Koch announced during the meeting that the City has brought in a major company that deals with construction management to become more comfortable with the numbers, and that come 2014 residents can expect to see a building coming out of the ground in Block 4 and will also hear about some of the retailers that will be coming in.

"I've added to our team, a piece that I think in retrospect I would have brought in a little sooner, with tremendous legal advice, tremendous financial advice, architectural engineering advice, for construction numbers we brought on Jim Kirby from C3 out of Boston, which is a major company that deals in construction management. I want to be comfortable as we go forward making decisions, more comfortable with numbers and Jim Kirby brings to the table for us an our team that expertise we were lacking a little bit," said Koch.

"The next three months are going to be very, very crucial and very interesting as we continue to move the plans forward. I expect in 2014 you'll see a building coming out of the ground in Block 4, and you'll see and hear about those leases that have been signed for step one."

"I know that there are those folks that probably hope that things fail, those naysayers out there, they're out there and they're chirping I recognize that. The reality is we as a city, we as a community are committed to getting it done, and it's going to happen here in Quincy Center," Koch added.

Austin Family Donates $13,000 For Firehouse Improvements

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council unanimously accepted a gift of $13,000 from the family of Firefighter John T. Austin, which will fund improvements to firehouses across the city.

Firefighter Austin, age 37, died on July 8 while responding to a call. In September his parents, Lillian and John, announced their intention to donate the money for station improvements at a ceremony at the West Quincy station their son had been assigned to. The council's vote Monday night allowed the city to formally accept the donation.

Speaking at the council meeting, Fire Chief Joseph Barron and Paul Moody, the head of the Quincy Firefighters' union, thanked the Austin family for making the donation.

JOHN AUSTIN

"Lillian and John Austin, the parents of Firefighter John Austin, were very generous in providing this donation and it will do a lot," Barron said. "John will always be in our hearts. He'll always be remembered as the wonderful, young firefighter he was. I am just amazed at the Austin family – the strength that they have and the willingness they have to continue to come back and look for ways to improve the city and improve the fire service.

"It's very gracious of the Austins to start this fund to try and help our department live a little better in the stations," Moody added. "Not that it's all that bad, but as it is they're old buildings built in the early 1900s and desperately in need of repair. To the Austin family, we thank them tremendously."

Mayor Thomas Koch plans to establish a special committee to review repairs needed at the city's fire stations and how to allocate the donation from the Austin family.

Council Supports Limits On Drug Testing Facilities

By SCOTT JACKSON

At Monday night's meeting, the City Council approved an amendment to Quincy's zoning ordinance that would require companies to receive a special permit before opening a drug testing facility.

The amendment to the zoning code, proposed by Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, defines drug testing labs as a medical cleaning, meaning they must seek approval from the Zoning Board of Appeals before opening. Palmucci proposed the amendment in September after Secon, a company that provides drug testing, closed their facility in Brewers Corner over the summer and a new company opened a lab there. Palmucci said such facilities shouldn't be located in residential areas like Brewers Corner, which is close to both the Sterling and Lincoln-Hancock Schools.

"I think there are better areas than residential neighborhoods to have these things located –closer to the courthouse, closer to the police station, certainly business zones would be better," Palmucci said. "But not in a mixed-use zone that has residential, and certainly not in a location that Secon was located in, which was within 100-200 yards of an elementary school and middle school in either direction."

Councillor Joe Finn opposed Palmucci's zoning amendment. He said drug-testing facilities can help people struggling with addiction, adding that the amendment was too broad.

"Alcoholism, addiction, all of these kinds of problems – they're universal," Finn said. "They're experienced in every community and we can't simply keep saying 'no, let's keep it over here, it's somebody else's problem.' It's all of our problem and I just believe this particular amendment is too broad."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall agreed that testing facilities can help people, but said they need to be more carefully located in the city.

The council approved the zoning amendment in a 7-1 vote, with only Finn opposed and Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin recused.

TREATING CHRONIC PAIN

While some experts define "chronic pain" as pain that lasts longer than six months, others simply say that it can be defined as "pain that extends beyond the expected period of healing." To complicate matters further, chronic pain may arise from a single trauma or exist in the absence of any definitive cause. Whatever the cause, pain signals can remain active in the nervous system for weeks, months, or even years. In the meantime, the estimated 100 million Americans suffering from chronic pain look for effective treatment. According to recent statistics, nearly two-thirds (63%) of that number visit their family doctor, 40 percent schedule appointments with orthopedic surgeons and other specialists, and one-quarter go to a chiropractor.

At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we are committed to relieving pain using the true principles of chiropractic care. MARIO 'MIKE' CASALI (second from right) was recently honored by the School Committee for his 41 years in the Quincy Public Schools during a dedication ceremony on Dec. 11. The school's gym was dedicated in his honor. Casali spent 26 years of his QPS career as a physical education teacher and coach at the old Central School. With him at the dedication are his wife and children, from left: Nancy Curran, Joan Casali, Jack Casali, wife Norma Casali, and Marilyn Endicott.

Central School Gym Dedicated To Mario 'Mike' Casali

100 Family, Friends, Former Students, Athletes Honor Longtime Quincy Educator, Coach

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

A crowd of nearly 100 family, friends, former students and athletes gathered in the auditorium of Central Middle School to pay tribute and show their support for long time Quincy educator and coach Mario 'Mike' Casali as the school committee dedicated the new gym in honor of his career.

"Every kid in the class was my guy to focus on. If you needed help I helped you. The child came first with me and I treated all of them the same," Casali said during the Dec. 11 dedication ceremony.

"Any success I've had can be contributed to the cooperation of everyone at the school, the faculty, the cafeteria workers, the secretaries, the custodians, the parents, and most importantly the student. It's all about the students. I'm getting all the accolades tonight, but if it wasn't for you people reacting to what I had to say I would be nothing."

During the dedication ceremony school committeeman, and former student and player for Casali, Paul Bregoli, spoke of Casali's career and how he touched thousands of lives during his 41 years in the Quincy Public School System.

"I met Mr. Casali as a third grader at Gridley Bryant School at a time when we had Phys Ed twice a year with a gym teacher," said Bregoli. "Four years later our paths would cross again when I arrived at Central Junior High and Mr. Casali was the gym teacher there. I had the great fortune of having him as a teacher and a coach for three years. It was during this time I began to realize that a special man had entered my life."

Casali, a 1946 graduate of Quincy High School and of Boston University where he was an All-American defenseman in hockey, began his teaching career in Newport, R.I. before returning to Quincy in 1954.

He spent 26 of his 41-year career in the Quincy Public Schools teaching physical education and coaching at Central Middle School, before moving on in the 1980's to be a guidance teacher at Point Webster Middle School, Sterling Middle School, Broad Meadows Middle School, and Snug Harbor Elementary School, and eventually retiring in 1995.

"I just briefly wanted to say what a joy it is to join with my colleagues in honoring you and your legendary service and mentoring to so many youngsters," said Mayor Tom Koch. "Simply put, this world needs more Mr. Casalis. Thank you for your service."

In his coaching career, Casali won over 250 games while only losing less than 50, and won over 14 city championships in basketball.

"Throughout his career, Mr. Casali never changed. His concern was always about his students. He always gave everyone an opportunity to play no matter if you were the best player on the team or the 15th man on a 15 man team," said Bregoli.

"I would like to close my remarks with a saying that comes closest to what Mr. Casali meant to so many of us. It goes like this: Some people come into our lives and quickly go. Some stay a while and leave footprints in our hearts. And we are never the same again.

"Mr. Casali you have left your footprint in thousands of hearts of young men and women. You have left a legacy, which will endure forever. You have helped mold and shape the character and lives of thousands of young people. And, we have never been the same. I love you, Coach. We all love you."

Two plaques now hang on the wall outside the new Central gym. One is a picture of Casali and the other reads: "The Central Middle School Gymnasium is dedicated to Mario (Mike) Casali – teachers, coach, mentor, colleague – Central Junior High School 1954-1980."

To many, Casali was a mentor and always made every student feel special, and during his closing remarks on Dec. 11 he continued that legacy with some words of wisdom to teachers, students, parents, and friends.

"If you find someone that isn't quite with the crowd, or there is something you don't like about them, stop and think about it. Think if you were in their position how would you feel," said Casali. "If you want to help that person out, bring them into the crowd. Maybe they aren't as handsome as you are, maybe they don't have the same clothes as you have, maybe they're not as lucky as you are at home, but help them out. I have found that knowing all of you students, as students, you've come around and proved that the method that I used was the best method and I am here because of you."

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Saturday, December 7, 2013, at approximately 7:45 P.M., Officer James Cassidy, with his K9 Partner Khiya, a trained and certified patrol/ narcotics detection dog, were on patrol in an unmarked police vehicle.

Officer Cassidy was monitoring traffic when he observed a vehicle traveling east on Grossman Street with a cracked windshield. The vehicle failed to come to a complete stop at the stop sign located at Grossman Street and Water Street. Officer Cassidy pulled the suspect vehicle over at 182 Copeland Street.

As the Officer looked inside the vehicle, he observed three cell phones in the front seat area. The driver, the sole occupant, gave the Officer the vehicle's registration, stating that he did not have a license to drive. The driver/suspect gave Officer Cassidy a passport, stating that he has been in the United States for the past seven years. The suspect appeared to be uncomfortable as his hands were trembling and he refused to keep eye contact with the Officer.

At this time, Sergeant Joseph Lencki arrived on scene to assist Officer Cassidy as he placed the suspect under arrest for "Operating a Motor Vehicle without a License." Officer Cassidy searched the suspect and found a clear plastic knotted corner bag inside the suspect's right jeans watch pocket. Inside this bag was a white powder believed to be cocaine. In another jean pocket was $940.00 and inside the suspect's sweatshirt was $540.00. The suspect also had $621.00 in his wallet.

Officer Cassidy advised the suspect of his Miranda rights. The suspect then admitted that the corner bag that he had in his watch pocket was cocaine. He claimed to work in the construction business but was unable to tell the Officers who he worked for or what type of construction he did. The suspect stated that he lives in Medford and just met a friend to pick up a cell phone prior to returning home. Officer Matt Tobin arrived to transport the suspect to the station for booking.

Based on the contraband along with the cash located on the suspect, Officer Cassidy brought out his K9 partner to search the suspect vehicle. During the search, two of the cell phones continually rang. At 8:07 PM, a text message appeared on the screen of one of the cell phones. The message read, "I need 4 but if you don't call me I will order from another person."

Officer Cassidy located a folded ten dollar bill in the center console that contained a white powder believed to be cocaine and a clear vial of liquid behind a rear facing compartment of the center console. The liquid was labeled DECA-300 Durabolin, a form of steroid. K9 partner Khiya searched the interior of the vehicle and reacted strongly to the area of the gear shifter. A search under the carpeting revealed a sandwich bag that contained 21 clear plastic knotted corner bags that contained white powder believed to be cocaine. These bags were similar to the ones found on the suspect.

LT. DAN MINTON

Once at the station, it was determined that the suspect had a straight warrant out of Malden District Court under an alias. In 2011, the suspect was charged by ICE-Boston as an illegal alien. According to records, the suspect was granted voluntary departure on 10/31/13. Sergeant Mark Foley notified ICE-Boston and advised them that the suspect was in custody. A total of $2111.00 U.S. currency was submitted into the drug evidence locker. This money was seized pending civil forfeiture. The three cell phones along with a GPS were seized pending civil forfeiture.

In addition to the arrest warrant, the suspect, a 32 year old Medford resident was charged with, "Defective Equipment (windshield), Stop Sign Violation, Operating MV without a License, Possession of Class E Drug (steroids) and Trafficking in Cocaine." Nice Work!

ANOTHER JOB WELL DONE: On December 11, 2013, at approximately 9:18 a.m., Officer Mike Brandolini, working in uniform assigned to the Quincy Square Anti Crime Unit, was in the area of 1453 Hancock Street watching 5 males known to him from previous encounters.

The Officer watched as two of the male suspects faced each other. Suspect 1 removed a prescription bottle from his pocket and removed the cap while suspect 2 extended his hand with his palm facing up. Suspect 1 shook the bottle into suspect 2's hand.

Believing a drug transaction had just occurred, Officer Brandolini ran across Hancock Street to detain the suspects. One of the other males in the group saw the Officer running towards them and yelled out to warn the two suspects engaged in the drug deal. Being fleet of foot, Officer Brandolini was now steps away from the two suspects.

Suspect 2 opened his mouth and moved his hand towards his mouth in an attempt to swallow the drug evidence, but Officer Brandolini tackled suspect 2 to the ground, knocking the drugs from his hand just as he was attempting to place it in his mouth. The pill fell onto the sidewalk. Officer Brandolini detained suspect 2 and ordered suspect 1 not to move. Back-up units-Quincy Square Officer Greg Hartnett and Officer Steve Cleary, responded to the scene.

Once handcuffed, Officer Hartnett seized two pill bottles from the pocket of suspect 1. Officer Brandolini recovered a pink colored pill from the sidewalk, which was later identified as Promethazine 50 MG and was identical to the pills contained in a prescription bottle possessed by suspect 1. Suspect 1, a 26 year old Quincy resident and suspect 2, a 37 year old Quincy resident, were placed under arrest for "Distribution and Possession of a Prescription Drug." The pill bottle was labeled in the name of suspect 1 and it contained an additional 52 Promethazine pills. The second pill bottle possessed by suspect 1, also in his name, contained 5 different pills, none which were prescribed as listed on the bottle. Nice Work removing drug dealers and users from the street!

NICE WORK: also goes out to Officer David Levine, who responded to a house fire on Arnold Street and was able to get all occupants out safely. In addition, a special recognition goes out to Quincy High School student Andrew Cook, who was on a ride-along with Lieutenant Kevin Tobin. He helped in the escort of one of the burn victims to the ambulance. As members of the Quincy Police Department's student academy, these students all learn CPR and basic first aid. Nice Work!

SEWER COVERS BEING STOLEN: In the past few weeks, numerous sewer covers have been stolen in the Quincy Point area as well as in Wollaston and North Quincy. The thefts are occurring overnight, possibly around 4 a.m. to 7 a.m. Suspect vehicles are described as a white 2 door GMC pick-up truck with an extended cab and a white van. Report any suspicious activity by calling "911."

Broken Windowpanes

By SAMANTHA MAZZOTTA

Replacing a single glass pane is a pretty straightforward job, one that can be accomplished quickly once you have the supplies and tools at hand.

You'll need, of course, a replacement pane of glass. Because the original pane was shattered, the exact dimensions need to be figured out. Do this by measuring the width and height of the frame. Then, subtract 1/16 inch from each side -- this will allow a bit of space for the new glass to expand and contract in changing temperatures.

When cleaning up the broken glass, did you save the small metal tabs or spring clips that were spaced around the frame? If so, keep them around to reuse; otherwise, you'll need to buy replacements. The metal tabs are called glazier's points and are used in wooden frames; the spring clips are used in metal frames. These help hold the windowpane snugly in place.

Head for the hardware store with measurements in hand. Most stores will sell precut windowpanes in standard sizes that match or nearly match your measurements; otherwise, they can cut the glass to your specified size.

Make sure you have the following on hand for the repair: Window putty (also known as glazier's putty), a putty knife, glazier's points or spring clips (for metal frames), a wire brush, steel wool, fine-grit sandpaper and a soft cloth.

Remove the cardboard and tape patch and clean up the frame to prepare it for the new pane. Take out any remaining points or clips and carefully scrape away the old window putty. This may be the most time-consuming part, as the putty may have hardened and adhered to the frame. Be patient and work carefully.

Once the old putty is removed, wipe the frame clean. Then add a new line of putty by forming a ball in the palm of your hand, then rolling it out into a long, thin line about the width of a pencil. Press this line of putty around the edge of the frame on the side on which the new pane will be attached.

Insert the new pane of glass, pressing it against the new putty. Hold it in place with one hand, and with the other hand, insert glazier's points or clips. Points should be placed every 8 inches around the frame and pressed into the wood using the putty knife or a similar tool. Clips can be placed in existing holes in the metal frame.

Use a little more putty to secure the pane on the side closest to you, by dabbing it into areas where the glass touches the frame. Scrape away excess with the putty knife.

Clean excess or spilled putty from the window and the frame using the putty knife and a wet cloth. Let the putty dry and cure for about four days before painting.

Stop & Shop To Sell NQ Land For Residential Development

Galvin Construction To Purchase Parcel At 39 Fayette St.

Attorney Robert Harnais, representing The Stop & Shop Supermarket Company at last Wednesday's meeting of the Planning Board, approached members with a request to amend the current Planning Unit Development Zoning Decision (PUD) which was put in place Dec. 19, 1994 to classify a parcel of land owned by the supermarket chain.

Stop & Shop currently owns a piece of land at 39 Fayette St. that was at one time a foundry, which it will sell to the Galvin Construction Co., Inc.

"Right now, that piece of property is sitting there empty," said Harnais who went on to point out the positive aspects of the proposal. "I think it benefits the neighborhood; Stop & Shop gets to get rid of it and also at the same time a very reputable builder gets to build on it, so we're asking for the special permit to be amended."

A rezoning of the land from PUD to Residence C is necessary for the project to move forward.

Harnais characterized the current condition of the property as blighted.

"Stop & Shop is trying to sell it and right now there's nothing going on there; nothing is going to happen there," he said. "At this point Stop & Shop doesn't want it, has no use for it and it's best for them to move it along and have it developed as the city wants it to...at this point it's just an empty piece of property."

Harnais speculated that multi-family, market-ready townhouses would be built on the land.

"They plan to move forward as soon as everything gets done," he said.

According to Harnais, Ward 3 City Councillor Kevin Coughlin indicated that the selling and development of the property was a "no brainer."

The development would add more housing to what currently is a residential area and will comform to neighborhood standards.

The Stop & Shop Supermarket Company, Coughlin, and local residents have met to discuss the construction. "It seems all the neighbors are on board and they all think it's a good idea," said Harnais. "They look forward to having the residence there."

Board members voted unanimously in favor of rezoning.

Red Raiders Look Ready For Another Great Ride

NORTH QUINCY senior captain Kyle Richardson gets fouled by Brockton's Jermal Murray as he drives by him. Richardson led the Red Raiders with 17 points, 11 rebounds and six assists in North Quincy's 74-62 season-opening win over the Boxers last Friday night.

SENIOR CENTER Anthony Green drives home two of his 15 points in North Quincy's 74-62 season-opening win over Brockton High Dec. 13. Quincy Sun Photos/Larry Carchedi

JUNIOR GUARD Jackie Chen sparked the Red Raider offense with four 3-pointers and 16 points.

By BILL GRIFFIN

Buckle up and get ready for another great ride.

North Quincy's season of dreams took the Red Raiders to the sectional final for the first time in 40 years last winter. If one game against a traditional powerhouse is any measure, get in your seat early and prepare for another fine journey.

Senior point guard Kyle Richardson played a game that was a treat for any lover of basketball. Senior Anthony Green dominated the inside, shook down the ceiling with three third-period dunks, and junior Jackie Chen emerged as this year's three-point sniper as North Quincy dominated Brockton, 74-62 Friday night in the non-league opener for both clubs.

That is correct. Dominated is the proper word. This was never close. Brockton has been a Division 1 power since the first peach basket went up on the wall. North led by 22 at the half, had it as high as 24 in the third and was up by 20 with less than four minutes left in the game. One game does not a season make, but it was a memorable beginning.

"It was a good way to start the season because Brockton is such a good program," said North coach Kevin Barrett whose club lost by one to Brockton last year. "We did a lot of hard work in the off-season. A lot of the kids must have played in more than 80 games and it paid off tonight. It's just one game. We can't let any complacency set it, but it was a great effort."

It all begins with Richardson. He had a game-high 17 points, a game-high 11 rebounds and six assists. He's 5'7". The two rosters had a combined total of 15 players over six-feet. Repeat. He is 5'7". He was the best rebounder on the floor.

"He's strong, he can really jump and he has an instinct for where the ball is going to be," said Barrett.

His defense simply does not stop. On the first possession of the season, he forced a Brockton backcourt violation. He dogged his man from endline to endline. He forced turnovers and bad shots. There were no easy rides, no open space.

He was also strong with the ball, dribbling and passing through a team that has athletes who can really press. He went out with leg cramps and North up 72-52 and 3:58 left in the game. It was no accident that Brockton went to a fullcourt trap in his absence and made its only serious run of the game, cutting the lead in half to 72-62 in the final minute.

Offensively, he hit a three, a foul-line jumper, a driving lefty hook, and a floater through traffic which he kissed home off the glass with a soft touch. He cashed an offensive rebound out of the land of the giants. He punctuated a 15-0 run North run to close the half with a three-pointer from somewhere out on Hunt Street for a 46-24 intermission lead.

He has quickly developed a relationship with Chen, dishing out three assists to the sharpshooter by getting Chen the ball where he likes it with a clean look at the hoop. Defense, rebounding, scoring, passing. Not a bad night.

"Almost a triple-double," smiled Barrett. "He can score, but he is a true point guard. He sees the floor, knows his teammates and knows when and where to distribute the ball."

Green had 15 points, 10 rebounds and five blocks. He has grown stronger, more confident and more skilled over the off-season. He guarded the basket, took the middle away from swarms of big, strong Brockton forwards, and rebounded with authority. The blocks only tell part of the story. He altered at least 15 additional shots.

The third period explosion of three dunks and an offensive rebound is the scoring force Barrett wants from his 6'8" center. The power of the dunks had the crowd rocking. However, what was more impressive was he moved, got himself open, and presented clear lanes for beautiful entry passes from Richardson, Solomon Umoren and Efthim Butka.

"That's the aggressiveness we're looking for from Anthony. His offense has come a long way, and that's the kind of aggressive play we want. He can be a game-changer on offense," said Barrett.

And then there was Chen. Another year, another good

NORTH QUINCY junior guard Molly Minton (#4) scores two of her 15 points against Plymouth North but the Red Raiders bowed to the Eagles 66-61 in overtime in their season opener Dec. 12. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

SENIOR GUARD Grace Geary (#21) scored 10 of her 14 points in the second quarter in North Quincy's 66-61 overtime loss to Plymouth North.

SENIOR CENTER Maya Umoren (#52) had a team-high 18 points and 18 rebounds for the Red Raiders. She also blocked six shots and dished out five assists.

By BILL GRIFFIN

It was the opener. There were three-point swishes, eye-popping plays and checkerboard passing which led to fast-break buckets. There were also turnovers, mistakes and missed free throws. It was the opener.

It had everything to be expected from an opener except one thing. The team that controlled the play from start to finish did not get the victory.

Freshman Joie Grassi threw in a three-pointer from NBA land to tie the game with nine seconds left in regulation, and Plymouth North went on to an improbable 66-61 overtime win over North Quincy in the non-league opener for both clubs last week.

"Like all openers, I saw things I liked and things we need to work on, but I honestly thought we had the game. I couldn't believe that shot went in," said North coach Jessica Worden.

How dominant was North? The Red Raiders took the lead at 6-3 early in the first period and trailed only once (17-16) before the overtime. The only time Plymouth earned a tie in regulation was on Grassi's shot. North led for 30 of 32 minutes in the first four quarters. North led by 11 at the half thanks a stifling halfcourt man-to-man defense and a preview-of-things-to-come burst from senior Grace Geary (14 points). The Red Raiders were up by eight after three, 11 with five minutes left and seven with three minutes remaining behind a flurry of rainbow threes from junior Molly Minton (15 points).

Maya Umoren (18 points, 18 rebounds, six blocks, five assists) controlled everything close to the basket. Even working without one of its aces, Haley McKay (illness), North simply played better. But Plymouth won. It happens.

"Turnovers (22 for the game) hurt us especially in the fourth period and I didn't think our defense connected as well in the second half," said Worden. "A lot of it has to do with working in new

QUINCY SOPHOMORE guard Gabriela Jerahian scores a layup to snap a 36-36 tie late in the fourth quarter to give the Presidents the lead for good in their 45-38 win over Bridgewater-Raynham Friday night. Jerahian scored a team-high 14 points in the Presidents' opener.

SOPHOMORE CENTER Nicole Jorgensen scored 8 points, blocked 7 shots and grabbed 10 rebounds in Quincy's 45-38 season-opening win over Bridgewater-Raynham Dec. 13.

Quincy Girls Defeat B-R In Opener, 45-38

By JOE REARDON

Rarely are season-opening games aesthetic gems with pinpoint and timely shooting. The difference usually comes down to the team willing to sacrifice its collective body on defense until the offense finds it flow.

So when the Quincy High girls' squad took to the court in Friday night's home and season-opener against Bridgewater-Raynham, the Presidents were pretty confident that it was their team's hard-nosed play on defense that would make the difference.

Sophomore quard Gabriela Jerahian banked in a layup with just over two minutes remaining to put the Presidents up for good at 38-36 and Jeff Bretsch's crew held on for an immensely satisfying 45-38 nonleague win over the Trojans.

Jerahian led all scorers with 14 points and the Presidents' 6'-4" sophomore center Nicole Jorgensen scored seven points to go with her 10 rebounds and seven blocked shots in the victory. Senior guard and co-captain Kayla McArdle chipped in with eight points.

"It's the first game of the season so I think we were all a little bit tentative and a little bit nervous at the beginning," said Bretsch. "We came out playing hard, which is what we were looking for. We wanted a tone of maximum effort right out of the gate. It was nice getting the first win at home in front of a great crowd. We've only had seven practices.. We haven't had a lot of time and we knew it was going to have to be a gutsy win."

Both teams traded baskets in the early going with Jorgensen scoring four points in the paint in the first five minutes. Quincy, which finished 11-11 in a tournament season last winter, proceeded to go on an 11-2 run that was highlighted by a Courtney Ryan three-pointer and a layup by McArdle that gave the Presidents a commanding 19-9 lead early. Quincy closed out its scoring bulge at 14-4 for the 22-13 lead at the break.

McArdle wasn't surprised by the sloppy, early play of either team, but was pleased with the first-half effort after only seven practices leading into the start of the Presidents' quest for another tournament berth.

"I don't think anyone knew what to expect in the first half," said McArdle. "We've only had seven practices and were only able to put in a set amount of plays. We were determined to work hard on our defense."

It was the Trojans who dominated Quincy in the third quarter to the tune of 14-7. Sophomore guard Elsie McGovern drained a three-pointer, Emily Kenneally scored on an easy layup and 6'-2" center Barbara Odiah bucketed a hook shot to cut Quincy's lead to 22-20. Sophia Perez's layup with 2:48 remaining in the third gave the Trojans their first lead, 26-25. A closing three-pointer from Jerahian, though, gave Quincy the lead 29-28 despite being outplayed in the quarter.

More Photos at www.thequincysun.com (under galleries)

There was a scary moment in the third when co-captain Alyssa Lydon was shaken up after hitting her head on the floor battling for a loose ball. "I think she's going to be ok," said Bretsch. "She seemed a little bit rattled by it. She's a huge part of our team so we're hoping she's alright."

There were three lead changes in the fourth quarter, but the Trojans had nothing left when Jerahian gave the Presidents the lead for good. The Presidents outscored Bridgewater-Raynham 9-2 to close out the game and Quincy knocked down 5-of-6 free throws along the way.

Presidents' Goal: Improving One Game At A Time

ICE HOCKEY

By BILL GRIFFIN

This year, they have something to prove.

Quincy High's hockey team enters a season of great expectations. The Presidents lost one senior from last year's club. There is skill and experience born from two years of varsity baptism in demanding Patriot League hockey. This is their time, their year. However, first-year coach Ted Walsh knows well the only place for the Presidents to prove their worth is in games on the ice.

"I know how we look on paper, but we're not buying into the hype," said Walsh who takes over the head job after working for 23 years as an assistant to Bob Sylvia and Tim Lewis. "We have to show we can win on the ice. That's where it counts."

The Presidents began their season with a 4-2 non-league win over Cambridge Saturday night. Junior Pat Freeman, who led Patriot League in scoring as a sophomore, came out smoking with three goals. Senior Pat Donovan also scored for the Presidents. Mike Pugsley and Jake Hallisey each had a pair of assists.

"I thought we took too many penalties. It wasn't a pretty win, but I told the kids that sometimes you have to win ugly," said Walsh.

The pre-season practices and scrimmages have been excellent. The work ethic is impressive and the players have been open and receptive to the expectations of their new coach who knows them well from his time as an assistant. The adjustment period should be short and seamless.

"I couldn't be happier," said Walsh. "We're pushing them hard with conditioning. They work hard, no complaints. Whatever we've asked of them, they've done. They've been receptive to new systems. The attitude on the ice and in the locker room has been nothing but positive."

Walsh benefits because most of his players were hockey-ready when practice began. They skate and lift weights in the off-season. They drill and fine-tune skills. Most play in one or two leagues. They have put in the work, and it allowed Walsh to begin with a team that was primed to play hockey.

"The off-season is when you improve," said Walsh. "They've done the work, now is the time to cash in."

One of the strengths of the team will be chemistry. All three defensive pairings have played together for three years. Most of the forwards have skated with the same linemates. The goalie has two years experience working with the defense. All should run smoothly.

"Communication is important, especially on defense," said Walsh. "You could see it was there right from the start, in practices and in scrimmages."

Hallisey will center Freeman and senior on the first line. Freeman has the scorer's sense and touch. You have it or you don't. He has it. Hallisey is a wizard with puck and Pugsley is a solid all-around contributor who brings multiple skills to the line.

"Mike is the whole package," said Walsh. "He can score, distribute, go into the corner and get the puck."

Senior captain Pat Donovan centers junior Brian O'Callaghan and senior Mike Gendreau on the second line. Donovan is a tough, aggressive player with a good scoring touch. Gendreau won the team's Most Improved Player award last year. O'Callaghan is one of the best two-way players in the league. He plays both ends of the ice with skill and effort. He also has a big shot which Quincy will use on the power play.

"I don't see a weakness in his game. He could probably play goalie," said Walsh. "He saved two goals with his back-checking in a scrimmage. He's always willing to work hard. He plays the point on the power play."

Sophomore Joe McArdle will center the speedy Aidan Puglsey and hard-working Sean Brennick on the third line. Brennick is excellent in the corners. Pat Quirk, John Quirk, Blair Brennan and Stephen Bowe will also see action at forward.

"We have a third and fourth line with a lot of competition for playing time. It's a good situation," said Walsh. "They all work hard. Blair is a special kid. He's everything that's right about a teenage boy. He'll see some time for us."

Walsh sees his three defensive pairings as equals. Senior Jimmy Brennick and junior Steve Ross form one pair. Junior Ryan Harty and junior Brandon Beal will work together. Seniors Matt Davis and Matt Kozlwoski are another pairing. All not only have toughness and experience, they have experience playing as partners.

"They'll make things tough on opponents in the neutral zone, in front of the net and in the corners," said Walsh.

Freshman Owen Lynch and sophomore transfer student Brandon Nunnick will also see action on defense.

Junior Ryan Higgins is the goalie who brings skill and two years varsity experience. He finished strongly over the second half of last season, defeated North, and offers stability in the position where a teams needs it most. Sophomore Chris Connolly supplies quality depth in goal.

"Ryan is capable of stealing games for us. He can be that good," said Walsh.

Quincy's goal is obviously to make the tourney and do well, but Walsh feels it's important move one practice, one game at a time. It should be just the right pace for his club.

"I think it's important to have a goal of improving in each practice, in each game," said Walsh. "I think the keys for us are to outwork our opponents and avoid bad penalties. Our chemistry is our strength and nothing ruins chemistry more than having players in the penalty box."

Quincy is at Silver Lake Wednesday and hosts Hanover Saturday (7:50) in a pair of Patriot League matches.

NQ Sets Sights On Tourney

By BILL GRIFFIN

What is the most important position in sports? Is it quarterback in football, pitcher in baseball or goalie in hockey? If the answer is a goaltender, remember well that North Quincy begins its season with one of the best in senior Nolan Greene.

"I honestly think Nolan is not just one of the best in the league, but one of the best in the state," said North coach Matt Gibbons who aims to lead the Red Raiders to their third straight tournament appearance.

Unfortunately, Greene will miss at least the first two weeks of the season with a groin injury.

"It probably resulted from the fact that Nolan worked too hard in the off-season. His work ethic is almost too good," said Gibbons.

Weymouth dropped North, 7-1 in the season opener Saturday night. Senior Brendan Cox scored North's goal early in the second period with an assist to sophomore Timmy Glynn. Glynn chipped a nice pass through the neutral zone. Cox took possession at the blue line, faked out a defenseman and rifled it home to cut the Weymouth lead to 2-1 early in the second period.

The Red Raiders played their best hockey in the second period, giving just four shots on net. However, Weymouth scored two late in the second and three in the third for the victory.

"We had some great chances in the second period. We just didn't capitalize," said Gibbons. "We need to work on our special teams. They scored four power play and one shorthanded goals.

North will also feature three solid lines. North should score and will certainly play the sound, fundamental hockey that is a trademark of Gibbons' teams. The Red Raiders also have four good defensemen, but they will likely go as far as Greene takes them.

"He's so athletic in net. He moves well, and avoids scoring situations because he comes out and gets the puck. He's almost like having a third defenseman," said Gibbons of his senior who had a goals-allowed average of just over 1.20 per game last season. "What I like best is he is always challenging the shooter. He never sits back in the net. He plays his angles well and he limits and controls rebounds."

There are goalies who make the saves they should make. There are goalies who can rise up and stop a great chance or two. There are goalies who can steal games. Greene can steal games, like the 1-1 tie with Pembroke last year in which he made 41 saves.

The Red Raiders return their leading scorer from last year, senior Andrew Currie, at one wing on the first line. Glynn will be the center and senior Cox will do the hard work in the corners along the wing. Glynn was frequently North's best player last year as a freshman. His hustle is non-stop and he had big goals in the tourney against Sandwich and Mansfield.

"Timmy has gotten bigger and stronger since last year. I think he's ready to take a big jump with his play," said Gibbons.

Senior John Ross McEvilley centers junior Andrew Kiley and senior Robbie Cameron, last season's second leading scorer for North, on the second line. Kiley played quarterback for the football team. He has not seen a great deal of ice time in the off-season, but Gibbons likes what he has seen so far from Kiley who is an excellent athlete.

"He's a natural," said Gibbons. "He probably hadn't skated in five months, but in the first practice he looked like he had been on skates every day for six weeks."

Senior Bobby Harding, junior Sean Farnham and senior Pat Trenholm form a solid third line. Kevin Mock, Chris Gorman, Austin Lee, Corey Hernandez and Kevin MacDoanld will also see action up front.

North lost Rudy Tryon, Josh Hayward, Brendan Brady and Ryan Martin on defense which leaves a clear void. Sophomore Matt MacDoanld and junior Matt Monahan will form the first group. Gibbons moved James Doherty and Mike Finn from forward to defense for the second pairing. Sophomore Kevin Doherty played well in the scrimmages and will start in goal until Greene returns.

MacDoanld paired with Tryon last year and moves the puck well. Monahan has a strong shot and is a solid body checker.

"We had a couple of injuries to sophomores who we thought might help us back there," said Gibbons. "We moved James back at the beginning of practice and he's played well. We put Mike back there in the middle of a scrimmage and he looked like he belonged right away."

In 2012, North advanced to the sectional finals. Last season, the Red Raiders defeated Sandwich and fell in a shootout to Mansfield in the semifinals. The tourney is always the goal, but the road back will be difficult. There is the rugged Patriot League schedule and non-leaguers against powers like Mansfield, Weymouth, Newton North, Canton and Stoneham.

"It's the toughest schedule we've had in five years," said Gibbons. "We want to get ourselves ready for the tourney. I also think the league could be wide open. Duxbury is strong, and Quincy will be greatly improved."

Numbers have been an issue for teams at North over the past three years, and the problem has hit the hockey team as well. Gibbons only has 25 skaters in his program, not enough to form full JV and varsity teams. Players will be forced to play both varsity and JV. The new Quincy High has become the destination for several excellent hockey players. Depth is an issue for North and if injuries occur, they will be a significant problem.

North graduated 10 seniors last year and was only able to replace them with four new players. It is a not a good trend.

"Unfortunately, I see it continuing. It's been coming over the past few years. Next year, we may not be able to have a JV team," said Gibbons.

North hosts Brockton Wednesday (8:10) and travels to Silver Lake Saturday shooter. With the departure of Dan Gould, Pat Gould and Aaron Anderson, there was concern about North's outside shooting. Not to worry. Chen had 16, went 6-for-9 from the floor and 4-for-7 from three-point land.

"We weren't worried because we knew about his shot. He shot well for the JV team last year and worked on his shot over the off-season," smiled Barrett.

It was not merely how many, but when Chen scored them. He entered midway through the first quarter when North was struggling to convert open looks. End of problem. He swished four threes and and a foul-line jumper with the purest of strokes as the Red Raiders pushed the lead to 22 at the break. He also played hard, smart defense.

"He made his shots at just the right time," said Barrett. "We we struggling a little and when Jackie hit from the outside, it opened up the drives for Kyle and the inside for Anthony."

North also showed impressive depth against a quality team. Barrett used 10 players. All played well and eight scored. Senior forward Greg Clarke had an excellent game off the bench, using a soft touch and a series of inside moves for six points. Sophomore Tyshawn Moore was impressive, scoring six in meaningful minutes. Sophomore Dhaaky Drake gave Richardson a breather at the point and played a solid game, especially in the first half.

Matt Gerakis (six) was steady and effective as a starter on the wing. Vinny Tran came off the bench and played strong minutes under the hoop.

"I liked that we got to use a lot of people," said Barrett. "I thought Greg Clarke played well. He gives away size underneath, but he did a good job battling for rebounds."

North led by 11 after one, by 22 at the half and 17 after three. Brockton never got closer than 10 after the midway point of the second period. It was, as the coach wisely cautioned, just one game. However, it did show exactly how good North can be. It should be an interesting ride.

North is at Middleboro Friday.

Presidents Win Opener

By BILL GRIFFIN

The key word is balance. Quincy is a team of players who have complete sets of basketball skills and in their opener, the Presidents combined them into an impressive balanced effort which resulted in a decisive win on the road against Bridgewater-Raynham.

Quincy shot, pressed, handled the ball, defended and rebounded well. That about covers what a team needs to do to win a basketball game.

Drew Myers scored 21 points, and Quincy placed five players in double figures en route to a 67-48 non-league win over B-R in the opener for both clubs Friday night.

"I was very happy with the way we performed," said coach Dave Parry. "We got everybody involved both scoring and rebounding. Our ball movement and rotation was good and we did a good hob finding the open man."

Colin Evans and Brendan Cunningham each had 12 for the Presidents. James Lam had 11 and J.T. Bain added 10.

Quincy's press was outstanding. The Presidents forced 18 turnovers en route to a 35-25 halftime lead. Six of the turnovers were clean steals. Not only did Quincy force mistakes, the Presidents turned the turnovers into points. It is one thing to make the steal. It is another to turn the steals into instant offense.

"We had a plan with our press and I was happy with the way we executed it," said Parry. "We must have had 30-40 points off transition. We did a good job of turning opportunities into points."

However, before Quincy could turn loose the press, the Presidents had to establish their rebounding against the athletic hosts who staged quite a dunking show in the pre-game warmups. B-R used its rebounding to build an early eight-point lead.

"We made a few adjustments and we rebounded with them for the rest of the game. That was a big factor for us," said Parry.

Once again, balance was the key.

"Everybody rebounded. James had six. J.T. had four or five and Brendan and Colin each had three or four. We did a balanced job on the boards," said Parry.

Quincy extended the lead in the third. It stood at 12 early in the fourth when Myers nailed two three-pointers to up the lead to 18. Good shooters know how to put away a game and Myers did exactly that for the Presidents.

"Those two shots came about 15 seconds apart and gave us a big lift. They were there and Drew just took them. No fear, no hesitation. He took the open shots and made them," said Parry.

One pre-season issue was at point guard. Myers can handle the ball, but Parry didn't want to lose his three-point shooting by giving him full-time duty at the point. Myers showed he could well handle both in the opener. Lam was also a big help. At 6'3", he brought the ball cleanly up the floor and handed out seven assists.

"James was a big help," said Parry. "When he brought up the ball, their big man had to come out and guard him. That took them out of what they wanted to do."

Myers, Evans, Bain and Lam are juniors. Cunningham is a senior. All played big minutes last year and the experience they gained on the varsity level was the most impressive improvement Parry saw in the opener.

"Poise. That was the biggest thing I saw," he said. "We got down eight early and there was no problem. They knew you don't lose games in the first quarter. They had been through it before. We made a few adjustments and we were all right after that."

It was an impressive opening win especially on the road. Quincy split with B-R last year, but lost by 20 on the road. No opener is perfect. Coaches always see mistakes, room for improvement, but this win showed well Quincy's talent, balance and confidence.

"We left some points put on the floor," said Parry. "I think we missed six layups. It's a matter of control, getting your body in position for a good shot after forcing a turnover. We'll work on that and a few other things, But I'm excited about the way we played."

Quincy hosts Whitman-Hanson in its Patriot League opener Friday night at 6:30. W-H was one of the pre-season picks in the Keenan Division, so the game should be an excellent early measuring stick for the Presidents.

players up from the JVs and a transfer who is new to our system."

It is helpful that North has an eight-day break between its opener and its second game against Middleboro (at home Friday night). There are good things upon which to build and areas to improve. Let's begin with the good.

• The defense in the second quarter. For one quarter, North played the kind of defense which stormed through the Patriot League in the second half of last season. North held the Eagles to three points in the period out of a tough halfcourt man-to-man en route to building a 31-20 halftime lead.

Give high marks for the work of Molly Minton and Marissa McGue who made Plymouth star Meghan Walsh earn each of her 20 points. More than any individual work however, the Red Raiders played team defense. They talked, switched and helped each other.

"In the first half, I thought we played well. Marissa is a good defensive player and I thought Molly played really well against her (Walsh)," said Worden.

• Geary had 10 of her points in the second period. Her selection included a three-point jumper, a scoop off a quick drive to the bucket, a runner off the fast break and a short jumper off a drive on which stopped on a dime to get off her shot. She had two steals, an assist which set up a fast-break basket, and a terrific pass which put McGue on the foul line. It was a glimpse of exactly how good she can be for North.

"Grace played well. She had missed some practice time with a groin injury, so I thought she looked very good," said Worden of her senior guard who scored all 14 of her points in the first half.

• Umoren has dependably produced double-doubles the past two years, but in the opener she added a new weapon from her arsenal, firing quick, hard outlet passes to get the North fast break moving.

"That's something new from Maya. I liked the way it worked," said Worden.

• Molly Minton made a four-star varsity debut with 15, all in the second half and OT. She drained three three-pointers, one of which put North up by 11 early in the fourth. Jane Minton helped with 10 assists. Considering they were working without one of the best defenders on the South Shore in McKay, who did a lockdown job on Walsh in last season's OT win over Plymouth, North played hard and well on defense.

"I think Haley would have made a difference. She played well on defense against them last year," said Worden of her senior guard who scored all 14 of her points in the first half.

• The areas which need work are turnovers and free-throw shooting. North wants to run. If a team runs, there will be turnovers. The Red Raiders want to cut down on the 22 total, but more importantly, they want to be careful when they make them. Several came in the fourth when they were playing with a lead. Making sure of a good shot each time down the floor late in games is something that will come as the season progresses.

They also were 5-16 from the line. Plymouth North had an 18-5 edge in free-throw points. That's too much. If the Red Raiders make one more free throw in regulation, they win.

Despite the turnovers and free throws, it looked like North would survive when Umoren broke open a full-court trap and roared in for a layup and a 55-52 lead with 0:15 left. Grassi then hit her bomb which would have counted for three points if she were playing against the Chicago Bulls. The Eagles hit a pair of jumpers and made six free throws in the OT to nail down the win.

"We saw what we need to work on," said Worden. "We want to cut down the turnovers and improve our free-throw shooting. We have the practice time to do it."

quarter was especially satisfying to Bretsch. "I'm proud of the way the team held in there," he said. "We've talked about being the team with legs in the fourth quarter and still running when everyone is tired. I couldn't be more proud of the effort tonight in the fourth quarter.

"They're (B-R) a good team. They have a lot of good shooters and skill players. This early in the season we only have so many tricks up our sleeve. They did a nice job making adjustments and they're very well coached. We knew it was going to be a tough win for us. We had some tough games against them last year and we anticipated the same."

McArdle fully expects the Presidents to dominate the fourth quarter in the majority of their games this season, thanks to some speedy guards who can frustrate the opposition with their stubborn defense.

"It was a sloppy basketball game so you had to grind it out," McArdle said. "We were really nervous. We came out slow in the second half but then we settled down and things started to come together. At the end it became a battle of who wanted the game more.

"I think this team has a lot of potential. The main difference is that this year we are mostly guards and we have three players who can play in the post. With having so many guards we have the advantage because we can play hard, lock down defense, regardless of if the offense is on or not. It's encouraging to know we can have that scrappy defense with guards all over the place. Defense is always a main part of our practices. We want to be able to run teams into the ground."

If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season . . .

Fifth grade students in Quincy's public schools and the Quincy Catholic Academy were invited again this year to write the answer to one question for this special issue of The Quincy Sun.

This year's theme is: "If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season It Would Be..."

We want to thank Erin Perkins, Curriculum Coordinator for Pre-Kindergarten, Literacy, Title I, and Gifted/Talented Programs for coordinating the public schools' participation and the principals and classroom teachers of those schools.

We also thank Catherine Cameron, principal of the Quincy Catholic Academy, for her assistance, too.

To all who took part, we extend warmest holiday greetings. Thank you all, most sincerely.

Publisher, The Quincy Sun

Boston Police Department Honors Three Quincy Officers

By SCOTT JACKSON

Three Quincy Police officers received citations from the Boston Police Department for stopping a person from overdosing on drugs during the Boston Red Sox World Series victory parade.

Officers Matt Miller, Greg Hartnett, and Sean Glennon were in Boston on Nov. 2 as part of the added security brought on for the parade, according to Quincy Police Capt. John Dougan. Dougan said a spectator approached three officers in the vicinity of Summer Street during the rolling rally. The spectator, recognizing the three as Quincy officers, asked them if they had Narcan – a nasal spray used by Quincy Police Department to reverse opiate overdoses.

After being informed the officers were carrying Narcan, the spectator informed them that his friend was overdosing. The officers located the friend and successfully used the nasal spray to stop the overdose.

"They found the person, gave a nasal spray, and reversed the overdose," Dougan said.

For their actions Miller, Hartnett, and Glennon each received a citation from Acting Boston Police Commissioner William Evans during a recent ceremony in Boston.

Michael Coffey On B.C. High Honor Roll

Michael Coffey of Quincy, a senior at Boston College High School, achieved High Honors for the first quarter.

For High Honors, a senior must have at least a 3.80 quality point average and all grades '"C+" or higher.

His name was inadvertently omitted from the honor roll list submitted by the school to The Quincy Sun. The honor roll appeared in the Dec. 12th issue.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might be busier than you had expected right now. But between the socializing rounds and the workplace tasks, there are opportunities for special moments with that certain someone.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your creative approach leads to a quicker-than-expected solution to a workplace problem. Now you can devote more time to that proposal you hope to introduce by midmonth.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Technological glitches create problems early on. But by midweek, all runs smoothly once again, and you're well and truly on your way to meeting all your deadlines.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your energy levels are high, and you feel you can handle everything that comes along. But try to take a break from your hectic pace for some quiet time with someone close to you.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) Before you pounce on that shiny new opportunity, take more time to check it out to see how much substance actually lies beneath all that glitter. A family member has important news.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A personal situation you thought was resolved resurfaces, thanks to a possibly well-intentioned move that went awry. Deal with it as soon as possible. Accept the help of a trusted friend.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) That goal you set way back when is finally in sight. Maintain your focus on achieving it, and don't allow yourself to be distracted by unimportant demands for your attention.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A temperamental flare-up creates negative feelings that need to be dealt with immediately. But things once again go well after the apologies are made and hurt feelings are soothed.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An early impulsive act causes confusion. But all is smoothed over once explanations are made. Expect a friend or family member to ask for your kind and always wise advice.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You might have to do some juggling of your priorities, as a personal matter appears to require more time and attention. Put your pride aside and accept help from those who offer it.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your creative aspect is strong. Not only does it help you accomplish your goals, but it also inspires others. This could lead to a potentially rewarding collaboration opportunity.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful about making major decisions when you're not really committed to them. And resist any pressure to do otherwise. Better to delay action until all doubts are resolved.
BORN THIS WEEK: You set goals and are rarely distracted by any attempt to move you off the path you've chosen to reach them.

Downtown, Central, 'Puppy Doe' Top Stories

2013 The Year In Review

By SCOTT JACKSON

The ongoing downtown redevelopment made headlines in 2013, as the ebb and flow of the project continued.

The year began with Mayor Thomas Koch announcing in his January midterm address that downtown developer Beal/Street-Works had found an equity partner to invest in the first phase of the Quincy Center Project. In June, years of planning were realized when Beal/Street-Works broke ground on Merchants Row, the first step of the $1.6 billion project being undertaken by the developer.

In August, however, Street-Works announced the Beal Companies had withdrawn from the project and would be replaced by Twining Properties. Then in November the developer said work on the Merchants Row project had been halted due to rising construction costs. Weeks later in December, the mayor stated he was confident the project was still on track.

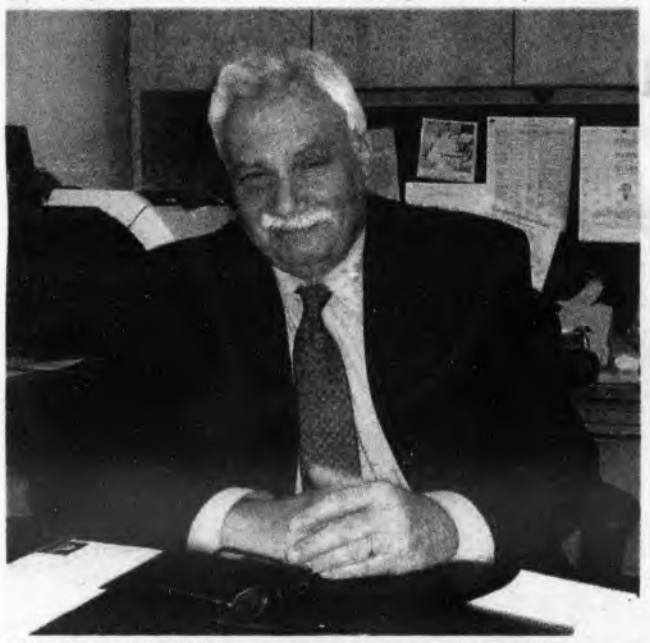

While the downtown project experienced its starts and stops, the city completed another major construction project when the new, $50 million Central Middle School opened to students in October. The opening of the new Central came just weeks after the last section of the 89-year old former Quincy High was torn down at the end of August.

Quincy residents had the chance to head to the polls in two election cycles in 2013. Voters in the city and across the Bay State elected U.S. Rep. Ed Markey to the U.S. Senate in June following an April primary. And in November's municipal election, Quincy's voters elected political newcomer Noel DiBona to the School Committee while doubling the mayoral term to four years.

The first blizzard to hit eastern Massachusetts in 35 years walloped Quincy, leaving the city entirely without electricity and under up to 30 inches of snow. The storm struck just days after the 35th anniversary of the last blizzard, the infamous Blizzard of '78.

AMONG THE MAJOR local news stories of 2013 was the New Quincy Center Development Project. In June, city, state and federal officials (above) broke ground on the $120 million Merchants Row project, the first part of Beal/Street-Works' $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center. By year's end, the project had been scaled down in size and work suspended due to surging construction costs, according to the developer. In December, Mayor Koch said he was confident construction would resume in 2014 at a special meeting of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. Taking part in the groundbreaking (from left) were City Council President Michael McFarland, House Majority Leader Ron Mariano, Massachusetts Secretary of Housing and Economic Development Greg Bialecki, U.S. Rep. Stephen F. Lynch, Quincy Mutual Fire Ins. Co. CEO Doug Briggs, Mayor Thomas Koch, Street-Works co-founder Ken Narva, Sen. John Keenan, and Suffolk Construction CEO John Fish.

FRANK SANTORO announced in January he would retire as the principal at Quincy High School in June The educator with 24 years experienced served as QHS principal since 2004.

Quincy was in the headlines nationally and internationally in September after prosecutors and police requested the public's help to identify the owner of "Puppy Doe," a young pitbull found so badly abused it needed to be euthanized. The public's help led police to charge a Polish national with nearly a dozen counts of animal cruelty in October.

In sports headlines, two Quincy teams made long runs in their respective tournaments. In March, the North Quincy boys' basketball team advanced Division 1 South Sectional championship before bowing out. It was the team's most successful season in 40 years. In August, Quincy's Cal Ripken 12-year old All Star Team competed in the Cal Ripken World Series in Indiana after winning the New England title, bowing out in pool play. Many of the players on that team were on the 11-year old All Star team that won the New England title in 2012.

The city lost many community leaders in 2013 including the Rev. M. Alicia Corea, the longtime pastor at Houghs Neck Congregational Church; Raymond C. Cattaneo, coach of the Morrisette Legion baseball team for more than 40 years; Firefighter John T. Austin, who died while responding to an emergency call; former School Department Athletic Director Martin C. Finnegan; Stephen J. McGrath, the city's human resources director and a former city councillor; and community activist Gloria Noble.

Quincy and the rest of Massachusetts and the nation were in mourning after two bombs were set off seconds apart at the finish line of the Boston Marathon on Patriots Day in April, killing three and injuring 264 others.

Here is a month-by-month retrospect of the top stories that took place in Quincy during 2013.

JANUARY

During his third midterm address, Mayor Thomas Koch announced that Chicago-based LaSalle Investment Management had agreed to invest $56 million in developer Beal/Street-Works' planned Merchants Row project – the first phase of downtown redevelopment.

"The commitment by LaSalle is another essential step forward," Koch said, "and yet another example of the broad national and international interest in Quincy Center's future."

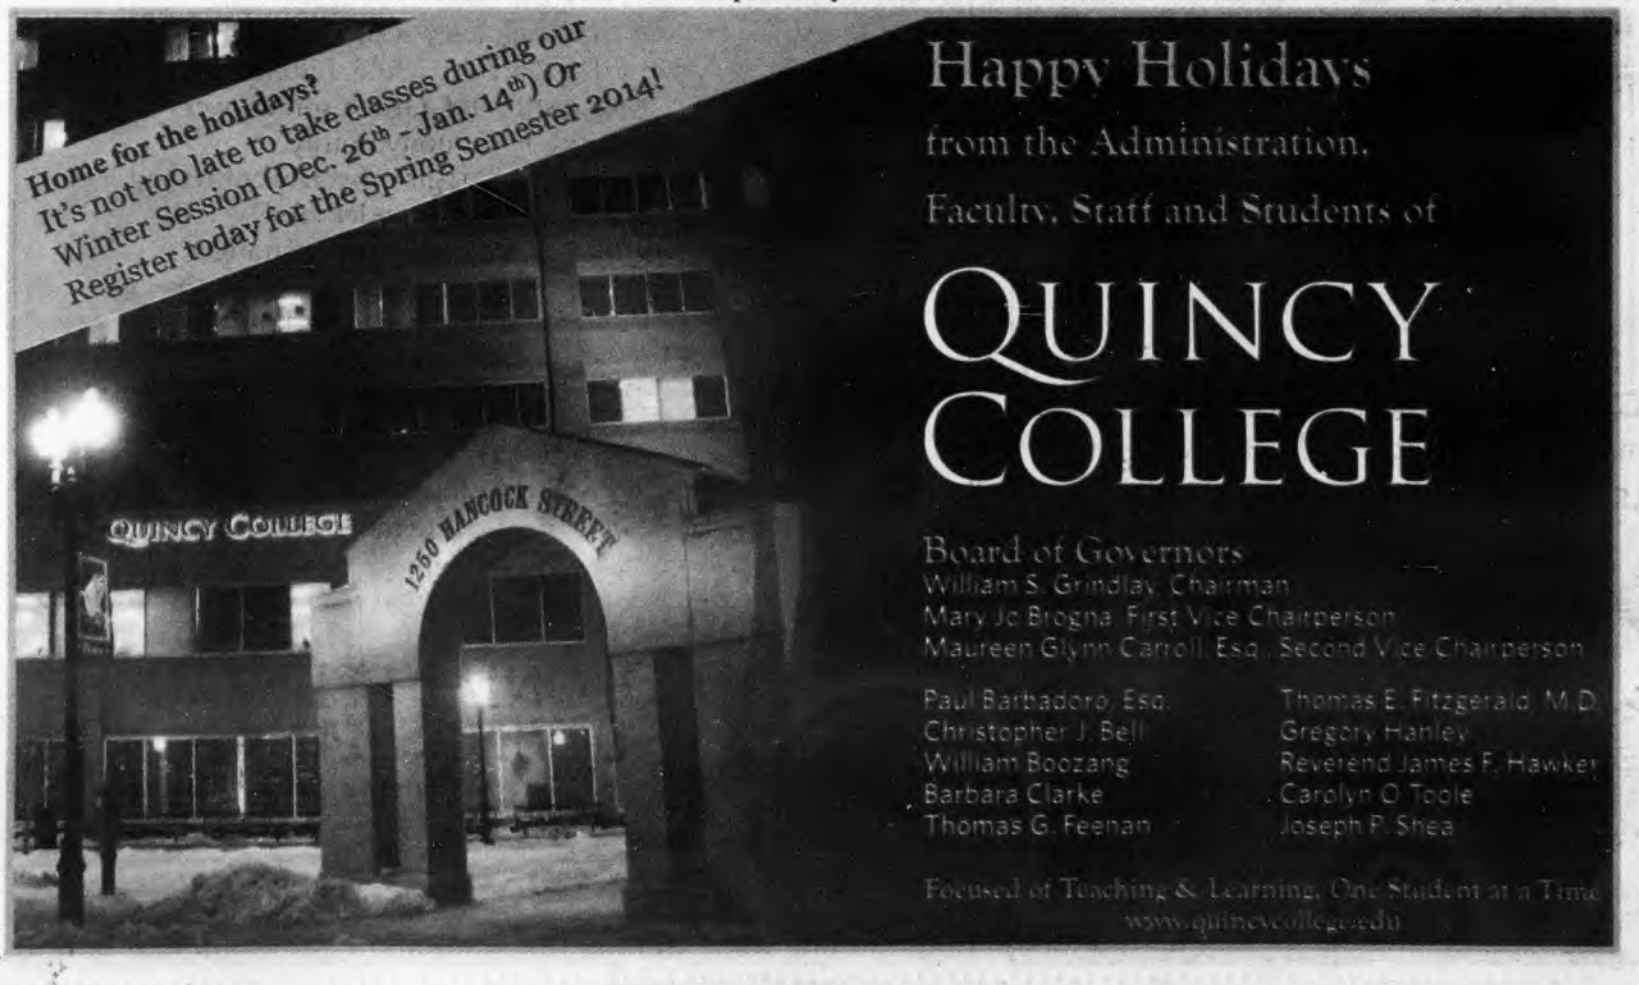

Following the mayor's midterm, the City Council re-elected Michael McFarland to his second one-year term as council president. "We are the eyes, the ears, and the voice of the citizens of Quincy," McFarland said after being sworn-in for a second time. "As part of that role we are to keep the mayor and the administration on time and on budget."

The city's six-year long dispute with Honeywell International came to an end after the energy conglomerate and Attorney General Martha Coakley agreed to a settlement over claims Honeywell failed to deliver promised energy savings to the city. Under the settlement, the New Jersey-based firm agreed to void a maintenance contract with the city, worth an estimated $21 million, and agreed to pay the state $4 million, most of which was expected to land in Quincy's coffers.

"It's a great day for the taxpayers of the City of Quincy," the mayor said of the settlement. "From day one that was what drove me on this issue – to make it right for the taxpayers and the residents."

North Quincy resident Paul Moody, Sr., the founder and coordinator of Fort Square's Flag for Veterans Island, was named the recipient of the 2012 Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award. Moody, the commander of the Sons of the American Legion Squadron 294, American Legion Post, was to be honored at a ceremony in the spring.

The School Committee approved a new three-year contract with the teachers union that provides for raises of one percent in FY13 and two percent in both FY14 and FY15. Among other items the new contract also provides added prep time for elementary teachers and new education incentives.

Six new police officers – John P. Goggin, Robert Connell, Joseph Cox, Stephen Minukas, Colleen Paccioretti, and Sean McCormack – were sworn in during a ceremony at City Hall.

The City Council approved a home rule petition calling on the Legislature to authorize an extra 27 liquor licenses for Quincy Center.

Quincy High Principal Frank Santoro announced his plans to retire at the end of the school year. Santoro – an educator with 24 years of experience – had served as principal at QHS since the beginning of the 2004-05 school year. He was previously principal at Central Middle School from 1999-2004, and a member of the School Committee for eight years in the 1980s when he was working in the Brookline schools.

"After 42 years I felt I owed it to my family – especially my wife Linda – that I spend some time at home," said Santoro, who oversaw the transition from the old Quincy High building to a new, state-of-the-art facility.

Harry Williams, the director of the Thomas Crane Public Library, also announced his retirement, effective at the end of the month.

Two weeks after school officials said they were reviewing security procedures, parents urged the School Committee to put locks on the doors of each classroom. The push for the locks came in the wake of a tragic school shooting in Newtown, Conn. "Once a perpetrator is in a school," said Jan Robinson, a parent who spoke before the committee, "the only defense a child has is a lock on the door, getting out of sight, followed by the human shield of his or her teacher."

2013 The Year In Review

During the same meeting, 30 parents pressed the School Committee to restore media specialist positions in the upcoming school year. The committee also received a petition, signed by more than 1,500 residents, calling for restoration of the media specialists. Funding for the media specialists in the elementary and middle schools was cut in 2011, and parents had volunteered at the media centers since then.

Former Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly was appointed to the Quincy Housing Authority's Board of Commissioners.

North Quincy High students Tim Bill, Celeste Dang, Nathan Donahue, Yi Fung, Cynthia Nelson, and Kasey Shen began competing in the elimination round of WGBH's High School Quiz Show. North was one of 16 schools to qualify for the tournament, out of the 89 schools that participated in a preliminary round in late 2012.

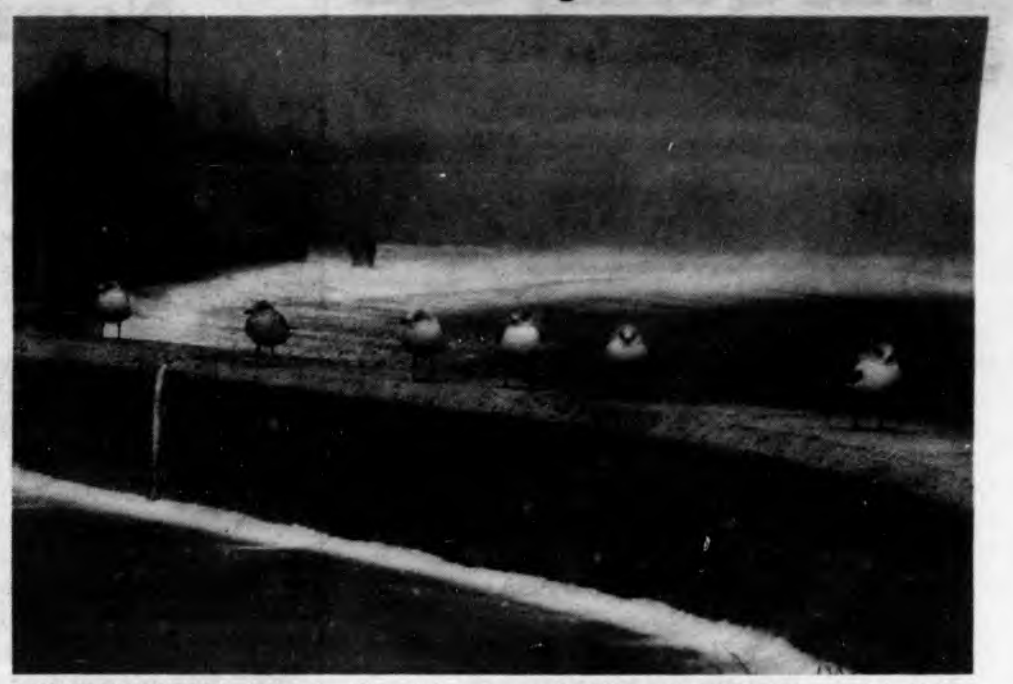

David Britt, Stephen Kelley, Timothy Kennedy, Mark Paolucci, Eric Eleey, Edward Hamilton, and Scott O'Hare were sworn in as the Fire Department's newest firefighters. The department also planned to swear in Edward Chaisson and Michael Griffith as firefighters upon their return from military deployments.

Deaths during January included:

Panfilo DeSantis, 87, construction company owner; John F. Hallisey, PhD, professor emerita at Regis College; Bertrand G. LaPointe, retired Quincy health inspector and former co-owner of Melwoods Restaurant; John E. Toland, 49, chief engineer in the Merchant Marine; Robert DeFranco, owner of the Galway House restaurant; Josephine F. Hurley, 100, retired Raytheon technician; Rita M. Willard, 96, Gold Star mother; Lester B. Sturgis, Jr., 81, retired Quincy school custodian; Michelle Theberge, 49, an interior designer active in Girl Scouts; Annette M. Paglierani, Quincy Art Association founder and painter of a White House ornament; Leroy W. Higgins, 89, TV business owner; Thomas W. Conway, 63, Citgo terminal operator; Ernestine L. Bostwick, 100, school policewoman and accountant; Michael C. Cardillo, musician and retired letter carrier; Maurice M. Houlihan, 44, member of Sheet Metal Workers Local 17; Leon L. Gould, 92, Quincy school principal and professional singer; Robert S. Caswell, 81, NQHS Hockey Hall of Famer and salesman; John R. Brummitt, 81, hardware store co-owner; and David P. Tenney, retired Broad Meadows principal.

FEBRUARY

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes was elected chairwoman of the state Republican Party. Downtown, Central, 'Puppy Doe' Top Stories

2013 The Year In Review

By SCOTT JACKSON

The ongoing downtown redevelopment made headlines in 2013, as the ebb and flow of the project continued.

The year began with Mayor Thomas Koch announcing in his January midterm address that downtown developer Beal/Street-Works had found an equity partner to invest in the first phase of the Quincy Center Project. In June, years of planning were realized when Beal/Street-Works broke ground on Merchants Row, the first step of the $1.6 billion project being undertaken by the developer.

In August, however, Street-Works announced the Beal Companies had withdrawn from the project and would be replaced by Twining Properties. Then in November the developer said work on the Merchants Row project had been halted due to rising construction costs. Weeks later in December, the mayor stated he was confident the project was still on track.

While the downtown project experienced its starts and stops, the city completed another major construction project when the new, $50 million Central Middle School opened to students in October. The opening of the new Central came just weeks after the last section of the 89-year old former Quincy High was torn down at the end of August.

Quincy residents had the chance to head to the polls in two election cycles in 2013. Voters in the city and across the Bay State elected U.S. Rep. Ed Markey to the U.S. Senate in June following an April primary. And in November's municipal election, Quincy's voters elected political newcomer Noel DiBona to the School Committee while doubling the mayoral term to four years.

The first blizzard to hit eastern Massachusetts in 35 years walloped Quincy, leaving the city entirely without electricity and under up to 30 inches of snow. The storm struck just days after the 35th anniversary of the last blizzard, the infamous Blizzard of '78.

AMONG THE MAJOR local news stories of 2013 was the New Quincy Center Development Project. In June, city, state and federal officials (above) broke ground on the $120 million Merchants Row project, the first part of Beal/Street-Works' $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center. By year's end, the project had been scaled down in size and work suspended due to surging construction costs, according to the developer. In December, Mayor Koch said he was confident construction would resume in 2014 at a special meeting of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. Taking part in the groundbreaking (from left) were City Council President Michael McFarland, House Majority Leader Ron Mariano, Massachusetts Secretary of Housing and Economic Development Greg Bialecki, U.S. Rep. Stephen F. Lynch, Quincy Mutual Fire Ins. Co. CEO Doug Briggs, Mayor Thomas Koch, Street-Works co-founder Ken Narva, Sen. John Keenan, and Suffolk Construction CEO John Fish.

FRANK SANTORO announced in January he would retire as the principal at Quincy High School in June The educator with 24 years experienced served as QHS principal since 2004.

Quincy was in the headlines nationally and internationally in September after prosecutors and police requested the public's help to identify the owner of "Puppy Doe," a young pitbull found so badly abused it needed to be euthanized. The public's help led police to charge a Polish national with nearly a dozen counts of animal cruelty in October.

In sports headlines, two Quincy teams made long runs in their respective tournaments. In March, the North Quincy boys' basketball team advanced Division 1 South Sectional championship before bowing out. It was the team's most successful season in 40 years. In August, Quincy's Cal Ripken 12-year old All Star Team competed in the Cal Ripken World Series in Indiana after winning the New England title, bowing out in pool play. Many of the players on that team were on the 11-year old All Star team that won the New England title in 2012.

The city lost many community leaders in 2013 including the Rev. M. Alicia Corea, the longtime pastor at Houghs Neck Congregational Church; Raymond C. Cattaneo, coach of the Morrisette Legion baseball team for more than 40 years; Firefighter John T. Austin, who died while responding to an emergency call; former School Department Athletic Director Martin C. Finnegan; Stephen J. McGrath, the city's human resources director and a former city councillor; and community activist Gloria Noble.

Quincy and the rest of Massachusetts and the nation were in mourning after two bombs were set off seconds apart at the finish line of the Boston Marathon on Patriots Day in April, killing three and injuring 264 others.

Here is a month-by-month retrospect of the top stories that took place in Quincy during 2013.

JANUARY

During his third midterm address, Mayor Thomas Koch announced that Chicago-based LaSalle Investment Management had agreed to invest $56 million in developer Beal/Street-Works' planned Merchants Row project – the first phase of downtown redevelopment.

"The commitment by LaSalle is another essential step forward," Koch said, "and yet another example of the broad national and international interest in Quincy Center's future."

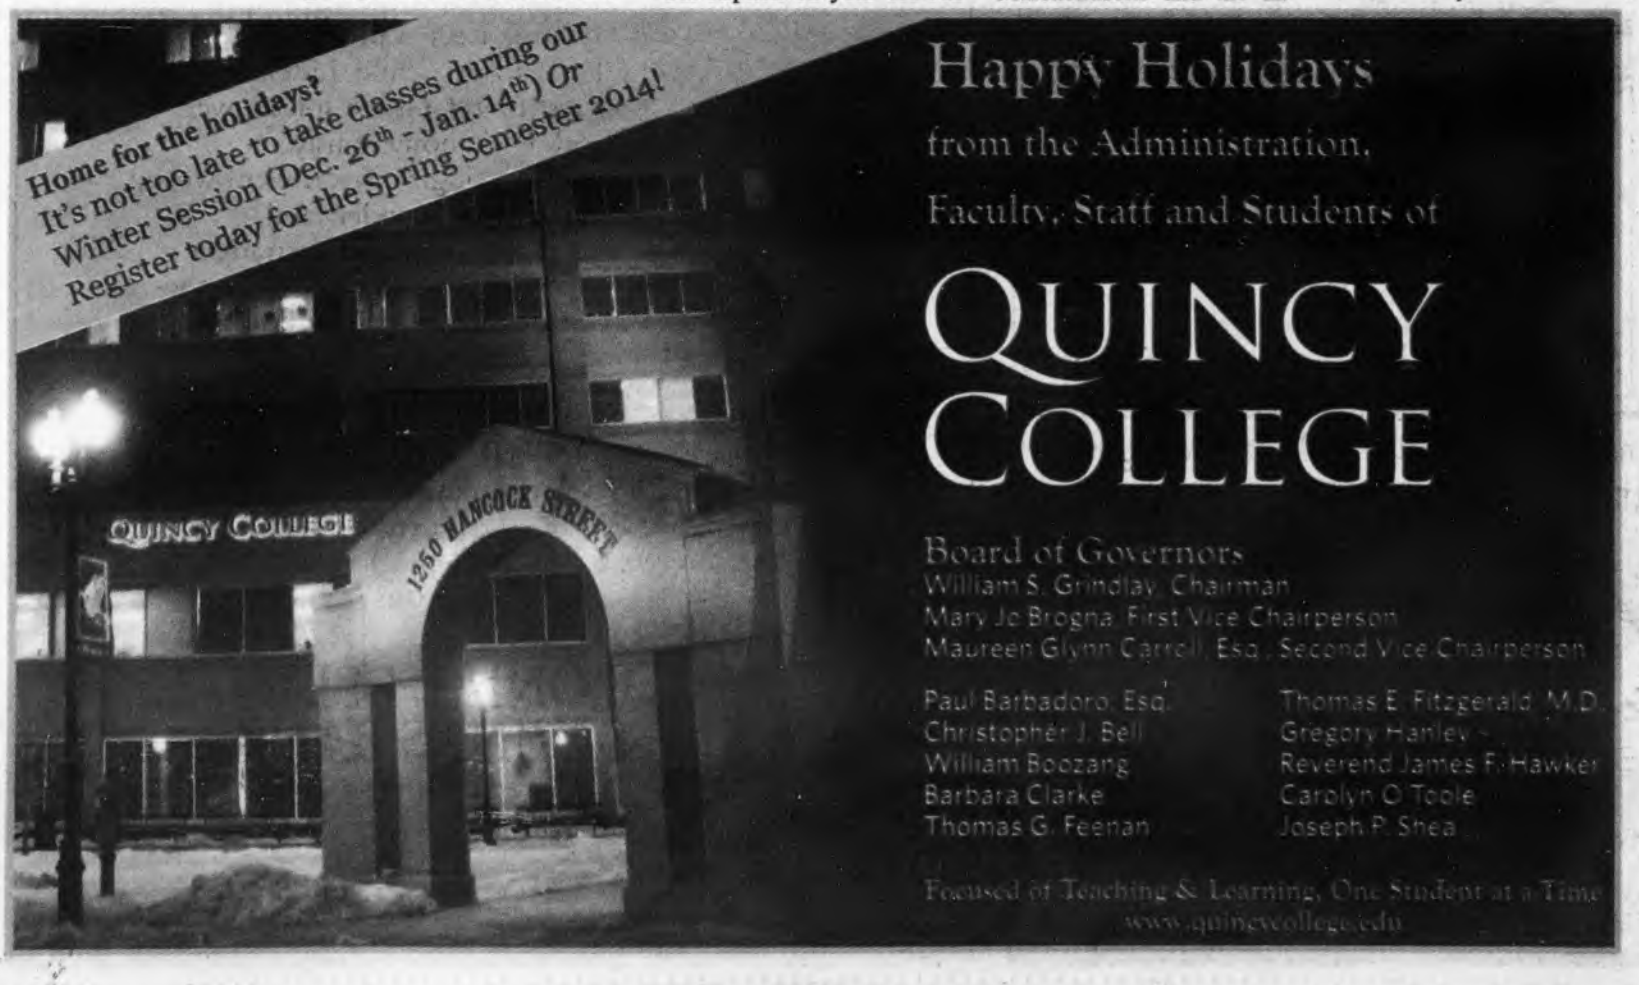

Following the mayor's midterm, the City Council re-elected Michael McFarland to his second one-year term as council president. "We are the eyes, the ears, and the voice of the citizens of Quincy," McFarland said after being sworn-in for a second time. "As part of that role we are to keep the mayor and the administration on time and on budget."

The city's six-year long dispute with Honeywell International came to an end after the energy conglomerate and Attorney General Martha Coakley agreed to a settlement over claims Honeywell failed to deliver promised energy savings to the city. Under the settlement, the New Jersey-based firm agreed to void a maintenance contract with the city, worth an estimated $21 million, and agreed to pay the state $4 million, most of which was expected to land in Quincy's coffers.

"It's a great day for the taxpayers of the City of Quincy," the mayor said of the settlement. "From day one that was what drove me on this issue – to make it right for the taxpayers and the residents."

North Quincy resident Paul Moody, Sr., the founder and coordinator of Fort Square's Flag for Veterans Island, was named the recipient of the 2012 Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award. Moody, the commander of the Sons of the American Legion Squadron 294, American Legion Post, was to be honored at a ceremony in the spring.

The School Committee approved a new three-year contract with the teachers union that provides for raises of one percent in FY13 and two percent in both FY14 and FY15. Among other items the new contract also provides added prep time for elementary teachers and new education incentives.

Six new police officers – John P. Goggin, Robert Connell, Joseph Cox, Stephen Minukas, Colleen Paccioretti, and Sean McCormack – were sworn in during a ceremony at City Hall.

The City Council approved a home rule petition calling on the Legislature to authorize an extra 27 liquor licenses for Quincy Center.

Quincy High Principal Frank Santoro announced his plans to retire at the end of the school year. Santoro – an educator with 24 years of experience – had served as principal at QHS since the beginning of the 2004-05 school year. He was previously principal at Central Middle School from 1999-2004, and a member of the School Committee for eight years in the 1980s when he was working in the Brookline schools.

"After 42 years I felt I owed it to my family – especially my wife Linda – that I spend some time at home," said Santoro, who oversaw the transition from the old Quincy High building to a new, state-of-the-art facility.

Harry Williams, the director of the Thomas Crane Public Library, also announced his retirement, effective at the end of the month.

Two weeks after school officials said they were reviewing security procedures, parents urged the School Committee to put locks on the doors of each classroom. The push for the locks came in the wake of a tragic school shooting in Newtown, Conn. "Once a perpetrator is in a school," said Jan Robinson, a parent who spoke before the committee, "the only defense a child has is a lock on the door, getting out of sight, followed by the human shield of his or her teacher."

2013 The Year In Review

During the same meeting, 30 parents pressed the School Committee to restore media specialist positions in the upcoming school year. The committee also received a petition, signed by more than 1,500 residents, calling for restoration of the media specialists. Funding for the media specialists in the elementary and middle schools was cut in 2011, and parents had volunteered at the media centers since then.

Former Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly was appointed to the Quincy Housing Authority's Board of Commissioners.

North Quincy High students Tim Bill, Celeste Dang, Nathan Donahue, Yi Fung, Cynthia Nelson, and Kasey Shen began competing in the elimination round of WGBH's High School Quiz Show. North was one of 16 schools to qualify for the tournament, out of the 89 schools that participated in a preliminary round in late 2012.

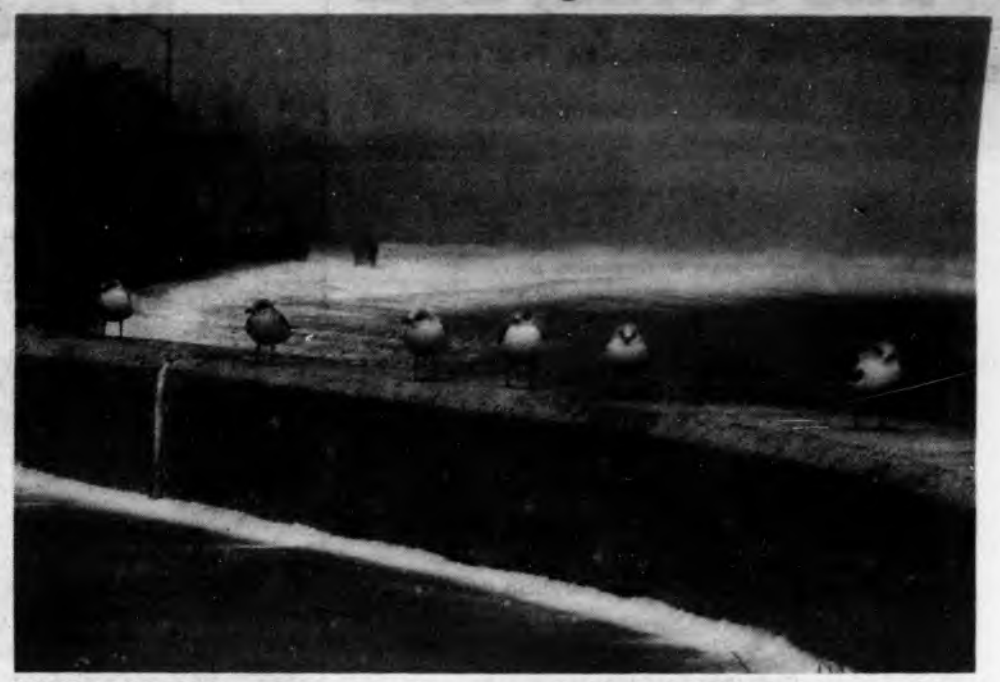

David Britt, Stephen Kelley, Timothy Kennedy, Mark Paolucci, Eric Eleey, Edward Hamilton, and Scott O'Hare were sworn in as the Fire Department's newest firefighters. The department also planned to swear in Edward Chaisson and Michael Griffith as firefighters upon their return from military deployments.

Deaths during January included:

Panfilo DeSantis, 87, construction company owner; John F. Hallisey, PhD, professor emerita at Regis College; Bertrand G. LaPointe, retired Quincy health inspector and former co-owner of Melwoods Restaurant; John E. Toland, 49, chief engineer in the Merchant Marine; Robert DeFranco, owner of the Galway House restaurant; Josephine F. Hurley, 100, retired Raytheon technician; Rita M. Willard, 96, Gold Star mother; Lester B. Sturgis, Jr., 81, retired Quincy school custodian; Michelle Theberge, 49, an interior designer active in Girl Scouts; Annette M. Paglierani, Quincy Art Association founder and painter of a White House ornament; Leroy W. Higgins, 89, TV business owner; Thomas W. Conway, 63, Citgo terminal operator; Ernestine L. Bostwick, 100, school policewoman and accountant; Michael C. Cardillo, musician and retired letter carrier; Maurice M. Houlihan, 44, member of Sheet Metal Workers Local 17; Leon L. Gould, 92, Quincy school principal and professional singer; Robert S. Caswell, 81, NQHS Hockey Hall of Famer and salesman; John R. Brummitt, 81, hardware store co-owner; and David P. Tenney, retired Broad Meadows principal.

Presented By Sun For Outstanding Community Service

Nominations Close Dec. 31 For Henry Bosworth Memorial Award

Tuesday, Dec. 31 is the last day to submit nominations for the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award presented by The Quincy Sun.

The award – formerly known as the Sun Citizen of the Year – was renamed in 2010 in memory of Mr. Bosworth, The Quincy Sun's founder and longtime publisher.

Last year, Paul F. Moody, Sr., commander of the Sons of the American Legion, Morrisette Legion Post 294 and coordinator of Flags for Veterans Island, was honored for longtime volunteer service and support of veterans, youth and others in need.

Moody, a lifelong Quincy resident, was selected for the award by a judging panel from among 19 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

He is the third recipient of the Bosworth Award and the 30th individual overall to be recognized by The Quincy Sun for outstanding community service.

The others are Ruth Elizabeth (Betty) DeCristofaro, a lifelong Quincy Point resident and community volunteer; and former Quincy City Clerk and current Norfolk County Commissioner John M. Gillis whose public service has spanned more than 50 years.

The other 27 individuals were honored when the award was known as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's Quincy Sun.

After nominations close Tuesday, Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2013 Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Bosworth Award
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31. The Quincy Sun office will close early Dec. 31 at 3 p.m. because of the New Year's Day holiday.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the their nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The award winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January or February.

FF Michael Eastwick Receives Medal Of Valor

Quincy Firefighter Michael Eastwick received a Medal of Valor award during Massachusetts' 24th annual Firefighter of the Year Awards ceremony.

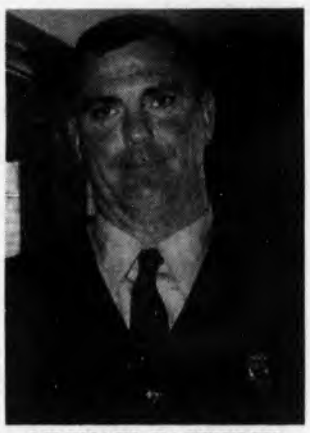

Eastwick and Weymouth Firefighter John Higgins each received the Medal of Valor for helping rescue a woman from a burning home while off duty in February. The two were driving along Higgins' mother-in-law's house to fix her heating system after February's blizzard, when they spotted smoke coming out of a house on East Street in Hingham.

The two firefighters, without any tools or protective gear, ran to the house and heard the woman calling out for help. They were able to pry open a door to get the woman out. She then tried to run back in to grab her dog, but the firefighters held the woman back.

An explosion occurred shortly after Eastwick and Higgins prevented the woman re-entering the house. They remained on scene until the Hingham Fire Department arrived, and were able to provide details on the house's condition and the status of its occupants. That information allowed the Hingham firefighters to avoid any unnecessary risks while battling the fire.

Fire Chief Joseph Barron presented Eastwick with a commendation in February for helping save the woman. He also received a Firemark Award in April from Liberty Mutual for his actions.

In November 2011, Eastwick received a commendation from the City Council after he pulled a 71-year old woman out of a crashed car in Abington while he was off duty. He administered life support to the woman and kept passersby from moving her while awaiting emergency personnel.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A real photo postcard view of the First Church of Christ Scientist at 20 Greenleaf Street near Quincy Center. This picture was taken on June 3, 1917, the day the first Christian Science services were held here. Built of Quincy granite and Indiana limestone at a cost of $30,000 it wasn't dedicated until two years later when it was completely paid for. The church served its members for almost 100 years, but with declining membership they have decided to seek a more suitable church building. So, in 2011 this building was sold for over $1 million to an alumna of the Woodward School for Girls who donated it to her alma mater. It is now known as Wesner Hall, named in honor of Dr. Thomas Wesner who until recently served for over 10 years as Headmaster of Woodward. The much needed space is used by the school for its performing arts programs. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Thank You QSO And QPS Music Program

I would like to thank the Quincy Symphony Orchestra, the Quincy and North Quincy High School combined choruses and bands, John Adams Orchestra, the supportive parents and more than thirty sponsors who generously gave their time and resources for a full house audience of 'Tis the Season . . . Symphony and Song Concert at Quincy High School Dec. 5.

Due to the generosity of the sponsors, Quincy elementary school students were given the opportunity to attend the concert free of charge. These students, no doubt, are the future supporters and participants of the music programs.

It is commendable to see list of the business community which continues to step up to the plate to support the music, and many other programs for the students. Often when school budgets are cut or scrutinized, the arts are the first to be considered for cuts, unless there are the sponsors and boosters clubs who go to "bat" for the music education, and bring them to the State's championship status once again.

'Tis the Season - Symphony Concert benefits, according to the program notes, the Quincy Public Schools Music Program . Thank you Quincy Symphony Orchestra for this most generous contribution. And, judged by the full house attendance and tickets sales it was a huge success. Now, perhaps one or two additional music educators could be hired, so both high schools could have their own choir director.

It would also be nice to know how much revenue was actually raised at these types of events and how much more could be raised, so the public can feel good about their contributions. Perhaps the results could be posted on the Quincy Public Schools' web site!

All the best wishes to the dedicated faculty who direct and teach music in Quincy Schools and the many loyal sponsors who make it all happened. The benefits are an incalculable investment to procure the high standard of the performing arts.

Downtown Quincy 'Filened'

Downtown Quincy has been "Filened."

The Filene site in downtown Boston was a hole-in-the-ground for a long time because the economy took a down turn. Funding became unavailable.

Now, downtown Quincy has been Filened for the opposite reason. The economy has taken an upturn and construction is going apace in Boston. Construction costs have gone up, mainly because of unionized labor. Labor is understandably not going to work for less money in Quincy when there are plenty of jobs in Boston. Return on investment will be less in Quincy than in Boston. Hence, investors in Quincy are not going to match labor costs in Boston. Downtown Quincy is between a rock and a hard place.

If nothing is done, downtown Quincy will remain a big hole in the ground for a very long time. One option is for the city to issue a bond to pay for the difference in labor costs between that paid in Boston and that which is willing to be paid by the developer in Quincy.

Not a happy solution but what is the alternative?

Interim Sludge Facility At Quincy Shipyard

By FRANK McCAULEY

Mayor Francis X. McCauley announced that the city of Quincy had entered into an agreement with the Mass. Water Resources Authority for an interim sludge facility at the Quincy Shipyard at least through 1995.

"We pressed the court case as far as we could," said McCauley, referring to the city's efforts against the purchase of the shipyard by the M.W.R.A.

The agreement was jointly announced by M.W.R.A. Executive Director Paul Levy, Mayor McCauley, DPW Commissioner Paul Anderson and consultant David Stanley.

McCauley and Levy said the agreement would accelerate the Boston Harbor cleanup, provide the city with tax revenue as well as eliminate planned sludge processing activities at the MWRA Nut Island Pollution Control Facility in Houghs Neck.

OVER 1,200 TOUR HISTORIC SITES

Over 1,200 visitors toured Quincy's historical sites during this year's "Holidays in Quincy" festival.

The sites decorated for the holidays included the Adams Academy Building, the Church of the Presidents, the Adams Mansion and the Josiah Quincy House. Involved were the Garden Clubs of Squantum, Wollaston and Germantown.

Sheriff's Office Sponsors 150 Families For Christmas

Employees of the Norfolk Sheriff's Office once again played Santa and stepped up to help more than 50 children from a South Shore social service agency see their Christmas wishes fulfilled.

Each year for last 12 years, children from the Dianne DeVanna Center in Braintree have submitted their wish list, and Norfolk Sheriff Michael Bellotti's staff has made sure those kids have a happy Christmas morning.

"We sponsor 150 families and would not be able to do what we do without people like the folks from the Norfolk Sheriff's Office," DeVanna Administrator Leslie Norton said. "It is always a great feeling when the families are crying tears of joy and sending thank you letters."

Over the course of the 12-year holiday collaboration between the DeVanna center and the Norfolk Sheriff's Office, the correction officers, caseworkers, medical and administrative staff for Sheriff Michael Bellotti have reached into their own pockets for a total of roughly $20,000 to bring Christmas joy to some 600 children.

"I'm very proud of the generous employees of the Norfolk Sheriff's Office," Bellotti said. This is a charitable effort that they have organized themselves. It is a marvelous example of the Christmas spirit at work."

A GROUP OF FRIENDS who play cards every Wednesday at the Kennedy Center recently got together to celebrate the holiday season at the Fox & Hounds Restaurant in Quincy. RED AS A POMEGRANATE SEED

If you're curious where January's birthstone got its name, "garnet" is derived from the Latin "granatus" (grain), which is most likely a reference to a pomegranate seed. One look at garnet's deep red hue immediately tells you why the link is so apt. This blood-red gemstone seems to pump with life, quickly animating any piece of jewelry that it is chosen to grace. While gemstone garnet also comes in green, yellow, and orange, red is the preferred color, as well as the one chosen to represent January's birthstone. Further enhancing the beautiful red gemstone's look is its unique crystal structure, called "rhombic dodecahedron," which is a 12-sided shape with diamond-shaped faces. No other gemstone has as individual a crystal structure.

Garnet's virtues have been long believed to include passion, true friendship, fidelity, success, self-esteem, loyalty, devotion, energy, faith, consistency, and truth. Along with the Garnet being the birthstone for January it is the stone that celebrates the 2nd anniversary of marriage. Come into our store located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center where you will find an amazing selection of unique jewelry. Contact us at 617-773-3636 and get ready to do some shopping!

Brothers Bring Joy To Families Of Germantown Neighbor Center

By KRIS KALABOKAS

It was a morning of Christmas cheer and holiday celebration at the 13th annual Dunkin' Donuts Breakfast With Santa hosted by Dunkin' Donuts franchisees Octavio and Victor Carvalho and Mayor Thomas Koch.

The event took place at the Boston Marriott Quincy in a room generously donated for the morning gathering of families of the Germantown Neighborhood Center and Quincy.

The children waited anxiously for Santa to make his grand entrance. As soon as the fat man with the white beard—played by a Quincy firefighter--made his appearance, the hall filled with excited screams and hoorays. Children encircled Saint Nick and followed him into the event room for photos. Santa wasn't the only character offering photo ops. Local celebrity Cuppy—the anthropomorphic Dunkin' Donuts coffee cup mascot—posed for holiday themed pictures with all the good little boys and girls.

After groups of youngsters sang Christmas carols and danced to seasonal tunes, they were encouraged to participate in fun activities such as gingerbread man decorating, coloring, and face painting. The gingerbread creations didn't last long and were quickly eaten along with the bagels, donuts, and beverages offered to the families.

Volunteers dressed as Rudolph, a polar bear, and a floppy-eared puppy wandered around giving hugs to all of the kids who ran up with outstretched arms. Gift bags were handed out containing pencils, frisbees, and inflatable beach balls.

Pitching in were volunteers from ING as well as local high schools and members of the Carvalho family.

"It kind of came to our attention that a lot of the kids had never taken a picture with Santa. Every kid has got a picture with Santa so we decided how about we provide a little breakfast and have Santa come and can take pictures," said Victor Carvalho who noted that the brothers had organized a toy drive to benefit the Germantown Neighborhood Center and that toys could be dropped off at several Quincy area Dunkin' Donuts.

"We wanted to give back to the community and we did a little homework and said well where can we have some impact, and we felt we could have a little bit of impact there," he said. "It's something we're proud of and happy to do every year. It's always fun for us as well."

Octavio Carvalho said he felt most rewarded by bringing a little light to children who otherwise would have "a very sad Christmas."

"Just to see the expression on these little kids' faces when they see Santa Clause walking in is priceless...you can't put a price tag on it and just to see the joy they get out of it," he said. "It seems like every year it grows... with the economy the way it is there's a lot of sad stories so there are more and more people in need."

Brother Victor is optimistic for the future of the annual breakfast gathering and hopes to be able to provide for more needy families in the future. He recounted his experience at the first Breakfast With Santa.

"The first year was really the first eye-opening experience for us. It was almost like a rockstar had walked in. The place just exploded," he said. "You see some of the kids come in in their Sunday best because they're going to see Santa and they're going to take a picture with Santa."

"How can we make this bigger, better, different... how can we expand it so that maybe we can reach out a little bit more?"

After Santa said his jolly goodbyes and families began leaving with bellies and hearts full, it was clear that the Carvalho brothers had done their good holiday deed.

"It's easy to just donate and not be part of it but we like to actually see the kids' expressions," said Victor. "Some of these kids really don't have much."

Bank Of Canton Donates $250 To Quincy After School Child Care

The Bank of Canton recently donated $250 to Quincy After School Child Care, Inc., which will provide one child with a scholarship for about two months.

The money was raised by donating all the fees received during the month of October from the Bank of Canton's coin counting machine, located at 60 McGrath Highway.

The Bank of Canton selects local causes periodically to benefit from this program, which makes real change in the community.

"I am very grateful to the Bank of Canton and especially the Branch Manager, Ken Anderson, for allowing us to benefit from this," said QCARE Development Associate Carole Saia.

QCARE's Scholarship Fund is designed specifically for working parents with low to moderate income who meet federal and state income guidelines for eligibility. If they qualify, and funds are available, they then receive a tuition discount. These are parents who must work in order to support their families and who need high quality, yet affordable, child care to do so. Due to their contract with the state voucher system, QCARE is required to use physically donated dollars to offer scholarships.

QUINCY AFTER SCHOOL Child Care Development Associate Carole Said presents a certificate of appreciation to Ken Anderson, Quincy branch manager, Bank of Canton. The bank recently donated $250 to QCARE.

"It is our donors who make offering scholarships possible," Saia said. "We cannot do so without them! We are grateful to each and every donor who contributes to this fund."

QCARE currently has a waiting list for those who are in need of a scholarship.

To donate to the scholarship program, send a check payable to QCARE to P.O. Box 82, Quincy, MA 02170.

No donation is too small. "ALL our donors make this program possible, regardless of the size of their contribution," Saia said. "Each contribution supports a family in need and makes a difference in the life of a child. Our children are our future and a worthy investment."

QCARE serves children in nine elementary schools across the city and also offers February, April and summer vacation programs. To learn more, visit www.quincyafterschool.org or call their main office at 617-773-3299.

QMC Employes Stuff Stockings For Toys For Tots

The lobby at Quincy Medical Center resembled Santa's workshop as employees assembled to learn who won "The Great QMC Stocking Challenge."

To enter the challenge, departments throughout the hospital decorated oversized Christmas stockings and stuffed them full of toys to be donated to Toys for Tots.

In a landslide of creativity and generosity, the lobby was flooded with more than 20 overflowing stockings decked out with sparkles, bells, lights and other holiday adornments, as well as scores of additional boxes and bags of extra toys -- enough to fill two vanloads!

The winning departments – pharmacy and perioperative services – will be treated to a pizza party.

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Janet's Sicilian Sausage-Orzo Soup

There is nothing like a good neighbor and I've had the best ever with Janet who has been living beside me for more than 40 years when she moved next door as a young bride.

We talk sporadically when we have time, and one day she told me about a Sicilian sausage soup-and brought me a taste. For an Irish lady, she makes a wonderful Italian soup.

I found it to be so easy and my family loved it-hope you will too.

SICILIAN SAUSAGE SOUP

1 pound sweet Italian sausage
1 large onion (chopped)
1 large an Italian style tomatoes
1 green pepper (cut in small pieces)
2 cans chicken stock
1- teaspoon basil
¾ cups orzo
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Remove the casing from the sausages. Sauté the sausages until they lose their pink color.

Add the onion and pepper. Cook until tender. Add the tomatoes, stock and basil. Bring to a full boil.

Stir in the orzos, salt and pepper. Lower heat and simmer until orzos are tender.

Val's Lamb Riblets

My son Dom's friend Val from California, owner of a vineyard, has sent me a couple of his favorite recipes.

Today's recipe is for lamb riblets. He first tasted them when he visited his father's birthplace in the village of Castello Del Monte in Italy where they celebrated the feast of St. Christopher.

He explained a full rack of lamb has an extensive rib of which the ends (about 4 inches) are cut off before the rack is presented for sale. These are called lamb riblets.

LAMB RIBLETS

About 30-32 lamb riblets
Enough milk for coating
Plain breadcrumbs for coating

Trim fat and lightly salt the riblets. Cook on a cookie sheet in a 400 -degree oven until most of the fat is gone.

Remove and immerse in a bowl of milk. Remove fat from the cookie sheet and roll and coat each riblet with the breadcrumbs. Place on the cookie sheet, sprinkle with a bit of milk, and bake until heated through. Enjoy!

Interpretative Signage At Historical Inclined Plane Railway

The Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum has erected interpretative signage at the historic Inclined Plane Railway that was used along with the Granite Railway, the first commercial railroad in America.

Both railways were designed and built by Gridley Bryant. The Inclined Plane was built by Bryant to transport granite down from Pine Hill Ledge to be loaded onto the cars on the Granite Railway for transport to the Neponset River where the granite was loaded on to granite sloops for destinations up and down the East Coast.

In researching the Inclined Plane, no photos, pictures or sketches of how it looked or operated when Gridley Bryant constructed it in 1830 were found.

The quarry museum commissioned a local artist, Ruth Haderski, of Weymouth to do a rendering of the Inclined Plane Railway system of 1830. The rendering of the Inclined Plane Railway in 1830 was based mainly on excerpts from the book by Gridley Bryant titled "Memoirs of Gridley Bryant" in which he described the construction and operation of the railway in a letter to a friend. The actual remains of the Inclined Plane on Mullen Avenue, West Quincy and Bryant's memoirs enabled the museum to work with the artist to develop a realistic rendering of what it may have looked like in 1830.

With the rendering complete, the museum members assembled historic photos and developed an interpretative for each photo and sketches to be included in the signage project. The project now needed technical expertise in the graphic design field.

The museum contacted Keith Segalla the Executive Director of Career Education and Instructional Technology in the Quincy Public Schools who directed the museum to the graphic arts and visual design class of Ellen McGinnity, to design the signage using the information supplied by the museum. Three seniors who were chosen to work on the project, Olivia Goldson, Theresa Hughes and Benjamin Witunsky, who have now graduated.

The informational signage has been placed at the foot of the Inclined Plane to give Quincy residents and visitors a prospective of the site when it was in operation transporting granite from the quarry in 1830. The museum plans to continue the placement of signage at historic sites in Quincy related to the granite industry. The official unveiling of the signage took place Dec. 11 with city officials, museum members and guests attending.

Funding for the project came from the Massachusetts Cultural Council, Quincy Arts Council and Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum with hardware donated by Steve Sheptyck of Quincy Steel and Welding.

For more information on the granite industry and the museum visit the website www.quincyquarrymuseum.org or contact the museum at Quincy Quarry Museum P.O. Box 690724 Quincy, MA 02269 email quincyquarrymuseum@verizon.net or call 617-472-1322.

DENTISTRY
for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

BRUSH YOUR TEETH, FLOSS, AND SCRAPE YOUR TONGUE

No one wants bad breath, or "halitosis," which most people try to eliminate by chewing gum, sucking on mints, and/or rinsing their mouths with mouthwash. However, to really get at the source of bad breath, it is necessary to look at the bacteria on the tongue that produce the malodorous substances known as "volatile sulfur compounds." While most people pay the requisite amount of attention to ridding their teeth and gums of bacteria through regular brushing and flossing, few think to include their tongues in their oral hygiene regimens. By scraping their tongues every day with a tongue scraper, those who are regularly plagued by bad breath can go a long way toward eliminating the problem at its source.

Call us at 617 479-6220 today to schedule your first professional cleaning of 2014. Good oral hygiene is important, not only for looks, but for general health as well. Poor oral hygiene can lead to a variety of dental and medical problems, such as gum disease, infection, bone loss, heart disease, strokes and more. Regular checkups and cleanings can prevent these problems, as well as provide you with good oral hygiene. You can count on us for family-oriented dental care. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com

P.S. "Dry mouth," which is a condition produced by some medications and is a side effect of some diseases, can contribute to bad breath by depriving the teeth and gums of cleansing saliva.

Street-Works: Merchants Row Project Not Feasible Without LDA Changes

By SCOTT JACKSON

A top Street-Works official said work on the Merchants Row project won't be able to resume without changes to the developer's agreement with the city.

During a special event last week at the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, Mayor Thomas Koch said he would request changes to the city's land disposition agreement (LDA) with Street-Works that would reduce the amount of money paid to the city by the developer. In a phone interview after the mayor's announcement, Street-Works partner Richard Heapes said the work on the project cannot start again without the changes.

"No," Heapes said when asked if the Merchants Row project was financially feasible without the changes. "If it was we'd be out there building it."

Among the items that could be altered or removed are $30 million to be paid to the city by Street-Works for district improvements; a payment of $10 million to be spent on public improvements throughout the city; the $10,000 Street-Works would pay per residential unit into the city's affordable housing trust fund; and altering the structure of tax payments made to the city.

Street-Works broke ground on Merchants Row, located in the 1400 block of Hancock Street, in June. At that time, plans called for constructing two new buildings, one 15 stories tall and the other five stories tall, at a cost of $120 million. In August, the developer announced the project would include three buildings, each six stories tall, instead of the original two buildings.

Work on the project came to a halt in the fall. Heapes told the City Council in November that rising construction costs – which he said increased by 37 percent in greater Boston in 2013 and were expected to go up another 13 to 18 percent in 2014 – were the reason for the stoppage.

RICHARD HEAPES, Street-Works partner, says the Merchants Row downtown project is not financially feasible without changes to the city's Land Disposition Agreement.

COUNCILLOR DOUG GUTRO, chairman of the council's Downtown Committee, says he is open minded but hesitant about altering the LDA.

Koch said last week the city had hired Jim Kirby, the president of Boston-based consulting firm C3, as an advisor in part to look into Street-Works statements about increased costs.

In the phone interview, Heapes said that figure was from a July 2013 report by the Gilbane Building Company, a Rhode Island-based development and construction firm. The increase in costs, Heapes explained, was caused in part by a spike in local construction projects as the area emerges from the recession that began in 2008.

"Part of it is a function of how much construction is going on – it's different than four or five years ago," Heapes said. "It causes things to spike. It's not permanent, it's just the way things are now."

Construction projects in Boston, Heapes further explained, have been able to continue because rent in downtown Boston costs over $5 per square foot. Work on the Merchants Row project, however, was stopped because investors expect rent on site to cost $3 per square foot – more than other buildings in Quincy Center but not enough to make the project feasible without reducing the payments Street-Works owes to the city.

"We have to make the investment attractable," Heapes said. "They (investors) all have certain expectations. The ratio doesn't work compared to Quincy's rents."

Councillor Doug Gutro, the chairman of the council's downtown committee, said he would be open-minded but hesitant about altering the LDA, which was signed in January 2011.

"I will be open minded, but I will say hesitant, as the ink is barely dry without the first block even under construction," Gutro told The Sun. "With the economy seeming to be turning around and the downtown scaling down, I have concerns."

"Every aspect was well thought out, well vetted, and reasonably constructed," Gutro added, referring to the LDA. "There was great euphoria three years ago when it was signed that is was fair and reasonable on all sides. It's time to have a transparent discussion about what really has changed."

Gutro noted Quincy would be making concessions to the developers by altering the LDA to reduce payments owed to the city, and that construction workers would make less because of the smaller buildings. He wants to know what concessions Street-Works, its partner Twining Properties, and the developers' financial backers have made or are willing to make going forward.

"I've read the city may have to give concessions. With the smaller buildings it seems working men and women are making concessions," Gutro said. "It's unclear what concessions the developers and investors are making."

Gutro also added that the city should do its best to verify Heapes' statements about increased construction costs.

"I'd like to follow the mantra 'trust, but verify,'" Gutro said. "We have a relationship with Street-Works but we want it to work out. We will find out if there is truth to that and we should [find out]."

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 meets on the second Tuesday of each month to discuss a variety of books. The Club will meet on Tuesday, Jan. 14th at 7 p.m. at the Main Library.

In 1984 author Chris Van Allsburg published a very unusual book titled The Mysteries of Harris Burdick. Instead of his usual picture book with a single story, he presented 14 illustrations, each from a different story. Each illustration had a different title and a single line from its story to go with it. But the stories were never written. The illustrations, titles and lines are all there is, leaving the reader to imagine the rest. In 2011 a collection of short stories based on the illustrations and written by well-known children's authors was released, titled The Chronicles of Harris Burdick.

This month we'll all be reading The Mysteries of Harris Burdick, then choosing a single story from The Chronicles of Harris Burdick and coming up with our own story ideas from the enigmatic illustrations. Please grab a copy of each book.

Colleagues Will Miss Lebo's 'Wealth Of Knowledge'

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

Emily Lebo may have served in her last school committee meeting on Dec. 11th but many of her colleagues at last Wednesday night's meeting said they hope she will be back to run again in two years.

"I just want to thank you as a new person on the school committee. I admire the work that you did on the committee. You were professional. You were always organized and know what's going on," said school committee member Paul Bregoli. "Personally I think it is a big loss but don't throw in the towel yet, who knows a couple of years from now you might be back."

Lebo, who lost her school seat to newcomer Noel DiBona in the Nov. 5th city election, served on the school committee for one term (four years) but brought a wealth of knowledge and professionalism to the table.

"I want to add certainly my words of gratitude to Mrs. Lebo for her four years of service to the committee. I think each member brings something to the committee and then we come together as a body, your commitment, your talent, your drive, raised the body, in confidence, in dedication, and in passion," said Mayor Tom Koch. "I've always appreciated your words of guidance and words of wisdom from time to time before you were on the committee and I expect we'll continue to hear those now that you are leaving us for perhaps a short time, who knows maybe you'll be back. I appreciate so much your service, I appreciate your friendship, your guidance, and your support."

Lebo, who is a former Quincy Public Schools teacher and administrator from 1987-2007 and currently is a Boston Public Schools administrator, worked tirelessly on creating a new subcommittee, working with the Quincy Education Association on the new educator evaluation system, and championing the media positions during her tenure.

"I was sad when you left the leadership team back when you were a part of the Quincy Public Schools to move on to go to the Boston Public Schools I thought we had lost you and we weren't going to have you back here," said school committee member Anne Mahoney. "You've brought so much knowledge to the committee, a value that we're losing because you have a different expertise that none of us have. The school committee is a labor of love, if you really want your community to have an excellent foundation then we need excellence on our school committee and you brought that excellence here to this committee and I value your experience and your passion and I'll miss you dearly."

"I saw it when I first came on the school committee and you used to present to us out there how passionate you were as a teacher," said committee member Dave McCarthy. "I quickly saw it over the past four years how passionate you were on the committee. You're a true professional and a true friend to the kids of the City of Quincy and the City itself."

School Committee Vice Chairwoman Barbara Isola, who ran with Lebo in November and four years ago, said that she has become a better school committee member because of Lebo.

"Four years ago when we ran together, that election we went to so many forums together that I think we all got to know each other real well. It was then that I understood what you were going to bring to the school committee," said Isola. "I just have been so proud to work with you. Having Emily on school committee made me a better school committee member and I mean that from the bottom of my heart. What I also learned about you is just what a wonderful person you are, what a loving mom you are. It's just been so wonderful to get to know that side of you Emily. I feel privileged to have worked with you, and I know this isn't the end. We're going to miss you."

The committee presented Lebo with a bouquet of flowers and a cherry wood box with a historic Quincy scene and engraved with her years of service.

"It's been an absolute pleasure for me to be here and one of the highlights of my professional life," Lebo said.

Robbery Suspect Arrested After 9-Hour Standoff

By SCOTT JACKSON

A Quincy resident charged with robbing a Wellesley bank faced a dangerousness hearing Tuesday in Dedham District Court.

Brian Kalil, 32, was arrested Dec. 19 following a nine-hour standoff outside a residence at 1045 Furnace Brook Parkway. He pleaded not guilty to charges of larceny over $250 and unarmed robbery on Dec. 20 and was ordered held without bail after the arraignment.

In addition to the robbery charges, Kalil will face charges in Quincy for allegedly injuring a police dog during the standoff.

The standoff began around 1:30 p.m. on Dec. 19, when investigators from the Wellesley Police Department in conjunction with Quincy Police Department, Norfolk County Anti-Crime Task Force, Metropolitan Law Enforcement Council, Massachusetts State Police and the FBI Bank Robbery Task Force attempted to execute an arrest warrant for Brian Kalil, according to a statement issued by the Wellesley police.

Investigators on scene were able to determine that Kalil was in the residence and tried to contact him, though those attempts failed. Wellesley police said Kalil was alone in the home, and suspected he was in possession of a firearm.

Members of the Metropolitan Law Enforcement Council's tactical unit along with members of the Quincy Police Department, Massachusetts State Police, Norfolk County Anti-Crime Task Force, and FBI Bank Robbery Task Force agents utilized tactical maneuvers to remove Brian Kalil from the residence.

According to Wellesley police, robots and police dogs were used to search the house for Kalil. During the search, a SWAT team in the attic used a K9 named Blitz to locate Kalil in a remote area of the attic.

Wellesley police said Kalil threw Blitz down a flight of stairs after the dog located the suspect. Despite being thrown down the stairs, Blitz continued to pursue the suspect and the SWAT team brought him into custody around 10:45 p.m. Kalil was taken to Quincy Medical Center after being injured in his struggle with Blitz. He was treated there before being transported to Wellesley for booking.

Blitz suffered a puncture wound, cuts, lacerations, and bruises to his face, nose and chest. Wellesley police said Blitz, a Plymouth County Sherriff's K9, will be able to return to duty after he heals up. Kalil will be charged separately in Quincy for assault and battery on a police dog for allegedly injuring Blitz.

Wellesley police say Kalil robbed at TD Bank branch at 999 Worcester St. in Wellesley just before 2 p.m. on Dec. 15.

YMCA Celebrates Completion of $30 Million Facility

Santa takes first dip in aquatics center

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

The Quincy YMCA celebrated the completion of its new $30 million facility with a first plunge into its new, six-lane pool by former YMCA Board Chairman Dan DeMarco, who dressed as Santa for the occasion held on Dec. 19.

"This is really a community asset," said South Shore YMCA President and CEO Paul Gorman. "You would be hard-pressed to find a YMCA like this one. The old building was one of the largest Y's in New England. Now we have a new building to match a great staff."

The new building opened up to members Monday with just a few finishing touches to be completed, such as the multi-purpose gym, the Café and Childcare Center, before the grand opening event, which is planned to take place sometime in January.

"Our biggest goal right now is to allow our members to come back into their Y. They've been out since September so a soft opening seems very appropriate just to get folks back into some normalcy and we will have a grand opening at a later date," said YMCA Executive Director Eric Snyder.

"Once we have our temporary occupancy, we will work with early education licensing to get our licensing for the square footage and how many kids we can have in each classroom, that comes along secondary to our opening of our building. We're really excited, our learning center staff and teachers have done a tremendous job educating our young ones in the basement of Germantown during this time. The early learning center will maintain in Germantown until we have our licensure give us the license. We hope that goes as fast as possible. An estimated two-week delay, not really a delay, but that's just how the licensing operation goes. The Café will be delayed and come along soon after the opening."

According to Sara Trubiano, Director of Marketing, the new 30,000 square foot multipurpose gym, which includes two high school regulation-sized basketball courts and a turf field, is expected to be finished and open within a week or two of the opening.

The building, which will replace the 58-year-old building it stands across from, is almost double the size of what members and staff are used to, going from a three-floor 86,000 square foot building to a two-floor 118,000 square foot facility.

The building features two pools, a six-lane, 25-yard lap pool and a warmer, shallower family pool, a steam room and sauna, and an eight-lap to the mile suspended track, among many other features that the facility will have to offer.

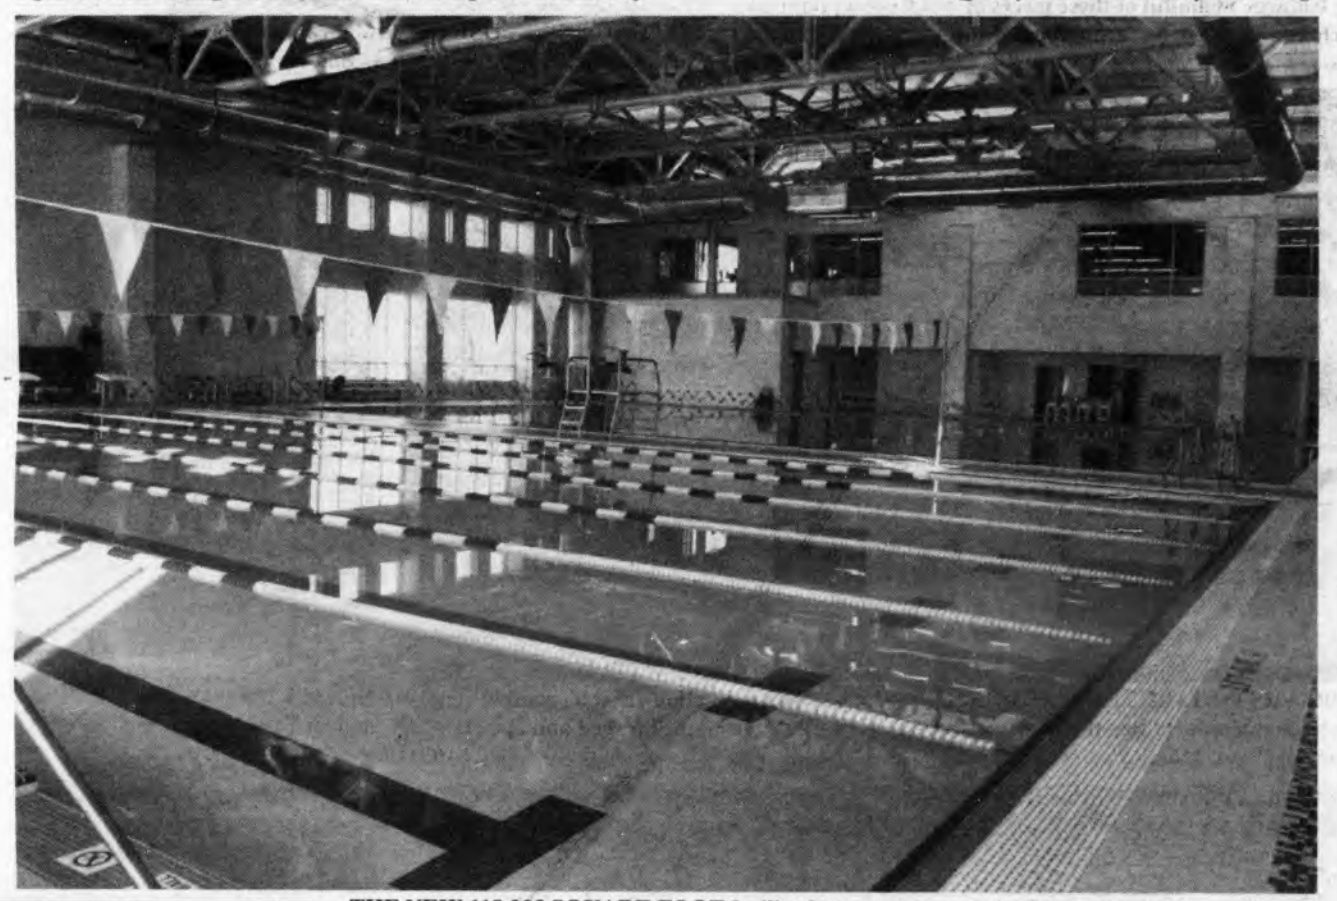

"What excites me the most is that the City of Quincy will have a YMCA that is state of the art. It's going to be a model for Y's across the country in this urban setting," said Snyder. "Although the members have adored their old YMCA on a lot of levels, they deserve a state of the art building and this has all of the bells and whistles a state of the art facility should have, from the equipment to the layout and to the amenities we offer."

Some of that equipment includes nearly 200 pieces of cardio and strength equip-includes nearly 200 pieces of cardio and strength equipment, approximately 30 bikes for the cycling studio, along with barbells, dumbbells, and steppers. The new facility features four studios on the second floor including the cycling studio, a mind and body studio, a smaller studio, which can be used for small group classes and personal training, and a main exercise studio for classes such as Zumba, muscle conditioning and dry land step classes.

"We'll offer programs from infant all the way up to our seniors in those rooms," said Snyder. "We generally, as YMCA programmers, if you give us four walls and a room that we can put people in we do everything in them. We utilize space pretty creatively."

ALSO PART OF THE new work out equipment are machines whose weight is controlled by air pressure. The new facility only features a handful of these pieces of work out equipment, which can be used for a number of different workout routines. Quincy Sun Photo/Emily Armstrong against Quincy High in the city's annual Thanksgiving game, but he said his fondest memory was the Raiders' 2009 victory over the Presidents, the first Turkey Day win for North in 10 years.

Blizzard: 30 Inches Of Snow, Coastal Flooding

"It will be forever a highlight of my career," Connor said of that game, the first of three straight wins on Thanksgiving. "To finally get a win against Quincy is something I will never forget."

Ken McPhee, an assistant football coach for North, announced his retirement. McPhee worked as an assistant at North for 12 years before becoming head coach, a position he held for 17 years. He returned to work with Connor, and served for five years as an assistant under him.

"I have nothing but wonderful memories," McPhee said of his 34-year tenure. "I enjoyed every moment of it."

The City Council presented commendations to Quincy Police Officers John Grazioso and Don Sautter. The two officers were recognized for their work in the city's DARE program.

Former Mayor Arthur Tobin recalled the Blizzard of '78 on the 35th anniversary of the historic storm hitting the city. The storm slammed into Quincy dumping 27 inches of snow and swamping coastal areas with a five-foot storm surge. Tobin had been in office as mayor for just one month when the blizzard hit.

2013 The Year In Review

"I woke up the mayor of a blizzard," Tobin recalled. "When you're in a new administration and you're thinking of priorities, things you want to address, the issues of the day – no one was planning on a blizzard."

Days after the 35th anniversary of the '78 storm, another powerful snowstorm struck Quincy cutting power to the entire the city. The storm, the first official blizzard since 1978, also deposited up to 30 inches of snow on the city and caused flooding in Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, and Merrymount.

"There was flooding in a lot of the coastal roads," Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest said. "The area by the Willows was cut off and Houghs Neck went from a peninsula to an island."

Up to 250 residents needed to head to shelters either because of the coastal flooding or the prolonged blackout, which left parts of the city without power for days. City schools were closed three days because of the storm, and Gov. Deval Patrick also banned vehicle traffic for 24 hours during the height of the nor'easter.

The Fire Department responded to two storm-related incidents. A Sea Avenue resident was using her fireplace during the blizzard, when the fire traveled through cracked mortar or bricks and into the home's walls, causing $120,000 worth of damage. Additionally a portable heater exploded at a house on Mount Vernon Street. The explosion did not start a fire.

The storm's costs were projected to top $1.4 million.

During the cleanup after the storm, 16-year-old Dylan Hughes helped save the life of his 103-year-old neighbor. Hughes checked on the neighbor and found her shivering, so he and his father Joseph Pereira called 911 and shoveled out the house so EMTs could reach the neighbor, who was taken to the hospital and able to return home.

Quincy Public Schools Athletic Director Jim Rendle announced his retirement, effective at the end of the school year. Rendle began serving as athletic director in 2006. He was also a longtime volleyball coach at North Quincy High – Rendle was inducted into the Mass. State Girls Volleyball Coaches Hall of Fame in 2004 – and served as coach of North's boys basketball team from 2003 to 2006.

THE BLIZZARD OF 2013 dropped 30 inches of snow and flooded some coastal sections of Quincy, including the Willows area of Sea Street in Houghs Neck. About 250 residents were forced into shelters. Photo Courtesy Margaret Laforest

Rendle had a reputation as a hands-on athletic director. He was known for frequenting games, sometimes catching two in one night.

"That was the fun part of my job," Rendle said. "I always got enjoyment out of seeing the kids play."

Police Chief Paul Keenan was one of 14 police chiefs from the northeast to tour Israel. The group visited border crossings, airports, shopping malls, and holy sites to learn how Israeli authorities work to protect them.

Quincy High senior Billy Malas was named the school system's outstanding vocational student. Malas, who majored in both engineering and informational technology, had a 4.82 grade point average and was nominated by two of his teachers – Ed Holmes and Paul Tully. Among his many accomplishments, Malas helped create a new point of sales (POS) system for Quincy High's restaurant and the Android app called "Guide to Quincy High." He was also working with two classmates to create a new video game system called "Holodeck Alpha."

Noel DiBona, the operator of Russ DiBona and Son Landscaping and president of the Ward 2 Civic Association, announced his candidacy for School Committee.

Deaths during February included:

Samuel J. Pellicane, 88, a former instructor at the Fore River Shipyard; Antonio Svizzero, 84, former vice president of Massachusetts Shipbuilders Corp.; Josephine V. Collins, 93, a retired Quincy Public Schools food services employee; Paul Benzaquin, 90, a member of the Mass. Broadcasters Hall of Fame; Marie A. Smith, a former art teacher at Broad Meadows; Kevin E. Keane, Jr., a City of Quincy employee; Thoril A. Merrill, 95, a former singer for the Clyde McCoy band; Charles M. Kane, the owner of Jimmy's and Kane's Place; and Sarah E. Byrne, 85, a Quincy Public Schools food service employee.

MARCH

Former state Treasurer Tim Cahill said he was happy to be moving on with his life after reaching a settlement with state prosecutors to avoid a second trial for public corruption charges. Attorney General Martha Coakley had charged Cahill with using Lottery ads to boosts his 2010 gubernatorial campaign. Cahill was tried in 2012 on those charges, but a hung jury led to a mistrial.

Cahill, a Quincy resident and former city councillor, agreed to pay a $100,000 civil fine as part of the settlement, and did not have to admit to any criminal wrongdoing.

"I'm very satisfied with the agreement we reached with the Attorney General's Office ending this saga. I think it is a fair agreement and I'm happy to be moving forward with my life and avoiding a second trial," Cahill said.

Paul Moody, Sr. received the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award at a reception held at the Quincy Sons of Italy. The commander of the Sons of the American Legion Squadron 294, Morrisette Legion Post, Moody was nominated for the award by SAL members for his work launching Flags for Veterans Island in Fort Square.

"The flags on the island are in honor of all the men and women who have served, continued to serve, and those who have answered their final call, so our country remains free," Moody said while accepting the award.

Megan Allen was appointed as the new director of the Thomas Crane Public Library. She first joined the library system in 1986 and worked in a variety of capacities, most recently as the library's assistant director for the nine years prior to her being named library director.

School Department Asst. Superintendent Colleen Roberts announced that she would be leaving the department after 42 years of service. Roberts began working as a student teacher while studying as Boston State College (now UMass Boston), then worked as a teacher at Lincoln-Hancock and Broad Meadows. From there she served as assistant principal at Sterling and then principal at Beechwood Knoll. She left that role to become curriculum director for the School Department before being named assistant superintendent.

The North Quincy High's boys' basketball team made a long run in the state tournament, advancing all the way to Division 1 South Sectional championship before bowing out to Mansfield, 57-45 at UMass Boston. To reach the sectional championship the Red Raiders defeated Natick, Braintree, and Newton North. More than 1,000 fans squeezed into North's gym to see the Braintree game.

The Houghs Neck Community mourned the loss of the Rev. M. Alicia Corea, who served at Houghs Neck Congregational Church for 55 years before retiring in 2003. She arrived at the church in 1947 when her husband, the Rev. Peter Corea, was ordained as the church's fulltime pastor, and became the church's fulltime pastor after her husband's passing.

"She was just a wonderful individual," former Mayor Francis McCauley, a longtime HNCC parishioner, said of the Rev. Corea.

The city announced plans to dedicate the Quincy Arts Center, located at 26 High School Ave., to the late Annette Paglierani. She was a founding member of both the Quincy Art Association and the Quincy Art Festival and a former president of the Quincy Art Association.

City Clerk Joseph Shea was honored as the city's "Irishman of the Year" during the Quincy St. Patrick's Day Celebration.

Barry's Deli in Wollaston closed its doors after 52 years after owner Armand Veliaj sold the business. Council President Michael McFarland, who bought the deli from its original owner in 1978 and sold it to Veliaj in 2002, reflected on his time at the deli.

"I worked for the Barry family when I was in high school and then in college as a part-time employee," McFarland said. "My parents used to shop there when I was a kid and when Dan (the original owner) decided to sell it I bought it from him. I had a lot of fun there and we had a lot of wonderful customers."

The City Council heard support and opposition to a proposed North Quincy C-Mart during two public meetings at North Quincy High. Michael Fang planned to convert the former Boston Gear Works Building at 10 Hayward Ave. into a 25,000 square foot supermarket and a 6,400 square foot warehouse. He first proposed opening the North Quincy C-Mart in 2009 but the council rejected that plan, and Fang appealed. As part of a settlement, the proposal was remanded back to the council.

Supporters of the project said it would be a boon for businesses, while its opponents felt the supermarket would be a boondoggle that would only exacerbate the area's traffic problems.

their positions on racism against C-Mart's Asian clientele. He said such claims of racism were "grossly unfair, dishonest, and an affront to each and every resident of Quincy" in a letter to City Council President Michael McFarland.

The City Council approved spending $2.3 million from Quincy's settlement with Honeywell on building repairs, new vehicles, and safety improvements for the schools. The appropriation provided $1 million to the Public Building Department to purchase new control systems, replace emergency generators and make HVAC repairs, among other items. The School Department received $500,000 for security upgrades such as new locks for classrooms. Nearly $800,000 would go towards purchasing new vehicles.

An additional $1 million from the settlement was deposited into the city's stabilization account, and $500,000 was reserved for appropriation.

The City Council also okayed spending $250,000 to restore North Quincy's Cavanagh Field and resurface playground equipment throughout the city. Park Department Commissioner Chris Cassani said the city planned to install new drainage and irrigation systems at Cavanagh Field, and give the field a new sod surface.

The mayor and officials with the Quincy Chamber of Commerce touted economic growth along the Washington Street corridor. Chamber President Dean Rizzo noted the chamber's economic arm, Quincy 2000, had helped businesses in the area by providing low-interest loans. Koch added that a number of infrastructure improvements, such as the building of a new Fore River Bridge and planned repaving of Washington Street, were also occurring in Quincy Point.

Two bombs were set off seconds apart near the finish line of the Boston Marathon killing three people and wounding 264. Patrick Foley, a Quincy resident who was running in the race, narrowly avoided the scene of the explosions after he took a bathroom break just before the race's final stretch.

"It was just very, very disturbing," Foley said. "It was surreal. I was running a good race and then it stopped – the world just stopped."

The Quincy Police Department was called in to assist in the aftermath of the attack. Police Chief Paul Keenan said 10 motorcycle officers and four bomb sniffing dogs were deployed to Boston. Quincy Police also assisted MBTA Police, guarding stations in Boston and Quincy.

A $118,000 restoration project was underway at the Josiah Quincy House in Wollaston. Historic New England, the non-profit operator of the home, planned to use documents and photographs taken of the house in the 1880s by Eliza Susan Quincy as a basis for the restoration.

Caddy was awarded the Medal of Honor for his actions.

The city honored three Quincy residents killed during the Vietnam War by dedicating and re-dedicating squares in their honor. The square at Phipps Street and Kendrick Avenue was re-dedicated to Marine Lance/Cpl. James H. Cavicchi, Jr.; a square at 89 Gilbert St. was dedicated to Army Spec. 4 J. Michael Berry; and the square at 83 Safford St. was dedicated to Marine Lance/Cpl. David O. Sullivan.

In a ceremony to honor the 48 Quincy residents killed in the Vietnam War, G. Patrick Murphy – a Vietnam veteran and chief justice of the U.S. District Court of Southern Illinois told surviving veterans it was incumbent on them to live responsibly and honorably out of respect for their fallen comrades.

"All of us – veterans who are here and still alive – in a very real way have to stand in and substitute for those that didn't get back," Murphy said. "Instead we have to live our lives responsibly and honorably and with joy because life is a gift."

Jazmin Eltoury received the Girl Scout Gold Award, becoming only the second Quincy Girl Scout to do so.

Bay State voters went to the polls to nominate the candidates for June's special U.S. Senate election. Democratic Cong. Budget Adds New Teachers, Beefs Up Public Safety

MAY

Mayor Thomas Koch proposed a $257.81 million budget for FY14, a 4.4 percent increase over the FY13 budget. Most of the added money, nearly $9 million, was earmarked for education and public safety, including hiring several new teachers, six new police officers, and additional money for overtime for firefighters to keep stations open.

Equality Under the Law was the theme of Quincy District Court's Law Day celebration, in recognition of the 150th anniversary of Emancipation Proclamation taking effect and the 50th anniversary of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s "I Have a Dream Speech." The keynote speaker for the event was Francis X. Bellotti, the former state lieutenant governor and attorney general, for whom the courthouse was named in 2013. He said that nowhere else in the world is equality evident than in the U.S.

"Nowhere else in the world is the equality articulated in the proclamation more evident than it is in what I believe to be this wonderful democracy," Bellotti said. "I guess we have to realize, and we don't always realize, that the lawyers, judges, clerks, court people, prosecutors, and police are all part of the system without which we wouldn't have any rights.

Sixty-five officers from Quincy and elsewhere on the South Shore were recognized during the Law Day ceremony for their assistance following the Boston Marathon bombing in April, including 15 members of the Quincy Police Department.

Some 1,200 runners ran in the Quincy Half Marathon, many of who wearing shirts emblazoned with "Boston Strong" in recognition of the victims Boston Marathon bombing and subsequent pursuit of the suspects.

School Committeeman Paul Bregoli called for stricter standards for students to participate in high school sports. The current policy, Bregoli said, allows students with two failing grades to participate. He would prefer a more stringent policy that would allow only one failing grade and require coaches to check on players' progress reports, and place them on probation if they were in danger of failing.

The City Council rejected a proposed North Quincy C-Mart supermarket for the second time in four years. Five councillors – Kevin Coughlin, Brad Croall, Kirsten Hughes, Margaret Laforest and Michael McFarland – against the project, citing traffic concerns that would put a burden on the surrounding neighborhood.

"I cannot support this project because this is a detriment to the neighborhood that I believe is not acceptable," said Hughes, whose ward includes the proposed C-Mart site. "I do not think it is reasonable that we would ask the neighborhood to put up with this burden and I do think it is far too burdensome of a project."

Councillors Joe Finn, Doug Gutro, and Brian Palmucci voted in favor of the project. Finn and Palmucci both said the project would be less of a burden than any by-right use already allowed on the property, and Gutro added that rejecting the plan wouldn't help traffic on Hancock Street.

James Lydon was named the new executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, replacing James MacRitchie who retired after eight years as the head of the housing authority. Lydon had previously served as Quincy's planning director for several mayors, including Francis McCauley.

More than 160 American flags were installed on Flags for Veterans Island in Ft. Square for Memorial Day. George Nicholson, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, was the keynote speaker for the Cyril P. Morrisette Post Squadron 294 Sons of the American Legion Memorial Day observance held there. He reminded the gathered crowd that everyone has an obligation to honor veterans.

"Our debt to them for all of the freedoms we enjoy, we know we will never forget," Nicholson said. "Our obligation to them is something we must live."

Lawrence Norton, a Purple Heart recipient and president of the Quincy Chapter of the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces, reminded a crowd of hundreds who attended the city's Memorial Day observance about the role Vietnam veterans have played, and continue to play – despite how disrespected they were.

"Vietnam veterans play a major role in the survival of our country – from police, firefighters, elected and appointed officials, and yes, Indian chiefs," Norton said. "We sent the best and brightest off to an unpopular war – disrespected them. But thank your God that they did not disrespect you, their God, or their country."

North Quincy High's High School Quiz Show team won the inaugural Governor's Cup by defeating the New Hampshire champion Plymouth Regional High. North's team – Yi Fung, Celeste Dang, Cindy Nelson, Tim Bill, Nathan Donohue and Kasey Shen – qualified for the Governor's Cup match by defeating Lexington High to win the Massachusetts title.

School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said the School Department's new FY14 budget of $93.66 million would allow the department to hire 10.5

JUNE

Larry Taglieri, the principal of Broad Meadows Middle School for the past seven years, was named the new principal at Quincy High. Taglieri, a 1986 QHS graduate, said he left Broad Meadows because being principal at his alma mater appealed to him.

'WE'RE A CITY on the move - strap yourself in," Mayor Thomas Koch declared in June at a groundbreaking for Merchants Row, the first project in the $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center. At right is a three-dimensional model of the new downtown which officials say is expected to be completed by 2020. With Koch on the platform (left to right) are Sen. John Keenan, U.S. Rep Stephen F. Lynch, and former U.S. Rep. William Delahunt. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

"The idea of going up to Quincy High now really appealed to me," Taglieri said. "It would be very neat for me to be back in there and be at the end of the educational trail again. What can I say – it's my alma mater."

James McGuire, who served as principal of Point Webster since the school reopened as a middle school following renovations in 1999, announced his retirement at the end of the school year. McGuire had grown up on Baxter Avenue in Quincy Point, and said he was most proud of the work he had done in the neighborhood as the school's principal.

"The thing I'm most proud of is working with kids in the Quincy Point neighborhood," McGuire said. "There is a level of acceptance and tolerance of kids that live in Quincy Point that I think is exemplary."

Mark Nutley was named the new head football coach at North Quincy High. Nutley was an assistant at Quincy High for three years under then-coach Bob Noble, and had most recently been an assistant at North for three seasons.

Members of Quincy High's class of 2016 buried a number of personal items in a time capsule in the school's courtyard. The time capsule will be opened in 2036.

Quincy High valedictorian Wenzheng Yu and North Quincy High valedictorian Amanda Yao, reminded their fellow classmates to uphold the values of dedication and creating opportunity, respectively, during the two schools' commencement ceremonies.

"As long as we all uphold the value of dedication that we have acquired and strengthened over the past four years we will be well prepared and uniquely positioned to tackle any course we choose to take anywhere in the world," Yu said.

"Every second of our lives is a new opportunity," Yao said. "We don't have to wait until tomorrow, next year, next month or even when we go to college. We can create a new opportunity at any moment."

Three-hundred ninety-one students graduated from Quincy High, and 342 graduated from North Quincy.

Patrick Joyce and Michael Lane were named the athletic directors at Quincy High and North Quincy High, respectively.

A groundbreaking ceremony was held to mark the beginning of the $10 million Coddington Hall restoration project. Once completed, the building will house the School Department, School Committee, and Planning and IT Departments.

City, state, and federal officials celebrated a groundbreaking for the $120 million Merchants Row development – the first phase of development undertaken by developer Beal/StreetWorks.

"This project demonstrates a commitment to maintaining and promoting the growth of infrastructure, businesses and jobs that are so valuable to the economy and culture of our cities,"

Cong. Stephen F. Lynch said.

"We're a city on the move," Mayor Thomas Koch added. "Strap yourself in – we're going."

Twenty-four percent of Quincy voters went to the polls in a special U.S. Senate election. Democrat U.S. Rep. Ed Markey won both the statewide and citywide vote of Republican Gabriel Gomez.

C-Mart owner Michael Fang appealed the City Council's decision to reject his proposal to open a new supermarket in North Quincy.

Ernie Arienti, a Quincy firefighter and the president of the International Association of Firefighters Local 792, retired. Fire Chief Joseph Barron praised Arienti as a true firefighter.

"He is that iconic image of the true firefighter looking out for his brothers and that's really what it's all about," Barron said. "A true advocate for all the benefits firefighters receive today and really an advocate for the safety of the firefighters that are all gathered here today, and safety for the citizens of this city."

Matthew Roach, a Boy Scout with Troop 20 out of St. Ann's Church, was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout for restoring a 100-year old copper sundial at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead.

The city held a wreath-laying ceremony to mark the 63rd anniversary of the beginning of the Korean War. Fred J. White, a veteran of the war, reflected on the treatment Korean veterans received upon their return.

"We returned home to the port in Virginia where an excited and jubilant crowd of family and friends greeted us. That homecoming was just an illusion and we were given the silent treatment... It became the forgotten war," White said.

Raymond C. Cattaneo, who spent more than 40 years with the Morrisette American Legion baseball team, died at the age of 82. He also served as the executive director of the Quincy Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Department.

"Ray was a special person who possessed a wonderful sense of humor and a kind demeanor, always equipped with words of encouragement for friends and strangers," Mayor Thomas Koch said of Mr. Cattaneo.

JULY

School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro appointed two new middle school principals, naming Christine Barrett new principal at Point Webster and Daniel Gilbert the new principal at Broad Meadows.

Barrett had been principal at Sterling Middle School for five years after working as assistant principal there and as a dean at Quincy High. Gilbert worked as principal at Snug Harbor Elementary School for five years and previously was the assistant principal at Lincoln-Hancock and a teacher at Point Webster. Dr. John Franceschini and Margaret MacNeil, the assistant principals at Sterling and Broad Meadows, respectively, were named acting principals for both those schools.

John Austin, age 37, an 11-year Quincy Fire Department veteran assigned to Engine 5 in West Quincy, collapsed and died unexpectedly while responding to an emergency call. Firefighter Austin, who left behind a young son, was also a veteran of the U.S. Marine Corps.

Mayor Thomas Koch praised the fallen firefighter as hard-working, respected, and well liked.

"Our entire community is deeply saddened by the loss of Firefighter Austin. He was a hard working, respected, well-liked young man from a wonderful Quincy family," Koch said.

"John was a good guy," added Paul Moody, who had recently been named president of the Quincy firefighters union. "A dedicated family man, he loved his (son) John-John, loved his fiancée, his mother, his father, and his sister. He was a proud Marine – he lived and breathed the Marine Corps.

"He was a proud firefighter, a well-respected firefighter, and a dedicated firefighter who lived the brotherhood."

A wreath-laying ceremony was held at the United First Parish Church to commemorate the 246th anniversary of John Quincy Adams' birth. Brock A. Miller, commanding officer of the Naval Operational Support Center Quincy, called the nation's sixth president a visionary who left behind a legacy of duty, honor, and country.

The FOX25 morning news team 'zip-tripped' to Merrymount Park for a broadcast of the show. Mayor Thomas Koch, Norfolk County Sherriff Michael Bellotti, and former state treasurer Tim Cahill were among the local figures that appeared on the show.

Gregory Goyette was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in the Police Department, and Christine Hurton and Stephen O'Donoghue were both appointed sergeants.

Norfolk County DA Michael Morrissey was hospitalized for 24 hours following a crash in Milton. Morrissey was driving to his Quincy when he began to sweat and felt lightheaded. The district attorney had no recollection of the crash, but Milton Police said he crossed the double-yellow line in the road then sideswiped one vehicle before hitting another head on. Morrissey was cited for a lane violation following the crash and was cleared of any criminal wrongdoing at a subsequent hearing.

Daniel Knell, the president of Quincy Medical Center, resigned from his position. Knell's resignation came after a 24-hour long strike by the hospital's nurses in April and the state-mandated temporary closure of the hospital's geriatric psychiatric ward in May. Steward Health Care, QMC's owner, named Donna Rubinate interim president of the hospital. She had been the chief operating officer at Good Samaritan Hospital in Brockton, another Steward-owned hospital.

Tourism remained strong in Quincy, driven by an interest in the Adams family. Visitation at the Adams National Historical Park totaled 148,788 through the end of June, compared to 147,567 through the same time period in 2012. Visitation was also up at the United First Parish Church. Through July 14, the church had 4,143 visitors, on pace to match their 2013 season total of 9,152.

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce announced plans to launch the Quincy Center for Innovation at Eastern Nazarene College. Chamber Vice President Donna Mavromates was named the director of the new center, and Margaret Laforest was named the chamber's new director of marketing and tourism.

The first base dugout at Adams Field was re-named the "Dave MacMillan Dugout" in honor of MacMillan, the coach of the Houghs Neck Legion Babe Ruth Team for the past 50 seasons. MacMillan had also spent 15 years at Quincy High and two seasons at North.

The Quincy 12-year old Cal Ripken All-Stars clinched a berth in the Cal Ripken World Series in Hammond, Ind., after defeating Ararat, Maine, to win the New England championship. In the opening round of tournament play, right-handed pitcher Colin McGrath pitched a perfect game against Mount Washington Valley, N.H.

The Junior and Senior League All Star teams both clinched berths in the Northeast Regional Championship tournaments in Freehold, N.J.

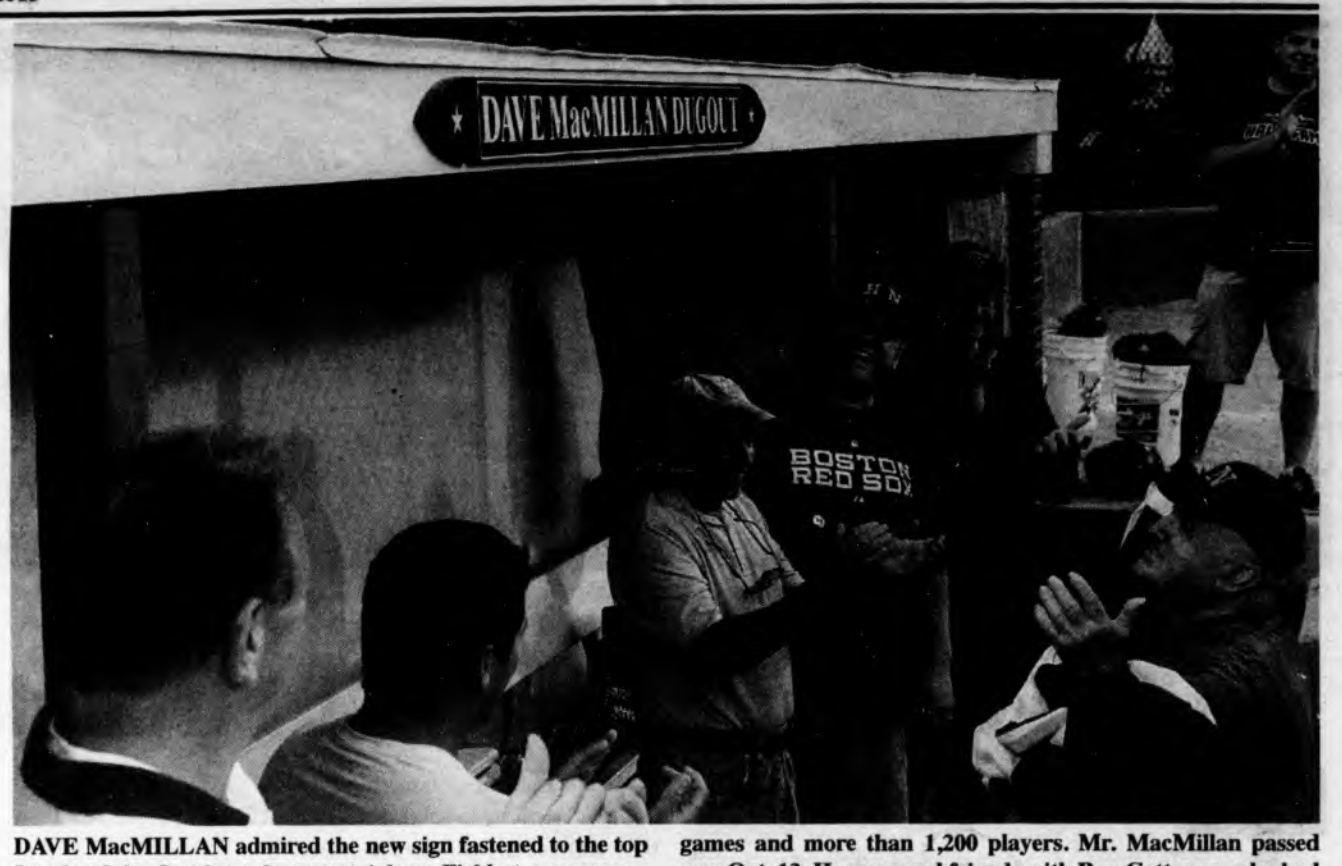

Former Quincy Public Schools athletic director and coach Martin C. Finnegan died at the age of 85 in California. He worked in the School Department for 42 years, beginning in 1950 as a teacher and coach. While coaching, he also took on the role of social health coordinator for the schools and was tasked with responding to the drug epidemic of the 1960s and 1970s. Mr. Finnegan later went on to work as a coordinator for Project Impact – the predecessor to Impact Quincy – for which Mr. Finnegan was awarded The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year award in 1988.

"He really branched out from athletics. He dealt with so many students who were at risk. If anyone needed something, Marty was there," School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said.

Deaths during July included:

Henry J. Bertolon, 87, a former aide to Sen. James R. McIntyre and past president of the Mass. Assessors Association; Isabel F. Brugge, 84, a 24-year employee of the Quincy Housing Authority; Barbara L. Smyth, 76, a Girl Scouts leader; Dr. Suzanne Dizon, 77, a former Quincy City Hospital nurse anesthetist; Bruce M. McDonald, retired English teacher and department head at Quincy High School; Julius E. Friedman, 34, Norfolk County assistant district attorney; Richard W. Driscoll, 73, a teacher and football coach; Joseph M. Calabro, 77, owner of Calabro Masonry; Adolph S. Aimola, 87, retired vice president of Mathewson Machine Works and a Quincy College board member; and Dr. Edward T. Gordon, 90, former chief of surgery and president of the medical staff at Quincy Hospital.

DAVE MacMILLAN admired the new sign fastened to the top façade of the first base dugout at Adams Field at a ceremony dedicating the dugout in his name in July. Helping to remove the red-white-and-blue bunting to unveil the sign and applauding were some of MacMillan's past players and coaches. During his 50-year coaching career, MacMillan coached over 1,500 games and more than 1,200 players. Mr. MacMillan passed way Oct. 13. He was good friends with Ray Cattaneo, who had the honor of the third place dugout named for him three years ago. 2013 Was Quite A Year In Local Sports, Too

By BILL GRIFFIN

It is the end of the year and time to clean out the notebook. It's a perfect chance to take a fond look back at the five best stories and the five best athletes from the city over the past year. Feel free to disagree.

Top Sports Highlights

North basketball: Not even close. Ironically, the great run started with a loss against Scituate in a showdown for the Patriot League title. North was down 14 in the final period when a remarkable performance by Kyle Richardson brought the Red Raiders within a point and a last-second jumper of a victory. Then came the tourney run. North drilled Natick behind a breakthrough game from Efthim Butka. Danny Gould went for 26 and Marquis McClendon shut out (as in no points) Braintree's top scorer Steve Murphy. Gould stayed smoking for 23, Pat Gould ran the offense the way Arthur Fielder ran The Pops, and Anthony Green guarded the basket like it was a vault as North stunned second-seeded Newton North. It ended in the sectional final against Mansfield who was probably the best team in the state. North was right there, close for four quarters, within a point in the final seconds of the third. This was one of the smallest schools in Division 1 on the threshold, just one game away from the Garden. I started covering sports over 40 years ago. I never enjoyed watching a team more than this one.

THE YEAR 2013 provided many bright and exciting moments in local sports, including the North Quincy High School boys' basketball tournament run last spring. The Red Raiders were the first boys' basketball team to reach the finals of the Div. 1 South Sectionals in 41 years. Here the team proudly holds the runners-up trophy after bowing to top-seeded Mansfield in the finals at UMass Boston. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

QUINCY PLAYERS (from left) Aidan O'Sullivan, Ben Gaudiano and Curtis Frazier mob teammate Jack Free after Free knocked in Quincy's 10th run in the bottom of the fifth inning that clinched the New England Regional Championship for the 12-Year-Old All-Stars July 26. The final score was Quincy 10, Ararat, ME 0. The Cal Ripken All-Stars were one of four local teams to advance to national championships. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

National Tournaments: Four teams from the city advanced to national championships. The Cal Ripken 12-and-under team, the Junior 14-and-under team, and the Senior 16-and-under club won state and regional baseball titles to make their national championship tournaments in New Jersey and Indiana. The Midget 16-and-under hockey team won the states and played for the national title in Michigan. Four teams from a city of 93,000 playing for four national titles in one year. It's a tribute to the players, parents, and coaches who gave hours and hours of their time to make such excellence possible.

North volleyball: This comes under the category of good things do happen to good people. First, they had excellent players led well by coach Kerry Ginty who went to the sectional finals. Maya Umoren and Carolyn Schwartz were selected to the coaches All-State team which means they were two of the best 15 players in the state. They are also part of a wonderful senior class of volleyball players who are great students and citizens as well as fine athletes. Every memorable team needs a signature win. North's came in a five-set thriller in the sectional semifinals against King Philip. Nancy Huang went to the floor for 33 digs. Angela Kou and Cindy Hazelton made perfect sets for five games and, fittingly, Umoren and Schwartz ended it with a smash and an ace. Great stuff.

Quincy football: Every coach wants a winning tradition, not just a winning season. Bill Reardon and the Presidents have strung together back-to-back winning seasons for the first time in 10 years. This season was a greater accomplishment than last year because Quincy only returned four starters. Quincy lost three games by one point and were three, maybe four plays away from a 10-1 season. They beat North for the second straight year. Reardon wants his team in the playoffs. He may well get his wish. This is primarily a junior team. The best may be yet to come. Keep a good eye on running back Jahvae Handsome-Fields.

Basketball in the city: All four basketball teams from North and Quincy made the tourney. North boys, North girls and Quincy boys finished within a game of a division title. Quincy's girls had a great finishing kick, winning three of their last four to make the tourney. The caliber of the basketball, especially in the rivalry games between the two schools, was striking. Four gifted points guards, Alyssa Lydon, Jane Minton, Tino Goncalves, and Pat Gould, made every game a treat. It will only get better. All four have a legitimate chance to be division champs this winter.

GABRIELA JERAHIAN and the Quincy Presidents won three of their last four regular season games to secure a berth in the tournament. All four high school basketball teams advanced to the postseason and three - North boys, North girls and Quincy boys - finished within a game of the division title last season. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

ATHLETIC STANDOUTS

Antoine Allen: His five-touchdown, 307-yard game against Milford will stand with the best the city has ever seen. Four of the runs were over 30 yards. He finished with nearly 1600 yards and was the second-leading rusher in the history of the school. He scored on sweeps and dives. He scored on interception, punt and kickoff returns. He could strike from anywhere. Four of his runs against Milford were over 30 yards. His two touchdowns against Dedham were over 60 yards. He ran with speed, strength and a powerful refusal to go to the ground. How valuable was he? In North's three wins, the Red Raiders scored 10 touchdowns. Allen scored nine of them. The best of the best.

Carolyn Schwartz: First, she is an All-State player. Not all-city, all-league, all-scholastic. All-State. What she does best on a volleyball court is everything. That's what makes her exceptional. She can drill kills and tap touch shots at the net. She plays defense and passes the ball. She goes to the floor and digs out points. She serves aces and returns serve with control and accuracy. This is most rare. I loved watching Larry Bird play basketball. Not only could he do everything on a basketball floor, he could choose whatever skill his team needed to win on any given night. Schwartz had this same uncanny instinct. Her winning ace which split the King Philip defense and gave North a 15-12 decision in the fifth game of the sectional semis was the single most dramatic play I saw all year.

Pat and Dan Gould: Sorry, I still can't separate them. The best part of the tournament run was the whole state had a chance to see what we've been watching for three years. Danny swished jumpers on the big stage and Pat handled the ball so well the best and quickest teams in the state didn't dare press North. As I watched them, I thought: I may never see a better backcourt. Great players. Better kids. Thanks for the memories.

James O'Shea: Quincy's brilliant soccer player has speed and skills you normally see on television. He will play and shine on the next level. He can dribble, control, pass and finish powerfully with either foot. He has a soft touch around the net, a header which can flick the ball into an open patch of goal and fakes in the open field which leave defenders sliding on empty grass. The only way to stop him is to knock him down. He has all this, but what sets him apart is his love, his passion for the game. It was something out of Europe, perhaps Ireland.....

James Lam: He is a scary talent. He is 6'3", he is fast and he is strong. In football, he runs sweeps like a tailback and fires 60-yard strikes on a line down the sideline to an open receiver. In basketball, he is one of the best rebounders in the league, can jump through ceiling, and scores well around the basket with quick drives and soft finishes. He is a smart player and a great teammate. One more thing. He is only a junior.

There are a few more thoughts, notes and images to mention before the year is finished:

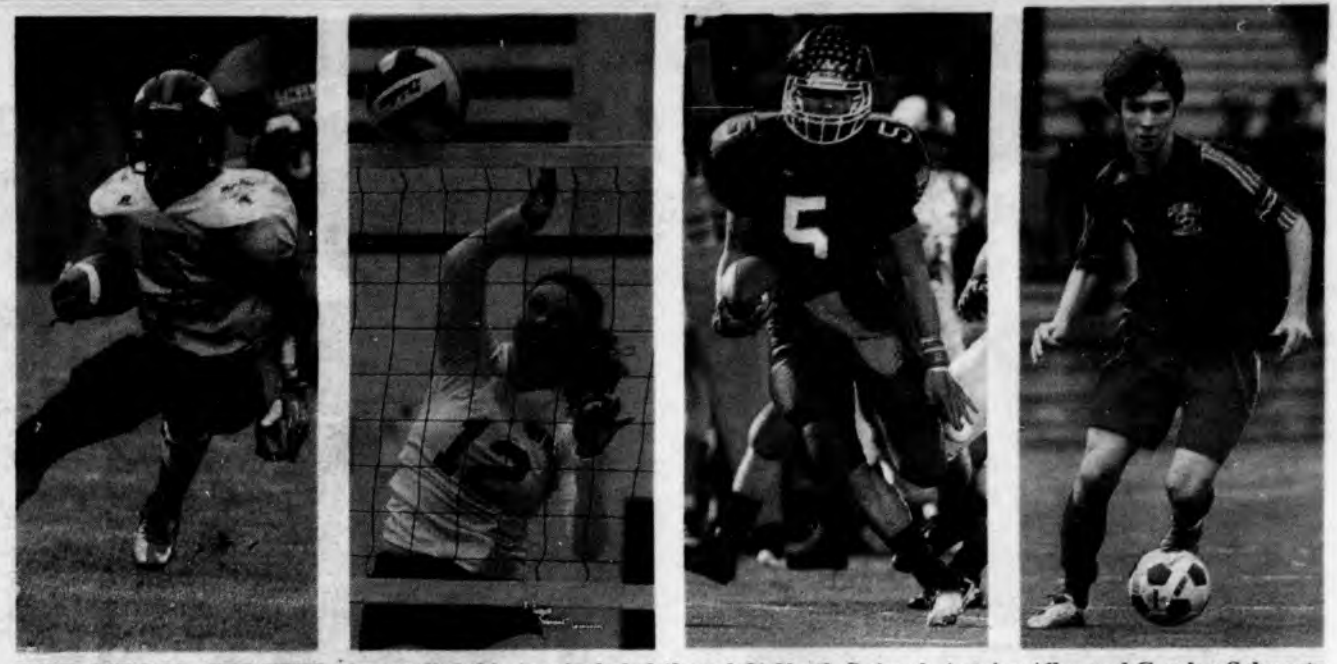

North becoming the first team from the city to win the Quincy Holiday Hockey Tourney...Nicole Jorgensen's potential in three sports...Nolan Greene standing on his head, stopping pucks and showing how a goalie can control a hockey game...Patrick Freeman scoring goals, Jake Hallisey, handling the puck, and Brian O'Callaghan establishing himself as the best hockey player in the city for Quincy...Erin McGinnis making save after save for the girls hockey team...Alyssa Lydon's perfect game at the point against North... Kayla McArdle carrying her team into the tournament.... Quincy's Drew Myers and Colin Evans stroking jumpers...North's Haley McKay playing defense and shutting down big scorers...Aaron Anderson making three after three for North boys hoop.

Robbie Munroe hitting a baseball for Quincy...Pat Gould gunning down base-stealers for North...Sophomore Saxon Bresnahan firing her low, unhittable fastball for Quincy softball...North's Liz Kelly playing out her final spring at North as a most rare five-tool high-school softball player...Mike Finn's scoring touch for North lacrosse...Quincy's Ryan Higgins going on a field-length rush to beat North in overtime...North's Leah Ryan using her breakaway speed to outrun defenses... Quincy's Gabby Zorkers playing with the instincts of one who has been holding a lacrosse stick since she could stand...Jaquan Harris finishing a brilliant athletic career at Quincy by making the state finals in the 200... Mike Tran's brilliant effort for North boys volleyball team which made the sectional semifinals...Jackson Le's strong play at net for Quincy in a fine match with North.

The moving tribute to the late Ray Cattaneo which touched people from 8 to 80 at Adams Field...Andrew Jaehnig raking line drives for the legion team...Pat Keohane drilling hits and Dave Suslowicz pitching clutch relief for the 16-and-under junior team...Cody Desmond firing fastballs and Mike Munroe belting the ball for the 14-and-under junior team.

Vinny Tran personally wrecking offenses for North football...Jake Bergonzi and Dan Guarente stuffing the run for Quincy...Ray Bander's booming kicks for Quincy soccer...A.K. Nguyen stopping goals as a keeper in one match and scoring them as a forward in the next for North boys' soccer...Courtney Campo, dribbling and flashing through defenses for North girls soccer...Emma Papile outrunning everyone on the pitch for Quincy...Emily and Julia Bryson's excellence in cross country...Emma Kelly's instincts and all-court play for Quincy's tournament volleyball team...Lauren Magoon's steady, valuable play for North.

A final note: A thank you and a Happy New Year to all the coaches and athletes who make this job such an enjoyable one.

HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETES who excelled this year included (from left) North Quincy's Antoine Allen and Carolyn Schwartz and Quincy's James Lam and James O'Shea. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

Quincy Cruises Past W-H In Patriot League Opener

Presidents Romp, 74-46

By BILL GRIFFIN

Unselfishness.

There was much to praise about Quincy in its romp past Whitman-Hanson, 74-46 in the Patriot League opener Friday night, but the most admirable was the Presidents shared the basketball, passed up good shots for better shots, and found the open man with passing that at times looked like it was choreographed and tied to a string. Unselfishness.

"They honestly don't care who scores," said coach Dave Parry after his club went to 2-0. "The ball just moves. They've built a chemistry, and it shows. There's no substitute for playing together and these kids have played a lot of basketball together. Every night, it could be someone different leading us in scoring."

Against the Panthers, it was senior Brendan Cunningham who had 19, including three three-pointers after junior Drew Myers led the way in the opener with 21. More impressively, Quincy placed 11 players in the scoring column and had 24 assists in 32 buckets which is a remarkable ratio. There is very little one-on-one stuff here. The ball moves. Shots come open. Quincy makes the shots. It's a wonderful game.

"That's the way I like to see basketball played. I like to see the ball move," said Parry.

Against the Panthers' man-to-man, Myers (12 points, three threes) crisply ran the offense from the point. Quincy ran weaves, moved without the ball, set screens and used quickness to get to the offensive boards. It was 10-0 midway through the first, 19-5 after one, 38-21 at the half and 55-28 after three. It was never close.

Everybody passed. Junior center J.T. Bain (all nine of his points in the first half) made accurate outside-in feeds to cutting teammates. Colin Evans (eight) and James Lam (eight) hit open cutters flying to the hoop. An interesting part about all this mid-season form midway through December is that, at times, the players pretty much make things up as they go along.

"I give them a very basic set," said Parry. "From that, they read the defense and make up the plays off what is open. I have that much faith in them. They recognize situations and know what to do."

In the open court, Quincy wants to run, but the Presidents run with control. Early in the season, fast-break basketball can have a helter-skelter feel to it with turnovers bouncing off the walls as players adjust to the game being played at full speed. That is not true with Quincy. The Presidents run and run with discipline.

They had 24 points off the break. The ball goes to the middle, usually to Myers, and everyone runs his lane. Myers can stop for a foul-line jumper, find a cutter for layup, or circle it out to the perimeter where Quincy has at least four players (Evans, Myers, Lam, Cunningham), who can comfortably shoot a three.

"We drill on two-on-ones and three-on-twos in practice," said Parry. "We do them until we now where to run our lanes and where we should be on the break. We want to run under control."

And there is the defense which held its second straight opponent under 50 points. Quincy loves the fullcourt trap and it did produce 16 turnovers, but what was equally impressive was the way the Presidents settled back seamlessly into different halfcourt defenses when the press didn't work. Even when the trap didn't produce a turnover, W-H had to make a jump shot. The Presidents gave few breakouts for layups.

"We do transition drills all the time," said Parry. "Part is for the offense, but a bigger part is for the defense. When we don't get a turnover, I want us to get back, identify the opposing shooters and pick them up. Again, I give the kids a of freedom here. We must have used five or six different halfcourt defenses. James (Lam) called most of them and got us in the right set."

It was a good night to showcase depth for the Presidents who had victory margins of 19 and 28 points in their first two games. Lam and Bain did not play after the midway point of the third period. All the starters were out early in the fourth. Quincy used 13 players. Chris Callahan (six), Carl Zapata (3), Johnny Marsinelli (two), Reda Laftih (2), Kenny Sorensen (two) and Abraham Hoti (two) all scored for the Presidents. Tyler Beach and Kevin Williams played solid roles off the bench.

Quincy's game at Cambridge, postponed last week due to the snow, will be made up Jan. 13. Quincy hosts Braintree Friday (6:30).

Quincy Girls Bow To W-H In OT

By BILL GRIFFIN

It is a fact of life in Patriot League basketball. It applies to boys and girls teams. It applies to wins and losses. It applies to close games and blowouts.

Visiting teams always have trouble shooting at the Whitman-Hanson gym.

Quincy's girls basketball team fell under the spell Friday night as Whitman-Hanson survived a late flurry of clutch shooting from sophomore Gabby Jerahian and edged the Presidents, 50-42 in overtime in a Patriot League contest.

"It's one of the toughest gyms in the league for shooters. Most teams have trouble scoring and that was what hurt us," said Quincy coach Jeff Bretsch whose team finished last week at 1-1.

After jumping to an early lead and holding it for most of the game, Quincy fell behind by six in the final two minutes.

GABRIELA JERAHIAN

"I called timeout and told our kids they had to come out firing," said Bretsch. "I thought we would need three possessions, but that's not how it turned out."

Jerahian (a game-high 18) drilled two three-pointers to tie the game. Quincy's defense, which was excellent the whole game, produced a turnover, but the Presidents could not convert the winning basket.

W-H outscored Quincy, 13-5 in the OT to get the win.

"We had trouble with our shooting. We played well, we just couldn't score," said Bretsch. "What really hurt was we were 4-21 from the foul line. If we make just a couple more, we win the game."

Taylor Parry led the defense with five steals. Sophomore center Nicole Jorgensen had nine points while senior captain Alyssa Lydon hit a pair of three-point shots.

Jerahian has been right at home since stepping onto the varsity level as a freshman last year. She shows no hesitation taking a big shot, and she made two of the them Friday night, the second to tie the game with 0:30 left.

"Gabby had a good game. She stepped up when we needed her," said Bretsch.

Quincy jumped to a 10-2 lead on a pair of buckets by Jorgensen and a three-pointer by Lydon. Quincy led, 18-14 at the half before the Panthers scratched out the lead in the third period of what was a tough, defensive battle from start to finish.

Bretsch is happy with what his team showed over the first two games.

"Our goal has been to play with relentless effort and we've done that," he said. "We have a lot of good ball-handlers, and I'd like to see us establish a good inside game."

Quincy's game scheduled at Brockton, which was postponed by snow last week, will be made up January 6. Quincy hosts Brockton Monday (Dec. 30) at 6:30.

Presidents Vs. Red Raiders Thursday Night

Penalties Hurt Presidents In 6-4 Loss To Hanover

By JOE REARDON

The good news that came out of Quincy's 6-4 loss against Hanover Saturday night at the Quincy Youth Arena is that the Presidents know without a doubt what they need to eliminate from their game to have a successful winter campaign on the ice. What is worrisome is that Ted Walsh's crew thought it had exorcised its penalty demons.

After accumulating just three penalties in a win over Silver Lake the previous Wednesday, Quincy (2-1) was back in double digits with a whopping 10 visits to the sin bin against the Indians. The Presidents may be able to sidestep their mistakes on random occasions this season, but the penalties will catch up to Quincy in the long run.

Walsh is very aware and very concerned of the wrinkle in the Presidents' game.

"My message to them was we have to decide what kind of team we're going to be as far as winning or losing," said Walsh. "We have to stay out of the penalty box. To me that was the difference because that was two, good, hard-skating teams. One team took too many penalties and we just couldn't overcome it."

The Indians broke a 4-4 tie with a pair of goals in the third period to seal the Patriot League win. Quincy had plenty of firepower with four players putting up tallies. Pat Freeman, Jake Hallisey, Pat Donovan and Brian O'Callaghan all scored for the Presidents.

A bouncing puck made its way into the net after Quincy goaltender Ryan Higgins (28 saves) made the initial stop on Drew Caldwell's shot to give Hanover a 1-0 lead 7:42 into the first. Caldwell made it 2-0 with 3:52 left when he blasted a shot from just beyond the right faceoff circle that beat Higgins through the five hole.

Quincy just missed making it a one-goal game when Joe McArdle broke in and his shot rattled off the crossbar. O'Callaghan made it a 2-1 contest with 15.7 seconds left in the first, tapping a shot past Hanover goalkeeper Noah Clapp, who finished with 22 saves.

Quincy played its best 15 minutes dominating the second period.

A powerplay tally by Mitch Beard with 1:28 gone in the second put Hanover up 3-1, but Quincy continued to stay within striking distance when the Presidents took advantage of a powerplay of their own. Freeman fired a shot that found its way past Clapp to make it 3-2 with 12:40 left. Quincy then tied it at 3 just under three minutes later on a scalding wrist shot by Hallisey.

Donovan had the prettiest tally of the night to give Quincy a 4-3 lead with 9:01 left, breaking across to the right wing and easily backhanding the puck to beat Clapp high. The lead was short lived though as Hanover knotted it at 4 when Matt McDougall's shot on Higgins trickled in between his pads.

The Indians' go-ahead tally 2:48 in the third came on a scrum in front of the Quincy net that wound up in the crease on top of Higgins, who looked to make the save. "I asked the referee about it," said Walsh. "I didn't know if the first shot went in. I don't know if he counted the first shot, which clearly hit the post or if it was on the scrum and he said it was on the scrum. We didn't see the puck go in. They're right there. If they say it's a goal, it's a goal."

Quincy wasn't able to cut into Hanover's lead in the third after dominating the play in the second period. Higgins made the initial stop on a Beard slap shot, but Landon Hasenfuss was right there to grab the rebound and stuff it home for the 6-4 advantage with 7:39 to play.

Aside from the penalties, Walsh liked what he saw from his tenacious squad. "I thought it was a good, even game," he said. "I told their coach that. That's as good a game as you're going to see all year. We have the goal scorers if we stay out of the box. We had a game plan. It wasn't a lack of effort. Hanover's a well-coached, great-skating team. I told the guys this. They were going to be good. My message was whatever team wanted it the most in a game like this would take it. The only thing that would destroy the game plan was penalties and that's exactly what happened.

"I want them to improve at every practice. I don't want them taking any time off at practice. Every time we step on the ice, I want to get better. When I prepare a game plan I expect them to execute it. The message is we always want to outwork the other team. If you were a spectator, it was probably a great game to watch. Give them (Hanover) credit. They pulled it off. They found and way to win and we didn't. We don't have quitters in the locker room. We have good kids, hard workers and kids who want to win."

Quincy takes on North Quincy tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. in the first round of the Christmas Tournament at Quincy Youth Arena. The winner advances to the finals Friday night at 8 p.m.

Youth, Experience For Q-NQ Girls Hockey

By BILL GRIFFIN

There is a good blend of talented young players and veterans who know well the system the team likes to play. If the mix of youth and experience works well, it should be a successful season for the Quincy-North Quincy girls hockey team.

"We have five freshman who will play a lot for us," said coach Steve Burgio who returns eight players from last year's team. "We have some inexperience, but I honestly think that we are in a better place than we were last year at this time."

Quincy-North will use a freshman in goal, two freshmen on defense and two freshmen on the forward lines. There is a good deal of ability here. It is a matter of becoming accustomed to hockey played at varsity speed. "I saw good things in our first two games," said Burgio. "I could see that in a short period of time that the young players were learning our system and the way we want to play."

Burgio is especially looking for good results in the offensive zone.

"As the season progresses, they'll learn the system," said Burgio. "It's a matter of picking up on the small things. Once they catch on completely, it will maximize their offensive potential."

Freshman forward Riley McLaughlin showed well, scoring three goals in the first two games against King Philip and Bourne-Mashpee-Wareham.

"I knew Riley was a good skater. I didn't know she had that kind of scoring touch. She looked excellent," said Burgio."

Quincy-North has a good cast of veterans returning up front led by senior Natalie O'Donovan who missed a good portion of last year with a concussion.

"She's solid in the corners and a good goal scorer," said Burgio. "We're looking forward to what she can do this year when she's free of injury."

Junior Julia Donovan, who scored a goal in the first two games, junior Madison Hally and sophomore Savannah Flynn performed well on varsity, especially towards the end of last year when Quincy-North played excellent hockey.

"We'd like the veteran players to work with the younger forwards and show what they've learned about our system"said Burgio. "Those who played last year saw that it had positive results."

Junior Alyx Patey, sophomore Caitlin Dooley, sophomore Emily Anglehart, and freshman Kay O'Connnor, who scored a goal in the first two matches, will also see action on the forward line.

"Caitlin is a first-year player with us and she has shown good skating ability," said Burgio.

Junior captain Kelly Donahue is one of three returning veterans who are back on defense. She will likely be paired with a promising freshman Kate McGahey. Sophomore Maeve Riordan and junior Rebecca Mahan are experienced players. Burgio is looking for good things from freshman Emilia Guarente and sophomore Maura Crump.

"Kate and Maura are strong skaters," said Burgio. "I think we can be solid in our own zone and also move the puck ice to create scoring opportunities."

Freshman Karissa Beal will play goal. She turned in a solid effort in the first two games.

"She's been playing since she was 8 or 9, but she is learning on the varsity level," said Burgio. "She knows the position and has good rebound control."

Quincy-North lost its first two matches and plays in the Southeastern Massachusetts Girls Hockey League. The team improved dramatically over the second half of the season last year, earning wins and ties against teams who had previously defeated Quincy-North.

"I like our chances as improve over the course of the season. I think a .500 season is a reasonable goal for us," said Burgio.

Caiden Valleli Notches 4 Goals In QYH PW B2 Road Win

In South Shore Conference hockey action this past Sunday, centerman Caiden Valleli tallied four times to lead the QYH PW B2 team to a 7-3 league victory.

Seamless passing by Joey Murphy, resilient forechecking of Tahla Qasim, and an electrifying goal-scoring rush by Coleman Gillis provided the offensive momentum against the always tough New Bedford Panthers. John Bell, Chris Hussey, and Nicholas Brink fended off several Panther scoring threats to preserve a strong goaltending performance by Ryan Graf.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

Chiropractor

GIVE YOURSELF A SPORTING CHANCE

One look at the team of specialists that accompanies most professional athletes and sports teams tells you that chiropractors play as prominent a role in preserving players' performance as orthopedic surgeons, physical therapists, massage therapists, and nutritionists, among others. Perhaps the first among elite athletes to recognize the need for chiropractors to keep them performing at a high level were Olympic athletes. By studying the biomechanics of sports-specific motion, chiropractors can determine what areas of athletes' bodies endure the greatest stresses. Amateur and professional golfers, baseball pitchers, bowlers, runners, cyclists, and other athletes engage in repetitive motions that can lead to injury unless stress, tensions, and misalignments are dealt with. It is the chiropractor's job to prevent injury before it happens.

With chiropractic care, your body has to go through a particular plan of care in order to repair itself correctly and fully. We aim to educate our patients about Chiropractic and other natural solutions to common health problems in order to motivate you to take a more active and responsible role in restoring and maintaining your own health. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we want you to feel good. Ask questions. Get involved. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we would be pleased if you chose us for rendering care to you and your family. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We offer computerized spinal scans. With chiropractic care you have nothing to lose and everything to gain, especially your health! Dan Gould Makes Impressive College Basketball Debut

Former North Quincy Standout Earns Freshman Player Of Week Honors With Framingham State

By BILL GRIFFIN

Well, we knew he was good.

Former North Quincy star Dan Gould made a four-star debut in his college debut for Framingham State University, winning rave reviews and league honors for his play in the early weeks of the season.

He won back-to-back honors as Freshman Player of the Week in the Massachusetts State College Athletic Conference for his terrific play in the Emerson Tip Off Classic and in ensuing games against Colby and Mount Ida College.

"He started fast," said FSU coach Evan O'Brien. "He shot great in the tournament and made his shots when we really needed them. He played tough right from the opening game."

Gould had 16 points and went 5-for-6 on three-pointers against Wentworth as FSU won the championship game. Ironically, Gould's former North teammate Aaron Anderson played for Wentworth in the tourney. Gould averaged 14 points and 2.5 rebounds in the tourney.

He was not finished. The following week, he had 14 (5-9 on threes) against Mount Ida and 12 against Colby to earn his second consecutive rookie of the week award from the league.

"He's got the shot, but he is also such a smart player. He picks things up quickly," said O'Brien.

However, there are no mysteries in college basketball. Word about Gould and his golden touch spread quickly. Teams have game-planned ways to contest his outside shot in recent weeks.

"There are no secrets in college," said O'Brien "Teams noticed him and threw different coverages at him. Teams adjusted, now it's a matter of Dan adjusting to what they are doing."

Gould averaged nine points a game through Framingham's first ten contests, earned three starts and knocked home 17 three-pointers. That is a remarkable beginning for any freshman. The adjustment from high school to college is a huge both mentally and physically. It is a brave, new world, and Gould fits in just fine.

"I tell them to think about the difference between what they could do as freshmen and what they could do as seniors in high school. That's what the jump to college ball is like," said O'Brien. "The court is longer, the games are longer, the schedule is longer. Plus we have them working on a lifting program during the season. Freshmen feel it."

O'Brien has also liked the work of Pat Gould at the point which is little surprise to those who saw him direct North for three years. O'Brien feels the future is bright for both at FSU.

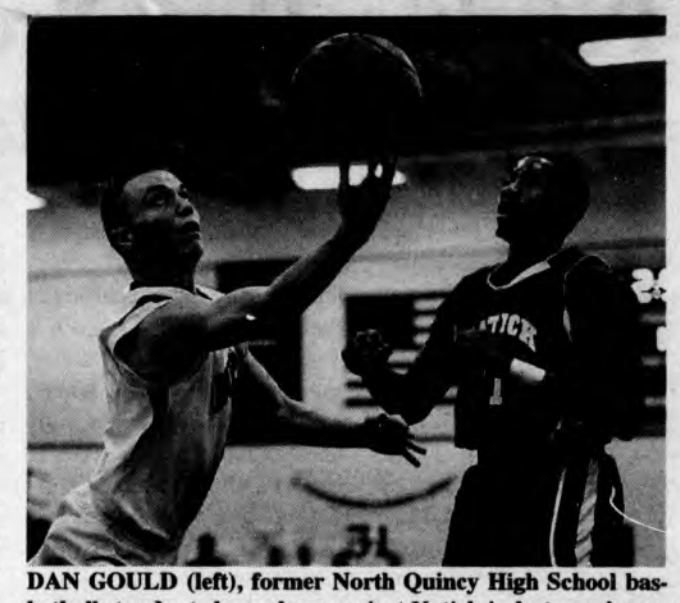

"They could become the face of our program," said O'Brien. "They have so many intangibles. They are motivated, smart on and off the court. They approach the game with a professional demeanor, always willing to to work and improve."

Pat has played mainly off the bench, and O'Brien likes the way the freshman has not been shy about running the team.

"Pat played great in the opening tourney as well," said O'Brien. "I have total trust in him. He's been more vocal than I thought he'd be which is good. He has embraced the role of point guard."

Former Quincy High standout Jaquan Harris has also made his mark on the team as a freshman. Harris played cornerback for the Framingham State football team which made the NCAA playoffs. He joined the basketball team after early-season practices and games has taken place. He has seen increased playing time in recent weeks, and O'Brien likes Harris' athleticism.

"He so versatile he gets minutes because he can play the point or the 2-guard," said O'Brien. "His athleticism is very good and he practices hard. He's smart, aggressive, and he has a nose for the rim."

DAN GOULD (left), former North Quincy High School basketball standout shown here against Natick in last year's sectional tournament, has made an impressive college debut with Framingham State University winning back-to-back honors as Freshman Player of the Week in the Massachusetts State College Athletic Conference.

NQ Girls Hoop Defeats Middleboro

By BILL GRIFFIN

Senior center Maya Umoren played another overpowering inside game with 16 points and 10 rebounds to lead North Quincy's girls basketball team to a 61-25 decision over Middleboro in a Patriot League game at the North Quincy gym Friday night.

It was a good bounce-back game for the Red Raiders who lost their opener in overtime to Plymouth North.

"We had a week of practice after the Plymouth game and it was a big help," said coach Jessica Worden. "We were able to focus on our defense and put in a few more offensive plays.

Umoren had 34 points and 28 rebounds in North's first two games.

"Maya played great again," said Worden. "You take her double-doubles for granted, but it's not easy to do. For Maya, it's become a normal game.

Senior defensive stopper Haley McKay, who missed the opener, played well against Middleboro with 12 points and seven steals.

"Having Haley back makes a big difference. She can change the momentum of a game with her defense," said Worden.

Senior point guard Jane Minton helped with 10 points and seven assists. Minton had 16 points and 17 assists in her first two games.

The Red Raiders played shorthanded. They were without the guard Grace Geary (groin) and forward Tristine Thong (back) and only had eight players.

"We didn't have a lot of depth. Sydney Chang (junior guard) played very good defense for us," said Worden.

North will meet Marshfield in the first round of a holiday tournament at Duxbury Friday at 2 p.m. Duxbury will play Notre Dame in another opening game. It is the first year North has played in the Duxbury tourney which boasts four of the top teams on the South Shore. It will be a good early-season test for the Red Raiders.

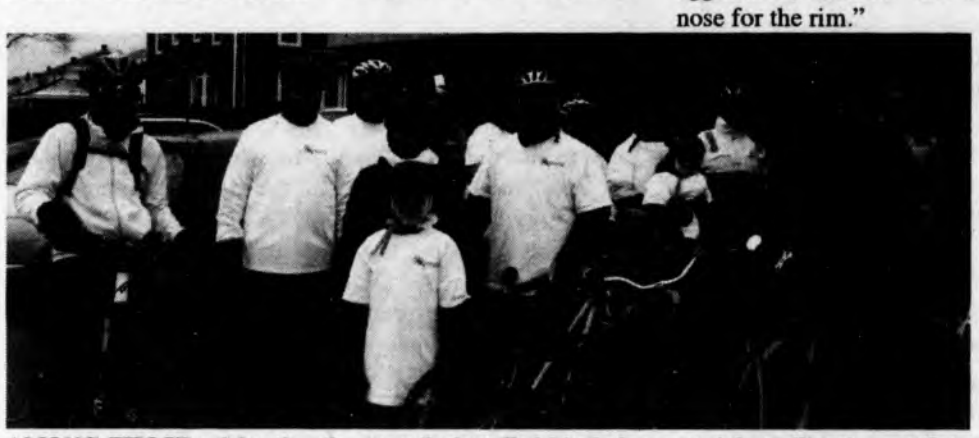

The winners of Friday's opening games will play for the title Saturday.

Winter Track Vs. Scituate, Randolph

The opening tri-meet of the 2013-14 schedule brought some surprises and some expected victories but most important it resulted in a double win for the boys of Quincy/North Quincy, the first such occurrence in the history of being a co-op team.

Lakuan Mason and Jahvae Handsome-Fields went 1-2 in the 55 meter, 300 meter and Longjump propelling the team to a 69-20 win over the Sailors and a 78-18 win over the Blue Devils. Mason's time of 6.86 in the 55-meter was a state qualifier. Aidan Smyth also was a double winner taking the 600 and Highjump. Other scorers included Curtis Callie in the shot, Mike Munroe in the shot, Demoy Holding in the hurdles, Jimmy Cannon in the mile and 2mile, and Liam Mahoney in the 600. All boys with the exception of Cannon are Quincy High students.

On the girls side Scituate was much stronger on the girl's side and they defeated QNQ 61-39 but the girls topped Randolph 57-30. Emily Bryson led the league in winning the mile in 5:33. Molly Donahue won the 1000, other scorers were Inayah Paul in the 2mile, Julia Bryson and Samin Charepoo in the mile, LaQueen Arias in the 1000 and Shotput, Julia Brady and Alison Radzik in the 600, Vivian Chan in the 300, Mia Healy in the Longjump and 55, Xhona Ferro in the 55 hurdles, and Nikya Douglas in the 55. Both relays won. The 4 x 200 was comprised of Xhona Ferro, Nikya Douglas, Allessandra Toscanini and Mia Healy. The 4 x 400 was Samin Charepoo, Molly Donahue, Julia Bryson and Emily Bryson. The next week is a busy one for the team running against Silver Lake Dec. 23, entering 7 athletes in the Boston Holiday Challenge Dec. 28 and Hingham Jan. 3

City's Frst Bicycle Lanes Celebrated

Over 20 bicyclists and bicycle supporters recently gathered at Montilio's Bakery to celebrate Quincy's historic first bicycle lanes. The lanes were installed on the freshly repaved Adams Street between Furnace Brook Parkway and Beale Street.

A dozen of the attendees, wearing bright yellow Quincycles t-shirts over several layers of clothing, and cheered on by onlookers, biked together on a celebratory and inaugural loop on the lanes before returning to Montilio's to warm up with coffee and pastries.

"It was a fun day," said Rev. Nathan Pipho, President of Quincycles. "Though it was one of the coldest days of the year, the streets were clear and dry and many of the participants biked to the event. It's very exciting to see growing enthusiasm for bicycling in Quincy."

All three citizen members of the Mayor's Bicycle Commission – Joe Hern, Kris Locke, and Irene Lutts – attended. "It's great to see these lane marking," said Hern, a bicycle commuter and lawyer who bikes to his Boston office from Quincy 12 months a year. "It's the first of what we hope to see throughout the city." Lutts, whose husband and two children rode together on a three-person family bicycle and also bike year round as a car-free family, echoed the sentiment. "It's nice to finally see some bicycle infrastructure on our streets."

The lanes came about through the coordination and planning of the Mayor's Bicycle Commission, the Quincy Department of Public Works, the Quincy Planning Department, and Quincycles – a resident run organization that promotes bicycling in Quincy and advocates for bicycle infrastructure.

"We wish to publicly recognize and thank Mayor Koch for establishing the Bicycle Commission, Commissioner Dan Raymondi of the DPW for his leadership in making these lanes possible, Kristina Johnson of the Planning Department for her tireless advocacy, and City Councillors Doug Gutro and Kevin Coughlin for their consistent support," said Rev. Pipho. "These lanes were the result of teamwork between citizens and city officials working together which I believe is a hopeful sign of progress that we can make in the future."

While these are Quincy's first bike lanes, surrounding towns have invested heavily in bike lanes over the past several years. According to the "State of the Hub" report from Boston Bikes presented in May 2013, Boston was planning to add 15 to 20 miles of bicycles lanes in 2013 to its existing network of 60 miles of lanes. Bike lanes helped ridership in Boston increase 82% between 2007 and 2011. The Cambridge Bicycle Committee also reports that the number of bicyclists in Cambridge has nearly tripled in the last decade after the city's commitment to improving conditions for bicyclists. "Bicycling is clearly the trend of the future," said Pipho. "We hope Quincy can catch up with the investments our neighbors have made in bicycling and begin reaping the health and economic benefits."

The next scheduled meeting of Quincycles is open to the public and will be held on Thursday, Jan. 16 at 7:30 p.m. at Quincy City Hall immediately following the 6:30 p.m. meeting of the Mayor's Bicycle Commission. More information about Quincycles can be found on their website at www.Quincycles.org or on facebook.

They can be contacted by email at info@quincycles.org or by phone at 617-471-0258.

Can Outdoor Furniture Outlast Winter?

THIS IS A HAMMER

By Samantha Mazzotta

Q: My brother purchased new outdoor furniture for his deck this summer, some nice cedar chairs and end tables. But I'm astounded that he hasn't yet taken in or covered his new furniture yet. Even though we haven't had snow yet, the temperature change alone must be taking its toll. Should I warn him about leaving his expensive furniture outside in winter? -- Carey in Chicopee, Mass.

A: I think warning him is a bit strong, particularly in this case. Cedar furniture designed for outdoor use can be very resilient in most weather, something the dealer may have told your brother when he purchased the set.

You can bring it up as part of a conversation about the furniture by asking if it's all-weather, and letting your brother tell you all about it. Considering how much quality cedar furniture costs, he's likely pretty proud of his purchase.

Cedar outdoor furniture is desirable to many people. It's a durable wood, doesn't easily warp or rot, and resists insects. Unfinished cedar furniture starts out as a natural reddish color, which over time fades to gray as wind and weather season the wood. Owners who prefer the warmer reddish color can apply a wood sealer, or enhance the color using a wood stain. Paint or finishing oils aren't typically used with cedar furniture, since they can trap moisture, encouraging rot.

Your brother can clean his furniture a few times a year with soap and water, and should avoid using a pressure washer or harsh solvents. If he's concerned about temperature extremes or ice and snow building up on the furniture, he can cover it or store it during the winter.

Otherwise, don't worry about warning him about his outdoor furniture care choices. It's his property, after all, and he can leave the cedar furniture out if he wishes.

HOME TIP: Clean mildew from unfinished wood furniture using a very mild bleach and water solution; rinse well, and make sure the wood dries completely.

Send your questions or home tips to ask@thisisahammer.com.

Old Quincy High School: Just Memories Remain

2013 The Year In Review

AUGUST

It was announced that the Beal Companies, Street-Works' partner in the $1.6 billion downtown project, had pulled out of the project and been replaced by Twining Properties. The move came after Beal entered into a partnership with the Related Company and that partnership – Related Beal – decided to refocus their development strategy.

Stephen J. McGrath, Quincy's Human Resources director and a former city councillor and city solicitor, died days short of his 60th birthday. Mayor Thomas Koch, who appointed Mr. McGrath the city's HR director in 2007, said he was heartbroken following the loss of his longtime friend.

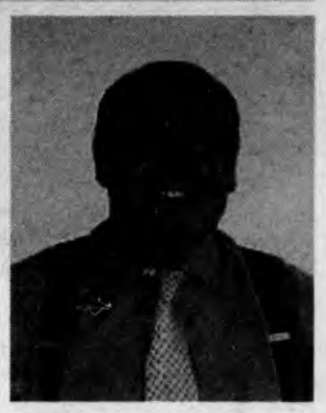

"I am heartbroken – Steve McGrath was a remarkable public servant who dedicated his life's work to the city he loves as a city councillor, a city solicitor and most recently as our human resources director," Koch said. "His sharp wit, love of history and politics and his passion for life were truly wonderful gifts that his friends and loved ones will always cherish."

Mr. McGrath served as solicitor under then-Mayor James Sheets from 1990 to 2002 – the two ran against each other for mayor in 1989. Sheets praised his onetime opponent for his loyalty.

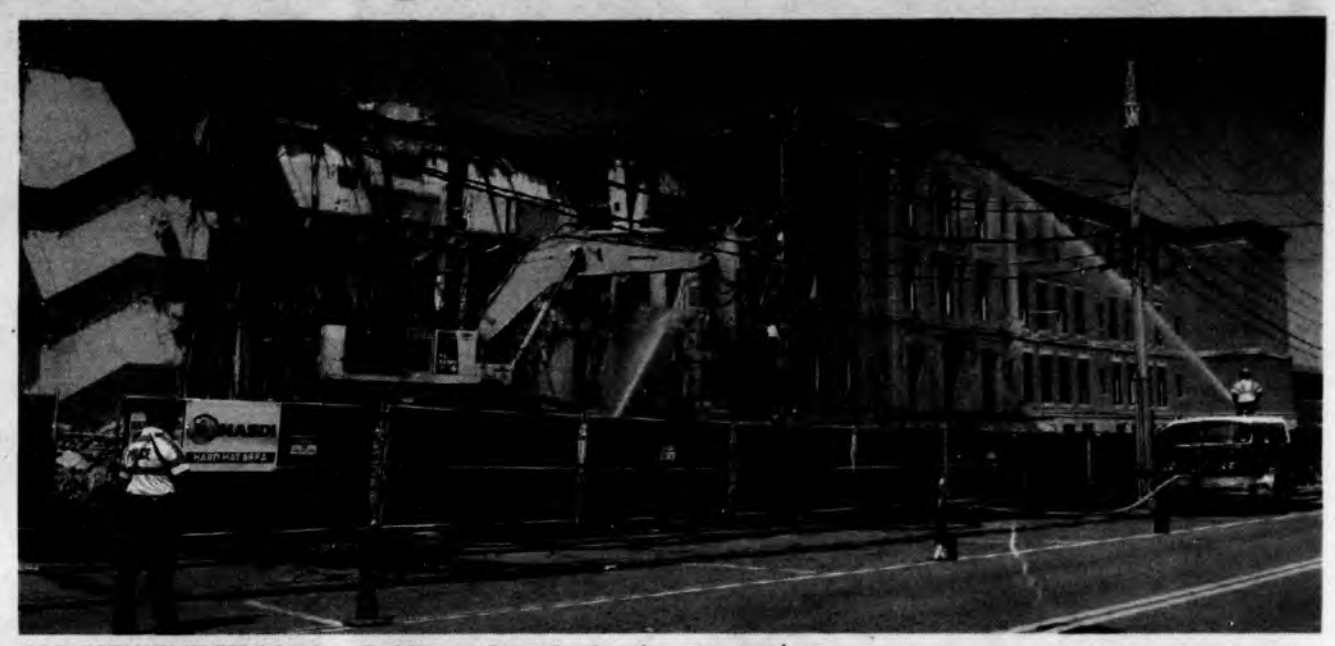

"No one in my 12 years was more loyal," Sheets said. "He was always there for me. I was thrilled when Mayor Koch named him director of human resources."

The home of the Quincy Art Association at 26 High School Ave. was re-named Annette M. Paglierani Center for the Arts in honor of one of the association's founders. Mrs. Paglierani's son Joseph was grateful the city dedicated the building to his late mother.

"My mother touched thousands of lives," Joseph said. "She is looking down on us and cheering us on to continue the work she started."

STEPHEN J. McGRATH, Quincy's Human Resources director and a former city councillor and city solicitor, died Aug. 9, a few days before his 60th birthday. 'His sharp wit, love of history and politics and his passion for life were truly wonderful gifts that his friends and loved ones will always cherish," said longtime friend Mayor Thomas Koch.

OLD QUINCY HIGH School - a Coddington Street landmark for 89 years - was demolished over the course of four days in August. The razing drew many curiosity seekers including QHS graduates. Some were saddened to see the building go. City officials planned to landscape the area and add parking spaces for the new Quincy High School located next door.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins said Quincy would appeal a federal judge's ruling against the city that awarded $81,000 in legal fees to non-union construction interests who sued the city over its Responsible Employer Ordinance. Timmins also reiterated that the city would appeal the original decision striking down the ordinance.

Mark Free, coach of Quincy's Cal Ripken 12-year old All Star Team, said his players had an experience they would never forget while playing in the Cal Ripken World Series in Hammond, Ind. The team was eliminated after going 1-3 in its bracket, losing a tie breaker on runs.

"The experience was awesome," Free said. "We all had a great time. To experience something like the World Series and everything it has to offer is something we will always remember."

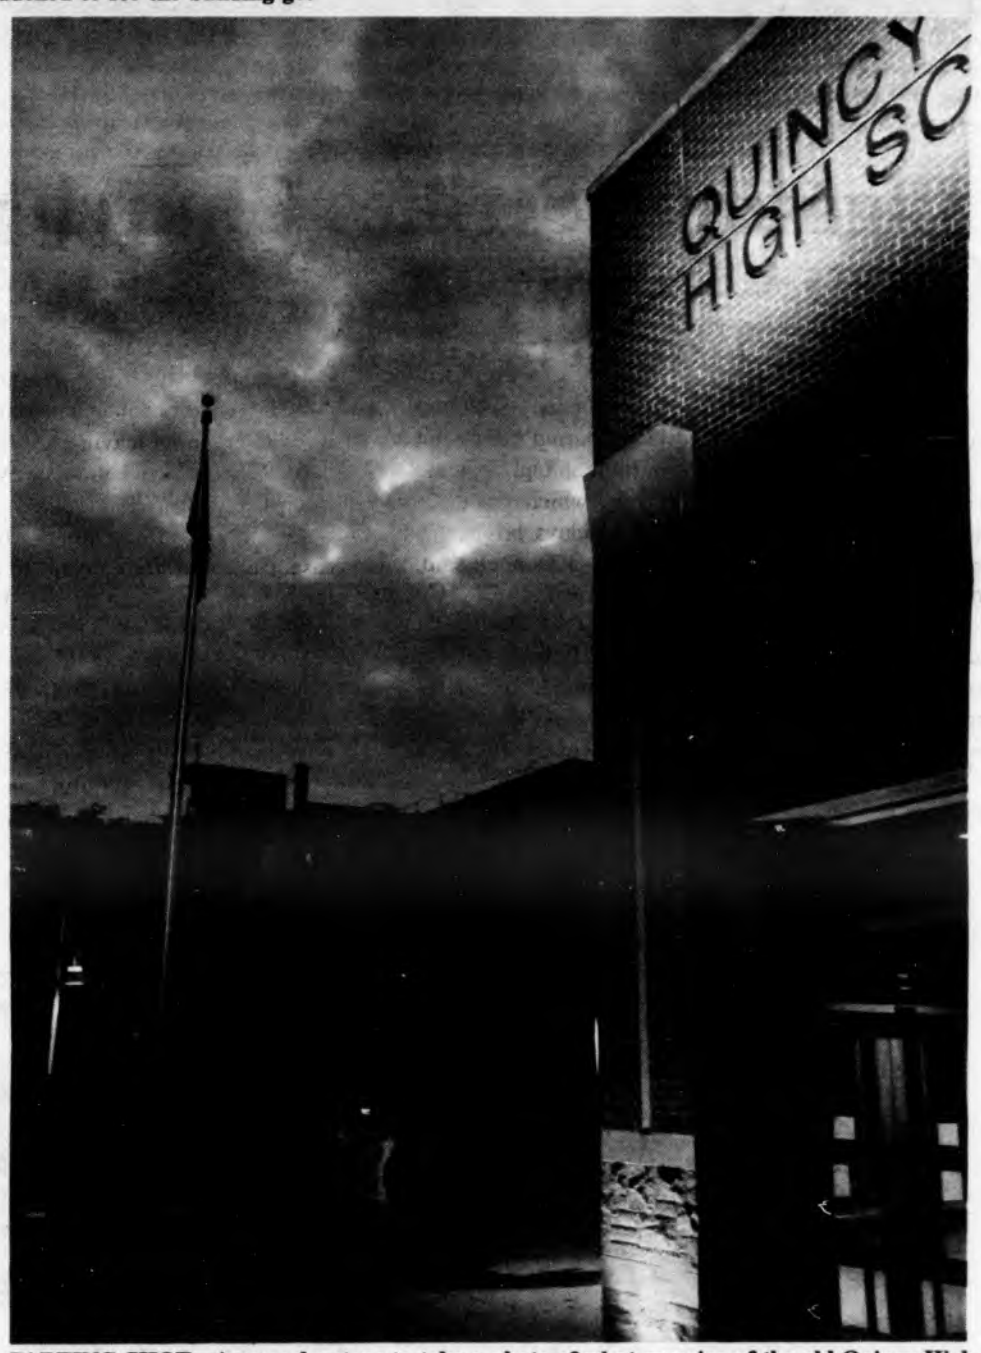

The Quincy Junior and Senior League All Star teams both competed in their leagues' regional tournaments in New Jersey. The Senior League team went 3-2 in the double-elimination tournament. The Junior League team won its first two games before dropping its next two.

Quincy College opened its new Biotechnology and Compliance Laboratory. The lab was funded in part by a $3 million federal grant and a grant of $100,000 from the state.

Street-Works announced changes to their plans for the ongoing Merchants Row project. The developer originally planned to construct two new buildings – one 15-story building and a five-story one – but the plans now called for three six-story buildings. The change came about after Street-Works reached agreements to purchase additional buildings on the block. By building shorter buildings, the developer also hoped to cut costs in the midst of a region-wide spike in construction costs.

"The reason we did this is construction costs in Boston are spiking right now," said Street-Works partner Richard Heapes. "There's a lot of construction going on right now – it's a matter of supply and demand. You can build six stories cheaper than the high rise."

The 89-year old Quincy High School building was demolished over the course of four days. A crowd gathered on Coddington Street as demolition began. Many of those who present attended the school. Among those on hand was Elaine Nilsen Caliri, a 1960 Quincy High graduate, who was saddened to see her alma mater be torn down.

More than 12,000 people flocked to the August Moon Festival in Quincy Center, one of the largest one-day events on the South Shore. The event raised more than $100,000 for Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. QARI President Gabriel Cheong was pleased with the event's turnout.

"It is no longer just an Asian event. Walking around you see a lot of different faces – it's an event for the entire Quincy community and the South Shore," Cheong said. "The longer we've been running it the bigger it has become."

SEPTEMBER

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti said he was unlikely to run for state treasurer in 2014, citing the impact a campaign could have on his family.

"On a scale of one to ten – with ten meaning I'm definitely going to run – I'd say I'm a three or a four," Bellotti said.

Bethany Congregational Church was struck by lighting just before the start of Sunday services. The lightning shattered one of the church's pinnacles, but no one was injured.

The Quincy Police Department launched a campaign to educate bar owners about the drug known as 'Molly' – purportedly a pure form of the club drug MDMA – following a string of overdoses and arrests at the Ocean Club. Police Chief Paul Keenan said a dozen people overdosed on the drug – none fatally – at the club over the summer, leading police to launch undercover operations. Police arrested eight individuals for allegedly selling MDMA and other drugs including marijuana, cocaine, and Adderall at the club. The arrests led to the cancellation of the Ocean Club's final scheduled events in September.

Gerard Ceurvels and Thomas McGovern were appointed lieutenants in the Fire Department.

Mayor Thomas Koch said the city and state were nearing an agreement that would allow Quincy to develop the Quincy Center MBTA station site into a mixed-use facility with office and retail space, and possibly a new court facility, above the station.

U.S. Rep. Stephen F. Lynch hosted a town hall forum on the crisis in Syria at Quincy High. Lynch told the audience of more than 100 residents that attacking the Middle Eastern nation would be the wrong decision.

"I love my president but based on my own reading of this…I think that is the wrong decision," Lynch said when asked about President Barack Obama's plan to launch airstrikes against Syria following the use of chemical weapons against rebels in the country.

Lillian and John Austin, the parents of fallen firefighter John T. Austin, donated $10,000 to the city in honor of their late son. The money was meant to fund improvements at fire stations across Quincy, starting with the West Quincy firehouse Firefighter Austin was assigned to.

"Let's give them the tools so they can do their jobs," Lillian Austin said.

BALLOONS, SIGNS, PICTURES, flowers, and poems decorated the fence surrounding the Whitwell Street Playground where 'Puppy Doe' was found Aug. 31. The memorial was set up in September after authorities released information on the pit bull – dubbed 'Puppy Doe' by investigators – that was tortured so badly it had to be euthanized. In October, Poland native Radoslaw Czerkawski was arrested in Connecticut and arraigned in Quincy District Court on 11 counts of animal cruelty. He was held on $500,000 and was indicted by a grand jury Nov. 21 on 12 counts of animal abuse and one count of misleading investigators. If convicted, Czerkawski would face up to five years per count in state prison. Quincy Sun Photos/Emily Armstrong

"The only thing we asked was it start at John's old station, because these guys had a loss so let's give them something to help offset that loss."

Lois Murphy was named the honorary 'Mayor of Houghs Neck' during the ninth annual ChowdaFest. She was given the title for raising the most money for the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Meredith Earnest took home the award for best chowder at ChowdaFest. Walter Hubley finished second and Brian Keith was third. Wood Road Deli of Braintree won for best chowder in the restaurant category, Adams Pub Best Western of Quincy was the runner-up, and Louis Restaurant of Houghs Neck was third.

The Quincy Police Department and Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey sought the public's help in identifying the owner of "Puppy Doe" a pitbull found on Aug. 31 on Whitwell Street. The dog was so badly abused it was euthanized. The Animal Rescue League of Boston and PETA both put up $5,000 for information on the dog's owners. More than 1,000 gathered at a vigil for Puppy Doe at Pageant Field, many of who took their own pets with them.

A committee reviewing designs for the new sculptures of John Adams and John Hancock to be installed in Adams Green named five finalists. The five finalists – Toby Mendez, Charles Fagan, Pablo Eduardo, the duo of Sergey Eylanbekov and Penelope Jencks and the duo of Giancarlo Biagi and Jill Burkee – met with the committee to discuss their ideas for the statues. The new statues are set to be featured in the park along with existing statues of John Adams and Abigail and John Quincy Adams.

A four-alarm fire gutted the Masonic Building in Quincy Center. Firefighters from Quincy and Boston took nearly four hours to contain the inferno, which began in the basement. Workers in the basement were using cutting and grinding tools, causing sparks that ignited insulation.

Those workers were able to get out of the building safely, and none of the firefighters on scene were hurt.

The temple, built in 1926 and added to the National Registry of Historic Places in 1989, was a total loss except for its front façade.

"It's such a sad day for Quincy because the building is such an architectural jewel," said Jim Bennette, a Mason whose grandfather was a member of lodge when it was first built. "They had some occasions for the public to come into the building, and it's a shame more people didn't see it because it's probably ruined now. It was an incredible piece of art, in addition to being something special for the Masons."

Deaths during September included:

Lawrence J. Cleary, retired Boston Police detective; Trudy L. Conboy, former member of the YMCA board of directors; Edward F. Voelkel, a retired researched at the Harvard School of Public Health; Francis M. Connolly, 91, retired Boston Police officer and Pearl Harbor survivor; John E. Shannon, former board member of Quincy Youth Hockey; Mario DeLuca, 90, retired co-owner of DeLuca Brothers Masonry; Cynthia T. Wilson, retired Quincy schoolteacher; Kathleen T. Minukas, a traffic supervisor for the City of Quincy and a member of the North Quincy High Football Hall of Fame; Dr. John P. Latchaw, Jr., 61, a former doctor at Quincy Hospital; Charles W. Djerf, 79, retired Quincy schoolteacher and public address announcer at Veterans Memorial Stadium; Keith A. Nickerson, 61, former QATV sports director and co-producer; Michael F. Hanley, 66, a retired State Police trooper and attorney; and N. June Columbus, 90, retired Quincy Health Department employee.

A partial shutdown of the federal government forced the closure of the Adams National Historical Park for more than two weeks. The closure of the park affected visitation at other historic sites in Quincy, including the United First Parish Church, where visitation was cut by more than half.

QUINCY LOST a beloved community activist Oct. 1 with the passing of longtime resident Gloria Noble. "Gloria was a remarkable woman and part of a remarkable duo together with her husband, Bob," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "She was truly part of the fabric of our community, involved in so many aspects of civic life throughout her years."

the age of 87. Mrs. Noble served with a number of organizations including the Quincy Democratic City Committee; the South Shore Women's Political Caucus; DOVE; the Southeastern Chapter of American Ex-Prisoners of War; The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee; the Quincy Historical Society; and Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library, among many others. She and her husband Robert were awarded The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award in 2008.

"Gloria was a remarkable woman and part of a remarkable duo together with her husband Bob," Mayor Thomas Koch said. "She was truly part of the fabric of our community, involved in so many aspects of civic life throughout her years."

"Gloria was a pretty special person," Sen. John Keenan added. "She was a devoted wife and mother all while being a true role model in being an active and involved citizen."

The City Council approved a $1.5 million bond to pay for landscaping the old Quincy High School site. The design plans called for creating 60,000 square feet of green space, which would include four dozen trees – 14 large ones to screen out Presidents Place and 32 smaller trees. Another 5,000 square feet would be reserved for additional plantings, with the possibility of more space being used for a garden for culinary students. The council approved the plan 8-0.

The Boston Bruins honored U.S. Army Privates Josh Batres and Andrew MacPhail, both of Quincy, during their home game on Columbus Day. They appeared on TD Garden's jumbotron as they were honored with the '8-Spoked Salute' the team gives each game to service members.

NEW SIGN for Central Middle School is revealed after over 700 students, faculty, school officials, and city and state officials marched up Hancock Street Oct. 21 to the new middle school located at 875 Hancock St. From left: Central Assistant Principal Richard DeCristofaro Jr., Principal Jennifer Fay-Beers, Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, 'Deputy Mayor' of Central Alana Sullivan, 'Mayor' of Central Douglas Brown and Mayor Tom Koch.

Officials celebrated the start of $8 million worth of renovations to old City Hall. Planning for the renovations began in 2011. City Council President Michael McFarland, who served as the council's representative on the committee that planned renovations, called the project an exciting one.

"I never expected it would take this long and require this much work and go through as many renditions of the projects as we have seen, but this is our seat of government, this is our history, this is the City of Quincy," McFarland said. "When you talk to people you love about Quincy they recognize the Church of the Presidents and they recognize City Hall. This is an exciting project."

Gov. Deval Patrick signed into law a home rule petition granting Quincy an additional 27 liquor licenses to be used in Quincy Center. The City Council had passed the home rule petition in January.

The new, $50 million Central Middle School opened to much fanfare. Central Principal Jennifer Fay-Beers said the building would be able to meet the needs of current students and students of the future as well.

"Five years ago our goal was to create a building that was modern enough to meet the needs of today's students and their families yet versatile enough to be relevant to our future students as well as our community 50 years from now," Fay-Beers said. "This beautiful building encourages student learning, enhances teacher practice, welcomes families, and nurtures their support. It was worth the wait."

A standing room only crowd was on hand to celebrate an Anniversary Mass of Thanksgiving to mark 150th anniversary of the St. John the Baptist Parish. Cardinal Sean P. O'Malley, the archbishop of Boston, was principal celebrant at the Mass.

A wreath-laying ceremony was held at the United First Parish Church to commemorate the 278th anniversary of John Adams' birth. For the first time, the annual ceremony included student speakers from each of Quincy's three high schools – Quincy High's Lydia Culp, North Quincy's Michelle Murphy, and Maura McDonough of the Woodward School.

Joe Brill, a 58-year old Quincy resident, was one of the nearly 40,000 fans in attendance at Fenway Park when the Boston Red Sox won the 2013 World Series – their eighth championship and the first one clinched at Fenway since 1918. The feat was even more remark-

Radoslaw Czerkawski, a 32-year-old Polish citizen, was charged with 11 counts of animal cruelty related to the "Puppy Doe" case. Prosecutors alleged Czerkawski tortured and abused the dog while residing on Whitwell Street, where he was a caretaker for an elderly woman. Czerkawski pleaded innocent at his arraignment at Quincy District Court, and was held on $500,000 bail.

NOVEMBER

Noel DiBona, a political newcomer, topped the ballot for School Committee in Quincy's municipal election. DiBona, a small business owner and coach of the Quincy Point Panthers football team, garnered 6,482 votes. Anne Mahoney received 5,558 votes to secure her third term on the committee, Barbara Isola captured third place and was elected to her third term, finishing with 5,066 votes. Incumbent Emily Lebo finished fourth with 4,793 votes, losing her bid for re-election.

"This is very emotional for me. It's so emotional I can't believe it's happening. I put a lot of work into this and I had a great team," DiBona said. "I credit this to a lot of people."

In the city's only other contested race, Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci won re-election against challenger Michael Healy. Palmucci polled 1,547 votes to Healy's 365. Mayor Thomas Koch and the other eight incumbent councillors all ran unopposed.

Voters also approved a binding referendum to change the mayoral term to four years beginning after the 2015 election. Voters also approved a second binding question, amending Quincy's acceptance of the state Community Preservation Act. A non-binding referendum on merging the two high schools into one school with two campuses was rejected.

Election Day was also a milestone for former Mayors Walter Hannon and Frank McCauley. The two were first elected as ward councillors on Nov. 5, 1963, and they celebrated the 50th anniversary of that day with a reunion at the Neighborhood Club.

Rep. Bruce Ayers called on the City of Boston to close the Long Island Bridge after the Quincy Conservation Commission ordered a peer review of the bridge. Boston was attempting to complete a $14 million project to improve the bridge.

NOEL DiBONA, making his first run for public office, topped the School Committee ballot in the Nov. 5 city election. DiBona received 6,482 votes to win a four-year term on the school committee. Incumbents Anne Mahoney and Barbara Isola were also re-elected. Emily Lebo, running for a second term, finished fourth and was unseated.

The city opened two new homes for veterans at the site of the former Houghs Neck Legion Post.

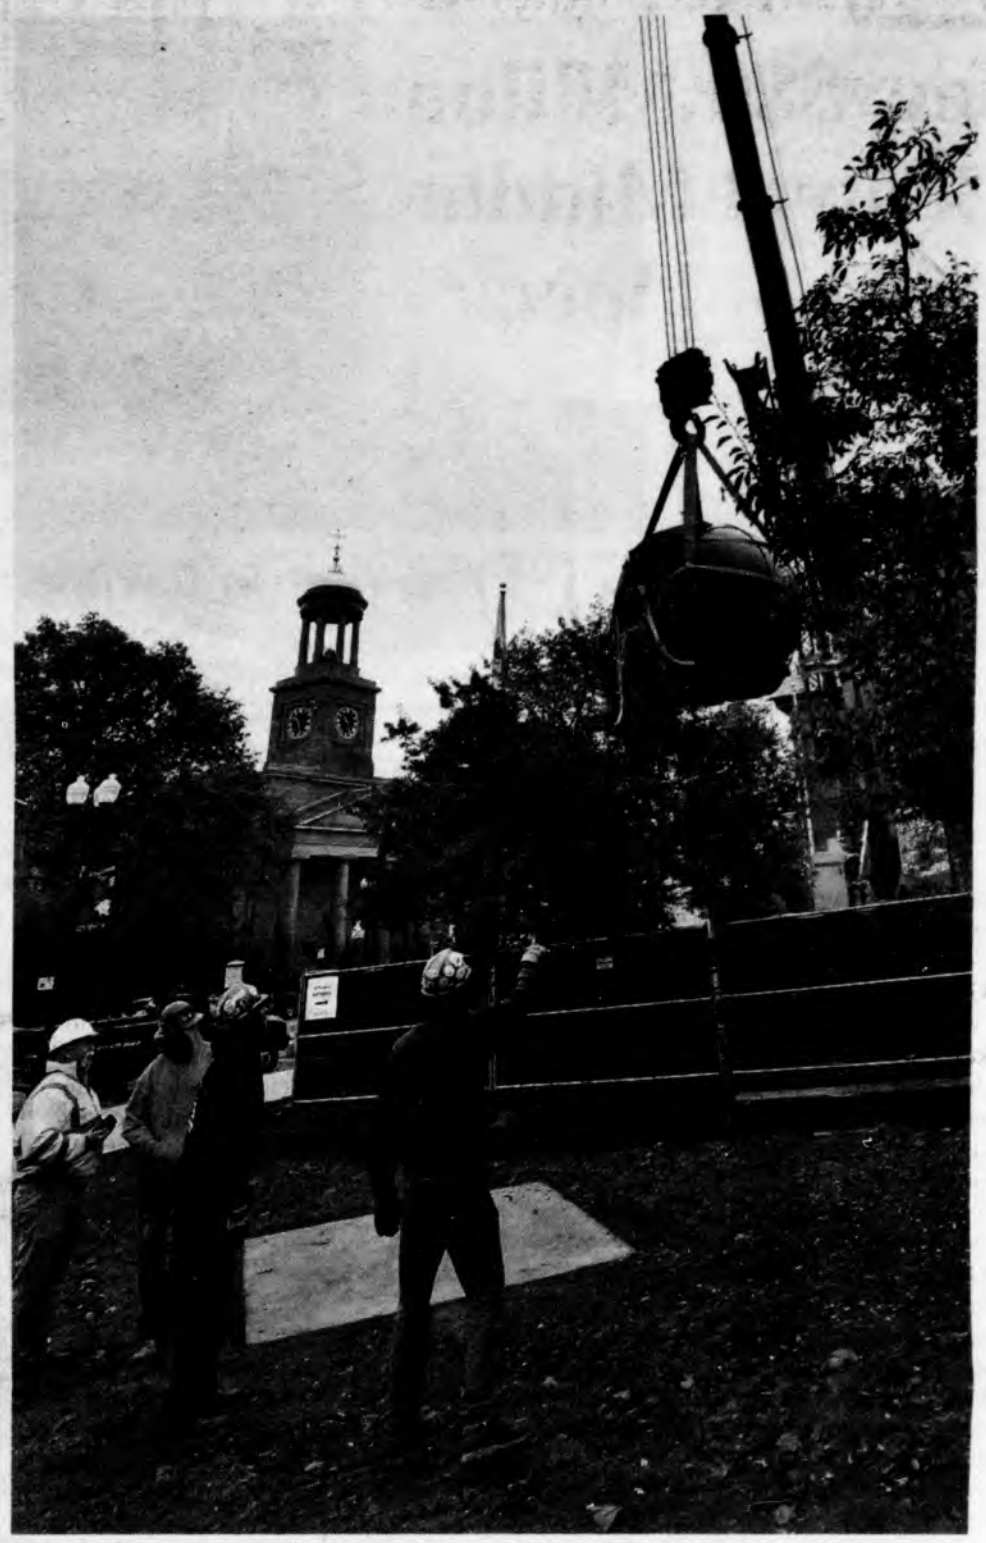

Kenneth Narva, the managing partner for Street-Works and a U.S. Navy veteran, was the keynote speaker at Quincy's Veterans Day observance. Narva said the four years he spent in the Navy were the most significant in his life.

"I spent four years in the Navy during the Vietnam Conflict. I lost many close friends during that conflict, but I would tell you that those four years serving my country were perhaps the most important four years in my life," Narva told the crowd of nearly 200.

The Boston Celtics honored World War II U.S. Army veteran and ex-prisoner of war Robert Noble during the team's home game on Veterans Day. The tribute included an interview with Noble that appeared on the jumbotron during the game.

School Committee member Emily Lebo suggested that the city dedicate the new green space on the campus of Quincy High to Bruce McDonald, a longtime educator who died July 16. Lebo called Mr. McDonald an 'educator extraordinaire' and man of great humor and great compassion.

The Fire Department swore in seven new recruits – Jonathan O'Driscoll, Stephen Spring, Timothy Lynch, Justin Pothier, George Zirhgiebell, John Holler, and Darryl Zoia.

Richard Heapes, a partner with Street-Works, said the company stopped work on the Merchants Row project site because of a surge in construction prices. Heapes said construction prices increased by 37 percent in the Boston area in 2013, and projected an 18 percent increase in 2014.

Koch Proposes $12M In Upgrades For NQHS Campus

"You will notice that the site is now closed and it's not under construction. It is clear on our account and by our equity [partners] – both Quincy Mutual and LaSalle – that we can no longer move forward on the site and spend construction dollars until we get a handle on this and understand how it's going to work," Heapes told the City Council.

Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines said the administration believed the developer would have new designs for the buildings in the spring.

A citywide ban on synthetic marijuana was signed into effect by Mayor Thomas Koch, following an 8-0 vote of the City Council to authorize the ban. Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin sponsored the ordinance prohibiting synthetic marijuana, saying the drug had been marketed to children and teenagers.

Matthew Enos was named an Eagle Scout for coordinating project to restore the garden and grounds of the Wollaston Elementary School.

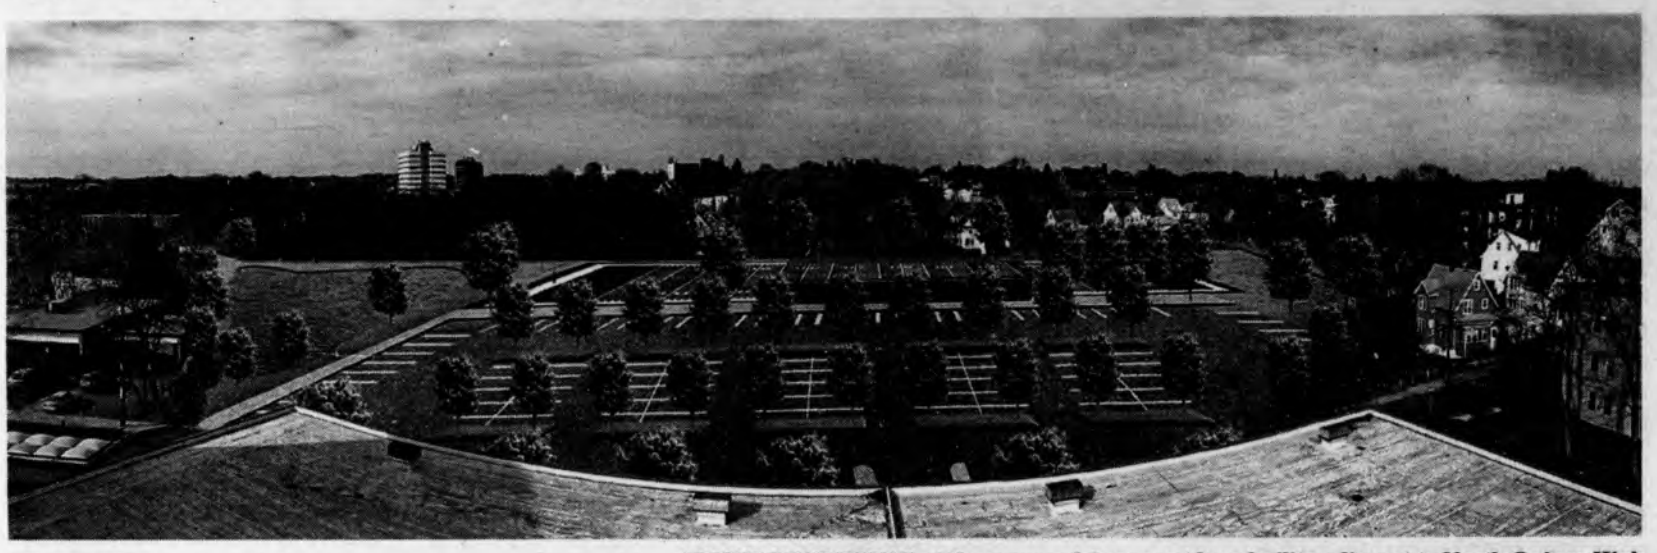

A special panel recommended raising the mayor's salary to $160,000, a $38,000 increase from the current salary of $122,000. The same panel recommended raises for the City Council and 56 other department heads and appointees.

Mayor Thomas Koch unveiled a $12 million plan to upgrade the North Quincy High School campus. The mayor's plan included taking nine properties on Hunt Street and Newbury Avenue to upgrade Teel Field to accommodate a 600-seat grandstand and a 157-vehicle parking area.

Quincy shutout North Quincy, 14-0, to win the 81st Thanksgiving Day game between the two schools. Presidents running backs Jahvae Handsome-Fields (75 yards on 10 carries) and Alex Alexandre (65 yards on 14 carries) had the game's two touchdowns. Red Raiders rusher Antoine Allen gained 75 yards on the ground for North on 20 carries. The win gave Quincy a 45-31-5 record over North in the rivalry.

At halftime during the game, the press box at Veterans' Memorial Stadium was dedicated to the late Charles W. Djerf. Mr. Djerf served as the public address announcer for Quincy and North home games for 47 years before retiring. He died in September at the age of 79.

Koch 'Confident' Downtown Project Will Move Forward

2013 The Year In Review

SOME 200 BUSINESS leaders listen as Mayor Thomas Koch (standing at right) provides an update on the first development project of the new Quincy Center – Merchants Row – at a meeting Dec. 17 at the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. The project was suspended earlier this fall due to surging construction costs according to the developer, Street-Works. The mayor, however, expressed confidence that the project will move forward in 2014. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

Deaths during November included:

Raymond C. Stenson, Sr., 84, founder of Country Ski and Sport, Inc.; Thomas Orseno, a longtime Quincy school custodian; John F. Mulligan, 87, retired Quincy Police lieutenant; Ronald J. Carlow, 81, former Quincy Police officer; Stella M. Burke, former teacher's aid at the Pollard School; Thomas R. Donelin, Jr., 60, owner of the Naborhood Pharmacy; Barbara A. McConville, past Merrymount Association board member; Ernest J. Bettuchy, 89, owner of Ernie's Salvage; Marjorie A. Pettinelli, 90, a longtime Quincy High food service employee; James S. Guadiano, Sr., 81, retired Public Works snow director.

DECEMBER

An estimated 30,000 people braved the rain to attend Quincy's 61st annual Christmas parade. Fifteen floats participated in the parade, all decorated to reflect this year's theme, "the music of Christmas." The Quincy Chamber of Commerce won the Mayor's Trophy for Best Float for its Alvin and the Chipmunks theme entry.

The City Council approved Mayor Thomas Koch's proposed new residential tax rate of $14.86. The new rate meant the average single-family tax bill would increase by $107. The commercial rate was raised to $31.23.

Seventy community leaders – including elected officials, city department heads, business leaders and heads of service organizations – rang the bell for the Salvation Army at its 17th annual community leaders kettle in front of City Hall.

Fiberglass statues of baby Jesus, Mary, Joseph and a lamb were taken from the city's nativity scene in the Hancock Cemetery. The three Holy Family statues were recovered just over 24 hours later, though the lamb wasn't found.

The gym at the new Central Middle School was dedicated to longtime educator and coach Mario "Mike" Casali. He taught in the Quincy school system for 41 years, including 26 as the physical education teacher at Central before becoming a guidance teacher at several other schools in the city. School Committeeman Paul Bregoli, one of Casali's former students, had recommended the committee dedicate the gym in his honor.

"His concern was always about his students," Bregoli said. "He always gave everyone an opportunity to play no matter if you were the best player on the team or the 15th best player on a 15-man team."

At a special meeting to address concerns about the Quincy Center project, Mayor Thomas Koch said he was confident the project would move forward and the developer and its investors were fully committed to the redevelopment.

"A lot (has) been said in the papers, a lot (has) been talked about in general. I get questions all the time about different aspects," Koch said. "But the reality is Street-Works is in fully. Quincy Mutual is in fully. LaSalle is in fully."

The mayor also added that he was preparing to go before the City Council in 2014 with suggestions to amend Quincy's land disposition agreement with the developer, Street-Works, to help reduce the payments the company is required to make to the city.

Deaths during December included:

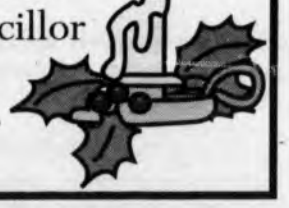

James F. Eddy, Sr., 88, former Quincy College business instructor; Peter J. Benelli, 81, retired Thayer Academy headmaster; John Hambarian, 86, a Korean War Purple Heart recipient; and Virginia A. Brattan, 89, a former teacher at St. Ann's School.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Friday, December 13, 2013, at approximately 1:50 p.m., Officer Steve DesRoche, working plain clothes in the Anti-Crime Unit, was standing at the bus way of the Quincy Center MBTA station monitoring the foot traffic in the area. He observed a male approaching numerous pedestrians as they walked by. Officer DesRoche watched as the male spoke to each pedestrian and they responded with a shake of the head or a brief response as they kept walking.

Knowing that the area is known for drug sales and consumption, the Officer kept the suspect under surveillance. At this time, the suspect approached a group of youths and engaged them in conversation.

A few moments later, the suspect became involved in a heated argument with one of the group's males, which led to a female in the group stepping in between them to prevent a fight. As Officer DesRoche started over to the area, he observed the suspect walk away from the group briefly, then charge at both the male and the female, hitting the female, which almost caused her to fall. The suspect then struck the male,in the head with a closed fist. Officer DesRoche then radioed to Quincy Communication his location, the disorder in progress and a request for back-up. The Officer then ran over to the group, grabbed the suspect and identified himself as a Quincy Police Officer. He then placed the suspect in handcuffs.

Officer John Goggin arrived on scene from a nearby detail and detained the male victim in order to determine what occurred.

According to the victim, he was standing around with a few friends, including his pregnant girlfriend (victim) when the suspect approached them and asked if they would like to "buy some drugs." The male victim told the suspect, "Get away from us." The suspect kept badgering them to buy drugs which led to a loud argument. The male victim told the suspect to leave them alone, but the suspect grew angry which resulted in the girlfriend stepping between them. The suspect walked away briefly, then "charged at us." Officer DesRoche asked the male victim if the suspect attempted to sell him drugs and he said, "Yes, Suboxone and Gabapentin."

The Officer then questioned the suspect, who said, "That f@#$ jumped me." The suspect added that he was standing "a few feet away when I was suddenly attacked by him." The Officer told the suspect that he watched the incident as it unfolded and it did not happen that way. Officer DesRoche then asked the suspect if he had any medication and/or prescription pills on him and he stated he did, but they were his pills. The prescription bottle had the suspect's name on it, with a prescription for Gabapentin. The prescription date was December 6, 2013 for a total of 60 pills. The instructions were for the prescribed to take 4 pills daily. If the prescription instructions were heeded, there should have been 28-32 pills remaining. There were only two pills left! Officer DesRoche placed the suspect, a 34 year old Quincy resident, under arrest for the assault on the male and female victims. Nice Work!

LT. DAN MINTON

ANOTHER JOB WELL DONE . . . . . On Sunday, December 15, 2013, at approximately 10:20 p.m., numerous Officers were dispatched to the area of Chester Street for a possible "armed robbery" involving two male suspects.

Upon arrival, the Officers gathered information from the witness and then from the victim, who spoke very little English. The caller said that he was watching television when he heard a woman scream. He went outside and saw a female victim standing in the street with a male running away. He asked the female if she was ok but she did not respond, so he called the Police to report the suspicious incident.

After speaking to the victim, who was in a nearby apartment, the Officers were able to determine that two young male suspects chased her down the street with some type of stick. Officers Dan Parisi and Matt Tobin searched the area of the Wollaston train station. As they approached the entrance, the Officers saw two males run up the steps. Once on the platform, the Officers saw a total of three people (a female and two males) at the station and they were all standing very close to each other, which seemed odd considering the amount of space available. The female called to the Officers and said, "Officer, I dropped my cell phone and now I can't find it. I think he has it," pointing to a male who was now walking briskly toward the stairs.

Officer Tobin called out to the suspect, who stopped on the steps, and asked him if he found a phone. The suspect said he didn't, then began looking around the platform, avoiding eye contact with the Officers. Officer Parisi asked the suspect if he had a cell phone on his person, prompting the suspect to pat-frisk his own pants pockets, then into the front of his hooded sweatshirt before answering, "No." The Officers found this behavior unusual because the average person would remember immediately if he/she had found a phone or had a cell phone on their person and would have no reason to search their pockets.

Officer Parisi pat-frisked the suspect and found a cell phone in his left front pocket and a knife in his right front pocket. When asked what type of phone he had and what the home screen picture was, the suspect replied, "Um – I don't know." The victim told the Officers the brand and the home screen image, confirming that the suspect had her phone in his possession. The phone was returned to the victim and the suspect (#1) was charged with, "Receiving Stolen Property over $250.00."

The focus of attention was now on the friend/suspect #2. Concerned that he may also have a knife, the Officers approached suspect #2 and pat frisked him, uncovering a black handled knife with a serrated silver blade from the front pocket of his hooded sweatshirt. This knife was approximately 6-8 inches in length. The Officers had reason to believe that these two males were involved in the original incident, so they brought the suspects back to Chester Street so that the witness and victim could confirm the identity of the suspects. The caller said he was "75% sure" that suspect #1 was the suspect seen fleeing.

Officer Parisi then re-interviewed the victim, who now had her son available to translate. She said that she was walking home from the train station when two males came up from behind her, yelling at her and brandishing a knife with a silver blade. She said she thought she was being robbed so she screamed and ran home. Officer Parisi told this victim that she was going to view two males that were found in the area and needed to confirm or deny their role in the crime. The victim said that she was frightened that they would come back to hurt her, but she still wanted to go forward.

After seeing both males, the victim confirmed that both males robbed her at knifepoint, with suspect #1 as the holder of the knife. Suspect #1, a 15 year old Roxbury resident, was charged with, "Armed Assault with Intent to Rob, Assault by Means of a Dangerous Weapon and Receiving Stolen Property." Suspect #2, a 12 year old South Boston resident, was charged with, "Armed Assault with intent to Rob and Assault by Means of a Dangerous Weapon." The 2 knives were confiscated and placed into evidence. It was the Officer's belief that the suspects were about to rob the female on the train platform but were thwarted by their quick response. Nice Work!

Ring In The New Year

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Many people ring in the new year with Champagne. People who receive Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) get to ring it in with a COLA. This year, more than 60 million Americans are receiving a 1.5 percent cost of living adjustment (COLA) in their monthly benefit payment.

The 1.5 percent COLA begins with increased benefits for more than 57 million Social Security beneficiaries in January 2014, and payments to more than 8 million SSI recipients in late December 2013.

Social Security Online Services
Convenient • Secure
www.socialsecurity.gov

The estimated average monthly Social Security payment to a retired worker is $1,294 (in 2014), up from $1,275 (in 2013). The average monthly Social Security disability payment for an individual is $1,148 (in 2014), up from $1,131 (in 2013).

The basic monthly federal payment for SSI is $721 (in 2014), up from $710 (in 2013).

Some other changes that take effect in January of each year are based on the increase in average wages. For example, the maximum amount of earnings subject to the Social Security payroll tax (taxable maximum) will increase to $117,000, up from $113,700. Of the estimated 165 million workers who will pay Social Security taxes in 2014, about 10 million will pay higher taxes as a result of the increase in the taxable maximum.

The amount of earnings needed for one credit of Social Security coverage has gone up as well, but all workers can still earn up to four credits in a year. In 2014, a worker earns a credit after earning $1,200. In 2013, one credit of coverage was $1,160. It takes forty credits to be fully insured for retirement benefits.

Information about Medicare changes for 2014 is available at www.medicare.gov. Visit www.socialsecurity.gov/pressoffice to learn more about the COLA and other Social Security changes in 2014.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It's a good time to take a much-needed break from your recent hectic schedule and spend some time in quieter surroundings. Important news could arrive early next week.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Taurean traits of reliability and thoroughness could be well-tested when decision-makers consider your proposals and/or requests. Be prepared to answer some probing questions.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A sudden attack of boredom leaves you with some tasks undone. It's OK to take a short respite. But get back to work by week's end so that you have time for other projects.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Avoid prejudging a situation just because it looks bad. Facts could emerge that would make your position uncomfortable, to say the least. A relative has interesting news to share with you.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) This is a good time to begin reassessing some of your recent decisions about your long-range goals to see if they still have merit. Spend more time with loved ones this weekend.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An unsettled situation at home or on the job early in the week could drain your energy levels, making it difficult to get your work done on schedule. But things improve by midweek.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A temporary setback could give you time to go over your plans to find weaknesses you might have overlooked before. A romantic getaway with that special person is favored this weekend.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Professional and personal situations benefit once you set a positive tone in getting things off to a good start. Honest dialogue smoothes over any occasional display of balkiness.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A problem with workplace colleagues or family members seems to defy even your sage counsel. But be patient. Your words eventually will lead to a resolution.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Don't just wait out that unexpected and unexplained delay in your career move. You could gain added respect if you ask why it happened and what you can do to move things along.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Although your workplace strategies usually are accepted, you could be challenged by someone who isn't so favorably impressed. Be prepared to defend your positions.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your friendship circle expands, with new people coming into your life at this time. Welcome them warmly. But don't neglect those cherished longtime personal relationships.
BORN THIS WEEK: You love to search for knowledge and share it with others. You would make an especially fine teacher.

Says Best Way To Gain The Voters Trust Is To Be Transparent About Where The Government Is Spending Its Money

Evan Falchuk: An Independent In Mass. Governor's Race

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

For Evan Falchuk, the United Independent Party gubernatorial candidate, deciding to run wasn't just to become governor but to also change the voters view about the state government and politicians.

"I think from seeing so many people and listening to them talk that the number one thing that we really have to get through is this problem that people do not trust or have confidence in the state government," said Falchuk. "I hear all the time some version of, 'it's rigged, they don't care about how the money is spent.' It's not good and we need the government to do all sorts of important things. The trouble is if you don't trust in them how do you go about getting those things accomplished."

Falchuk said he believes the best way to gain the voters trust is to go through the state budget in great detail and be transparent about where the government is spending its money.

"If we could find three percent of the budget that's being spent in ways that don't make sense, miss allocated, that's a billion dollars a year," said Falchuk. "We have to, from the beginning, be able to make clear there's a new way of taking a look at how we are spending our money, it's got to be transparent, open, and accountable, and voters have to see results, and see that we are spending money differently, that's the number one thing."

Falchuk is running as a part of the United Independent Party, a newly formed party that is meant to start to change the way the government system works.

"The polarization and the disconnect in this political process is something we all know about but we don't see a lot of people doing something about it. I decided to do something about it, to create something new," said Falchuk.

"The idea behind creating United Independent Party as a party is to say this has to be about so much more than just a candidate trying to win an election, obviously that's part of this, but it's about saying what will the world look like in 2016, the next year where we have the elections for the state legislature."

Falchuk, who recently worked for Best Doctors, plans to tackle job creation, health insurance, and veteran care if elected governor.

"We have to be doing a lot more to create jobs in Massachusetts. The realization that the big driver of economic growth in the 21st Century in Massachusetts is small and medium sized businesses that's where it comes from that's reality, and our policies don't work to support those kinds of initiatives," said Falchuk.

"The number one cost that small businesses deal with is healthcare cost. There is sort of the who pays for healthcare and how does care get delivered and in all these different models they all end up in the same place, which is doctors not having enough time and information being very fragmented and it's difficult to keep up with the pace of medical advances.

"There is other things that you start to think about, people that are really in need of help, people that are really vulnerable. I don't understand how it can be that there is allowed to be a single homeless veteran in the state of Massachusetts. The federal government has failed to make sure that every veteran has a place to live, and something to eat, and an income, we have to pick up the slack, and that's not happening," added Falchuk.

EVAN FALCHUK is the newly-formed United Independent Party gubernatorial candidate for 2014.

Those issues are a priority for Falchuk if he is elected but he says what needs to be done first is to change the conversation.

"It's a big problem we have nationally in the United States with this disconnected and polarized politics. What we really, really have to do is change the conversation, and get past this stuff, stop getting stuck in this rut," said Falchuk.

"It won't change by electing more of the same people and it won't change because we protest against it. It will change because some group of people gets together and proves that it is possible to do it differently and creates a new way of doing it. When I describe what it is I'm doing it's pragmatically progressive and fiscally sensible. Those combinations of things are where people are and that's not represented by either of the parties.

"We can actually do this, we can actually make this a reality, and I know it's a project that takes time to go and say how do we change the political conversation in our state but it has to start and this is a place we could start to make that stand against the polarization and the disconnectedness. It's a statewide message and it is about more than one candidate, one election. I want to see this larger cause be turned into a reality," Falchuk added.

OBITUARIES

Elsie Alden Clemente, 95

ELSIE ALDEN CLEMENTE

A memorial service for Elsie Alden Clemente, 95, a resident of 1000 Southern Artery, will be held at the Quincy Point Congregational Church at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Mrs. Clemente died Dec. 19 after a short illness.

She was born in 1918 and lived most of her 95 years in Quincy and Braintree. She was a ninth generation descendant of Pilgrims John and Priscilla Alden. Her father, Frank was born and brought up in the Alden homestead in Duxbury. Her fair skin, blonde hair and good looks earned her the childhood nickname of "Dolly."

As a child, she was an accomplished singer and dancer and was a sought after entertainer. She performed in venues such as Moseley's on the Charles, Boston Loew's Orpheum, the Casino at Old Orchard Beach as well as many local venues in the Quincy area and sang on the Big Brother Bob Emery radio show and on radio station WLOE. She graduated from North Quincy High School in 1935, one of the school's first graduating classes. A classmate wrote in her yearbook: "Always keep that rhythm in those feet."

On June 26, 1937, she married Paul Clemente at the Memorial Congregational Church in North Quincy. The minister said they were "the best looking couple he ever married." She was also an entertainer and they sang together often. A favorite tune was "Summertime," which she sang while he accompanied her on the guitar. The family went to Worcester every other week to visit Mr. Clemente's family and these visits inevitably became a jam session as the couple was joined by other family members with song, guitar and piano.

On their 50th wedding anniversary they enjoyed a trip to Europe and on their 60th, they boarded the "Spirit of Boston" for a party given by their four children. They were able to spend many winters in Seminole, FL. She was a fixture at the 1000 Southern Artery residences and was known for her color coordinated wardrobe, right down to the earrings and shoes. Mr. Clemente passed away four months short of their 70th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Clemente was always loving but stoic. As a descendant of the Pilgrims, she inherited those "We can survive a harsh winter in a new land" genes. Her family never saw her cry. Those genes served her well when in 1942 she was asked to identify the body of her sister-in-law who perished in the Cocoanut Grove fire. She never forgot her trip to the makeshift morgue.

She was an excellent seamstress and baker and had an unusual skill for a woman of her era. She was an expert in home remodeling and routinely did painting, wallpapering and carpentering. When her son remodeled his kitchen, Mrs. Clemente was there showing him how to hang cabinets, drop ceilings and tear down walls!

She was proud of her Alden heritage and attended annual Alden Kindred reunions in Duxbury where for years she was the oldest attendee. When she was 95 she was honored as the oldest attendee and her great-grandson, Grant Alden Braasch was honored as the youngest.

Mrs. Clemente is survived by her four children: Carol Dykstra and her husband Bill of Braintree, Paul Clemente and his wife Patti of Milton, Valerie Clemente of TN and Karen Clemente of Hull. She is also survived by five grandchildren, six great-grandchildren, and her niece Edie Walsh of Hull.

Re-Building Haiti School Making Progress Thanks To Quincy Residents

By EMILY ARMSTRONG

In 2010 a massive earthquake hit Port-au-Prince, Haiti leaving the country and the St. Yves School in disarray. Now, nearly four years later, the school is on its way towards completion all thanks to the businesses and residents of Quincy.

"This whole project is a Quincy project," said fundraiser organizer and daughter of one of the school's founders, Marie-Denise Fabien. "It's the people of Quincy who have been pushing us all along. They have been just so great with donating and supporting the rebuild, I can't thank everyone enough."

The school was founded by Joseph Fabien and Osias Semovil over 52 years ago and serves students in grades K-12. When the earthquake hit the school was completely destroyed leaving hundreds of students without a place to learn. After the earthquake hit Fabien reopened the school in temporary tents teaching only around 60 students. In September, 2011 the school welcomed 200 students with plans to increase the enrollment throughout the academic year while the building of the new school was under construction.

Since the earthquake Fabien has been able to raise enough money to install weather resistant roofs, lay the foundation, paint the entire place red and yellow, install benches, hang blackboards, install two bathrooms, separate each classroom and completely enclose the school along with much more so that the students are comfortable and the building is up to code with the Department of Education.

"We installed weather resistant roofs so we know that we can abstain any hurricane force or earthquake if it happens again," said Fabien. "We also are able to let students in grades 1, 2, and 3 attend the school for free now that we are up to code and have the required number of benches in each classroom."

Next on the list for Fabien is to install electricity in the classrooms using solar panels, allowing for computers and PBS programming to be included in lessons.

"We received a generous donation of two computers and a printer that we would like to be able to use at the school, so the solar panels would be great to get installed. We want to try to make everything self sufficient by installing solar panels," said Fabien. "My biggest goal will be to be able to feed our students, that was our goal before the earthquake hit, but once that happened we had to adjust our focus to rebuilding. The school is at the point of no return, we are moving forward and that is a great accomplishment."

The school will cost around $100,000 in total to rebuild, Fabien has raised around $25,000 within the last few years. This past May Fabien held her largest fundraiser event where they raised enough money to install benches at the school to seat over 300 students.

All donations benefit the St. Yves School Foundation, a 501(3c) non-profit organization. Donations are tax deductible and can be made to "The Haitian Fund to Rebuild St. Yves" account at Citizens Bank.

For more information or to donate contact Marie-Denise Fabien at 617-347-1535.

The dangers of ice and snow begin at your front door!

Please keep your sidewalk and steps free and clear of snow and ice for the mail carrier, the oil delivery person, and police and fire this winter season. Don't force school children to walk in the street. Help your elderly neighbors to shovel.
